Franks of the Storm. Saturday's gale visited Mecklenburg quite severely. The west gable end of the Methodist Church was blown in as far as the eaves of the roof, and a quarter of the roof on the north side carried away. A quantity of bricks fell through the ceiling, taking with them about twelve feet of the plastering besides slightly damaging the organ and the railing around the pulpit. The loss is estimated at $150 to $200.—News.

THE Scientific American gives the following method of softening the putty on old sash so as to get the glass out without breaking? Take 1 pound of American pearl ash, 3 pounds of quick stone lime; slack the lime in water, then add the pearl ash, and make the whole of the consistency of putty. Apply it to both sides of the glass, and let it remain for twelve hours, when the putty will be so softened that the glass may be taken out of the frame with the greatest facility.

More Ice. The freeze of the last part of the past week, and the beginning of this one, proved a blessing to the ice gatherers and they have improved the opportunity with good effect. The skaters too have been busy in the exercise which the frozen streams have afforded them; all together the cold exhilarating atmosphere has been welcomed as a health-giving change in the inconstant developments of the season.

Road Supervisors. The County Commissioners completed the extended lists of the citizens, who are expected to do certain undefined and unaccountable things on our public roads, during the current year. We still hope for the coming of that good time when road-making shall have become a public blessing, under well defined rules and proper engineering. 'Till then the annual distribution of money among the willing workmen must go smilingly for ward.

A PINE full-grown bald-headed eagle was on exhibition in town yesterday. It is owned by Mr. Reuben Saylor, Jr., and was gotten by him from Mr. Joseph Miller, of Double Pine Creek. The bird is a magnificent specimen of the National emblem. He measures 6 feet 9 inches from tip to tip, and weighs 11 1/2 pounds. The capture was made by Mr. Miller near Miller's bridge, on Big Pipe Creek. A steel trap was used and the bird was caught by one of his talons. An old lady who lives in the vicinity of the capture states that she has frequently seen the same bird flying along the creek during the past fifty years.—Union Bridge Era.

KEEPING a diary is not what it is cracked up to be. Thirty days of accuracy is about the limit of the endurance; but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has never yet disappointed any one who has used it; secure a bottle for that awful cold.

Wind Storm. The mild weather whose continuation, with certain exceptions in opposition to the very disagreeable dampness, had been a theme of general congratulation, gave place to a most stirring change on Friday night of last week. The snow and the rains that had preceded in the middle of the week prepared the way for a regular storm of wind, on that night that was almost western in its force and intensity. But happily, save in the way of overturned fences and a few small, outside buildings, we are relieved from recording any damages in this locality. But elsewhere the damages were great, and much consternation was produced.

Burglary in Hagerstown. HAGERSTOWN, MD., Jan. 18.—Between 12 o'clock Saturday night and daylight Sunday A. M. the wholesale and retail liquor house of W. W. Walker & Co., on Jonathan street, Hagerstown, was broken into and robbed of over $200 in money, stolen from an iron safe, which the thieves blew open. The safe, which was a very large one, was completely wrecked, showing that some powerful explosive matter, supposed to be dynamite, had been used. A smaller safe containing a larger sum of money escaped the attention of the thieves. The work was without doubt that of professionals, who before taking their departure from the building, entrance to which they had gained by cutting through the shutter of a rear window, reaped themselves with the most choice champagnes and liquors the establishment contained, besides carrying with them a number of bottles.

COMMUNICATED. DEAR CHRONICLE: I received a circular requesting a contribution to the Fountain fund, which it appears, is not sufficient to pay all indebtedness. Would it not be more satisfactory to give us a statement of the financial condition of the association, its wants, that we may be the better prepared to make our contributions? It is doubtless the desire and determination of the citizens that the indebtedness whatever it may be, shall be cancelled. As for myself, for whom alone, I can speak, it will afford me pleasure to contribute something, although the amount will be necessarily small, not from a want of interest and appreciation, but a lack of means.

