THE STATE TRIAL AT DUBLIN.

The New York Sun of last Tuesday, says:

No trial in modern times has surpassed in interest the judicial inquiry now going on at Dublin into the circumstances attending the assassination of Mr. Burke and Lord Frederick Cavendish in Phoenix Park.

James Carey, a Town Councillor, who was concerned in the conspiracy, has told the story of the crime. A band of men who called themselves the Irish Invincibles, and who were under the direction and control of leaders in London, had determined "to remove all tyrants." The subordinate agents of this organization bound themselves to obedience by the most solemn oaths.

The original idea was "to remove" Mr. Forster, then Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Earl Cowper, the Lord Lieutenant. The plans to kill Mr. Forster were defeated repeatedly by occurrences which the plotters could not foresee. He left Ireland, and, under the orders of a mysterious commander known as Number One, the conspirators turned their attention to Mr. Burke.

Seven men were engaged in the assassination. The summary of the evidence would indicate that Lord Frederick Cavendish was killed simply because he happened to be with Mr. Burke at the time of the attack upon that gentleman.

The whole story presents a most striking and startling picture. There is something like it in Wm. Black's novel "Sunrise." Everybody said his account of the nihilists was too improbable, but in the light of these disclosures at Dublin the criticism is unjust.

In this prosaic and enlightened nineteenth century tragedies are enacted as thrilling and terrible as any of the barbarous ages.

BRAIPWOOD, ILL., Feb. 18.—It is now ascertained that 74 men were overwhelmed in the Diamond mine on Friday. The mine is situated about two miles from here, and is operated by the Wilmington Coal Association. The sudden thaw and heavy rainfall have transformed the prairie into a lake. About Diamond the water stands from six inches to three feet in depth. With scarcely any warning there suddenly appeared an opening from the surface of the earth into the mine. The surface being covered with water, it took only a short time for the water to permeate the entire mine, drowning all who were unable to get out before the rising water caught them. The galleries were low and narrow, and only by painfully slow crawling could the poor victims escape.

There was an air-shaft offering an avenue of escape, of which many availed themselves, but the water came in too rapidly to allow all to reach it. There is no chance of a rescue, but in order to reach the bodies of the dead, Mr. Fordice, general manager of the company, has gone to the scene of the disaster with two steam pumps. An engineer estimates the amount of water at several million barrels, and with the present pumping capacity it will take twenty-five days to pump out the shaft.—Sun.

A SCHOOL PANIC.—An outbreak of fire in a schoolhouse attached to the Roman Catholic Church of the Most Holy Redeemer in New York on Tuesday, was the cause of a panic by which 17 children lost their lives. Over 700 children attended the school. The removal of the children was progressing rapidly when a female teacher in charge of a class of girls, fainting from the excitement, and in the confusion following the children fell over one another, the stair railing broke and precipitated them to the floor below. They were found lying four and five deep. The fire was promptly extinguished. All this from an ill-constructed railing.

THE TRAMPS.—The Frederick Times in its last weekly issue, discussed the tramp question in a very convincing form, and showed beyond dispute, that the accumulation of the genus in the jail, is the just outcome of the Tramp Law, whereby the entire county supports them in confinement to the relief of the individual citizens; and very pertinently concludes that some plan should be adopted whereby their time may be beneficially given to the general public utility. Give them work, that only can cure the disease and eradicate the nomadic tribe.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19, 1883.

Mr. J. H. Haverly the well known theatrical manager, is going to have fifty theatres under his control next year and is now actively at work perfecting his arrangements. He has secured very substantial backing and feels confident of making a grand success of his enterprise. Mr. John Stetson will have three theatres, Mr. Wallack two, and Mr. Abbey two or three besides his stars. It is thus that theatrical business is becoming a monopoly, the same as almost every other kind of commercial venture. The small men will go or remain as employees of the big ones, while the latter will grow rich in proportion. Perhaps this concentration of effort will be a benefit after all, for while being able to pay better prices for dramatic talent, both authors and actors, managers will be able to produce their novelties on a larger scale and much superior style, at a cheaper rate for the people, and yet bound to get their money back with a profit no matter how unsuccessful the play.

