AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifling by the majority of sufferers.
The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious ex-posure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.
"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed nights after lying without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me."
—HORACE FAIRBROTHER, Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Group—A Mother's Tribute.
"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from suffocation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours, —MRS. EMMA GIBNEY, 150 West 125th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effective remedy for cough and colds I have ever tried."
—A. J. CRANE,
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL."
—JOSEPH WALDEN,
Elyria, Ohio, April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles."
—E. B. BRADGOS, Talestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will cure every case when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

AN OLD MAN'S NEW YEAR'S SONG.

BY R. H. STODDARD.

The world is full of mystery, Which no one understands;
What is before our eyes we see,
The work of unseen hands; But whence, and when, and why they wrought, Escapes the grasp of human thought.

There was a time when we were not,
And there will be again;
When we must cease and be forgot,
With all our joy and pain.
Gone like the wind, or like the snow,
That fell a thousand years ago!

We live as if we would not die, Blindly, but wisely, too;
For if we knew death always nigh, What would we say or do, But fold our hands and close our eyes,
And care no more who lives or dies?

New year! if you were bringing youth,
As you are bringing age, I would not have it back, in sooth—I have no strength to wage Lost battles over; let them be, Bury your head, O Memory!

You can bring nothing will surprise,
And nothing will dismay;
No tears again in these old eyes, No darkness in my day.
You might bring light and smiles instead:
If you could give me back my dead!

I have beheld your kin, New Year, Full fifty times, and none That was so happy and so dear, I wept when it was done.
Why should we weep when years depart,
And leave their ashes in the heart?

Good-by, since you are gone, Old Year, And my past life, good-by;
I sh!e no tea upon your brier,
For it is well to die;

New Year, your worse will be my best—What can an old man want but rest?

THE OLD GREETING.
Ah, friend, the good old customs are waning fast away, Who wears a sprig of oak-leaves now to honor Charlie's day?

Neglected all the mad-cap rites of jolly Hallowe'en,
And scarce a loyal courtier left to greet the fair May Queen.

Well, let them wane, my brother, as wane they must and will—At least, there's one old festival that has its honor still;

At least, there's one old greeting whose music still is dear—
"A merry, merry Christmas, and a happy, bright New Year."

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON'S EX-PERIMENT.
In a ground floor room in one of the large public buildings of London a man sat writing at a table covered with papers. He was a short, strongly built figure, with a prominent nose, and a face hard and massive as a granite statue, wearing the set look peculiar to men who have surmounted great difficulties and confronted great perils. Few, indeed, had had more practice in both than this man, for he was no other than the Duke of Wellington, and his crowning victory at Waterloo was still but a few years old.

There was the tinkle of a bell outside, and then a murmur of voices in the ante room, but the Duke never raised his head from his writing, even when his secretary entered and said:

"If it please your Grace, that man with the bullet proof breast-plate has called again, and wishes very much to see your Grace for a moment."

The Duke's face darkened, as well it might, for the man in question was the most pertinacious bore whom he had ever encountered. The bullet-proof cuirass was his own invention, and he never lost a chance of declaring that the safety of the whole British army depended upon its instant adoption of this "unparalleled discovery," which he carried about with him, and exhibited at all times and in all places.

Had this been all, he would soon have been disposed of; but, unluckily, he had contrived to interest in his invention one or two of the Duke's personal friends, and to get from them letters of recommendation which even Wellington could not easily disregard. Something must clearly be done, however; for although the fellow had hitherto been kept at bay, he was evidently determined to give the Duke no peace till the matter had been fully gone into.

For a moment Wellington looked so grim that the secretary began to hope for the order which he would gladly have obeyed, namely, to kick the inventor into the street forthwith. But the next instant the iron face cleared again, and over it played the very ghost of a smile, like the gleam of winter sunshine upon a precipice.

"Show him in," said he briefly.

The observant secretary noted both the tone and the smile that accompanied it; and he inwardly decided that it would have been better for that inventor if he had not insisted on seeing the Duke.

In came the great discoverer—a tall, slouching, shabby, slightly red-headed man, with a would be janny air, which gave way a little, however, before the "Iron Duke's" penetrating glance.

