THE LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER.

Like a flash of light the through express
Flies over the silver line,
Bearing the burden of human souls—
On, on, through the gay sunshine,
Tehre, at the throttle-bar, brown and grim

His deep eyes looking ahead,
The engineer, in his oily clothes,
Stands firm and free from the dread.

The track is his own, all must give way,
Yes! See at the town, on there!
The morning freight on the siding waits
All is right; no call for care.

Oh, God! An open switch! One move
And his bar is quickly reversed;
Then the air-brakes drag. Jump! jump!
or death.

The engine lurches upon the switch;
Just ahead there stands the freight,
He can save his train if he keeps his post,
For himself? Ah, well, ask Fate!

A frightful crash; the passengers saved,
With their faces white and dread;
But under his engine, crushed and torn,
The brave engineer lies dead.

Think, as you fly 'mid the sunshine bright,
Or through the storm and rain.
By day and night, o'er plain and gorge,
Of the engineer of the train.

Think of the thousands of souls he holds
In his grasp, without a fear;
Think of the strain on nerve and on brain
And pray for the engineer.

TRAINING A HUSBAND.

A HINT FOR WIVES.

So you want to know how I came ter hev Caleb, when I knew just how he used Nancy, his first wife. Wall, I'll tell ye all about it.

You know Dan'l left me pretty poorly off. I hed two little children, an' what ter dew I didn't know. The mortgage was ter run out in about a year an' a half arter he died. I'd sent the children down to brother John's ter go to school. Brother John wanted me to give them ter him an' he'd do well by 'em, an' I was meditating on it, orful loth to dew it. But what else could I dew with 'em when the old farm was took away from me?

One day, when the time was near out, I was a hacin' the beans side of the fence jinin' Caleb's cornfield. I tell yer, Hannah, I never felt bluer in all my born days. I'd allers lived an' worked on a farm, an' couldn't do no other kind of work; so what was to become of me I didn't know.

"Purty good hacin' for a green fence," sez somebody over the fence.

"Yes," sez I. "I've done enough of it since I was left alone. 'Practice makes perfect,' we used ter write in our copy-book when we were chill'en, an' I couldn't help heaving a sigh."

"Wall, Emmerline," sez he, "you'n I seem to be in the same fix. You need a man to do yer hoeing and sich, an' I need a woman to see ter my house; an' if you're agreed we'll hitch horses and work in double harness. I can't find no hired help that'll do as Nancy did." (Thinks I to myself, an' you'll never find another twill, either.) "So what d'ye say, Emmerline?"

"Praps I didn't think o' nothin' for the nex' few minutes. It all flashed over me in a second, what an unfeelin' man he'd allers been. Poor Nancy had ter dew all the house-work an' a good deal belong-ter him ter dew, an' he was stingier than an old miser, tew."

I knew he was a smart man ter work, was forehanded and was able to live in good deal better shape than he did, an' you know, Hannah, that poor Dan'l was just the oppersite. He was a norful clever man, was Dan'l, but kind o' shiftless an' easy, an' it allers worried me ter hev things goin' so slack. Sez I to myself, a body can't hev everything; there's allers some eouts, an' a poor man's better'n none. So I speaks right up, and I sez:

"Caleb, we've been nabors for many a year. I know your failin's an' s'pose you know mine; an' so, if you say so, all right; p'raps we might do wuss."

Wall, ter make a long story short, we agreed to hev the business dun right off. Caleb said that it was stylish to go on a weddin' tower, now-a-days, and, as he wanted to go down to Bangor to see about sellin' his wool, an' as Sarah Jane Curtis (who used to work for him) lived about half-way, an' we could stop there both ways and not cost us anything, he thought we'd better go. His niece, Rebecca Gilman, yer know, lives there, and we could make her a visit at the same time. Brother John lives there, ter, yer know, an' I made up my mind that I'd jest bring home the child'en.

An' so I did; but Caleb he was orful sot agin it, but sed "of course they can come and make a visit;" an' I let him think so, 'cause I wasn't quite ready to have words with him yet.

