Gotham Gossip.

New Yorkers Deserving Millions.—
Raiding the Poor Sellers on Sunday.
Hypocritical Societies.—Cheap Books.
Little Profit to the Publishers.—A Loss to the Harpers.—How a Smart Trick was Neatly Pooled.—The Opening Day of the Brooklyn Bridge Fixed.

New York, April 24th, 1889.

If we New Yorkers do not soon become millionaires by being forced to save what we earn, it is not the fault of the Police Commissioners who now are anxious to execute the laws with Spartan rigor in order to be upheld as models of excellence, until they have been reappointed. With every gambling house closed, every policy shop raided, every public resort of disreputable womanhood and manhood harassed into a state of quietude, it was but fair to expect that last Sunday the sensational preachers would get up and thank God for the fact that the Police Board had knocked the evil one out in this town of Gotham. But the pachas of the blue coated forces went even further than that. Last Sunday was a miserably bleak and dreary day. The rain came down in a steady downpour and there was a misery afloat for those who had nothing to do but look out of the windows. Walking was out of the question. In the afternoon paterfamilias who works steadily all the week thought perhaps that he would send out for a pitcher of beer to relieve the monotony, when to his surprise he was informed that no beer was to be had, and that the proprietors of the saloon in the neighborhood who had been dispensing "bock" in blissful confidence had been arrested. Late on Saturday night the Commissioners issued an order to the Superintendent, and he communicated it to the Inspectors and Captains, commanding in the strictest terms that no beer or any other beverages must be sold on Sunday. These worthies saw at once that the order meant business, and carried it out to the letter. The result was that those of the New Yorkers who are not rich enough to keep a stock of something to drink in the house were compelled to forego even the innocent refreshment of a glass of beer. Thus it comes to pass that when the wrath of the gods at Police Headquarters is aroused the good must suffer equally with the bad.

The prime movers at the bottom of all this hue and cry are the half dozen or so societies that have set themselves the mission of making this city a sort of Zion's camp. Every law, be it ever so absurd is dragged out from the must and dust of oblivion and its execution forced. When the dog lay in the manger so that the horses could not get his food, it annoyed the horse very much and although the dog got nothing particularly for his labors his position gave him a great deal of satisfaction.

I was speaking with a well known author and literary critic the other day about the present condition of the book market, which, despite all appearances is very bad. "Does the publication of the Franklin Square Library, and other cheap editions of books pay the Harpers?" I asked. "I think not," replied he. "In fact I think they must bring out every one at a loss. In the first place this line of books has entirely destroyed the sale of the old time series of novels which in their olive covers were familiar sights throughout the country; but they had to do it in order to be able to compete with Munro the publisher of the Seaside Library, who threatened at one time to have an absolute monopoly of that class of books which is bought to be read and then laid aside."

"I am sure the Harpers are being hurt for the past few years, but they are only being paid back in their own coin. They were always known to be guilty of piratical practices, and never hesitated at anything when it became a question of getting the best of a rival. It is about twenty years ago, I believe, that the Putnam's paid for and secured from Murray the famous English publisher, the advance sheets of George Borrow's 'at that time famous novel Lavengro.' Its publication was announced for a certain day, now they felt that the Harpers would steal a march on them if they could. Thus they had one copy of the book bound, and its pages regularly numbered, but right in the heart of it, an entire chapter had been omitted. The book was placed where it was subject to outside influences. Sure enough it disappeared, and in a few days the Harpers announced the book among their publications. The Putnam's chuckled in their sleeves, for when the editions appeared the chapter was missing, and of course they pointed out the fact as well as the circumstances which had led to it. There was quite a stormy controversy, but the Harpers had to suppress the edition and everybody laughed."

The day for opening the Brooklyn Bridge to traffic has at last been fixed for the 24th of May, when the President will come on from Washington and all the great men of the State will assemble to land the enterprise and the genius which prompted and executed the work of binding the two cities together. But will the Bridge prove of practical value? Hardly, except on rare occasions. When people can ride over the East River in a ferry boat in the same time that they will have to walk over the Bridge, why should they pay toll for the latter? It will probably prove a very pleasant promenade and a curiosity for visitors from out-of-town, but further than that it will prove nothing but a monument of the deaths of hundreds of workmen and engineers, and of the modern science of swallowing up millions and showing nothing for it.

