COULD WE BUT KNOW!

We purely love, and seek with service sweet
Some true response to earn:
We give, and give, until our hearts may break,
And meet with no return.
O love, O slighted love, where dost thou go?
Could we but know!

We catch some noble hope, and tenderly
We nurse it day by day,
Each on our souls; yet weeping we may see
It slowly fade away.
O hope, sweet flattering hope, where dost thou go?
Could we but know!

We build so patiently, we toil for years,
We are so glad and brave;
The end perchance is failure, loss and tears,
And the low dreamless grave.
Oh wasted labor! is it even so?
Where did it go?

Where do they go to, our neglected prayers,
Our sweet vain dreams and aims,
Our patient slighted love, our thought-fil care,
Lost labors, and lost again?
And are they lost indeed? Or is it we
Who fail to see?

Where goes the perfume of the musk-sweet rose,
The robin's happy song,
The murmur of the river as it flows,
The wind so fresh and strong?
The scent, the melody, the help each gives
Most surely lives.

No good thing can be lost, no real worth,
Nothing that's true and pure.
We do not see the seed corn in the earth;
The harvest time is sure.
Prayer, love, and hope, and work are golden grain
None sows in vain.

AN HOUR OF PERIL.

If you please, ma'am, said Betsy the help, presenting herself in the doorway, with her arms dripping with soap suds, and her calico skirts festooned about her spare form in a way that Worth would never have imagined, "there's an insane man in the barn."

I had just seated myself down to my morning task of coloring a cluster of blue harebells, which Donald had brought in, a trophy of his before-breakfast walk up the mountain. Baby was sweetly sleeping; Tom my and little Donald were fishing for minnows in the meadow stream, and I was heartily congratulating myself upon the success of my idea of renting a mountain cottage for the sultry summer months.

"A what?" I gasped.

"An insane man, ma'am," said Betsy. "Leastway, that's what Deacon Gadaly shouted as he was galloping by on horseback, to catch the down train, bollerin' good and loud, as he's aware I ain't quick o' hearin'." "Tell your missis," says he, "to call the children in; there's an insane man in the barn," says he.

"But, Betsy," cried I, involuntarily clutching at the baby's crib, it can't be possible!"

"That's what Deacon Gadaly said, ma'am, and I'll take my Bible oath to it," said Betsy, nodding her head with a countenance expressive of entire conviction.

"Then why didn't he come to our help?" I cried, wringing my hands helplessly.

"Don't know, ma'am," said Betsy, "unless it was because the mail-train, like time and tide in the spell 'n' book, waits for no man."

"But what are we to do?" I almost sobbed, my courage and presence of mind nearly deserting me as I pictured to myself the horrible vision of a lunatic dancing about among the hatchets, scythes and hay-cutters in the barn.

"Don't know, ma'am," said Betsy, viewing me with a sort of mild contempt, as one of the city ladies who become powerless under the presence of any sudden emergency, "unless you call in the boys and lock the barn doors as quick as possible."

I looked appealingly at Betsy.

"Betsy," said I, "would you mind locking the barn doors, like a dear, good soul, while I run after Donald and Tommy?"

Betsy cleared her throat emphatically.

"Not if I know it, ma'am!" said she. "I hain't no more partiality than other folks for crazy people."

My Uncle was assistant keeper in a lunatic asylum, and he was choked to death by one of the patients. And I don't mean that sort of thing shall run in the family, ma'am, not if I can help it."

"Then, cried I, driven to sudden resolve, "stay here with the baby, Betsy—don't leave her for your life!—while I go after the boys. Good Heaven! If the wretch should be attacking my poor children now!"

With almost superhuman speed I ran down along the edge of the woods, seized Tommy and Donald each by one hand, and dragged them home, not even stopping to explain matters to their bewildered little ears.

"Come, children, come!" I panted. "Oh, do make haste! We must get back to the house immediately."

"But I've left my fishing hook, mamma," pleaded Donald, with a longing, lingering look over his shoulder.

"Can't we stop in the barn, mamma?" cried Tommy, "to see if Mr. Jones has sent the cosset lamb he promised us?"

"Children," said I pausing to regain my breath, "at your peril keep away from the barn. There is a crazy man there. Heaven only knows what violence he may attempt to perpetrate. Run to the house—run as fast as you can!"