"I am glad to think that your Grace appreciates the merits of my invention," said he, in a patronizing tone. "They are, indeed, too important to be undervalued by any great commander. Your Grace cannot fail to remember the havoc made by your gallant troops at Waterloo among the French cuirassiers, whose breastplates were not bullet proof; whereas if—"

"Have you got the thing with you?" interrupted Wellington.

The inventor unwrapped a very showy looking cuirass of polished steel, and was just beginning a long lecture upon its merits, when the Duke cut him short by asking:

"Are you quite sure it is bullet proof?"

"Quite sure, your Grace."

"Put it on, then, and go and stand in that corner."

The other wonderingly obeyed.

"Mr. Temple," shouted Wellington to his secretary, "tell the sentry outside to load with ball cartridge, and come in here to test this cuirass.
Quick, now."

But quick though the secretary was, the inventor was quicker still.
The moment he realized that he had been set up there on purpose to be fired at, and to be shot dead on the spot if his cuirass turned out to be bullet-proof after all, he leaped headlong through the open window with a yell worthy of a Blackfoot Indian, and darting like a rocket across the courtyard, vanished through the outer gateway; nor did the Duke of Wellington from that day forth ever see or hear of him again.—Harper's Magazine.

The Disease of the Money-Counter.
A Washington correspondent visiting the Treasury department noticed that many of the women employed in counting bank notes looked ill, and had sores upon their hands or heads. The superintendent gave the following account of the trouble: "Very few," he said, "who spend any considerable time in counting, escape the sores, they generally appear first on their hands, but frequently they break out on the head, and sometimes the eyes are affected. We can do nothing to prevent this. All of the ladies take the greatest care of themselves in their work, but sooner or later they are afflicted with sores. The direct cause of the sores is the arsenic employed in the manufacture of money.
If the skin is the least abraded, and the arsenic gets under the flesh, a sore will appear the next morning.
The habit that every one has of putting the hand to the head or face is the way the arsenic poisoning is carried to those portions of the body."
"See here," said one of the officials, stepping by the side of a young lady and picking up a glass vessel containing a sponge, "this sponge is wet, and is used to moisten the fingers while counting the money. You see how black it is. That's arsenic. Every morning a new piece of sponge is placed on the desk of each employee, but before the day is over it is as black as this. I have known a dozen cases where ladies have been compelled to resign their positions. There are three ladies who were here six years before they were afflicted with sores. About three months ago they were so visited by them that they had to quit work. They have been away ever since, and the physician's certificate in each case says that their blood is poisoned with arsenic.—London

The Washington Monument.
A fair white marble column, the loftiest of all creations of men, has slowly arisen, during the past few years, to the memory of Washington.
It is situated near the Potomac, in the midst of the groves and gardens of our beautiful national capital, not far from the President's House. It is now nearly completed. In a few months the last stone will be placed on the wonderful pillar, and it will be dedicated with imposing ceremonies on the next anniversary of Washington's birth-day. In height it will exceed the pyramid of Cheops by nearly a hundred feet, the ball of St. Peter's by almost as much.

The famous London monument by Sir Christopher Wren is a little more than one third its height; the cupola of St. Paul's would seem almost a dwarf at its side. Our accomplished builder has made an excursion into the regions of the air quite unparalleled, and seems to rise easily with his great theme above all the labors of the past.

Yet it is a curious trait, showing the close connection between the early and the later discoveries of science, that the Washington Monument is built almost with the exact proportions of an Egyptian obelisk.

This was found to be the best guide for the construction of so tall a pillar. The monument is ten times as high as it is broad at its base. It will be 555 feet high. It is an enlarged obelisk, a copy of the solitary shaft that still points out the desert site of Heliopolis, or the ruddy pillars that adorn the Central Park and nearly all the great capitals of Europe—exiles of Egypt. But our American column will add to its attractions many conveniences unknown to the ancient or modern builders. Wren's monument, or Trajan's Column at Rome, could only be ascended by a wry flight of steps. In Washington's the visitor will be seized upon by the genius of steam, and raised in a few moments in a comfortable elevator almost to the copper apex at its top.

It is white marble on the outside, granite within. Iron columns rising to the top support the elevator.
The foundation is so solid, the proportions so just, that the tall pillar shows scarcely a deflection from the line of strictest rectitude.