I had a little talk with one of the principal editors of a leading magazine, who was at one time a theatrical manager. "It seems to me," he said that poets are not as plentiful as they used to be. "At least our waste baskets get less of the moon, fewer sonnets, elegies and odes than they used to. There are still a lot of women, who affect the burnian style of thought and expression, and a few men who have not yet got over the triolier fever which Oscar Wilde spread broadcast, but outside of them we get but little trouble. I believe all the poets have taken to write plays. And, no wonder, for the gains from a good play are much larger than from any book, no matter how well it sells. It seems strange to me, sometimes how easy it is for an author to dispose of a play to an actor or actress anxious to star. I have had plays read to me, which I thought so wretchedly poor that it would have been an insult to a decent fire to spoil it with them, and yet the authors have disposed of them at handsome prices. Fortunately for art these plays do not live very long, sometimes only two weeks, but this is often very hard on the actor or actress who has invested his or her little all in it.

Senator Windom it is said, will after his retirement take up his residence in New York, joining that already large colony of distinguished men who have gained fame and fortune in the provinces and come to the metropolis to enjoy them and if possible to add to them. Ex Governor Stanford of California, has made himself quite at home here now, and to further emphasize his determination to make the most of New York life, he is going to buy a string of race horses and seek the same distinction on the turf which he has already gained on the trotting track. New York is getting to be more and more the Paris of America. All good Frenchmen hope to get to Paris on the Seine before they die, and find parents seek to provide their children with education and means sufficient to make the capital their home. The same feeling with regard to Gotham seems to be growing in this country.

Bachelors in town have certainly no reason to find fault with the accommodations provided for them in the matter of comfortable homes. There are three first class apartment houses in existence now where the unmarried Sybarite may enjoy the comforts of a home with the many conveniences of a hotel. The establishments are fitted up in hard wood throughout, provided with every luxury, and are perfect so far as sanitary requirements are concerned. Of course to live in them requires money, but one gets his money's worth. Now however, a wealthy capitalist is about building another bachelor's apartment house for men of less means. It is to be eight stories high, fire-proof and furnished with every modern improvement including elevators and the electric light. It will be fitted up in a less luxurious manner. There will be no scarce foreign woods for floors, ceiling and wainscoting, no Turkish rugs, etc., but the idea is to provide every comfort and a certain amount of luxury which can be devised for men unable or unwilling to pay more than from six to ten dollars a week for a single room, or from eighteen to thirty for a suite consisting of sitting room, dressing room, and study. The plans for this structure have not been completed but the architects are actively at work.

Said a leading manufacturer to me the other day: "Do you know that England has become a pretty good customer for the confectioner's trade? It is but a short time ago since a few purchases were made. Now dealers in candy on the British Isles import thousands of pounds almost every week. They particularly like our caramels, cream drops and marshmallows. There is some difficulty in packing the drops properly, however, as a long sea voyage generally has a bad effect on them." America is fast becoming the store house of the world. Already the Old World is a regular customer for our grain, our oats, our hops, our beef, our pork and our fruit. Now they are beginning to buy our luxuries, and this too with the cheapness of labor on the other side. Last Saturday five hundred head of working and carriage horses were shipped to England. Most of them were already sold and were sent at the buyers risk. The Bull's Head dealers say that the demand for American horses abroad is increasing from month to month.

The Cremation Society is steadily though withal quietly progressing. The membership is already large and by means of pamphlets, lectures and newspaper articles they are striving to win people from the idea of burying their dead, in favor of having them consumed by fire. The necessity of removing the remains interred in old city cemeteries sixty or seventy years ago, is certainly an argument which they will turn into their favor, for there is something inexpressibly shocking to the mind to have the ashes of ones dear ones disturbed, it not desecrated after resting in peace for years. A new crematory is now in process of erection on Long Island. For some reason or other the people are very mysterious about it. No one is allowed to enter the peculiar mound like structure which has arisen from the midst of a Long Island plain, and the principal men in the society refuse absolutely to say anything about the building or its arrangements for the present.

The new Fulton Market is to be opened in a few days though with out ceremonies. The formal celebration will be held on April 21st, the opening of the trout season when the fish dealers will provide an immense fish dinner for their guests.

MONEY is flowing in large sums to the sufferers by the Western floods, and for humanity's sake, let it flow more and more.

HERE AT LAST.

After Long and Weary Waiting Relief is Brought to those who are afflicted with "Well, Pat" said an Orange county Physician to a complaining Irish patient some years ago, "for that pain in your chest you had better go home and put on a mustard plaster. I can't think this minute of anything better. And by the way," added the doctor, turning to a friend, "I wish somebody would invent a real good plaster—something actually helpful for such cases as Pat's. Maybe they will sometime, when its too late for me to use it."