UNVEILING THE HENRY STATUE.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The statue of the late Professor Henry, the first secretary and director of the Smithsonian Institution, which has been erected on the Smithsonian Grounds, was unveiled to day with appropriate ceremonies, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, including many persons distinguished in the social, political, literary and scientific worlds. An appropriation of $15,000 was made by Congress in 1880 for the erection of this statue, the work to be executed by William Wetmore Story, the well-known American sculptor. It is of bronze, of heroic size, and is mounted upon a pedestal of polished Red Beach and Quincy gray granite. It represents the Professor in a standing position, and in an attitude of studious contemplation, his right arm gathered about him the folds of an academic gown.

THE TERRIBLE CYCLONE.

A cyclone of a very destructive character swept through four states, on last Sunday evening, dealing death and destruction in its course. At Wesson, Miss., there were developments, as if an earthquake were impending; thunder roared and lightning flashed, fences were torn down, trees uprooted and carried long distances away, dwellings were torn to pieces, and a pine forest was blown out of existence. Twelve persons were killed 150 or 200 dwellings were blown down. In Denver, Col., there was a tremendous snow storm. The latest accounts sum up, 33 persons killed and about 300 wounded. This all goes to show that whilst the disagreeable weather we have experienced has had its origin from the above derangement of the elements, we have been favoured with freedom from violent storms.

On last Friday (the 19th inst) was celebrated the centennial anniversary of the formal cessation of the war between the United States and Great Britain, on that day a century before Washington announced to his army the recognition of America's Independence by our foes. And yet the anniversary, signaling as it did an event of so much national importance, was commemorated only by a small military display in the vicinity of Washington's headquarters at the time he issued the order. The day possessed other features of historical interest importance. It was on the 19th of April, 1775, that the first blood was shed in the revolutionary struggle at Lexington. On the same day, eighty-six years later, the first blood in the civil war was shed in the streets of Baltimore.

THE COMING ECLIPSE.

On Sunday, May 6th, the Moon will pass between the Earth and the Sun, causing an eclipse. The shadow will pass over a tract of the earth's surface, a few hundred miles west of South America, and across the South Pacific Ocean to within a few hundred miles of Australia. The track includes only two small coral reefs, the Fling and Caroline Islands. Expeditions have sailed for these points to make observations. Important questions may be elucidated by the parties, beneficial to science.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 24 '89. The unveiling of the Henry statue last week was one of the most entirely successful affairs of the kind that has ever occurred in Washington. The details were carried out with perfect exactness, the distinguished audience present and the lovely weather combined to make the occasion perfect. Professor Henry, although well known to scientists outside of Washington, is not so generally known to the laity, but his peculiar work was in the creation almost of the Smithsonian Institution as it stands. According to the curious will of the curious Smithsonian the institution was to be 'for the increase and diffusion of knowledge.' This was a generalization so broad that nothing specific could be made of it. It is by many doubted whether James Smithson really expected his testamentary wishes to be carried out, as while he was known to be a very acute business man, his legacy to found the Smithsonian was subject to innumerable eventualities and his directions of the great fund as vague as possible. It really rested with Professor Henry to make the Smithsonian what he pleased; he actually succeeded in making it an institution for the increase and diffusion of knowledge. Most visitors are satisfied with examining the museum, but that is a mere adjunct of the real institution. One of the curiosities there is a sarcophagus with a flaming inscription that it was an ancient tomb brought from Beirut by Commodore Elliot on the frigate Constitution. The English of this is that Commodore Elliot cribbed the tombstone and brought it home.

Ex-Congressman and ex-Land Commissioner Burdette, once well known and prominent in Washington circles, but for some years past 'out of sight and out of mind,' was about the city last week. He is a dark eyed, stout, dark complexioned man, somewhat past middle age, with an air of melancholy reserve. He rarely speaks, and has almost no intimate friends. The circumstance which once made his name familiar over the land has perhaps been forgotten by most people. After his appointment as land commissioner by President Grant he went along quietly for some time, made a good officer, and appeared contented. His method of doing business were direct, his decisions clear, and his dark eyes never expressed unrest. But one day he disappeared from his office without leaving behind a single word or trace. There was nothing the most imaginative detective could call a clue. He had gone away without resigning. Various rumors floated about for days. By some it was said he had taken passage on board an out-going European steamer, and had jumped overboard the first night. Although no one knew anything, it was generally concluded Burdette had committed suicide. The fact of his going off and leaving a good office argued in favor of the suicide theory. Not a word was heard of the missing man for two years. Then, without a word of warning, he walked into his own house in the little Missouri village where he had lived before going to Washington. He at first could make no explanation. He was worn out with fatigue. After a night of rest he was able to tell his story. It was a remarkable one. He had lost consciousness in his office at Washington the day of his disappearance, and when he regained his right mind again so as to recognize his old self he was in Australia, and nearly two years had passed. Of that period he could not remember one word prior to the time when he came to himself in Australia. I wonder what jolly spirit returned to earth occupied the Burdette tenement for two years. The adventures of a stolen body. What a subject for a novel.