We staid about a week, an' got home along in the afternoon all right. The next mornin' I woke up purty early, and I sez to myself: "Courage, Emmerline, now or never." I kep' still, for Caleb was still a snorin', but bime by he fetched an onarthly snort that wak't himself up, an' we'en he see' as it was gettin' daylight, he nudged me an' sez he:

"Wake up, Emmerline, Emmerline; it's broad daylight; come, come, get up, we shan't hev any breakfast ter day."

I was orful hard to wake, but after a while I managed ter, an' while I was a rubbin' my eyes, I sez, "Got a good fire, ain't ye, Caleb?"

"Fire!" said he, "No, I never build any fires. Nancy allers built the fires."

"Did she?" sez I, cool as a cucumber. "So did Daniel."

I turned over and went to sleep again—or at least he thought I did. Wall, he wiggled, and turned, and twisted, and he didn't move ter get up fer about an hour, an' when the sun rose and shone inter the bed-room winder, he got up and built the fire. There wasn't no kindlings nor a stick of wood, an' he had to skirmish round lively and get some.

Arter the fire got to cracklin' in good shape I got up. I didn't hurry none, let me tell you. I was mos' dead lyin' abed so long, but sez I to myself:

"Ef I make the fires now, I'll probably hev to do it in cold weather, an' I won't do it for any man."

He was pretty sullen all day, but I didn't take notice of him, an' he got over it. The next day he was ter begin hayin', an' he had six men ter help him. I had ter do all the work, an' take care of the milk and churnin', an' it was no fool of a job. Come time ter get dinner, an' there wasn't a slivet of wood lapidated buggy in front of the drug store, mounted the stairs runnin' up outside to the second story, and his eyes brightened as they rested on the tin sign on the door: "George Boxem, Attorney-at-Law."

The lawyer was in. So wese a two-dollar desk, two fifteen-cent chairs, a huge cuspidor, and a rusty stove.

"Morning."

"Morning."

"I'm Jim White, sir. Live out by Gray's Corners. Bought the Tompkins farm, you know."

"Ah!"

"Skinner jines farms with me. His steers get into my corn, I want damages, but he laughs at me. I turn my hogs into his 'tater patch.'"

"Good! I like a man of spunk. And he kills one of 'em."

"What?"

"He kills a hog worth two dollars."

"All right," sez I.

The nex' day 'twas the same thing, not a stick split. Thinks I, "Old fellow, you ain't got Nancy here. I'll learn ye a little somethin' that p'raps ye don't know."

So when it was dinner time I blows the horn, an' in comes all seven of these men an' sets down ter the table. Sich' astonished lookin' faces as they had as they viewed the grub. There was the biscut just dough the pertaters, an' meat, an' vegetables, and everything was washed clean and put on raw. Not a thing was cooked.

Caleb looked black'n as a thunder cloud.

"What does this mean?" sez he.

"It means what it means," sez I.

"You said yest'day that you didn't want ter be called in from the mowin' field unless it was for victuals, an' here they are."

"Nice shape, tew," sez he.

"Wall, I can't cook without wood," sez I, dryly like.

With that all seven of 'em started for the door, an' they never left that pile. till it was ready for the stove. I never was bothered for wood again.

A few weeks after I wanted some money purty bad. I wanted ter send Johnnie and Nellie back to school, and I was bound that they should have some clothes fit to wear. I asked Caleb a number of times to let me hev some, but he make all kinds of excuses. I didn't tell him what I wanted of it, mind ye. So one day along comes a peddler that bought butter'n eggs. I had considerable on hand that Caleb was intending to carry into ther city when he had time. So I sold every pound of butter an' eggs I had in the house. I got nigh on to twenty-five dollars for 'em.

When Caleb came home I told him I had sold the butter'n eggs.

"Heow much did you git?" sez he.

I told him.

"Where's the money?" sez he.

"I've got it," sez I.

"Wall," sez he, "Nancy allers give me all the money that she took for her butter and eggs."

"Did she?" sez I. "And so did Dan'l."

He got tired of holding Nancy up afore his eyes, for I would offset her with Dan'l every time. He found that I was powerful sot in my way, an' he thought he might as well let me hev my own way, an' so he sez:

"I don't mean to be ugly, but I won't be trod on by nobody."