All honor, I say to the Ladies who have had this work in charge, and by whose untiring zeal and devotion it has been so successfully conducted to completion. For that they should have any undue care in obtaining the balance needed to defray all expenses. There is a statement in the circular referred to above, which, although without intention, is calculated to mislead, when it says "that of the money received," only the comparatively small sum stated, was received from our own citizens." Who I would ask, contributed to the success of the "Tea Party," Festival and Tableau? The money thus made was certainly contributed by "our citizens." Again I say it is not desirable that we have a clear and full statement in order that we may know our duty and promptly perform it? Who is not proud of our beautiful fountain? It is a cause of congratulation to all, that the useless and unsightly pump has been removed, and its place occupied by a structure, the beauty and attractiveness of which can only be increased by the streams of cool refreshing water flowing from it in sparkling, graceful curves of brightest hues. It is to be hoped all evil disposed and reckless ones of every species, will be awed, by the black and silent sentinels, which stand guard around the object of our high admiration, even though they lack the perfection of military precision.

REMARK. Our esteemed "friend" in some respects is on the right in the above remarks, and in others on the wrong track. We are not authorized to speak on behalf of the Fountain Association, and believe that the good judgment they have displayed in their undertaking will see them through to its close. We therefore simply give our personal view of the case; the "circulars" sent out it would seem were intended solely for home use, and not being in the character of a report, of course did not enter upon a statement of accounts. There has been no lack of appreciation of the assistance accorded by the citizens, but they frankly state the contributions in money from home sources did not exceed the sum specified.

They would seem further to discriminate as follows: Attendance on an entertainment is not a contribution, for those who attend get the worth of their money. The contributions of friends from abroad were free gifts. Now to close up the business, and to hand over the completed work to the donors, they need such aid as they think should be given at home. How it shall finally be finished must depend upon the means to that end. Any one can see that it admits of any amount of ornamentation, that the ladies may suggest, and the means at their disposal will allow, therefore the wishes of the community as expressed in the contributions, will surely be carried out, and will stand in evidence of our liberality. The full and final account of receipts and expenditures, will no doubt appear in due time, and prove as satisfactory as the one we printed for the Association some time ago. As before said these remarks are simply an expression of our individual views and are given for what they may be worth. The Ladies we doubt not will make satisfactory replies to any enquiries addressed to them.

Death of a Popular Pastor. Rev. D. M. LaMotte, pastor of the Lutheran church at Woodsboro' died in Baltimore Saturday afternoon. The deceased was a native of Carroll county near Manchester and a graduate of the Gettysburg Theological seminary. In 1876, having finished his studies at the seminary, he took charge of the Lutheran church at Woodsboro, as the successor of Rev. Leutz, the circuit embracing Woodsboro, Hangs, Rocky Hill and Union Chapel. In 1881 he married Miss Laura Fair, a daughter of John Fair, Esq., a prominent farmer of Taneytown. There is no issue of the marriage. When a boy Mr. LaMotte fell on a stone, inflicting a wound on the right limb which caused him great suffering ever since. In October last he fell on the ice and again injured the diseased limb. He went to Baltimore to have the member dressed and returned home feeling somewhat relieved. A short time afterward the trouble increased and the sufferer decided to undergo amputation. For this purpose he left for Baltimore on Tuesday and on Friday the limb was amputated. The shock was too great for the system to bear and the sufferer died the following afternoon at 5 o'clock. The body was brought to Manchester yesterday and this evening will arrive at Woodsboro. The funeral will take place Wednesday at noon, the interment to be made in the cemetery at Woodsboro Service will be conducted by Ites Valentine and Baugher, of the Gettysburg college, and Rev. Both of Taneytown. The deceased minister was greatly beloved by his congregation, and his influence extended outside the borders of his own pastoral charge. He had many admirers throughout all the surrounding country who deeply mourn his death.—Frederick News, January 19th.

It is Said to Cost. From forty to sixty cents to stop a train of cars, but a cough or cold can be stopped with a twenty-five cent bottle of DuLac's "Swiss Balsam." Try it and see. Sold by C. D. Eichelberger.