The center of attraction of the dead letter office is the recently established museum where the eyes of visitors can feast on almost anything from a needle to an anchor. In fact, it contains everything that can be enumerated. This acquisition to the many objects of interest to those sight seeing here is the work of Major E. J. Dallas, chief of the dead-letter office, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to place on exhibition all articles held in the office that would show or give an idea of the class of articles passing through the mails. Another object in view was to avoid the annoyance of visitors to the rooms where clerks are engaged, when the time of the clerks is taken up explaining the character of articles and work of the office. By the new arrangement every convenience is afforded the visitor, who is properly received by a lady in charge of the museum, who gives a graphic description of everything contained therein and such other information as may be desired by the visitor relative to the working of the office.

OLD LAND MARKS REMOVED.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 24, '89. These days of innovation bring about changes that often prove a source of sincere and continued regret, and yet, there are some exceptions to this rule; some uprooting of old land marks, and transfers to more congenial soil, that merit attention, and give cause for rejoicing.

In this latter light can be confidently regarded the removal of the "Chestnut St. Seminary," so long under the efficient charge of Misses Boumy and Dillage, to the spacious and elegant mansion of "Ogontz," the former country seat of Jay Cooke, Esq., its present large hearted proprietor.

Parents who have the best interests of their children at heart, can readily comprehend the graciousness of a removal of their daughters, during the period of mental training, from the almost necessarily contaminating influences incident to city life, morally and physically, into the invigorating healthfulness of pure air, exquisite beauty of scenery, and elegant but quiet surroundings, all tending to the promotion of strength of mind and body.

This change of residence carries with it an increase of scholastic capability; for there will be, united with its former principals, two ladies of unquestioned ability, well known here and elsewhere, Miss F. E. Bennett, and Miss S. J. Eastman. Quoting from a letter sent by one of these ladies to a Buffalo Paper, we read: "It is the intention to make it the very best school in the country. Without the idea of establishing the rigid course of Women's Colleges, it is expected that the teaching will be thorough, systematic, and abreast of the age. Particular attention will be paid to health, manners, and the refinements and graces of life. Character will always be considered a higher object of attainment than mere intellectual power." This gives, in synopsis, a clear definition of the educational training to be connected with Ogontz; and it will also be, what is of superior consideration, a Christian home.

Another point! No one, we imagine, who has been privileged to partake of the hospitality exercised by the Principals of this well known Institution, will contest our statement, that the liberal and careful provision for the inner-man is also a feature of this well appointed house; appetite is not simply appeased, but to a proper extent, gratified; and this is a fact of not a little importance, often, to those who desire to place their daughters in a school afar from their own residence.

Ogontz is situated within easy access to Philadelphia; its proprietor, with a liberality only commensurate with his great and extended benevolence in the past, is perfecting every arrangement by which immediate communication can be made with almost any part of our country, thus relieving anxiety on the part of parents, guardians or friends as to possibilities for ascertaining the welfare of their charge, without unreasonable delay. But the limit of such an article as this, forbids details of many features connected with Ogontz, that would prove of special interest; its grand proportions, its accessories for comfort, fitness for pleasure as well as for study, its artistic beauty, its outdoor amusements, picturesque view, and garden attractions.

We only add, that we feel we are doing but simple justice, and are conferring a favor on those who desire educational privileges for their daughters, by specifying this Institution as one which is eminently qualified to give satisfaction, and to induce gratitude for its superior advantages. Enquirers will, we are assured be promptly and cheerfully answered, if addressed to 1614 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally. If you are a man of business, weakened by the strain of your duties, avoid stimulants and take HOP BITTERS. If you are a man of letters, toiling over your midnight work, to restore brain and nerve waste, take HOP BITTERS. If you are young and suffering from any indiscretion or dissipation, take HOP BITTERS. If you are married or single, old or young suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take HOP BITTERS.

Whoever you are, wherever you are whenever you feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, take HOP BITTERS. Have you dyspepsia, kidney or urinary complaint, disease of the stomach, bowels, blood, liver or nerves. You will be cured if you take HOP BITTERS. If you are simply ailing, are weak and low spirited, try it! Buy it. Insist upon it. Your druggist keeps it. HOP BITTERS. It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., April 23, 1883. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them. Miss Annie Bowie; C. M. Engas; S. R. Fus; Will A. Lutz.