When he wouldn't let me hev what money I wanted, I'd sell something every time. I sold two tons of hay one time, when I knew he only had enough to winter his critters. So on the whole, he found out that I wasn't afraid of him, and he behaved quite decent. I told him not long ago that he was growin' clever.

"Clever?" sez he. "I'd rather you'd call me a dog-goned fule than clever."

But I notice he has improved, an' I lay it ter his trainin'.

In the Country Lawyer's Office.

He wanted justice. You could see that in his eyes afar off. He didn't want a little bit of justice weighed out in a gingerly manner and done up in coarse brown paper and he wanted justice by the carload and at wholesale rates. He hitched his old white horse and dilapidated buggy in front of the drug store, mounted the stairs runnin' up outside to the second story, and his eyes brightened as they rested on the tin sign on the door: "George Boxem, Attorney-at-Law."

The lawyer was in. So wese a two-dollar desk, two fifteen-cent chairs, a huge cuspidor, and a rusty stove.

"Morning."

"Morning."

"I'm Jim White, sir. Live out by Gray's Corners. Bought the Tompkins farm, you know."

"Ah!"

"Skinner jines farms with me. His steers get into my corn, I want damages, but he laughs at me. I turn my hogs into his 'tater patch.'"

"Good! I like a man of spunk. And he kills one of 'em."

"What?"

"He kills a hog worth two dollars."

"All right," sez I.

The nex' day 'twas the same thing, not a stick split. Thinks I, "Old fellow, you ain't got Nancy here. I'll learn ye a little somethin' that p'raps ye don't know."

So when it was dinner time I blows the horn, an' in comes all seven of these men an' sets down ter the table. Sich' astonished lookin' faces as they had as they viewed the grub.

LOCAL ITEMS.

The great boom—The bass drum.

Every babe should have a bottle of Dr. Fehner's Teething Syrup. Druggists sell it. 25 cents.

Congress meets on Monday next, and also the new County Commissioners for Frederick County.

Wanted—5,000 logs at Iron Dale Saw Mill, to saw on shares, Wm. L. McGinnis, one mile west of Emmitsburg.

Sneak-thieves are around everywhere, be ready, and make the reception short, sharp and incisive.

Take Dr. Fehner's Health Restorer the great Blood Purifier and Liver Invigorator. Druggists sell it. $1.00.

The blowing out of gas, and the "didn't know it was loaded," have become too frequent for domestic happenings.

For Fire Insurance in First class companies call on W. G. Horner, Agt. office N. E. corner of the Public Square, Emmitsburg, Md.

REGULARITY is always desired in a watch, but this demands regularity in the wearer. Always be precise in winding it, at a regular time, whether morning or evening; consider the works and the rationale is at once apparent.

Cross-eyed Needles are among the most recent of new suggestions, that must have been the kind, where with our "devil" wrestled the other day in trying to re-adjust a suspender button, that had gone coursing like a frightened mouse across the floor.

MANY a poor sufferer has expended hundreds of dollars in the purchase of costly medicines put up in "prescription" form for the cure of rheumatism or gout, and without any benefit. If all such would but drop drugs and attack blood impurities with Vinograd Bitters, they would find that nature had provided at least one remedy for these terrible afflictions.

The Chronicle says coal oil has tumbled in Merchanstown from 18 to 15 and is then to 12 cts. per gallon, and it proposes a war on Flour, wood and coal. How about beef and such like necessities? If the war should reach this District we shall volunteer on the meat question. Our people go ahead generally without question. It is at least something to feel independent.

The report of the State Board of Immigration of Maryland to the Secretary of the Treasury shows that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1885, 16,723 passengers arrived at Baltimore from foreign ports, of which number 17 were returned as paupers, 812 were cared for at the Home, and 81 were treated at the hospital. The head money collected during the year amounted to $7,942, and the expenses of the board were $4,794.

