THE GREAT NEW YORK BRIDGE OPENING.

On Thursday last, the bridge connecting New York and Brooklyn, was thrown open to the public, with appropriate ceremonies. The President of the United States was in attendance, and a large number of distinguished gentlemen as invited guests. The wife of the distinguished Engineer, Roebling, was allowed to drive the first team over the bridge and this privilege was granted in consequence of her great services during its erection. When her husband became disabled from performing his duties as engineer in chief, she applied herself with such zeal and industry to the study of engineering as to become fitted for the performance of his duties. These she performed to the thorough satisfaction of every one connected with this important piece of work, altering patterns and meeting unexpected difficulties in their execution with wonderful facility and readiness. Mrs. Roebling has demonstrated the fact, that her sex can attain distinction in a sphere heretofore supposed to be peculiarly that of the male sex.—Examiner.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE PANIC.

A panic was precipitated upon the Brooklyn bridge yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon by a woman's slipping on the steps from the New York anchorage to the elevated footpath which begins at that point. She screamed as she fell, and before she could recover her balance the crowd behind had crowded irresistibly forward and overwhelmed her. The stream of people coming from the other direction likewise pressed forward solidly at the sound of a woman's cry for help, and at the same fatal steps the leaders in the throng were crowded over upon those who lay below struggling for escape. The panic increased, and many men and women were trampled to death, and many more were maimed. A body of the State militia returning across the bridge did good service in helping to drive back the struggling multitude at the point of the bayonet. As the central avenue of the bridge, reserved for pedestrians, is but fifteen and a-half feet wide, and is not divided by a partition, so that persons going in one direction may be separated from those moving the other way, it is not, perhaps, surprising that under the novel circumstances of their situation the streams of people going and coming should be confused by any unusual incident, and, once thrown into disorder, should become wild and lost to reason.—Ball, Sun.

THE CZAR CROWNED.—The coronation of Alexander III. Czar of all the Russias, on last Sunday, was an occasion of unbounded enthusiasm and proceeded amid scenes of ecclesiastical and civil ceremonies, constituting the most imposing pageantry of the century. Happily the apprehensions of Nihilist plots were not realized. If the Emperor gets safely back to St. Petersburg, the world will breathe more freely, in the hope that measures against conspiracies, have been successful, and that the progress of reform, instituted by the present Czar's father may go forward, in the promising order which has marked their course of late years.

DANIEL CURLEY the second man convicted of participation in the murder of Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke on the 6th of May 1882 was hanged on last Friday. He made no statement and died calmly, and Michael Fagan convicted of the same crime was hanged on Monday last in Dublin.

JAMES LONGSTREET, JR., a son of the ex Confederate general, has been appointed by Mr. Arthur to be cadet-at-large at the Annapolis Academy.

THE NEW TWO-CENT POSTAGE STAMP.—Postmaster-General Gresham has approved a design for the new two-cent postage stamp. The stamp contains a tablet upon which is a profile of Washington, similar to that on the present three-cent stamp. Surrounding the profile is an oval band. In the upper part of the band the words "United States postage," beneath the band a large "2," and at the extreme bottom of the tablet the words "two cents." The design will be returned to the American Bank Note Company of New York for engraving after which the department will decide upon the color to be used.

Decoration Day.—Increased Private Observances.—Good Work of Inspector Byrnes.—How the Thieves and Bunco Men were Repressed during the Brooklyn Bridge Excitement.—A Clever Woman.—The Fashionable Sporting Season.—Coaching.

NEW YORK, May 29th, 1883.