From the Union. We understand Capt. Joseph Groff purposes opening a skating rink for the colored folk. The carnival committee have decided to hold its next demonstration on Easter Monday, April 6. The jury of inquest summoned to inquire into the death of Hanson Gage, the colored man who was supposed to have been poisoned, on Tuesday afternoon concluded hearing testimony, and rendered a verdict that Gage died from natural causes.

Mr. Joseph Rosensteel, Sr. who resides near Mt. St. Mary's College, while engaged pruning a grape vine, recently accidentally inflicted a severe wound upon the inner part of his left wrist with the pruning knife. Little attention was given the matter, until he caught cold in the wound, and then he suffered much pain. It was feared lock-jaw would result, but under the skillful treatment of Dr. J. G. Troxell, who was called in, Mr. Rosensteel is now doing well.

Mr. George W. Rhoderick, a highly esteemed gentleman and a prominent farmer, living 2 1/2 miles north-west of Fredrick, on the farm owned by Dr. Fairfax Schley, of this city, died very suddenly Wednesday morning about 5 o'clock, of heart disease. Mr. Rhoderick was in his 59th year, and was a native of this county, having been born near New Market, in 1826. He was a gentleman of a retiring disposition, and a man of the strictest integrity, and whose every action was honest. He had been afflicted with heart disease for about eight years, and had just been recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia. He lived on the farm on which he died for nineteen years. He leaves a wife and four children—three sons and a daughter, and was a member of the Reformed Church at Brookhill.

The Home Newspaper. Newspaper men, of the rural districts in particular, find it necessary to be continually reminding their readers of the importance of maintaining the home press; no right thinking person can well object to such a course, it is a matter of business on the one hand and a regard for the encouragement of home industry on the other. Tradesmen arrange their wares so as to attract the attention of buyers; this is a mode of advertising practiced by all, whether they use the more effective instrumentality of printer's type or not. Publicity is useful to make trade prosper, and though there are subtleties for avoiding the most of their supposed astuteness or cunning will seek to circumvent the printer, even at their own cost, the man of foresight and perception will go straight forward in the acknowledged way to success. Every citizen is first and last interested in the upbuilding and prosperity of the community in which he has his home. For that advancement of that community necessarily includes his own advancement. A town without a newspaper devoid of a central point around which its business interests may revolve, and to aid in giving life and character to the newspaper, is to attract attention to its locality; to bring accessions to its population, and with them to open new industrial enterprises, and thus enhance the value of property on all sides. All this implies earnestness and heartiness of purpose, together with such outward action as may prove the existence of the interest within.

There are weekly newspapers from the cities at hand in the greatest abundance, their large sizes and low prices are the attractions which give them circulation. They have no interest, and can have none in the home affairs; they are cheap in price, because they are furnished for all they are worth. They cost nothing but the paper and the press work to get them out, as they are composed of the material which has been used in the Editions of the Daily papers, and are produced by the appliances of steam. The Home artisans cannot compete with the products of steam factories—everybody knows this, and as it is not expected to meet its counterpart in other departments of business, why then in the case of the printer?

Persons who are able should read several papers for the variety, but those who can afford to pay for but one, should first and last support the home one. There only do they learn of the affairs that are occurring around them; the marriages, the deaths, the changes in property, and the incidents of daily life; and the additional cost, whatever that may be, is more than repaid in the personal interest the case affords. If persons overlook their business and get abroad to deal with outsiders, the case is precisely analogous to your own practice when you overlook your home printer to encourage others at a distance. We write thus without selfish considerations, for we are assured that as regards our personal field of operations, our people will in the end, more benefit themselves than us in the full and hearty seconding of our efforts; our efficiency must be conditioned not by meagerness of support, but the complete measure of confidence that manifests itself by full sympathy in our aims.