Globes of electric light will adorn the interior. There will be no darkness in the shaft. The copper point at the top conducts the lightning to the ground. It will never be struck like the statue of Jupiter on the Roman Capitol. The electric experiments of Franklin will be remembered by every visitor. No one can examine this remarkable column without feeling that a new advance has been made in architecture, and the various devices used in its construction show the triumph of modern skill. Why should we not have houses as tall? Why abandon the upper regions of the air and cling so closely to the tainted earth? Before the visitor to the Washington Monument will open a prospect as fair as any the eye of man has rested on. He will look down upon a land of freedom. The scene is crowned with historical memories—some sad, some full of hope and joy.

Before him flows the broad Potomac; not far away is Mount Vernon. Beneath him are battle fields and scenes of bitter struggle in the past, and now the quiet city, hid in groves and gardens, sleeping in the shades of perpetual peace.

It is a hundred years since Washington, victorious yet sad, sick, impoverished, and almost desponding, had returned to Mount Vernon, hoping to find rest. But for him there was to be no repose. He was drawn at once into that violent political contest that followed the cessation of the war. He led the party of union. His mental labors were ceaseless and excessive; he grew old early. But he was successful. The disturbed and disordered country rose to prosperity and peace. Its enemies, who had foretold its utter ruin, were amazed at its progress.

The Union sprang up fair and shapely before the builder's hand, and it was chiefly by the influence of Washington's spotless name and ceaseless toil that the nation became one. It is this period in his life that the new monument will most fitly commemorate. It was then that he became more than ever the author of modern freedom.

This lofty and magnificent column will attract for generations the reverent curiosity of freemen. They will come from every part of the World to visit the city, the monument, and the grave of Washington.
The obelisk recorded only the name of a depot and the sorrows of the people. A Trajan and a Marcus Aurelius were the masters of a nation of slaves. The legends and monuments of European kings grow stale and unprofitable. The white marble shaft at Washington recalls a name dear to all mankind.

EUGENE LAWRENCE.
Eating Before Sleeping.
The notion is widely prevalent that it is unhealthy to eat late at night or just before retiring. This came from the severe denunciation of "late suppers" contained in nearly all the old popular works on diet.
But it was the midnight debauch that was the object of attack, and even here it was less the gluttony than the drunkenness which alarmed doctors and called forth their re-prehenensions. A man may induce apoplexy by gorging himself with food at any hour of the day.

Man is the only animal that can be taught to sleep quietly on an empty stomach. The brute creation resent all efforts to coax them to such a violation of the laws of nature. The lion roars in the forest until he has found his prey. The horse will paw all night in the stable, and the pig in the pen, refusing all rest until they are fed. The animals which chew their cud have their own provision for a late meal just before dropping off to their night slumbers.

Man can train himself to the habit of sleeping without a preceding meal, but only after long years of practice. As he comes into the world nature is too strong for him, and he must be fed before he will sleep. A child's stomach is small, and when perfectly filled, if no sickness disturbs it, sleep follows naturally and inevitably. As digestion goes on the stomach begins to empty. A single fold in it will make the little sleeper restless; two will awaken it, and if it is hushed again to repose the nap is short, and three folds put an end to the slumber.

Paregoric or other narcotic may close its eyes again, but without either food or some stupefying drug it will not sleep, no matter how healthy it may be. Not even an angel who learned the art of minstrelsy in a celestial choir can sing a babe to sleep on an empty stomach.

It is a fact established, beyond the possibility of contradiction, that sleep aids digestion, and that the process of digestion is conducive to refreshing sleep. It needs no argument to convince us of this mutual relation.
The drowsiness which always follows a well ordered meal is itself a testimony of nature to this interdependence.

The waste of human life by the neglect of the lesson is very great.
The daily wear and tear of the body might be restored more fully than it

It is believed that there were over twelve thousand persons in Music Hall and immediately in front of it. The musical features of the programme caused general and widespread enjoyment, for the bands were excellent, the selections of music well made and the acoustic properties of the hall perfect. After the Exposition had been declared open, and every feature of the programme finished, the audience dispersed and began a systematic inspection of the buildings and their contents. Although the paintings had not been hung up in the Art Building, and a considerable number of exhibits were not in place or lacked a few finishing touches, there were more rare, curious, useful and beautiful objects from all parts of the world than a person could properly see and study in one day or one week. There was a steady stream of humanity flowing through the Horticultural Hall while the crowds of visitors in the United States and State Exhibition Building appeared to be as large as in the Main Buildings. It is estimated that from 40,000 to 50,000 persons were at the opening of the Exposition. The Board of Management may congratulate itself that it has successfully inaugurated the greatest of World's Fairs.—Bulletin of New Orleans Dec 17th.