And pausing only to see them fly up the terraced slopes of the lawn, I hastened with blanched cheeks and wildly-beating heart to the barn, and was fortunate enough to secure both doors by wooden bars and outside buttons before the attention of a broad-faced, bristly haired ruffian was sufficiently attracted to induce him to present his moon-like countenance at one of the stable windows.

Without heed to frantic gestures and loudly shouted words, I fled back to the house, and sank nearly fainting on the sofa, with both hands clasped over my eyes.

"I declare for'th, though, that was real gritty," was Betsy's admiring comment, as she hurried to bring the camphor and red lavender to my rescue.

"Mamma, will he kill us?" whispered Donald, who was a timid child and clung close to me.

"Shall I cut off his head with my tin sword, mamma?" Lawled Tommy, the irrepressible.

"Betsy," I cried, rousing myself to the paramount necessity of not fainting, "place yourself at the window. Watch for passers-by—"

"Yes, 'um," said Betsy; but it ain't just in first-rate workin' order, I calculate."

"There isn't either stock nor lock to it, mamma," chimed in Tommy. "I loaded it with ashes last week, and put in pebbles for bullets, and it wouldn't fire off worth a cent."

"But there's the carving knife and the potato-pounder, mamma," suggested Donald.

I looked at the clock. Only eleven! It would be six hours, at the very nearest, before my husband would return from the city. Suppose that there should be no passers, by between that time and this!

"Betsy," said I, "this won't do. I believe my hair will turn white with this terrible agony of suspense."

"Ma'am?" said Betsy, who had the Shakespearean faculty of "not marking withal."

"Either you or I must go for help," I uttered, distinctly.

"If it wasn't for goin' right past the barn door, I would'n mind," said Betsy.

"It's fastened," I pleaded.

"But them there wooden buttons doesn't amount to anything," said she. "And only s'pose he jumps out at me?"

I was just about to reproach Betsy with having no elements of the heroine in her composition, when little Donald, who had posted himself in the garret window to watch, came tumbling into the room with Tommy close behind.

"Mamma! mamma!" they shouted in chorus; there's somebody coming, and we guess it's Deacon Gadaly on horseback, riding back from the train.

"Stop him!" I gasped—"for mercy's sake stop him!"

"He's a makin' straight for the barn, ma'am," said Betsy, who had stretched the skinny length of her neck further out of the window than I dared to. "He's heard that feller hollerin'. He's unbarrin' the big doors. Land o' liberty! there comes the poor crazy creetur out with a hop, skip and jump! Well, if the deacon likes to risk it I wouldn't."

"I have heard of instances where some particular individual exercised unbounded influence over the insane," I said faintly, "and—"

At this moment the deacon himself knocked at the door. I made haste to open it.

"Be ye all crazy here?" said he, with a smile on his unburned countenance. "If ye ain't, what in the name of all creation possessed ye to shut up my son Hiram in the barn?"

"Your son Hiram?" I gasped feebly. "Was that your son Hiram? I—I thought it was an insane man!"

"What?" roared the deacon. "Betsy said that you shouted out as you rode by, 'Tell your mistress to call the children in—there's an insane man in the barn!'"

"Good Jerusalem!" cried the deacon, slapping his knee, "how folks will get things twisted round! I never said no such thing. What I did say was, 'There's a tame lamb in the barn.' I promised one to them boys of yours ever since they came up here, and this mornin' our Hiram fetched em a regular little cosset; and there he is munching clover down there, with Hiram holdin' on to the rope. And you supposed it was a crazy man! Ha! ho, ho, ho! That beats all!"

The deacon's exclamations echoed through my little parlor like distant thunder. I looked reproachfully at Betsy as the cause of all the panic. That damsel, however, evinced no signs of discomfiture. It was not her way.

"Wall," said Betsy, slowly, "I always was a little hard o' hearin' ever since I had the scarlet fever; and I s'pose we're all liable to mistakes."

That was the end of an hour of terror. Betsy retired to her washing; the deacon went his way still chuckling; the children rushed whooping into the barn, where Hiram, the victim of this unfortunate misunderstanding, stood smiling broadly, with the lamb at his side tied up with blue ribbons—and I looked in the glass, secretly thankful that my hair had not turned gray.

Ridiculous as it all seems to write down in black and white, it was a real horror at the time; and I never could look at the innocent lamb afterward without a curious fluttering at my heart suggestive of the apprehension I had undergone.