The trial of John Coyle, Jr., for the murder of Emily Myers in York Co., Pa., in May 1881, began at Gettysburg on Monday last. He had been tried at York, convicted and sentenced to be hanged. A change of venue was granted by reason of some technicality in the case and now the trial proceeds.

The Burgess, Mr. Jno. F. Hopp, desires us, as the Commissioners failed to meet at the regular time to make a report, to announce that he has received Thirty dollars and fifty cents ($30.50) during the past year for fines and licenses on behalf of "the Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg."

WESTMINSTER is like a bee hive. The burnt district is being cleared up and everything put in readiness for rebuilding. Our master carpenters and masons have ransacked the country round about for additional hands, and some have been drawn from Littlestown and other places. As soon as brick can be had, the burnt square will spring from its ashes, phoenix-like, with renewed strength and beauty.—Advocate.

PERMISSION having been granted by the county commissioners, an effort is now being made by citizens here to induce the city authorities to take down the iron railing surrounding the courthouse square, and to beautify the ground by laying out additional walks and flower beds, and the erection of several large fountains. It is expected that a cool and pleasant retreat will then be afforded all summer.—Frederick Correspondent Sun.

A Lady Injured by a Falling Tree.

WESTMINSTER, Md., April 25.—Mrs. Cordelia Beaver, living near this city, met with a serious accident this afternoon. Her son was cutting down a tree, and Mrs. Beaver, fearing it would demolish a fence in its fall, caught a limb to pull it aside. The tree falling, struck her on the head and inflicted a wound which laid bare the scalp from the front to the back of her head. She also sustained internal injuries, and her left ankle was dislocated.

Horse Thieves Around Again.

An unsuccessful attempt was made last Friday night to enter the stables of Mr. C. W. Hunsch, near Williamsport, for the purpose of stealing horses. The door was picked open, but a heavy iron bar running across the frame prevented their entrance. But for this Mr. H. would have lost some of his stock. It is believed that there is a regularly organized gang of horse thieves in this county, and that they have their local agents, who aid in the work. A little vigilance committee work would do a great deal in helping to ferret out the thieves.—Odd Fellow.

We have received a copy of the recent report of the "Baltimore Eye, Ear and Throat Charity Hospital, 186 Franklin St., Baltimore. Organized in February, 1882, this highly benevolent institution, which is supported by voluntary contributions, has proceeded in its humane mission with wonderful success. In the four months that succeeded the opening, hospital accommodation, including board has been given for 395 days; the board was given for 374 days; visits to the dispensary have been: To the Eye and Ear Department, 1614; to the Throat Department, 610; total, 2220. The number of individuals treated was 491. Being undenominational in its charities, the charitable disposed will find the Institution worthy of friendly consideration. Its primary object is the relief of the indigent poor who are suffering with eye, ear or throat diseases.

We clip the following from the Examiner.

The family of Mr. Chas. H. Houck, residing near Diehl's Mill, about five miles East of this city, has been visited with that dreaded disease, diphtheria, and since the 8th instant, has buried five interesting children, between eleven and 2 years of age. Their remains were interred at Doubt's grave-yard—three being buried at one time on Friday last, Rev. Dr. Diehl officiating. It is expected that a memorial funeral service for the five deceased children will be held on Sunday afternoon next, at 3 o'clock, at Rocky Springs, to be conducted by Rev. Dr. Diehl.

Israel Kessler, died at his residence, about half mile south of Jefferson, in this county, on Friday afternoon last, in the 76th year of his age. The deceased was well and favorably known throughout the county, and was a brother of Mr. A. P. Kessler, formerly Register of Wills for this county. His funeral took place from his late residence on Sunday morning. Interment was made at the Reformed burying ground in Jefferson, Rev. N. H. Skyles officiating.

PERSONALS.

Mr. Hall W. Eyster of Catonsville with his family, and Mrs. C. W. Kelly of Waynesboro, visit their brother, Geo. T. Eyster.

Miss Edith Motter returned home last Saturday after a visit of several months among friends in Pittsburg and Philadelphia.

Mr. Edw'd Miller and wife of Baltimore were the guests of Dr. Eichelberger.

Misses Mary M. and Emma B. Motter of Williamsport made a short visit.

Miss Grace Horner has returned home. Miss Mary King of Gettysburg made a short visit to her sister, Mrs. W. G. Horner, this week.

Miss Martina Adelsberger is visiting friends in Virginia.

A Fine Monument.

The Banner of Liberty, says: The executors of Gen. James M. Coal, deceased, have just erected a large and handsome monument, which for finish and size will more than compare with any other that has been built in this county. The design is Scottish, and its proportions are faultless. The monument is 15 feet 6 inches high. They also enclosed his lot with a new wrought iron railing. The work was executed by J. E. Sifford, of Frederick, and is done in his usual neatness.