From the days of Cortez, in 1519, down to the beginning of this century and even to the present time except when interrupted by revolution, the Mexican silver mines are said to have poured forth an unceasing stream of silver. It is estimated that the value of the silver coin and bullion of that country since the conquest, is over $5,000,000,000, and it is well known that some of the mines have been profitably worked almost without interruption from that time to this, and one of them at least is still running out silver at the rate of $5,000,000 per year.

marble tile of approved pattern. The other method of finish proposed is to fill earth about the present race, and to extend this filling far from the monument as to the slopes of the embankment naturally into the surrounding surface and this is to be done with so much skill as to give to the mound a appearance so far from artificial as possible." If the marble wall is decided upon, an appropriation of $612,300 is asked to complete the entire work. If the second proposition is adopted, but $166,000 is desired. The joint commission favors the latter method.

GREAT things have ever hinged on trials. The first family difficulty on record was caused by an apple core; the last we heard of was the negligence of a father to keep up the supply of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup when all hands had a cold.

When the Harrisburg and Gettysburg Railroad extension through Emmitsburg is complete, the town and its community will gain from $1,500 to $2,000 yearly, in the article of coal alone, and the list of advantages may be indefinitely extended.

AN Exchange says there is not a single solon in Martinsville, Va., or the county surrounding, and business men say that the absence of drinking houses has added thousands of dollars to their prosperity, while the quality of farm and other kinds of labor has vastly improved since the closing of the dram shops.

This Fits our Case.
Look here! You wood subscribers. Do you think this office can get along without fire until Christmas? This has been a beautiful autumn, but a chilling blast might strike us next week, and we would be in a pretty fix if we relied on the promises of some men in regard to firewood.—Carrollton, Mo., Journal.

"Wounds fail to express my gratitude," says Mr. Selby Carter, of Nashville, Tenn., "for benefits derived from Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Having been afflicted all my life with scrofula, my system seemed saturated with it. It came out in blotches, ulcers, and mattery sores, all over my body." Mr. Carter states that he was entirely cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and since discontinuing its use, eight months ago, has had no return of the scrofulous symptoms.

DEATH OF MR. AMOS CRAMER.—This old and highly respected gentleman, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Joseph Glaze, about four miles north of this city, on Friday last, aged 85 years. Deceased was one of the oldest residents of the county, and was a gentleman esteemed by his numerous friends and acquaintances. He was the father of Mr. Jeremiah C. Cramer, formerly of this county. His remains were interred at the Glade Reformed Cemetery on Sunday afternoon last. Rev. Mr. Hinch officiating.—Reamier.

Cre. led to Frederick County.
Mr. William A. Gray, of West Falls, this county, has invented an ingenious machine for making rope. By the old plan it is said a day's work for several men is about one mile of rope while by Mr. Gray's process it is claimed that one man with a helper can turn out at least thirty miles of this material. A prominent manufacturing company of Baltimore has taken the manufacture of the machines in hand which it is said will revolutionize the work of rope making.—News.

We Sild.
The mists and the thaw of Monday, were in the night following consolidated into the most impenetrable mass of ice and snow on our side-walks and streets, by Tuesday morning; the streets were comparatively rugged as contrasted with the footways and yet they were equally slippery, and our walk to this office received some marked attention, by reason of an Editorial down-fall, that happily was relieved by that capital arrangement, our hat, which softened the concussion, we were a little shaken up, but not in the least discomfited.

Vick's Floral Guide for 1885 comes to us in a more attractive form than ever, the cover, with its unique decorations, being a real work of art, beautiful in execution. The contents, are as usual all that is required to enable the gardener and florist, to decide upon what best suits their tastes or needs, and make the selections in perfect faith as to their being what they are represented. The reputation of Vick's Flower and Vegetable garden, is too wide-spread to need even the commendation of the press, as is also the promptness and regularity with which all orders are filled. Their address is Rochester, New York.

Hangs.
The force of habit is oftentimes most difficult to overcome, when a new fashion is announced, there are persons who declare they will never adopt it, and yet those very persons are among the first to do so, and they show the utmost tenacity in adhering to it. Just so it is with the senseless style of adjusting the hair in the form of bangs, as it has been known. It is quite out of style, and yet some who would reckon it as insulting to be called out of fashion, still persist in wearing the equine affront on their foreheads.