To-morrow is Decoration Day, and as usual all New York will be astir. So far as this city is concerned Decoration Day has practically supplanted the Fourth of July as a public holiday in the popular mind. The public display this year will be on a smaller scale than for the last two seasons; that is to say, there will be less spread-eagleism on the part of the men who push themselves forward on such days in the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, and more quiet genuine private offerings to the memory of the dead who fell in the battlefield for their country. Last Sunday was a delightful day, and in consequence thousands upon thousands of people visited the cemeteries and ornamented the graves of their dear ones so as to have them look well on Memorial Day. Poor women whose faces and hands showed that they had to live a life of toil could be seen marching in from the cars with baskets of flowers. The sun was broiling hot, and from their flushed faces the perspiration flowed in streams, yet they were happy for memory brought them back to join hands with their dear departed over the river which they had passed before. The hollowiness of the doctrines of Lugereau is never so apparent as on this national mourning day.

Since the entire detective force has been placed in the hands of Inspector Byrnes, the thieves and bunco men of the city have behaved very quietly, and never has this been so apparent as during last week. The crowd of out-of-town visitors flocked in not only on Thursday but every day until to-day. Now under ordinary circumstances the confidence swindlers would have reaped a golden harvest, but on this occasion the influx brought them nothing. Chatham Street is their camping ground because game abounds there, and for their hunting purposes it has been improved because the entrance to the bridge is on that street now. On Friday morning I saw a knot of a half dozen of men whose faces are shining ornaments to the Rogues Gallery, standing in front of the old French Hotel. They looked sad and listless. A New Jersey farmer accompanied by a verdant looking young man passed by. One of them left his companions to go to him, but he had scarcely advanced a few steps before I noticed that he turned back. Looking around I saw a detective standing at the door of a cigar store nearby. In conversation with him I learned that the Inspector had massed his men on all dangerous spots and issued strict orders that he would hold every man on his staff directly responsible for every theft or swindle committed in the immediate vicinity to which he was assigned. As a result a few more than ordinary skillful sharpers were arrested the moment that they were seen, and this vigorous action so terrorized the small fry that they did not dare to ply their nefarious trade.

One of the cleverest women in town is the Mother Superioress of Manhattanville Convent and Young Ladies' Seminary. For years, even before Manhattanville became a portion of New York City, commissioners and legislators endeavored to cut a street through the property of the institution which is most charmingly located. She has always managed to stave them off however, since a street running through this property would effectively destroy the seclusion so necessary for a place where a couple of hundred girls and young ladies are being reared far from the eye of a watchful parent. How she managed to defeat these designs is past telling, save by the force of terse, vigorous argument. Now however, as I understand, the old lady means to retire. I believe that this institution has acquired property elsewhere the danger of being molested is not so great. Thus this fashionable institution of the Sacred Heart, which is attended by Catholics and Protestants as well is shortly to be removed.

The fashionable sporting season is at hand. Last Saturday the Coaching Club which is composed of the creme de la creme of our "aristocracy" had its parade, and to-morrow the gay world will assemble at Jerome Park, the American Jockey Club to attend the opening of the Spring meeting of the American Jockey Club. It is the fashion to drive out on this beautiful race course. The nabobs go on top of four in hand coaches, while every owner of a vehicle from a coach to a spidery road wagon, feels in duty bound to take his ladies out. The array of ladies' costumes on that day is always gorgeous, and fashionable dressmakers have for the past few weeks been driven to their wits ends almost by the demands made upon them to design something new and striking.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 29, '83.

It is warming up at the capital from a weather standpoint, though politically and socially there is nothing startling going on at present. The members of the Senate committee on labor and education were to have held a meeting here this week, and Senator Pugh, of Alabama, came on for that purpose, the special object of the meeting being an inquiry into the causes of strikes, etc. But owing to interesting political affairs in New Hampshire, where a successor to Senator Blair will soon be elected, Mr. Blair finds it inconvenient, as chairman of the committee, to be in Washington just now, and the inquiry will be delayed till late in July or early in August.