When BENSON'S CAPSINE PLOUGH was placed in the hands of a doctor, the doctor's hope became a fact. Because of the rare medicinal virtues inherent in it, its rapid action and sure results, the Capsine is fast displacing the slow-acting plasters of former days, for all affections to which a plaster is ever applicable. Price 25 cents. In the hands of the genuine is cut the word CAPSINE.

NOTICE.

An opportunity is now offered to those seeking a safe and profitable investment in a business fully established. The business has paid out to stockholders in dividends an average of 12 per cent per annum since it was established in 1859, the two last paying the heaviest. We have not been able with our present capacity to fill all the orders we receive for engines and saw mills in the year just closing, and it is this fact which renders this step necessary.

The Books for subscription will be opened Nov. 2, 1882, at the office of the Company in Waynesboro. The par value is one hundred dollars per share. Terms: One half to be paid in cash January 1, 1883, balance by note with approved security: Due April 1, 1883. For further information call at the office, or address.

CRIMINALS and the premises generally of our citizens should now be examined and thoroughly relieved of any water that may have accumulated, as well as of vegetable and other offal, and be purified by the use of copperas, lime or other disinfectants. Now is the time when typhoid fever, and other zymotic disorders take root. Prevention is better than cure.

A Fatal Fall.

Frederick, Md. Feb. 16.—Milton Weddie, aged about 21 years, and employee at Catoctin Furnaces, while in the performance of his duties last night, fell backward from the top of the furnace to the ground, a distance of sixty feet, breaking both legs and sustaining other injuries which it is thought will prove fatal.

John Harr, who lived here this city, died this evening, in the 91st year of his age.—Baltimore Sun.

Weddie died Sunday morning and was buried in the afternoon of that day in Mechanicstown.—Ed.

Death of an old Gentleman.

The many friends of Mr. John B. Stimmel will regret to learn of his death, which occurred at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Henry Cramer, about 5 miles North of this city on Saturday morning last, aged 91 years, 7 months and 11 days. The deceased was well and favorably known throughout the county. His funeral took place on Sunday afternoon. The interment took place at Woodboro'. Rev. Mr. Stulenberger officiating.—Examiner.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb.—This evening three children of Charles W. Smith, living three miles from Cumberland, on the Baltimore turnpike, were playing with a .38 revolver, loaded with No. 1 cartridge. One of the children, aged about 6 years, said: "Shoot mother," whereupon a little girl, aged 5 years, pointed the pistol at her mother's left breast and fired. Physicians failed to find the ball. It is thought she will recover. The children picked up the revolver about the house.—Baltimore Sun.

HE DID NOT BUY AND WILL NOT BUILD.—The Hon. M. G. Urner as reported in the Baltimore Sun, makes a denial of the alleged purchase by him, of a lot in Washington city, on which to build a house, as follows: "This is the cruellest joke that has ever been played on me. I have not bought any lot, and of course I do not want to build any house. I never thought of such a thing, and how the statement happened to be made I do not know. I do know, however, that there have been a lot of people after me during the past three days—architects with plans, builders with estimates, others who want the job of digging the foundations, men who want the contract to furnish me with brick, stone, lumber and things in that line. I am sorry I have had to decline their numerous offers. During my congressional career I have had more than my share of persons running after me for office, but this new demand on me is just a trifle more than I want to stand. I close my congressional career in a couple of weeks and will settle down in my home in Frederick City and pursue the practice of my profession—the law. I will eschew politics in the future in any shape and devote myself entirely to law. My people were kind to me and I am thankful, but I intend to close up on politics. But I would like to know the man who started the story about me buying a lot, just the same. I would send these architects, contractors, builders, &c. after him and see if he would enjoy the fun, I have had enough of it."

The pre-ident here desired the members of the association to bear in mind, that however important the subject under discussion, it was necessary to treat it with coolness and discrimination, if any good results were to be effected; and proposed making an appeal to those engaged in the traffic, hoping thus to reach their hearts and consciences and awaken them to a sense of their obligation to God and their neighbor. This proposition being favorably received and Mrs. Emily Tracy appointed to draw up the appeal to the liquor dealers, the meeting adjourned to meet again next Saturday afternoon.

A Toothsome Morsel.

This from the Madison (Wis.) Democrat, conveys its own moral.—Hold on! We are cognizant of the fact that an aching tooth was last night caused by the application of St. Jacobs Oil. The young fellow got mad over his raging tooth in the ball room, and rushed straight way to a drug store where he applied the good old German Remedy; in ten minutes the toothache had gone.

THE Gettysburg Compiler says:—As Mr. Henry Deardorff and wife were returning from church at Arendtsville, Tuesday evening, the 13th, the horse attached to the sleigh took fright and ran through the woods, dashing the sleigh against a log and throwing the occupants out. With the exception of a few bruises Mrs. D. received no injury was done.