ALTHOUGH Celery, Beef and Iron is patronized by all persons, it is particularly beneficial to woman and children, as it has been found to be of the greatest benefit in many of the peculiar diseases incident to them, in nervous troubles of women. There is always a certain amount of distrust attending any new preparation that is placed before the public, as so many "sure cures" have proved a disappointment, but with Celery, Beef and Iron, its medicinal powers can only be shown in its use. For sale by all druggists.

A Jail Delivery Frustrated.
WESTMINSTER, MD., Nov. 27.—A plan of the prisoners to escape from the jail there was discovered by the sheriff this evening. Richard Edward and John O'Brien, both under sentence, had cut a large hole through the wall between their cells, and a hole in the ceiling of O'Brien's cell. These holes they concealed with plaster. The iron bars of a window in the water closet were found sawed through. The sheriff's discovery was a timely one, as the effort to escape would probably have been made to-night.—Sun.

The Century Magazine for December has a beautiful portrait of Helen Jackson and is more than usually interesting in both reading matter and embellishments. The first paper, on "The City of Teheran," by S. G. W. Benjamin, is a charming description of the Persian capital, and most beautifully illustrated, there is a short story by the popular writer Hjalmer Hjorth Boyesen entitled "A Child of the Age." "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed," by Mark Twain, "The Bostonians," by Henry James and "John Bowdoin's Fastening," by Mary Halleck Foote, are continued, "An American Lordship," by George P. Lathrop, a short biography of Mrs. Helen Jackson with some of her last poems, "Bird Enemies," "Faith Cures," and a great deal more of admirable reading, together with "Open Letters," and the usual Brice-Brace, The Century Magazine Co., Union Square, New York.

The New Toll House.

Mr. Felix Foller the contracting mason, has the first story of the new Toll-gate house on the Frederick and Emmitsburg Turnpike road erected, and the other half story may get a back set if the freezing sets in soon.

The Tolling Bells.

At noon on Tuesday all the church bells, the fire-alarm bell and others were tolled, in recognition of the time of the funeral of the late Vice-President Hendricks, a very fitting tribute of respect to the memory of the departed statesman.

"Years have not seen and time shall not see," the people sit down quietly to suffer pain, when enterprise can afford such a panacea as Salvation Oil.

The old saying "opposition is the life of business" has not been sustained in one instance at least. Since the introduction of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup all other cough remedies have been dead stock.

PERSONALS.

Mr. Chas. M. Troxell of Williamsport spent several days in town this week. Misses Minnie Hann and Celeste Elder are visiting friends in Baltimore.

Mr. Samuel Maxell of Silver Falls Va., attended the funeral of his mother in this place this week.

Mr. Dyer of Frederick made a visit at Mr. Wm. Ashbaugh's this week.

Mr. J. Thos. Gelwick started for St. Joseph, Mo., on Tuesday morning.

List of Letters.

$10,000 for the Battlefield.

Treasurer J. L. Schick, of the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association, is about to receive $10,000 appropriated by the Legislature of New York, to be used in the purchase of lands and opening of avenues, and other objects having in view the improvement and preservation of the battlefield. This sum will enable the Association to accomplish much necessary work that has been in contemplation for some time. Several other states have made appropriations for the same purpose, and all the others concerned no doubt will. The field is already the best marked in the world, and every dollar added will serve to enhance its interest and attractiveness.—Compiler.

The General Manager of the Western Maryland railroad, Mr. Hood, in making his report to the stockholders, on Wednesday of last week presented the following statement, the gross earnings were as follows: From passengers, $243,326.88; freight and express, $304,607.93; milk and marketing, $33,689.94; mails, $27,322.80; miscellaneous sources $10,259.06. Total, $619,217.27.

The operating expenses, including rental of Hillen Station and cost of operating the Baltimore and Cumberland Valley Railroad, were $387,081.88; the net earnings were $232,135.39; the expenditures in betterments were $101,124.50.

The total decrease in earnings as compared with 1884, was $46,778.42; total decrease in expenses, $20,668.08; decrease in net earnings, $26,110.34.

Steel rails have been laid on all but two miles of the road.