The complicated diseases brought on by intense study, thought, care, anxiety, etc., are often of the most serious nature. Head such symptoms as loss of memory, universal lassitude, heart disease, kidney complaints, liver troubles and a general breaking down of health and strength. When thus afflicted, life seems a burden, use the reliable strengthening tonic, Brown's Iron Bitters. It will afford you sure relief.

CHARLEY wanted to give Clara a Christmas present, but couldn't make up his mind what it should be; so next time he frankly told her the difficulty under which he was laboring. "Want to make a present, Charley?" Clara exclaimed in well disguised astonishment. "Why Charley you forgot yourself." Charley took the hint and offered himself on the spot.—Oil City Derrick.

SISTER SUE'S WEDDING.

Jimmy Tries His Printing Press on His Sister's Wedding Invitations.

She ought to have been married a long while ago. That's what everybody says as knows her. She has been engaged to Mr. Travers for three years and she had to refuse lots of offers to go to the circus with other young men. I have wanted her to get married so that I could go and live with her and Mr. Travers. When I think that if it hadn't been for a mistake I made she would have been married yesterday, I find it dreadfully hard to be re-signed. But we ought always to be resigned to everything when we can't help it. Before I go any further I must tell about my printing press. It belonged to Tommy McGinnis, but he got tired of it and sold it to me real cheap. He was going to write to the Young People's post-office box and offer to exchange it for a bicycle, a St. Bernard dog, and twelve good books, but he finally let me have it for a dollar and a half. It prints beautifully, and I have printed cards for so many people, and made three dollars and seventy cents already. I thought it would be nice to be able to print circus bills in the case Tom and I should ever have another circus

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19, 1884.

Ex Senator Dorsey, who has been about Washington some weeks, left Monday night for New Mexico. A large interest in his big ranch down there has been purchased by Colonel Ingersoll and John B. Alley, of Boston. These two are to meet Dorsey in a short time and join him in a trip to Old Mexico after looking over the property they have just acquired. But Dorsey has not been occupied wholly with business matters since he has been here. Politicians, lobbyists, men with schemes, applicants for pensions, have thronged his parlors from morning until late at night. There are two politicians who have spent many hours with him whose visits have no little political significance. These are Senator Logan and Richard Crowley. Last summer Dorsey was very bitter in his remarks about Logan. He felt very keenly the slight caused by the resolution of thanks to Colonel Hooker, assistant secretary of the Republican National Committee, that Logan offered. No mention at all was made of Dorsey's services, and he regarded this omission as an intended insult. But it appears that Dorsey has changed his views in that respect; at all events, it is certain that whatever differences there may have been they have all been smoothed over. It is a question how much good the ex-Senator's route defendant can do anybody in politics just now; but a candidate who is real anxious generally accepts any kind of aid he can get.

Hon. E. M. Marble, ex-Commissioner of Patents, who recently resigned to enter upon the practice of his profession here, has found plenty to do, and is looking more hale and hearty than when presiding over that vexatious department, the Patent Office. He thinks with many others that the Government fees for letters patent might well be reduced, and that instead of earning a large surplus from the tax upon industry and genius, the office should simply be self-sustaining. There are other reforms which Mr. Marble would have been glad to inaugurate had he remained in the office. One of these is the compiling of a complete descriptive digest of all the patents issued from the founding of the office, he did have begun, by the consent of Congress, and a very valuable and convenient work it would have been, to the public and the department, but so much opposition was made by parties interested in keeping the office in its present state, that Congress was induced to withhold the necessary appropriation for carrying on the work. In a few years at most the department will advance to Mr. Marble's views on all these points. Meanwhile his long connection with it, both as law officer and Commissioner of Patents, enables him to render valuable service to those who consult him. It is wonderful how rapidly the business of the office increases and what complications grow out of it. Just now there is among many other contests a hot battle over the different telephone patents. The Bell Company have had practically a monopoly so far, but it is a question whether other claimants will not be able to show priority.

