GOVERNOR MCLANE'S INAUGUR AL ADDRESS yesterday was charac. terized by a brevity and directness of statement well suited to the oc cassion. After appealing to the members of the General Assembly for support and assistance in his en deavors to meet the best expecta tions of the people of the State, and alluding to the necessary existence every free country of the modern type, the Governor insists that "par ty government is not inconsistent with an honest, efficient and economical administration, stimulated by an enlightened and reformatory spirit." Well directed, it is fully capable of the task, he holds, of elevating the moral and intellectual character of the people and fitting