Obituary. The decease of Patrick McNulty on Thursday evening, called forth many regrets in our community, where for long years his comparative helplessness enlisted the sympathies of all who knew him. In the month of August, 1863, just a few weeks after the great fire in this place, whilst engaged in clearing away the debris of one of the buildings that had been burned, a portion of a brick wall fell on him; though after many months of suffering he was able to go about again, he was sadly crippled, and never afterward capable of working, and thus his life has since been one of patient endurance of affliction; in all which he brought to bear the resources of a jovial disposition, that made him many friends. In the afternoon of his death he went to the hotel to see a relative, and before returning got a fall from the effects of which he died in a few hours, the case being one of supposed internal injury. He was buried from St. Joseph's Catholic Church on Friday morning, Rev. Fr. White, Pastor, officiating. May he rest in peace.

Magnetic Cures. Dr. HILL is the first man to discover the philosophical principle that all nervous pains, aches and debility should be treated directly from the "brain battery," from whence emanate all nervous force and will power. All other forms of treatment for nervous disorders are failures. Every person who suffers from nervousness knows this, and that medicines are useless, and differ from all other appliances on the market which are electric. Magnetism is the life of man. Their curative qualities are a wonder to all who complain. The Roman physicians practiced magnetic treatment on nervous disorders in 400 B.C. Remedies for Human Passions.

A physician of the homoeopathic school at Lyons professes, seriously, to have discovered a remedy for human passions—those moral diseases, such as envy, hatred, malice, anger, jealousy, obstinacy, avarice, etc., which render so many homes unhappy. On a pamphlet to show "how homoeopathy may improve the character of a man and develop his intelligence," he gives some wonderful instances of the cures alleged to have been effected by his special treatment, which he declares to be infallible.

In one case, a suspicious, jealous and violent husband who had ill-treated his wife for a period of sixteen years was cured, unconsciously to himself, by a few globules of nuxvomica dropped quietly into his broth, and his wife was soon deluged to hear him humming some operatic airs and addressing her as "cherie," "ma pou poule," etc. After a few days' experience of this regime the terrible Barthold was transformed into the tenderest of husbands. By a skillful alternation of other medicaments a rascally husband was corrected of his inherent faults and willful outbursts of anger. A miserly father, on being subjected to a few doses of calcearea carbonica, gave his consent to his daughter's marriage, which he had previously resisted. By the same medicine, varied in its preparation, a young student, who was backward in mathematics, was enabled to master the science without further study. The calcearea carbonica, it will be noted, cured a miser and a dotard—both suffering from the tyranny of sums and figures.

The Lyons physician has an anti-dote for everything; nux vomica, for jealousy, sulphur for drunkenness, salicea for obstinacy, arsenicum album for malice, add belladonna for imbecility. Those patients who do not happen to be laboring under these infirmities and for whom the remedies just mentioned might be prescribed for other ailments, will probably protest against their use. But unhappy partners, who believe in the efficacy of this latest application of the science of homoeopathy, may be tempted to resort to it as a means of avoiding a divorce, and certain husbands invoke its aid against their mothers in law.

Expenses of Business.

A well informed merchant of Boston recently said to a representative of the Boston Herald that he had been looking back over his accounts, and was surprised to find that since the close of the war there had been a steady increase in the ordinary expenses of carrying on business. Mere office work cost a great deal more now than it did in 1865; more clerks were needed, and, on the whole, each of these received higher pay. Assistance was required in the receiving and delivering departments to an extent and of a character that would not have been dreamed of two decades ago. Then there were a variety of incidental expenses that now entered into the compilation. There were telephone charges, printing, the expense of solicitors, the whole making up an amount sufficiently large to eat up all that would have been considered fair profits a quarter of a century ago. It is probable that the experience in different trades varies, and yet we fancy that in most lines of business statements somewhat similar to the above might be made. The tendency, all the time going on, to lessen the hours of service, both in offices and workshops, would of itself make the cost of business proportionately higher. The cheapening process, if there is one, would seem to be in enlarging the amount of business which each concern carries on.

Telephones.