Those who have attended receptions and other dress occasions this winter have remarked the unusual display of "low necks." It is the style just now, more than heretofore, for fashionable society to strip itself down to that condition which Mr. Anthony Comstock says should not be tolerated even in an art collector's private prints. A stranger who went to the President's last reception was asked: How did you enjoy the levee? "Well, I saw several duds and a good many nudes," was the reply. This extreme fashion is eliciting much unfavorable comment both here and elsewhere. It is a question whether women who at a public gathering expose their persons in a manner that would almost cause a girl to blush can be really modest. And yet mothers send their blooming young daughters out in this fashion. These are admired. Pretty, fair, young should be attractive, but when stout matrons of middle age, and scrawny women still older, bare their necks beyond all sense of decency and limit, modest people are ashamed. There were ladies at the President's reception who felt like turning their faces to the wall to hide their blush es, so shockingly low, were some of the dresses.

While I write the Capital is full of Democrats from the various cities who have come to attend the meeting of the National Committee and contend for the location of the convention. Of course the matter will be settled by the time this reaches you, but at present the contest seems to be between St. Louis and Chicago. They are a jolly lot, these Democrats, and put down a great deal of evil in the shape of corn juice and "sich." If our hotels are so filled up with the delegations from these cities how could we ever take care of a convention representing the whole country? Yet many claim that Washington is the place for all of them. Not much is said about candidates among the Democrats now here, but there are some booms ready to be launched at the time and place for holding the convention has been settled.

DOM PEDRO.

CASUALTIES.

Tornadoes have been reported this week in six states, thousands of houses were destroyed and hundreds of lives lost. It is reported from Atlanta, Ga., that one million dollars worth of property, 5000 houses and 300 to 400 lives were lost in that state by the terrible storm of Tuesday last. Macon and Augusta suffered greatly. In North Carolina at Charlotte and Wilmington there were immense losses, so also in Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, these added to the untold destruction by the floods of last week, swell the calamities of this year to a most inconceivable extent. The very demon of destruction seems abroad in the land; mine explosions, railway trains plunging through bridges, &c., still swell the repulsive summary.

The March Eclectic contains as its principal articles: "Religion: A Prospect and a Retrospect," by Herbert Spencer; "The Sudan and its Future," by Sir Samuel Baker; and "A Visit to Philistia," by Sir Lepel Griffin. There is another installment of Ivan Turgeneff's prose poems, "Senilia," which will be read with great interest. A very remarkable short story is "Old Lady Mary," from Blackwood's, by Mrs. Oliphant, one of the most original and unique ghost stories ever written. A very vivid picture of medieval Italian life is given in "A Florentine Tradesman's Diary," which will be completed in the next number. Other striking papers are: "Earthquake Weather," "Tragedy in Japan," "Personal Recollections of Gambetta," "Scrap from the Chronicles of Venice," and "Old and New Cynics." The poems are from Swinburne, Tennyson, and Brown. The magazine, in its entirety, is of great interest, and contains more variety than usual in spite of several lengthy papers. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, N. Y. Terms, $5 per year; single numbers, 45 cents; trial subscription for 3 months, $1.

We will send the Eclectic and the Emmitsburg Chronicle to any address for one year for $5.50, postage prepaid.

The Century Magazine for March has a portrait of Von Moltke, from a photograph by Schaar, and a sketch of his life by Helen Trimmer; "The New Washington," profusely illustrated; a criticism on "Henry Irving," "The next Presidency," by Wayne MacVeagh; "Old Public Buildings in America," by Richard Grant White, beautifully illustrated; an article on "The Suppression of Pauperism," by D. M. G. Means; continuation of "The Average Man," "The Cruise of the Alice May," "Dr. Sevier," "Notes on the Exile of Dante," "Mrs. Finlay's Elizabethan Chair," a short story by Octave Thanet, which together with "Topics of the Time," "Open Letters," and a more than usually interesting collection of "Bric-a-Brac," make up the contents of this number, which is in every respect as interesting and entertaining as any of its predecessors. The Century Co., New York.

MARBLE playing has been fully established among the boys, and the spirit of determination they manifest is wonderful to note; neither rain, nor mud can dampen their ardor in the earnest aim to plump an antagonist's mineral. Will they enter the game of life with a like ambition?

The Cowhide at Work.

Mr. Andrew G. Boyd, correspondent of the Baltimore Sun in Hagerstown, cowhide Mr. Ira W. Hays publisher of the daily Evening Globe at that place on the 15th inst. The trouble grew out of an article in the Globe which Mr. Boyd thought reflected on him.