An Aged Lady Fatally Burned.
HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 24.—Mrs. Emerson, mother of Mr. Upton Emerson residing near Boonsboro, Washington county, was found in bed yesterday by a visiting neighbor enveloped in flames, and so badly burned that she died a few hours afterwards. The deceased was 88 years of age, and lived alone in a small house adjoining that of her son. The cause of the accident is unknown, but it is supposed her clothing became ignited from a spark from the stove, and that in her fright she took refuge in bed.—Sign.

LACK of elasticity, loss of appetite, and a starting cough are generally the outward signs of worms. If a horse is afflicted with the latter give him a tablespoonful of Day's Horse and Cattle Powder three times a day for his condition. All drug stores sell it at 25 cents a package of one pound full weight.

Ox Christmas Eve. the midnight stillness was broken with harmonious melody, by a party of ladies and gentlemen singing Christmas Carols in front of the houses of some of our citizens. The old German custom is a very beautiful one, and we should be glad to see it become general in our matter-of-fact land.

LOCAL news has been very scarce with us of late, everybody has been so busy in the holiday preparations, that there has been no time for ordinary happenings. We are happy that we have no accidents to record, the icy walks, the rush of sleighs and all that, inviting to such results, not one word withstanding.

A Carnival.
Whilst they are planning and meeting and adjourning, all around us for Carnival performances hereafter, what are our young folks doing? shall we not have a like occasion here? We have the men who can plan and execute a fitting display. Let them come forward. To the Front ye boys! success will follow.

Cough! Cough! Cough!

It is steadily gaining in popularity, because it is a good and reliable remedy. Remember, it contains no morphine or opium—perfectly harmless. Price 25 and 75 cents. Sold by C. D. Eichelberger. In times of sleigh such as we have had within the past week. It would be time well used if every household, should sprinkle ashes, salt or saw-dust on the side walk of his or her home, or at least back the ice with a hoe or other sharp implement. The ice is a slippery thing, but yields its smoothness to the least scratching or enveloping of the surface. For your own safety as well as your neighbors', show yourself helpful.

A Splendid Calendar.
The American Calendar for 1885 is decidedly the best that office has ever issued and this indicates a degree of artistic finish that is really wonderful when the excellence of its predecessors is considered. We admire the work in its entirety, not artistic throughout, and free of glare and then the utility of its many tables and suggestive conveniences renders it all that could be desired whether in the counting-room, office or home circle.

Our exchanges from all quarters report the slaughtering of mammoth hogs. Tastes will differ, but unless you wish to go into the hard business, of what use are those monsters? To be sure you can realize on them in the market, but then are they wholesome? After certain limits, the product is an unnatural creation. We are not ambitious for ourselves, or our patrons to enter this field of competition. The constant recurrence of fat hogs in a paper is to our view simply a greasy sort of literature, odorous of personal taste.

Died Suddenly in Hagerstown.
HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 22.—Mr. John Boyd, for many years messenger and watchman of the First National Bank of Hagerstown, died here suddenly this evening of strangulated hernia. He was 68 years of age, and had been on duty at the bank up to Saturday evening. He leaves a wife and several children. He was a son of the late Joseph Boyd, well known throughout Maryland as a mail contractor on the old National road from Baltimore to Wheeling in the time of stage coaches.—Sun.

The cold wave that reached this place on Wednesday of last week, began to loosen its hold on Saturday evening and Sunday was a day of hail and rain and sleet, long to be remembered, when naught but necessity could tempt anybody abroad. The Ice King ruled with a relentless hand, as only he can rule, and his reign of crystalline splendor was only applauded for its short tenure, the lowest temperature recorded in our office was 4°. There is health and exhilaration in the cold, dry, piercing temperature thus noted; but for the dampness and the slush and cloudiness that ruled on Monday, alas! it maketh the strongest to quail. Therein is where we never set much store by our climate. The state of the air that goes straight to one's marrow bones can never be accounted agreeable.

Kidney Disease.
Mr. H. Warram, member of City Council, Woodbury, N. J., says: "I was a victim of the worst form of kidney disease. A short trial of Aromanna completely cured me." Price 25 and 75 cts. Sold by C. D. Eichelberger.