During the thunder storm of Thursday last a locust tree standing near the barn on the little farm of Mrs. Lawson colored, about three miles north-west of Liberty, was struck by lightning and a cow standing near by killed.

Marriage Bells.

An interesting social event of this week was the marriage of Eugene L. Rowe, Esq., to Miss Anna Margaret, youngest daughter of Dr. James W. Eichelberger, which took place at the Lutheran Church on Wednesday evening. The church was crowded with friends and relatives of the parties, and others desirous of witnessing the ceremony. At half past eight the Groom entered with the Bride's maid, Miss Mary Motter, followed by the Bride, with her brother, Dr. J. W. Eichelberger, Jr., and as soon as the party reached the Chancel, the Pastor, Rev. E. S. Johnston, commenced the impressive words of the ceremony, the responses to which were repeated by both bride and groom so clearly and distinctly as to be heard in any part of the church.

The Bride wore a dress of white satin, with long court train, and a veil fastened with orange blossoms. A unique and interesting feature was the fact that the dress and slippers of the bride were the same that were worn by her mother, at her marriage, more than fifty years ago; time having apparently added beauty and richness to the costume.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the house of Dr. Eichelberger, where the numerous guests were pleasantly and sumptuously entertained until a late hour. The gifts were valuable and beautiful, consisting of glass, china and silverware, pictures, lamps, table-linen, embroidery vases, furniture, and many necessary household articles, even to flour and a considerable sum of money in gold. The happy couple started for Baltimore the next day, intending after a short trip to return and settle down to housekeeping in their native town. The best wishes of the community accompany them as they launch their boat to gather upon the Sea of Matrimony. May they sail peacefully upon its waters when the skies are clear, and comfort and help each other when trouble and storms overtake them.

Periodicals.

Eclectic Magazine.—The May number of this sterling old magazine is as bright as a spring day, and contains something to gratify and satisfy every variety of taste. Among which are the following: "Jonathan Swift," "The Limits of Science," by Rev. George Edmundson; "The Humorous in Literature," by J. Henry Shorthouse; "Brazil and her Railways," by Charles Waring; "Under the Snow," a story, by Mrs. Katharine S. Macquoid; "Recent French Novels," "The Sea Calls," by James Addington Symonds; "Wagner and Wagnerism," by Edmund Gurney; "A Persian Carpet," by Frederick Boyle; "And Indian Festival," "Miss Daisie's Diary," by Lady Lindsay; "Common-sense in Dress and Fashion," by Lady Paget; "Work and Overwork," by Dr. J. Milner Fothergill; Literary Notices; Foreign Literary Notes; Science and Art; Miscellany, &c. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms $5 per year.

The Century Magazine for May gives us a life-like portrait of Cardinal Manning, and opens with a Sketch of the Foundation, Prosperity and Ruin of the Franciscan Missions of California, which is accompanied with a likeness of Father Junipero Serra, the founder of the Missions, which is copied from old daguerotype, that was taken from a portrait painted more than a hundred years ago; "Pomona's Daughter," Frank Stockton; "My Adventures 'in Zulu,'" by Frank Cushing, 3d part; "Du Maurier and London Society," by Henry James, Jr.; "The Christian League of Connecticut," by Washington Gladden; Continuation of W. D. Howells' Story, "A Woman's Reason," "Topics of the Time," the usual Brac-Brac, &c., with a new department under the heading of "Open Letters," which will give scope and variety to what has ever yet been attained, even by this valuable and enterprising periodical. The Century Co., Union Square, N. Y.

The event of the week at Frederick was the marriage of Mr. Donald McLean, of New York, to Miss Emily Nelson, eldest daughter of Judge Ritchie, and grand-daughter of Col. Wm. P. Maubly of Westminster. The marriage took place at All Saints Protestant Episcopal Church, Rev. Osborn Ingle officiating. Among the prominent guests present were Governor Hamilton, Hon. E. H. Webster, Wm. H. Thomas, St. Louis; Wm. Ritchie, Chicago; O. Horsey, Judge Merrick, Judge Lynch, H. C. Naill, Col. W. P. Maubly, Hon. Charles W. Hoffman, Dr. George Maubly, United States navy, Washington; Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm McLean, New York and others. The bride was presented with a solid silver waiter by the Court of Appeals. After the marriage a reception was given at Judge Ritchie's house, and the newly-married couple left for Washington last night, and will go from thence to Chicago.