WHEN sale bills are printed at this office, we give a notice of the sale in this paper until the day of sale, free of charge. Blank notes also given with every lot of bills, when needed, and those who have bills printed here, can have the same inserted in the paper at reduced rates. Notices of sales printed elsewhere, are inserted on favourable terms.

The cold wave rolled in this way on Tuesday night, and the scenes of that day were mightily changed by the next morning. The solid ground stood forth where mud and running water were; overcoats were highly buttoned, and the leisurely tread of the pedestrians was changed to haste and hurry. The brook back bone of winter asserts its native continuity.

She was highly esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances and had attained her eighty-second year. Her funeral will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon.—The Call of the 18th, inst.

Card to the Public.

For obvious reasons certain parties have been and are still industriously circulating the report that I have retired from the practice of dentistry, and I take this means of notifying my friends and the public in general that I have not the slightest idea of giving it up, on the contrary am giving my entire time and attention to it, at prices as low as any responsible dentist in the country. Respectfully, J. T. Bussey, Dentist, Emmitsburg, Md.

Birthday Celebration.

There was a notable celebration in Lancaster, Pa., on the 7th inst., being a reunion of the family, the faculty of Franklin and Marshall college and members of the Alumni of the college, in celebrating the 78th birthday of Wm. M. Nevlin, L. L. D., Professor of English Literature. A very handsome and elaborate silk quilt was presented to him from some of the Alumni through the Ladies Mite Society of the Reformed Church at Carlisle, accompanied by several lines of poetry that were very happily conceived.

From the Valley Register.

The Shaff family, residing at Jefferson, in this valley, has been instanced to us as a rather remarkable family, which doubtless has no parallel in the State. It consists of two brothers and five sisters, all unmarried, (one of them a widow, however) and all living together in the same house. The youngest of the seven is sixty-two years old, and the two oldest between eighty and ninety years of age. Their combined ages approximate 500 years.

We are sorry to notice that the Rev. S. B. Shaffer has been compelled to resign the pastorate of the Reformed Church at Manheim, Pa., on account of ill-health. His resignation was tendered his congregation last Sunday, and will take effect immediately. Mr. Shaffer, as our readers will remember, is a son-in-law of Rev. F. A. Rupley, late pastor of the Reformed church of this place, now residing at Martinsburg, Blair county Pa., to which place he will shortly move his family, also.

A MINISTER, in Lowell, Mass., has been obliged to give up preaching on account of trouble in his throat. If this reverend gentleman had taken Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup he would still have been a useful member of his profession.

Death of an Estimable Citizen.

Mr. Jonathan Schindel, who was thrown from his sleigh some weeks since—his horse taking fright at a coasting sled—and most severely injured, died at his residence 1 1/2 miles north of town on Sunday last, his injuries having been followed by erysipelas. Mr. Schindel was one of a large and influential family, and a man who had the esteem of the entire community in which he was born and reared, and personally possessed many virtues. He was 64 years, 4 months and 10 days of age, and leaves a wife and two children. The funeral took place at Rose Hill Cemetery on Wednesday and was attended by a large number of deeply sympathetic friends.—Hagerstown Mail.

Court Proceedings.

The February term of the Circuit Court for Frederick county convened on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, with Judges Ritchie and Lynch on the bench. After the jurors had been called over by Clerk Fearhake, Judge Ritchie appointed Ed Joshua Biggs foreman of the Grand Jury, and proceeded to draw thereafter from the balance of the panel the following twenty-two names, who with the foreman constitute the Grand Jury.

Grand Jury—Joshua Biggs, foreman; Jos. E. Webster, Rufus K. Day, (not present) Tildenham T. Hershberger, Edward Parker, Geo. W. Molesworth, Wm. H. Figgins, Edw. Kemp, John Herman Rumsburg, Jonathan Plaine, Jacob H. Hines, Anthony McBride, Daniel Sigler, Solomon Blessing, Wm. H. Beall, John Houch, H. Clay Hall, Jacob H. Diehl, Jacob A. Moser, Jno. Calvin Cronise, Casper Lukin, Francis W. Hines, Charles H. Fulton.