It is Said to Cost
From forty to sixty cents to stop a train of cars, but a cough or cold can best be stopped with a twenty-five cent bottle of DuLac's "Swiss Balm." Try it and see. Sold by C. D. Eichelberger.

Real Cat.
The very latest tramp dodge reported is as follows: The house wife responds to the usual ring or knock and finds Mr. Tramp sitting on the door-step with a dead cat in his lap. She is informed that a little salt is all he wants, and her curiosity is roused. "What does he want the salt for?" Tramp explains that he is very hungry and proposes to eat the cat. The salt will be a relish, that is all. The result is a substantial contribution of meat and bread from the cupboard. When the door is closed, the tramp picks up the cat and repeats the process elsewhere.—News.

The Frederick News says Mr. G. Hoskins Morgan, who for some time past has creditably filled the position of Manager of the Frederick Telephone Exchange, has resigned that position to accept a more lucrative one as Manager of the Baltimore Mutual Aid Association with headquarters in this city. Mr. Morgan made many friends while connected with the Telephone Company, and the regret at losing him will only be balanced by the knowledge that he will be financially benefited by the change. Mr. C. Dorsey Tyson, the pleasing and accommodating agent of the B. & O. Express has been appointed by Superintendent Miller to fill the position made vacant by Mr. Morgan's resignation.

The Martha Washington Tea-Party.
The ladies of the Fountain Association desire to remind their friends, both in town and country, that they will receive and entertain as many as will honor them with a call, on the evenings of the 26th and 31st of December, and throughout the day and evening of January 1st, on which occasions they will furnish their guests, all the delicacies of the season, in the style of "the old time."

The house of Miss Hallie Smith, now vacant, which she has kindly loaned for the entertainment, will be made as comfortable and attractive as can be desired, whilst the pleasant and social gathering of friends and neighbors, at the closing of the old year and the opening of the new, ought to secure a large attendance, apart from the fact of the object being one of interest to all.

Brown, Brisk, and Beautiful is the American Agriculturist for January. The Forty-fourth volume opens with more than the usual fullness and freshness, and is indicative of renewed vigor in this long established authority on all matters pertaining to the farm, garden, and household. Joseph Harris, "Wicks and Talks" from the West, Col. Weld is "Among the Farmers," Dr. Thibault, A. S. Fuller, Dr. Halsted, Dr. Shade, and a score of other well-known writers are represented by their best efforts. "One of New York's Breathing Places," is a charming specimen of engraving, and illustrates one of the minor points. "Re-modeling a Barn," a "Cheap Pottery House," and a "Good Smoke House," give the usual number and variety of farm buildings. Improvement in a Well Curb, Mouse Traps, Garden Fences, A. Harness Holder, Shop Trap, etc., are among the useful farm appliances.—Price $1.50 per year; single copy 15 cts. Address Publishers of the American Agriculturist, 751 Broadway, New York.

Christmas Observances.
Clouds overcast the skies on Christmas Day, except for a short interval about noon, when the sun peered through the gloom, and then disappeared for the day. There was great compensation however in the purity, and freshness of the snow on all sides, and the temperature was so moderate as to prove inviting to outdoor exercises and amusements. The sleighing was excellent and whatsoever could be brought into service for promoting the pleasure.

There were many social gatherings in which friend vied with friend in doing the agreeable, wherein festive scenes lent their attraction in honour of the day. The children were notably happy in investigating the contents of their stockings, and the treasures of good things that depended from the richly laden and glittering boughs of the Christmas trees. Religious services were held in St. Joseph's (Catholic) Church, Rev. Fr. White, pastor, with all the careful attention to decoration, attractive ceremonial, and solemn services, wherever that church celebrates the day. There were three Masses for the day.