The Harry Pease Dramatic Company gave an entertainment in Armory Hall, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, this week. "Under the Gaslight," "Enoch Arden" and "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" were produced in the order named. They were greeted with a crowded house every evening. Mr. Pease, Miss Belle Crowell and Mr. John C. Core being remembered by all our citizens as members of the company which gave a series of entertainments in this place last fall. This Company has many friends in town, and will always be able to draw a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Herbert Bartley took the part of Dr. Gammett, in "Enoch Arden" to perfection, while Mr. Pease as Enoch, was remarkably fine. Mr. Blackwell is surely an adept in his negro specialties, while Mr. Core, as the Philanthropist in "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room" was very good, as in his other impersonations, the entire company being the best that has ever visited our town.

MR. EDITOR.—As president of "The Emmitsburg Woman's Rights Association," I feel called upon to offer through your columns, a few words of explanation regarding our objects and mode of proceeding, as I find that a very erroneous impression exists as to the character of our meetings and the end we have in view; some even going so far as to doubt our existence as an association. As published before, we have no idea of making ourselves conspicuous, either by donning man's attire or usurping his place in Politics, Business or Society; but aim to reform abuses, to place men and women on a proper level, and to restrain masculine selfishness and tyranny on the one hand, and feminine subservience on the other. We would open a path for woman, to a career of independent usefulness; we would have her fitted by training and education, to take her part in the struggle for existence that is the heritage of the human race; we would show the world, that honorable employment of any kind, of which a woman is physically capable, is not incompatible with purity, gentleness and refinement, and that the true nobility of man's character can only be attained by helping her in her efforts to reach the highest possible standard of excellence.

And now I will only add, that it has been deemed advisable by this association, to discontinue, for a time the published reports of their proceedings, believing that they can accomplish more by working silently, until their plans are ripe for execution, but in the mean time, any public abuses or absurdities that require notice through the press, will be attended to without scruple; and I desire, in the name of the association, to thank you for the use of your columns, so generously accorded.

The Arbor-vita From Cuttings.

"J. H. W." of Darien, Conn., wishing a number of Arbor-vitas, asks us if he can raise them from cuttings, and what the treatment should be. The Arbor-vita, both our native species and the Japanese (Retinisporas,) may be propagated from cuttings with the greatest ease, provided they are given one essential requisite—time. Those who treat these as if they were geranium or verbenas cuttings, giving them bottom heat, will be quite sure to fail. The cuttings are made in spring, three or four inches long, choosing the tip of the most erect branches. Having prepared some boxes with clean sand, prick out the cuttings in rows across the box. Boxes three inches deep will answer, and the cuttings may be inserted for about one third of their length, placing them so close as to touch.

After the cuttings are pricked out, water with a fine rose, to settle the sand, and set the box in a shady place, but where it can be watched, and watered as often as needed. Nurserymen often set the boxes in a frame and shade them by a lattice-work of laths. The only care needed is to prevent the sand from becoming dry, and the removal of any weeds that may spring up. The boxes must be protected from disturbance by cats and dogs. One or more of the cuttings may be taken out from time to time for inspection, and if no roots have formed, may be returned without injury. After some weeks, a "callus" will be seen at the lower end of the cutting. This is a whitish irregular mass, which appears between the wood and bark, and is regarded as an accumulation of material for feeding the newly formed roots, which appear later. With cuttings of most plants, the formation of the callus is quite sure to be soon followed by the appearance of delicate roots. With the Arbor-vita cuttings this takes place very slowly, and some of them altogether fail to do so. In those the callus grows to a great size, forming a swelling as large as a boy's marble, the surface of which becomes covered with a brown epidermis and appears like that of the stem, no trace of a foot being visible. While such failures are not very numerous, enough surplus cuttings should be made to cover losses from this and other causes. In early autumn the cuttings that have formed roots may be set out in boxes of ordinary soil, and at the approach of winter these may be placed in a frame, or in a cellar, until spring, when the little trees are to be planted in the open ground, in nursery rows. The variety of Arbor-vita, known as the Siberian, roots more readily than the typical form. It cuttings of this are set in the open ground, in a partially-shaded place, a large share of them will take root in ordinary seasons. This variety is preferable to the type, as during the winter it retains its fine green color, while the other becomes blackened and unsightly.—American Agriculturist.

The quality of milk is impaired by allowing cows to drink foul water, and to eat improper food. All know the bad effect of turnips in winter, and of wild onions and other weeds, dropped while at pasture, in summer; but now comes up something which has not been thought of as injurious, heretofore. This is from grass and hay grown on lonesome land, or such as is fertilized by sewage. Distillery slops, perhaps, is the worst of all food for milk cows, and we do not like it any better for fattening pigs.