Petit Jury—Richard T. Anderson, Basil Buxton, Adam H. Eyer, Gamaliel Easterday, Jos. D. Green, Wm. Haugh, Henry H. Hines, John E. Hargett, Daniel V. Harp, Theo. P. Keeler, Franklin P. Ledwith, Nathan Maynard, Edwin W. M. Eitresh, Jacob H. Nall, Jno. C. Padgett, Henry Perry, Hezekiah Poffinberger, Aaron Reedoub, (col'd.) Jno. Swendner, Jno. Toms, Alfred A. Troxell, Wm. N. Todd, Geo. F. Tabler, Geo. M. Worman, Jas. M. Welty.

About the Water Question.

It requires time to prove the value of projected improvements, this has been the experience of all communities. A few years hence, in view of the comparatively cheap way in which we are about to have the finest water supply of any inland town to be found, near or afar, everybody will wonder why we should have been so long in getting it?

It is now beyond dispute that public health depends very largely upon the purity of the water supply of a community. With such a quality as we shall soon have, pure as crystal, and fresh as the unfading Mountain springs can afford, the pestilence that carried off so many of our best citizens in 1853, the cholera, could not have gained a foothold here; with such an abundant flow from an elevation of 224 feet above the square as the reservoir is, the one third part of the town could not have been destroyed by fire in 1883; and on that calm, bright morning of last summer, the out flow of two or three water plugs would surely have saved the barns that were so greedily devoured by the ravaging flames, and the mighty conservation of all our citizens had been avoided. Insurance rates will surely be lowered, except for the merchants, we say except, because they always suffer more from water than the fire. We predict the future workings of our water concerns will be so beneficial and acceptable as to excite wonder as to how any group for doubt could have arisen, the works themselves all know are a fixed matter, surely to be completed, the only other has been as to the details for making the practical benefits available for the public use; the most effective and the cheapest modes are now within reach. If we should have to maintain a paid fire department its cost will be greatly beyond proposed limits, and its work will be very expensive to all who may require its aid.

RECEPTION.

On Wednesday evening last, the residence of Mr. Detrick Zeck, was crowded with friends and relatives, who had gathered to welcome and congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Millard F. Shuff, who only returned from their bridal tour at that time. From the handsomely decorated parlor, to the room where the sumptuous refreshment table was spread, all was a scene of pleasure and gaiety, and the bride and bridegroom, whose spirits seemed unaffected by the bad weather, they had during their trip, entered heartily into the enjoyment of the affair. The presents were very numerous and beautiful, consisting of many articles of glass-ware, a very handsome China Teaset, Oil-paintings, Silverware of every description, Boquet Holders, a very handsomely bound Family Bible, Lamps, Fruit Plates, Bronze Ornaments, Tidies, Table Scarfs, and articles of household furniture, together with many others too numerous to detail. The number of friends present at the reception, showed how many are the good wishes that surround the newly united pair. Mr. and Mrs. Shuff, will make their home for the present, at the residence of the brides father Mr. D. Zeck.

STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.—The Maryland State Sunday School Convention, under the auspices of the Maryland S. S. Union, will meet in Baltimore City, March 11, 12 and 13 prox. Each Sunday School in the State is entitled to two delegates.

SALE OF A FARM.—The farm belonging to the heirs of the late Jacob Huffer, situated about 2 miles from town, has been sold to Mr. McBride, of Frederick county at $75 per acre. The present tenant Mr. M. R. Nicodemus will remain upon the farm until April 1st, 1889.—Boonsboro Times.

A QUIET WEDDING.—A large company of relatives and friends gathered at the residence of W. Ross White, Esq., on Thursday afternoon, to witness the marriage of his daughter, Miss Flora, to Mr. George Porter, of Franklin county, Pa. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Simonton, of this place, and the happy couple took the 3:30 train for Baltimore, Washington, and other places.

THE 22ND OF FEBRUARY.—The Birthday of Washington promises to be celebrated this year to a greater extent than has been usual of late. The celebrations now in progress in great part are by literary associations, school, &c., in such forms as show a depth of appreciation far more indicative of the popular veneration for the "Father of his Country," than can ever be the case, where noisy demonstrations mark its observance. This is as it should be. So long as the people cherish the memory of his exalted character, and respect the virtues which adorned his life, so long may we hope to reap the benefits that flow from his illustrious example, and no better lessons can be imparted to youth, than such as may be given in connection with the day.

Legislation.

In the State Senate on the 15th inst., was reported favorably. House bill enacted an Act to authorize and empower the Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg, to make a contract with the Emmitsburg Water Company in Frederick county a joint stock water company, for the supply of water to said town, and erection of fire plugs or hydrants, and to levy taxes to pay said company, according to the terms of said contract.