To make a good and serviceable telephone, good from one firm house to another, only requires enough wire and two cigar boxes, and make a hole about an inch in diameter in the centre of the bottom of each, and then place one in each of the houses you wish to connect; then get five pounds of common iron stove-pipe wire and make a loop in one end, and put it through the hole of your cigar box and fasten it with a nail; and draw it tight to the other box, supporting when necessary with a stout cord. You can easily run your line into the house by boring a hole through the glass. Support your boxes with slats nailed across the window and your telephone is complete. The wire is one that is 200 yards long and cost fifty cents, that will carry music when the organ is playing thirty feet away in another room.

The pleasure of doing good is the only one that does not wear out.

Humorous.

"I'm glad to see ewe," as the little lamb remarked to its mamma.—Boston Transcript.

A cyclone in Kansas carried away a bank building, but as the cashier had departed in an opposite direction the day before, it wasn't thought worth while to hunt after the bank.—Lowell Citizen.

An eminent clergyman, not a thousand miles from Boston, was congratulated at one time on the admirable and helpful qualities of his wife. "Yes," he replied, "she's my mentor—and my tormentor!"

The cruelty of woman's criticism sometimes goes beyond life. "Did you ever see a more natural corpse than Mrs. Podson?" asked a lady of a friend; "such a contented smile." "Contented smile!" repeated the friend; "it was all put on."

The Republican papers do not care to discuss the Mulligan letters and the Democratic journals fight shy of the Halpin case. They remind one of the preacher who said: "I will not linger long on this point," as he sat down on a carpet tack.

"HELLO, George, who did you vote for last Tuesday?" "Ah, my dear boy, I didn't vote, doncher know." "You didn't; why not?" "Well, ah, yer see, doncher know, some friends of mine were here from London and I couldn't vote without, ah, letting them see that I was an American, doncher know."—Boston Post.

"SIR, can you give a poor man a quarter?" "Why are you asking alms, my man?" "I have just come from Spain, sir; I am an earthquake sufferer." "But you are not a Spaniard; you speak good English." "O, as to that, I speak Spanish, but since the earthquakes, my Spanish is so broken that I am ashamed to converse in it."—Courier Journal.

Le d'ing a calf.

About 8 o'clock one morning a woman appeared on Michigan avenue in company with a calf. In this case the calf was a veritable animal, and was being led with a rope. Whether she had taken it from the pound or was on her way to the market she didn't explain. She hadn't time to after she got down as far as Fifth street. The two had the middle of the street and were rather enjoying the promenade, when the calf suddenly concluded that city life was too rich for his blood. He suddenly halted in his tracks and braced his fore feet at a sharp angle. The woman kept on her way for a minute, and when the strain came she lengthened that calf's neck by six inches. It was no go, however. She braced and he braced. She pulled and he pulled. By and by he began to back and gain on her. Her feet slid along for a yard or two, when she sat down and got her foot against the street-car rail. It was now time for spectators to tender their sympathies and advice, and remarks began to come in.

"Hold to him, old woman—you've got the bull!"

"Shut your eyes and you'll fetch him."

"Fish on your line—pull him in!"

Along came a grocery wagon, and the hub of a wheel rubbed the calf. He jumped clear off the ground and took a half circle around the woman, pulling her over on her side. No one offered any assistance, and when the coming car forced her to take a new position she scrambled up and got a neck hold on the calf. He at first broke down and began to bawl, but suddenly took heart and made a run for the sidewalk, dragging her along. The crowd advised her to pinch his ears, throw him down, call for the police. She was silent and grim. She got a firm hold of his neck with both hands and pulled him back into the street in spite of his bucking. To the casual observer, he was a gone calf, but as she stooped to tie her shoe a boy stuck a pin into him and he sailed right over her and brought such a strain to bear on the rope as to fling her down again. It was now a question whether she would pull his neck off or he would draw her across the street, but when the strain continued for fifteen seconds, the rope broke and the calf went off like a deer. A policeman, who had arrived too late to be of any assistance, thought to offer some consolation, but the woman made a pass at his nose with one of her dirt besmeared hands and snapped out: "Shut up! If there'd been a decent man in the hull crowd he'd have twisted that calf's tail for a poor lone widow without any asking!"—Detroit Free Press.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERSISTENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of ELLI'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.