The week before Mr. Deardorff was crossing the fording 1/2 mile east of Harbath's mill, in Butler township, his horse became fastened in the ice where the water was very deep. Mr. Franklin Kline assisted him out of his dangerous position.

Mr. William Black, an aged and respected citizen of Straban township, died very suddenly on Monday morning. He had attended to the feeding at the barn as usual, and returned to the house, but soon after complained of feeling ill, and by ten o'clock was a corpse. Death is supposed to have been caused by heart disease. He was aged 81 years 1 month and 10 days.

Susie Bixler, a little girl, while warming herself at the stove in the school house at New Cumberland, last week, had her clothes ignited and was burned to death before the flames could be extinguished. The teacher and the other scholars were present, but could not save her.

Fourth Regular Meeting of the "Emmitsburg Woman's Rights Association."

The members of the Association being in their places in good time the president proceeded at once to address the meeting on the important subjects which called for immediate attention.

She said, "she thought we had every reason to be encouraged in our efforts to elevate the position of women, for the ridicule, sneers and denunciations of the sterner sex, showed that they were seriously alarmed at the prospect of our success, whilst expressions of sympathy came in on every side from those in whose interests we are working. And further, she wanted to impress, not only on the members of the association, but on the public at large, that we are not striving to usurp man's place, in the social circle, in business or in politics. We have no intention of exchanging petticoats for pants, and fighting for a foothold in the learned professions; we hope to reach the desired end, without any eloquent displays either in the pulpit or the court room, and hope to prove that woman can be in everything man's equal yet be a woman still."

Quite a sensation was apparent among the members when the president concluded her remarks and Mrs. Mildred rose to enquire, "if any further steps were to be taken at this meeting on the Tobacco question?" Miss Lucy Larkins, said: "she had written to several associations in the large cities, asking for information as to the best mode to proceed in this particular course of reformation, but there had not yet been time to receive replies she hoped, however, by the next meeting to be able to lay before them some satisfactory information, as to what had been done elsewhere."

Mrs. Emily Tracy asked "if the association intended to take any steps, towards driving the demon of intemperance from our neighborhood?" That if women had any rights, preeminent among them, was the right to save, by any means, husband, son, and brother from the curse of drunkenness."

We have called in vain upon the law to suppress the evil for those who make the law, as well as those who execute them, are in a majority of cases, bound soul and body in the service of the devil who needs no better agent than rum, to drag his victims to perdition.

Miss Kate Longstreth thought, there was too much leniency shown towards drunkards; instead of luring them from the habit it encouraged them in it.—When a man deliberately lays aside his manhood and makes a beast of himself he forfeits all claim to consideration from the friends to whom he brings shame and misery. No woman who has any regard for herself or her family, ought to remain under the same roof with a drunkard. Better take her children to the Poor House, if you other refuge be open to her, than expose them to the demoralizing influences of the home that shelters him.

Mrs. Brush thought "it would be better at the beginning of the evil habit to put a stop to it, and imagined that if a woman would insist on accompanying her husband to his places of resort, it would effectively prevent his getting into bad company. No man has a right to go where he would not be willing to take his wife, nor to engage in any recreation that is not fit for her to share." Miss Silvia Wardwell said that "our rights" women gave us full liberty to make war on rum-selling and rum-drinking at every point and with every weapon we had power to wield; that if it were considered advisable to go in a body and demolish every establishment where intoxicating drink is sold, "she" would be willing to lead the attack, and would not stop till every drop of rum had been emptied into the gutters, where its victims were too often found.

The pre-ident here desired the members of the association to bear in mind, that however important the subject under discussion, it was necessary to treat it with coolness and discrimination, if any good results were to be effected; and proposed making an appeal to those engaged in the traffic, hoping thus to reach their hearts and consciences and awaken them to a sense of their obligation to God and their neighbor. [COMMUNICATED.]

MR. EDITOR:—Your reports of the meetings of the "Women's Rights Association" have elicited much curiosity, if not interest, and have given rise to as much discussion without as within the charmed circle. I had hoped the ladies would pursue the subject of discussion at their second meeting—"Our miserable system of domestic servitude"—that being a question of such vital interest to our domestic life in this community.—The plan proposed, of concerted action among housekeepers to regulate and establish conditions between them and their employees, would inevitably work a much needed reform. If wages were made relative to the quality and quantity of work accomplished, and the respectful deportment of the employed, instead of depending upon the length of time consumed, there would be some encouragement to those who seek such service to make themselves superior: whereas, under the present system they feel it useless to exert themselves to do more or better work, when those who idle, and slight their work get the same wages.—Concerted action on the part of housekeepers as to the hour of closing their houses for the night, would certainly tend to improve the moral character of those who make up their families whether children or servants.