With the recommendation that it be referred to a Select Committee, composed of the Senator from Frederick, and such others as the President should appoint.

The President appointed as the remaining members of said Committee, Messrs. Hayes and Allison.

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.—A school examination was held in the beautiful new school house at Stony Branch, on last Wednesday. Mr. W. Clifford Krise has been the successful and popular teacher of the school for five years. The examination was conducted in the presence of the Trustees and many of the parents of the pupils, and proved highly entertaining; The Algebra class in particular came in for commendation. Dialogues, Declarations and Recitations were effectively rendered, showing the careful training of the principal. At the close of the exercises proper, N. C. Stansbury, Esq., tendered the thanks of the patrons in some timely remarks, which were neatly responded to by Mr. Krise, and the entire entertainment passed off to the delight of all who were present.

WARNING TO FARMERS.—This is the time of year for farmers to keep their weather eye open for every kind of bogus seed. Almost every day the country papers get circulars advertising the merits of a new brand of oats that will grow a bushel and a half per acre and never stubble fall. Then it will be wheat—a small quantity sown in your garden will grow enough grain to keep a family in flour a year. Some other fellow has a new kind of corn, which he calls the branching kind. The stalks do not grow quite as large as peach trees, but you can raise from eighty to a hundred bushels per acre very easily. Then the potato man will send out his circulars, and so it goes. Now it is well enough for every farmer to experiment with new seeds of all kinds, but they should be bought of reliable houses which deal in such things and in small quantities, so if they should fail the loss is but a trifle. The amount of money that farmers are swindled out of every year by these seed sharpers is enormous.—Ez.

GEORGE HENDRICKSON, Jr., one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Cumberland, died Sunday night at Germantown, Pa. He went there some weeks ago to attend his father's funeral, was taken with brain fever immediately on arriving, and had been ill ever since. He was in the fifty-sixth year of his age, and a native of New York City. From 1855 to 1859 he was general superintendent of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company.

How to Cook an Old Hen.—A notable paragraph on the above subject, highly interesting to toothless persons, is going the rounds of the press. We decline to publish it, for the reason, that our readers care not to indulge in such inviting subjects in the line of edibles; and if any one should be so devoid of the proprieties of life, as to sell or give us one of the tribe, we shall not stand upon the order of our going, but go for that person forthwith.

A Brilliant Scheme.

In the book of Kings, O. T., it is written.

"And it came to pass after these things, that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard which was in Jezreel, hard by the palace of Ahab King of Samaria. And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, give me thy vineyard that I may have it for a garden of herbs, because it is near unto my house: and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it; or if it seem good to thee I will give thee the worth of it in money."

And Naboth said to Ahab, the Lord forbid me, that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee.

There has come to our knowledge an account of a movement, on the part of some of the citizens of this place, whose names we do not know, and which we do not care to know, that has recalled the above quotation, which may serve in application to the point in view.

Actuated by a laudable desire for Church Extension these men got up a petition to the Legislature of Maryland, to close the alley that runs by the Lutheran Church to the public road, leading from Carlisle street to Poplar Ridge, which if it could ever take effect would require the residents of that notable locality to go a square or more out of their usual course, whenever they wished to come to town.

The Alley has been a most convenient one, and much travelled by all the landholders of the Ridge country, from the very foundation of this town, and the memories of thousands scattered over the land have pleasant associations, connected with its course, from youth to old age, in all the diversities of pursuits to which it has been held as the pathway, whether for rabbit hunting, lovers' walks or sauntering recreations, and its course by the graveyard, after night has often been enlivened by the shrill whistling of superstitious lads who sought to show their ability to disarm fear. Neither public nor private necessity requires the meditated change; its accomplishment however would be a public inconvenience and trouble, whose extent would only be apparent as time might develop. No man unless paid to do so, would on second thought, again sign a like petition.

"It is good to be zealously affected, always in a good thing;" but zeal without knowledge is taken in its own craftiness.

FITTS

A Leading London Physician establishes an Office in New York for the Cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.

From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. A. B. MERRILL (late of London) who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. He has simply been administering what he has heard of cases of over 20 years standing, successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send him a recent and P.O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address Dr. A. B. MERRILL, No. 59 John St., New York.