Milk from the cow, when given improper food or drink, affects cheese made from it, more seriously than it does butter; but in either case it is bad enough, and some times, when drunk, it is the origin of deadly fever and various other fatal diseases.—Agriculturist.

To MAKE POTATOES MEALY.—A Canada paper says: "In our kitchen we overcome the soggy disposition of these valuable vegetables by soaking them a few hours in cold water, and putting them into hot water, to boil, without salt; then when they are tender nearly all the way through, turn the off and refill the saucepan with cold water. Put in salt and boil till they are quite done; drain off that water also, cover as tightly as possible, and set on the back of the range to steam, lifting the cover for an instant once or twice; then, with one hand holding down the lid, shake the saucepan gently, quickly, and steadily for a moment and serve your potatoes hot. If rightly managed they will be like snow-balls."

Miscellaneous.

An Inquiring Mind.

A prototype of the famous Mul-kittle boy, J. Arkansas, lives here in Duluth. After returning from church last Sunday he sat in a very thoughtful attitude for a while and then asked:

"Pa, didn't the preacher say that he that believeth shall be saved and he that believeth not shall be damned?"

"Yes, my son."

"Wasn't it swearing fur'im to say so?"

"Oh, no!"

"Why wasn't it?"

"Because the word used in that connection is not to be regarded as profane."

"If I was to say that you would be damned if you didn't believe, would it be swearin'?"

"Not at all—but don't ask so many questions."

"Would it be swearin' if I'd say damn you if you don't?"

"There, there, my son, you are carrying it too far. Be quiet now, for heaven's sake!"

"Will ma be damned if she don't believe?"

"Certainly."

"And me, too!"

"Of course."

"And the dog, too?"

"Oh! for goodness sake, hush! You drive me crazy."

"Say, pa, would Jack, the crazy man, be damned if he didn't believe?"

"Yes! Yes! Yes! Yes! Now hush!"

"Then he'd be like Oscar Wilde, wouldn't he?"

"No, he wouldn't."

"Yes he would!"

"He would not, and now if you don't dry up I'll thrash you."

"But he would, pa."

"How would he?"

"Why, didn't I hear you say that Oscar Wilde was a damned idiot, and if crazy Jack was to be—"

But before he could conclude the sentence a concussion remote from his talking machine claimed his immediate attention.

He Prayed Hard.

An old man in Georgia named Jack Baldwin having lost his hat in an old dry well the other day, hitched a rope to a stump and let himself down. A wicked wag named Neal came along just then, and quietly detaching a bell from Baldwin's old blind horse, approached the well, bell in hand, and began to tinkle. Jack thought the old horse was coming and said: "Hang the old blind horse; he's coming this way sure, and he ain't got no more sense than to fall in on me—whoo, Ball!" The sound came closer. "Great Jerusalem! the old blind fool will be right on top me in a minute—whoo, Ball—whoo, Ball!" Neal kicked a little dirt on Jack's head and Jack began to pray: "Oh Lord, have mercy on—whoo, Ball—a poor sinner; I'm gone now—whoo, Ball!—Hallowed be Thy—jee, Ball, jee! what'll I do?—name. Now I lay me down to sl—jee, Ball! (Just then in fell more dirt.) Oh, Lord! if you ever intend to do anything for me—back, Ball! Oh, Lord! you know I was baptized in Smith's milldam—whoo, Ball! hold up! murder! whoa!" Neal could hold in no longer, and shouted a big horse laugh which might have been heard two miles, which was about as far as Jack chased him when he got out of the well. The characters in this episode are pretty old by this time, and they have traveled a long way since the prank was first said to be played.

An Ohio paper says that a young lady who graduated in a calico dress a few years ago, is now married to a railroad superintendent who has an income of $500,000 a year. This may be taken as a basis for the regulation of a graduating dress. Had she worn alpaca she might have caught the general manager of the road. Had she bloomed forth in white silk, she might have captured the President of the concern, with his untold millions; while had she worn silk, with point lace and diamonds, she might have scooped in the conductor of a passenger train, and had onyx staircases and alabaster walls to her house, and put the wives of the officers of the road as society altogether too thin for her style. This ought to be a lesson to girl graduates.

UNEQUALITY or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism, and a host of other serious and fatal diseases, which can be prevented with Hop Bitters, if taken in time.

THREE years ago the pond of Mr. George L. Peyton, below Staunton, Va., was stocked with German carp, which now weigh, many of them, five or six pounds, and the pond is full of them.

Humorous.

The Art of Life is to know how to enjoy a little and to endure much.

An Elmira man claims to have buried twenty wives. He is a grave digger, and they were not his own.