The December Eclectic, closing the forty-second volume of the new series, keeps up the reputation of the magazine. The leading article, by Cardinal Newman, studies the "Development of Religious Error" from the Papal standpoint in a masterly way. Mr. H. D. Traill's article on the "Noel of Man," is suggestive and brightly written, and Walter Pater, author of "Marius the Epicurean," is represented by a delightful eighteenth century study under the head of "A Prince of Court Painters." "Carlyle as a Political Teacher" is discussed by Standish O'Grady. The article by Max Muller, entitled "The Lesson of Jupiter," will command the attention of scholars in a marked degree. There is a goodly number of short papers, sketches, fiction, and poetry. The Eclectic has had a long and honorable life and it seems likely to be perpetuated on the same lines for a long time to come. A magazine of this description is now almost a necessity on the library table of all thoughtful students who wish to keep themselves abreast with the great contemporary writers of the world. See ady. in this issue.

Verdict in a Damage Case.

The case of Peter F. Leapley and his wife Grace B. Leapley, vs. the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, damages laid at $20,000, tried at Hagerstown last week resulted in a verdict against the company for $8,500.

COLLEGE NEWS.

MOUNT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, Dec. 2nd, 1885.—Unbroken quiet seems to brood over our Mountain retreat, and our college life would indeed, be most uneventful did not some extraneous causes interrupt the rapid flight of our peaceful days.

Hence the visit of a Bishop is always hailed with joy, and all welcome the spare holiday generally granted on such occasions.

Within the past few months we have been honored by the presence of Archbishops Gibbons and Elder, and Bishop Northrop. A few weeks ago Bishop Ireland paid us a flying visit, and though his stay was brief yet he did not neglect to address the students a few words of kindly advice and encouragement.

He said: "Every Bishop in the country should deem it his bounden duty to make a pilgrimage to this shrine of Science and Religion. A long time ago I pledged myself to visit this sanctuary of learning, this nursery of American Catholicity. And though I expected to find at the old Mount much to admire, much to reverence, my fondest expectations are more than realized by my present surroundings. Before me I see the Mountaineers of to-day, a band of sterling young Catholics, who are preparing to go forth into the busy world to do noble work for their God and their Country. Yes young gentlemen within these Classic Halls you must lay the foundation wide and deep of that piety which will make you hereafter model citizens and true Christians. Your college has a glorious record, her name shall shine on the brightest pages of the History of the Church in our Republic, therefore let the Mountaineers of to-day remember the past and give an noble example to the future.

And while there are many virtues which I might commend to you, many to which I would fain direct your attention, there is an especial one which I hope you will ever practise, ever love, the holy virtue of Temperance. Oh how many young lives have been blighted, how many who gave promise of great things have been ruined, by this monster Drunkenness, need I tell you then to shun this vice, to shun those who are addicted to it, and never so far forget yourselves as to taste any intoxicating liquor. Thus only can you true Mountaineers, thus alone can you reflect credit on your Alma Mater, thus alone can you be genuine men, real Catholics."

This address was loudly applauded by the students, and when his Lordship announced that he would grant them the usual holiday there arose a shout that must have roused the slumbering echoes of the distant Carrick's Knob, while rousing slumbering memories in the heart of this truly great and good man justly named the "Father Matthew of America."

The Retiring Officials.

It is indeed highly gratifying to hear from all classes of our citizens, the plaudits of "well done good and faithful servants," generously and justly accorded to the incumbents of our various County offices, who by virtue of the expiration of their official terms, retired to the shades of private life on Tuesday. We feel that we express the sentiment of our people, when we say, that at no period, have the officers referred to, been better conducted, or more judiciously managed in every particular, than during the late administration. As Clerk of the Circuit Court, Mr. Adolphus Fearhake has made a most efficient and capital officer. In the management of his office, he has faithfully endeavored to execute, protect and promote the interests confided to his care. His official intercourse with the people has ever been characterized by kindness, attention, courtesy and a disposition to oblige, and in this, he has been ably seconded by his intelligent and polite deputies, Messrs. Mahoney, Young, Gaver, Hillery and Ritter. And what we have said of the Clerk's office, is equally applicable to Mr. James P. Perry, as Register of Wills, and his assistants—to Capt. George W. Grove, as Sheriff and to the County Commissioners, together with their popular Clerk, Mr. H. F. Steiner. We sincerely trust that the present administration may be as eminently successful in giving the same gratifying satisfaction, and thus at the expiration of their respective terms of office they may be entitled to a like warm commendation and approval of their constituents.—Examiner.

