Vanderbilt's Strong Box.

A VAULT THAT HOLDS $200,000,000.

I stood the other day in the vault of the formidable fortress of iron and masonry on Forty-second street, where last year the richest nabob in the world locked up his $200,000,000 in stocks, bonds and other securities. It is one of the most redoubtable works of defense on the American continent, though you may not be entirely certain of that by surveying the building from the outside. Its foundations were blasted out of the rocks; the front wall is five feet in thickness, and the side and rear walls three feet, the materials used being pressed brick with brownstone trimmings. The beams, girders and main pillars are iron incased in fire proof material. The doors, window frames and minor partitions are iron, marble and glass. No wood is to be found in the structure. The vault is 36x42 feet, of wrought iron, steel and Franklinton iron, is imposing in strength and proportions, and is situated on ground floor. Its four outer doors weigh 8,200 pounds each, and have every effective and known improvement in defensive devices. A massive wall of masonry surrounds the ironwork. The vault, which is burglar, fire and water proof constitutes a distinct building in itself. The armed watchmen who guard the building day and night are under the strictest discipline, their hourly movements being recorded by electric clock connecting with various points on each floor of the structure, and there are also wires running to police headquarters and the offices of the district telegraph. In one corner of this great vault, behind heavy iron bars are the heavier iron doors of the works containing the Vanderbilt securities, which can be opened only by skeleton keys held by the owner alone. I suppose that a hundred men in this building, with Gatling guns, could easily defend it against a mob of 100,000 assauly; it could be reduced by nothing less than the continued play of heavy artillery.—John Swinton.

The Back-Yard.

Many back yards are abominations to the eye and nose. One finds in them all sorts of litter and refuse from oyster cans to old boots. Here the slops of the kitchen are poured to increase the odors which ought to warn every thoughtful person of the malarial influence breeding there, to break out eventually in fever, or diphtheria. If any member of the family dies from one of these diseases, his death is probably lamented as a "mysterious dispensation of Providence," but the minister would say if he were to visit the back-yard that death was caused solely by a violation of hygienic laws. A very strong argument against a dirty back yard, is the spirit of deception which it is apt to foster in the young members of the family, for it is a constant deceit to present a clean and attractive front-yard to the gaze of the passers, while the back-yard is not fit to be seen. Children should be taught to be clean for the sake of cleanliness, and not because outsiders are likely to criticize them. The best plan is to have a hoghead or large box fitted up in one corner of the yard, and make it a rule to throw into this old cans, boots, broken dishes, and all such rubbish, and when there is a great accumulation, to bury or burn it. Do not allow anything to be thrown about. Have drains made to convey all slops entirely away from the house. Make good walks, and let the ground have a fine covering of grass, not weeds. Put up strong supports for the clothes line. Keep the fence in repair, and plant currant bushes near it. Set vines about the refuse barrel, and train them over it until it is hidden. If you have a receptacle for ashes, let it be something which can be shut up, not a row of old barrels to offend the eye, and give out a cloud of ashes every time the wind blows. Make it a rule to have the back-yard at all times as clean as the front one.—E. E. REXFORD, in the American Agriculturist for June.

When Sir Walter Scott was at school a boy in the same class was asked by the "dominie" what part of speech "with" was, "A noun, sir," said the boy, "You young blockhead," said the pedagogue, "what example can you give of such a thing?" "I can tell you, sir," interrupted Scott; "you know there is a verse in the Bible which says 'They bound Samson with withs.'—Exchange.

"It is said that water composes three-fourth of the human body." It is only necessary to keep the head under for a minute or two and the entire body will be composed.

"WHAT does Good Friday mean?" asked one Halsted street urchin of his companion. "You'd better go home and read your 'Robinson Crusoe,'" was the withering reply.

LIFE is like a harness. There are traces of care, lines of trouble, bits of good fortune, breaches of good manners, bridled tongues, and everybody has a tug to pull through.—Worcester Gazette.

An old lady from the country goes for the first time to the opera. After a few solos, the troupe all sing together.

"Ah!" remarks the old lady, "they don't care now that they have our money. See, all singing together so that they can get through the sooner."

At Salisbury, Mo., lately a man undertook to beat his wife. She knocked him down. He picked himself up, and saying that he had nothing more to live for after being vanquished by a woman, went to a pond and stood in water up to his neck for an hour. Finding this did not kill him he went home.

I've heard of a young couple who got married and went off to Angus to a tour, and the feller stuck his fork into a codfish ball and took a bite. He choked it down like a hero, and when his beloved asked him what was the matter, replied: "Don't say anything about it, Manly, but as sure as you are born there is something dead in the bread."—Bill Arp.

GRAPHIC view of an opponent:—We speak only within bounds and with a full sense of our responsibility, when we call him a boil on his party's nose, a sty in its eye, a rotten tooth in its jaw, a green-apple ache in its stomach, a hornet in its councils, and a pumpkin lantern in its campaigns. He infests his party as trichina infest a ham, and undermines its constitution like a blast of malaria from a morass, etc., etc.

CONJUGIAL FELICITY.—Under the head of "State of Marriage in London in 1816," an English newspaper of sixty years ago gives these figures: Runaway wives, 1,132; runaway husbands, 2,348; married persons legally divorced, 4,175; living in open warfare, 17,345; living in private misunderstanding, 15,270; mutually indifferent, 55,240; regarded as happy, 8,175; nearly happy, 127; perfectly happy, 13. Total, 96,835.

An old tract says: "The jury of twelve was adopted because the prophets were twelve, the apostles numbered twelve, there were twelve Jewish Judges, twelve pillars of the temple, twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes of Israel, twelve stones in Aaron's breastplate, twelve gates of Jerusalem, twelve months in a year, and twelve signs in the zodiac. When juries were first established the Judge took the jurors about with him in a cart until they agreed. If they didn't agree, they were fined and imprisoned."

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT CURE of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear his testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections.