WOMEN do not marry for love, or money, or dry goods. They marry in the hope that they may have spring house-cleaning to do.

WHEN it comes to a question of choice, I'll always take de coon for a partner 'fore I will de possum. De possum's meat may be better, but he's de rankest hypocrite I ever seed.

A horse thief in an Arkansas prison objects to having a Presbyterian chaplain in the institution. He says he has been brought up a Methodist, and wishes to remain firm in the faith of his fathers.

"Nice fellow!" she exclaimed, "well, I should think he was! Why, he don't do any business, he belongs to three clubs, has $50,000 a year, is divorced from his wife, and has led about thirty Germans this season."

A man stopping his paper wrote: "I think folks often to spend their money for paper, my dadda didden and everybody said he was the intelligent man in the country and had the smartest family of boys that ever dugged tailers."

A young man in a train was making fun of a lady's hat to an elderly gentleman in the seat with him; "Yes," said his seat mate, "that's my wife, and I told her it she wore that bonnet that some fool would make fun of it."

A Londoner one day by accident saw the sun. "Evens," said he, "ow they 'ave himproved that there 'lectric light." After a moment's pause, during which he gazed upon the novel sight, he said, reflectively, "But 'ow in thunder did they get 'im hup so 'igh?"

"WHAS the man that's going up in that balloon?" inquired a countryman. "That the fellow standing on the left of it." "Rather thin, isn't he, though?" returned country. "Yes," answered the other "he's thin in purse; as well as in person. He's the heir o' naught."

COUNTRY doctor (to Tomkins)—"Now, with regard to that out on the top of your head, I don't think it will be serious, but you must keep your eye on it." And Tomkins, who has the slightest suspicion of a squint, goes away and disrecommends that doctor.—Moonshine.

MRS X comes off to die and we demand at his husband, who is of an avaricious sort, to give 1,000 francs for the funeral fees. "A thousand francs!" is his reply; "what do you, take me for? Why, I had almost as soon she hadn't died as have to pay a thousand francs for burying her!"—French Fun.

A Parisian lady called on her milliner the other day regarding the character of a servant. The respectable appearance of the latter was beyond questioning. "But is she honest?" asked the lady. "I am not so certain about that," replied the milliner. "I have sent her to you with my bill a dozen times, and she has never given me the money."

A Harvard man went to a lawyer for advice. After receiving the retaining fee the lawyer said: "State your case." "Well, sir," replied the client, "a man told me to go to h— and I want your advice." The attorney took down a volume of the Connecticut statutes, and after turning over a few leaves, answered: "Don't you do it. The law doesn't compel you."

The kidneys are nature's sluice way to wash out the debris of our constantly changing bodies. If they do not work properly the trouble is felt everywhere. Then be sure and as soon as you see signs of disorder get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it faithfully. It will clean the sluice way of sand, gravel or slime and purify the whole system. Druggists sell it, both liquid and dry, and dry, and it is equally efficient in either form.—Independent.

A HATER of tobacco asked an old negro woman the fumes of whose pipe were annoying him, if she was a Christian. "Yes, brudder, I spects I is." "Do you believe in the bible?" "Yes, brudder." "Do you know there is a passage in the Scriptures which says that nothing unclean shall inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, because there is nothing so unclean as the breath of a smoker. What do you say to that?" "Why, I spects to leave my bruff behind when I go up dar."

KIDNEY-WORT

DOES WONDERFUL WHY? CURES! Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develop in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Rheum, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and Female Complaints.

SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY: Eugene R. Stark, of Junction City, Kansas, says, Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.

Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. E. N. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not expected to live, being afflicted beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett, of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from Kidney troubles and Rheumatism was cured by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence, of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "harshes of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Otto, of Montgomery Center, Vt., was unable to work, Kidney-Wort made him well as ever.

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENT CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in tin cans, one package of which makes a quart of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very Concentrated, for those that prefer ready preparation.

It acts with great efficiency in either form. GET IT AT THE DRUGGISTS. PRICE, $1.00 BOTTLE, RICHARDSON & Co., Prop's. (Will send the dry post-paid.) BURLINGTON, VT.

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of shark, known as the Yellow Shark, known as Caranodon Rondeletti. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative have been discovered by a Buddhist Priest about two years since. Its cures were so numerous and so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was immediately proclaimed over the entire Empire. It is now becoming so universal that for over 300 years no deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear What the Deaf Say! It has performed a miracle in my case. I have no unhearing noises in my head and hear much better. My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me. My hearing is improving. I have received untold benefit. My hearing is improving. I have received untold benefit. My hearing is improving. I have received untold benefit.