TAKE DR. Fehner's Syrup of Wild Cherry and stop your cough. Nothing equals it. All druggists sell it.

DR. J. SHELTON McKENZIE.

Oculist and Optician.
Graduate of the University of Edinburgh, College of ophthalmology and Royal Eye Infirmary has opened an office, in the telephone Exchange Building, East Patrick street, Frederick, where he may be consulted by those suffering from disease or any difficulty of their eyes. Dr. McKenzie made a special study of diseases of the eye and having had an active practice of ten years in Europe and America believes he can successfully combat the diseases which are so destructive to this delicate organ. All examinations are made with the ophthalmoscope and other scientific instruments used in modern ophthalmology. A correct diagnosis is made of each person's case and an accurate statement given of the exact condition of their eyes. In functional diseases of the eyes, where glasses are indicated, the doctor cuts grinds and adjusts them for each person thus insuring perfect vision, ease and comfort to the wearer. These glasses are free from the imperfections usually found in glasses, viz.: Mud spots, cracks, flaws, waves, blisters, etc. They are made from pure quartz, very white and as transparent as the purest spring water. These goods are not put on sale in the shops. They are only ground and fitted to order. Thousands of people who are suffering with their eyes from over lachrymation, pain over the eye and through the globe, a dull heaviness of the eye itself, a morbid feeling as though there were sand imbedded in the mucous membrane of the lids, very sensible to light and air and a desire to partially close the eyes, or an incipient inflammation in the globe of lids. These and a great many more troubles may be cured which can be entirely overcome if the person so afflicted will consult an oculist who understands the physical and physiological optics, the laws of light, refraction, etc. There are very few cases of eyes or vision but can be brought to approximate nearly normal vision with properly adjusted glasses. Testimonials of the most substantial character. Cases treated since the Doctor has been in town can be readily ascertained by any person who will take the trouble to inquire. Office hours from 7 to 9 a. m., 12 to 5 and 6 to 8 p. m. Aug. 15-ly.

To be Hanged in January.

ANNAPOIS, MD., Dec. 3.—The Governor to-day signed the death warrant of Charles Williams, colored, convicted of rape in Dorchester county, and fixed the day of execution as Friday, January 8th. Williams, on May 19th last, atrociously assaulted Mrs. Eliza J. Keene, and narrowly escaped lynching for his crime.—Balto. News.

House and Man Consumed.

Some time between Saturday evening and Sunday morning last, the one-story log house occupied by William Elder, on the Pigeon Hills, 14 miles from Abbotstown, was entirely consumed with all its contents, including Mr. Elder. As the house stood somewhat isolated, the disaster was not discovered until Sunday afternoon. It has transpired that the unfortunate man, under the influence of liquor, had driven his wife from the house early on Saturday evening. The fire was probably accidental. Only a few charred human bones indicated the fate of poor "Billy" Elder. A coroner's Jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts. He was about 50 years old.—Compiler.

The Enoch Pratt Library.

Messrs. James A. Gray, Henry James and Charles J. Bonaparte, the committee appointed at a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Enoch Pratt Free Library, to prepare a suitable programme for the celebration of the opening of the library, are at work upon a programme, but have not made all arrangements as yet. The exercises will take place in the Academy of Music on the 4th of January next. The committee yesterday invited Mayor Hodges to preside at the meeting, which invitation was accepted by the Mayor. The exercises will be of an interesting character, as befits the importance of such an occasion.

Dr. Steiner, the librarian, and his corps of assistants are busily engaged in preparing call lists of books for use in the delivery rooms on the first floor. By Christmas the doctor hopes to have concluded the bulk of the work and to have the library in shape for business. As soon as possible after the main building on Mulberry street is thrown open to the public, it is the intention of Dr. Steiner and the directors to open the branches. Several weeks will probably elapse before all the branches are in operation.—Balto. News.