The contract for engraving and printing the new postal notes—one of the largest contracts of this kind that persons not connected with the government have ever received—has been awarded to the Homer Lee bank note company of New York, although the Bureau of Engraving and printing, which is a branch of the Treasury department, was a competing bidder. People will very naturally inquire how it is that a New York company, whose bids are supposed to leave a good margin profit, can underbid the government's own engraving and printing factory, where all the facilities of a large "plant" and a large number of skillful employees, and where a bid is based solely upon the cost of material and labor. The bureau's bid included no rent, insurance, fuel, repairs and the other incidental expenses which citizen bidders cannot safely ignore, and yet the citizen has taken the contract away from the establishment which was created and is supported for this kind of work. Is it true that citizens, handicapped by the expenses mentioned above, can do this work at lower rates than the bureau can afford? If they can, then there must be room for reform in the bureau.

Some amusement was created here in Washington upon the arrival of a late issue of the London Standard, wherein Senator Logan is mentioned among noted Indians, all of whom, after temporary civilization, have relapsed into barbarism by a return to their original savage state. The Standard devotes a column and a half to the Indian, beginning with Sitting Bull, whose recent conversion to Christianity has led that journal to a review of the examples that show how hopeless is the permanent civilization of the noble red man. This enlightened English journal mentions many instances of failure of the gentle savage to realize the hopes of civilization, but few show "change of heart" was permanent, or who have distinguished themselves. But among the latter it classes Senator Logan, and says: "General Logan, one of General Grant's ablest generals, was an Indian." And also that "whole regiments of Indians were led by Cherokee and Choctaw chiefs in the civil war." The Standard's knowledge of us is amusing, to say the least, and only surpassed by that of French lady. When Jules Verne's "Round the World in Eighty Days" was played in Paris, of course the actors were French. The Indians were transformed Frenchmen in blankets and war paints. A party of Americans, who are prominent in the official society of our capital, sat just in front of a French lady and her daughter. When the supposed Indians came on the stage the mother said to her daughter: "My dear, these are Americans. Now you see Americans."

DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.

Has been so frequently and so extensively proven that it seems almost superfluous to say anything more in its favor. The immense and constantly increasing demand for them, both in this and foreign countries, is the best evidence of their value. Their sale today in the United States is far greater than any other cathartic medicine. This demand is not spasmodic, it is regular and steady. It is not of to-day or yesterday, it is an increase that has been steadily growing for the last thirty-five years. What are the reasons for this great and growing demand? Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills contain no mercury, and yet they act with wonderful effect upon the liver. They cleanse the stomach and bowels of all irritating matter, which, if allowed to remain, poisons the blood, and brings on malaria, chills and fever, and many other diseases. They give health and strength to the digestive organs. They create appetite and give vigor to the whole system. They are the medicine of all others which should be taken in times like the present, when material and other epidemics are raging, as they prepare the system to resist attacks of disease of every character. Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are sold by all druggists at 25c. per box, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price.

Dr. Schenck's Book on Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, in English or German, is sent free to all. Address Dr. J. H. SCHENCK & SON, Philadelphia, Pa.

Rupture

Relieved and cured by Dr. J. A. SHERMAN'S method, without regard to age or duration of the affliction, or the injury trusses inflict, or disfigurement from labor, and with security from strangulation—of which, according to statistics, not less than 30,000 died during the past year. No one is safe who has a rupture and depends upon a truss; both are a physical and mental tax; bring on kidney, bladder and other organic diseases, which affect general health more than age or labor, besides affecting manhood and destroying all incentives to social pleasure.

Patients from abroad can receive treatment and leave for home same day. Dr. Sherman's book, with photographic likenesses of bad cases, before and after cure, and endorsements by Physicians, Merchants, Farmers and others who have been cured, mailed for 16c. Send for it and inform yourself. Principal office, 261 Broadway, N. Y.; days of consultation each week, Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays

The artistic excellence and superior workmanship of our designs are proven by the many specimens now on exhibition in our show room, and by the numerous works which we have erected in various Cemeteries in this and adjoining counties. We invite special attention to the White Bronze Monuments, whose strength, durability, color and resistance to out door exposure, proves it the best known material for Monuments, Statuary, &c. It will not blacken or grow dingy with age, moss will not adhere to or grow upon its surface as upon marble, and the color will remain undimmed through the ages.