The "tobacco question" is surely one which elicits the sympathy of all women. The very best that can be said of it, is that it is a most selfish indulgence—one which deprives a wife of many an hour's companionship, to which she is not only entitled by courtesy, but which is her inalienable right. It would be a great relief to womankind if the discomforts arising from the use of tobacco in either form could be restricted to the place of concourse of its slaves; but its "odorous" so permeate the outer and inner man who uses it, that even what he handles becomes an offense to "sensitive lungs"—and—noes! How can a man expect his wife to make herself attractive to him, by unselfish effort, if he makes himself offensive to her by selfish indulgence?—Twenty cents per week is a low estimate of the necessary expenditure for tobacco of its most moderate consumer—$10.40 per year: ask such an one to increase his benevolence that much, or afford the members of his family the means of doing so, and can he "afford it?" Ask his earnest minded wife or daughter, and she will probably tell you "I have no private purse"—no "pin money" but I may be able to do something, and she will conclude to give up sugar in her coffee, or make over for the second or third time the shabby old "best" dress, and so by her self-denial she will "afford" what he "can't" by reason of his self-indulgence.

Most heartily do I wish the "women's" success in their efforts to secure "their rights," which, in their very nature of rights can be no man's wrongs. It is hoped they will interest themselves in the discussion of another subject which is appropos to that of "tobacco"—gossip. Notwithstanding Mrs. Tracy's assertion to the contrary, on the abstract question, our experience in this community teaches us, that the "Smoking Assemblies" are far in advance of the "Ladies' Mite Societies" in the free and, not always kindly, discussion of other people's business. The gossip which harms is not always the deliberate, malicious slandering of one's neighbors, but the insidious, equally mischievous habit of discussing other people's affairs, with which they have no proper concern whatever—the kind which the poet describes in the lines—

"Ah me! a quick and eager ear
Caught up a little sound,
Another voice had breathed it clear,
And as it wandered round,
From ear to lips, from lips to ear,
Until it reached a gentle heart,
And that it broke!"

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for March has already reached us, and is so full of interesting reading, as well as valuable information, that it cannot fail to be eagerly welcomed in every household where it may find entrance. Fruits, vegetables, flowers, grain, and every kind of live-stock, all have due notice, while the dairy is not forgotten. Besides, there are so many hints, suggestions, plans and directions, that the intelligent reader either in town or country will be well repaid by studying it. The Cattle Bloat—What to do.

Some of our exchanges, have reported within the past few weeks cases of the "bloat" among cattle. At first view it would seem singular that the disorder should occur at this season, it being ordinarily an attendant upon the time of pasturing.

Now the organization of the bovine stomach is such, as to adapt it in a special manner to the formation of carbonic gas, when the conditions arise. This constitutes the disorder. It would seem then, that it matters not what the food may be, if the atmospheric or other influences favour, the trouble may occur.

On last Saturday evening, the cow of the Editor of this paper, showed all the symptoms of pain and distress, arising from the unnatural distention of her body. Of course the query at once arose. What is to be done? meeting a farmer friend on the street, he advised, to put a tarred band of rye straw in the animals mouth, and fasten it around her head; the straw not being at hand, a rag was substituted and tied in place; the mouth being thus opened, the gas escaped rapidly, and relief soon followed. We afterward learned that a real mode of proceeding is, to take simply, a piece of broomhandle or whatever may be convenient, and fix it in the mouth; another suggestion was to use scotch snuff; the sneezing that follows, causes the mouth to open, and the gas escapes. Yet another suggests, to put about half a pint of melted lard in a bottle, and pour it down the throat. A drover says just thrust a pen knife blade between the last ribs and the haunch bone, on the left side a few inches from the spine. The remedies are all good and efficient if promptly applied.

The 22d did not call forth any enthusiasm in this place. A few persons went to Frederick.

A SUDDEN DEATH.—Lucy Landers, the mother of our colored school teacher, died suddenly on Thursday morning. She retired in apparent health on Wednesday night, Thursday morning about five o'clock, some of the family heard a noise as if from a heavy fall on the floor up stairs, and hastening up found the old woman, lying insensible upon the floor. She was subject to heart disease, which no doubt reached its course as above.