In the church of the Incarnation (The Reformed) the services were of a very interesting character. Rev. Prof. J. B. Kerschner, officiated, and preached a sermon in his usual lucid and very edifying manner. The choir contributed to the impressiveness of the services, in the way of rendering Anthems, Chants, &c. The church was decorated in a style that did credit to the taste of the designer, Mr. Charles Baker, and the effect must have been a great gratification to him and his assistants. The chancel and particularly the altar, being neatly set off with cedar and ivy and box, ferns and window plants, and on the right and the left of the chancel were suspended tablets of crimson cloth with scripture mottoes; the windows were surrounded with evergreen wreaths, with mottoes over them, and wreaths curved from the ridge-piece of the ceiling to the pilasters of the chancel: The Lecture, the Pulpit and the Baptismal Font, were all neatly ornamented with box and pine. About noon and during the afternoon a party of "fantastics" from Mechanicstown paraded the streets on horse-back, and with their musks and other grotesque deckings created some amusement, but the best thing of this exhibition was the general good appearance of the horses in the service. For the balance of the day, the sleighing seemed to present the greatest attraction, and it was kept up in a continually renewed tribulation of the bells until a late hour.

The Century Magazine for January 1885, has a portrait of Edward Everett Hale, and a sketch of his life and writings, by William Sloane Kennedy; Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer, fourth article, "Recent Architecture in America," "deal with churches only, and is full of interest." "The Making of a Museum," by Ernest Ingersoll, is an interesting to the reader as a museum itself, is the curious visitor; Washington Gladden furnishes an article on the relations of "Religion and Popular Amusements" which cannot fail to commend itself to the thoughtful consideration of the earnest christian reader be his creed or prejudices what they may; "The Knight of the Black Forest," by Grace D. Litchfield, is continued; as is also W. D. Howells story, "The Rise of Silas Lapham," there is an amusing sketch by Mark Twain, "Topics of the Time," "Open Letters," and the usual Brie-a-Brac as well as much other reading, both useful and entertaining. The Century Co., New York.

The January number of The Eclectic is a very favorable specimen of this long established and excellent magazine, which seems to grow better with its age. This number being the commencement of a volume, is embellished with a beautiful steel engraving entitled "The Lesson." The first article is an interesting paper on "Mountain Observatories," and next we have a continuation of Prof. J. R. Seelye's striking study of Goethe. A racy and gossiping article is found in "Bygone Celebrities and Literary Recollections" by Dr. Charles Mackay. Stephen, the great authority on Terrorism in Russia, is represented by a powerful story called "A People's Militia," which has great pathos, and which we understand to be true in its facts and not fiction. "Among the Trappists" and "The Local Color of Rome and Juliet" are suggestive and interesting papers. Articles of great interest to readers of varying tastes will be found in "Democracy and the Slave Trade," "Wurzburger and Vienna" by Emile de Laveleye, "Ancient Organs of Public Opinion," by Prof. R. C. Jebb, "Three Glances of a New England Village," and Herbert Spencer's "Last Words about Agnosticism and the Religion of Humanity." A charming light paper will be enjoyed in "Beyond the Haze," a Winter Ramble Revere, and those interested in popular science will find their tastes suited in the articles on "Thunderbolts and Electricity and Common Gas." The Editorial Department of the number will be found unusually full and interesting.

As this number begins a new volume it offers a favorable time for new subscriptions for the year.
Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms $5 per year; single numbers, 45 cents; trial subscription for 3 months, $1. Eclectic and any $4 Magazine, $8.

The Old Year Gides.
In ancient Rome the year began in March, until Numa transferred it to the 1st of January, and then it was sacred to Janus, whose ambivalence looked at once back upon the past and forward to the new.
Christmas Day, The Annunciation (March 25) Easter day and March 1st, have all at different times or places shared the honour of opening the New Year. It was late in the 16th Century, when January 1st, was universally accepted as the first day of the New Year.
From the immortal and superstitious observances of the pagan festival of the time, the Church made it a time of prayer, fasting and humiliation, but the festive character still maintained its influence. It was formally set apart in commemoration of the circumcision of Christ, and is thus still observed.
For all ages it has been a time of feasting, and the interchange of presents, and other social observances of good-will.
The practice of tolling bells for the expiring year and ringing in the new one had its origin in the dim past, and is yet observed as a matter of solemn recollection and joyful anticipation. The firing of guns and such like pranks come in as relics of the pagan revelries.
As a time for the free flow of youthful buoyancy of feeling, if not maddened by dissipation or immorality, we think the young should have the liberty of the occasion. Let the solemn knell of the old year peal forth on the midnight air, and all hearts bid good bye to the fleeting remnant of the joyous associations gone forever; and hail with fondest hopes and fervent blessings the New-Come so bright in prospect, and beaming with the joy, that follows up the departing, and takes the sceptre of the Time-to-come, and if the bell-ringers think they have done it—let no one demur.
