GIFTS.

"Oh, World-God, give me Wealth!" the Egyptian cried. His prayer was granted. High as Heaven behold Palace and pyramid; the brimming tide Of lavish Nile washed all his land with gold. Armies of slaves toiled ant-wise at his feet, World-circling traffic roared through mart and street. High priests were gods, his spice-balmed kings enshrined, Set death at naught in rock-ribbed channels deep. Seek Pharaoh's race to-day and ye shall find Rust and the moth, silence and dusty sleep.

"Oh, World-God, give me Beauty!" cried the Greek. His prayer was granted. All the earth became Plastic and vocal to his sense; each peak, Each grove, each stream, quick with Promethean flame, Peopled the world with imaged grace and light. The lyre was his, and his the breathing might Of the immortal marble, his the play Of the diamond-pointed thought and golden tongue. Go seek the sunshine-race, ye find to-day A broken column and a lute unstrung.

"Oh, World-God, give me Power!" the Roman cried. His prayer was granted. The vast world was chained A captive to the chariot of his pride. The blood of myriad provinces was drained To feed that fierce, insatiable red heart. Invulnerably bulwarked every part With serrated legions and with close-meshed Code. Within, the burrowing worm had gnawed its home. A roofless ruin stands where once abode The imperial race of everlasting Rome.

"Oh, Godhead, give me Truth!" the Hebrew cried. His prayer was granted; he became the slave Of the idea, a pilgrim far and wide, Cursed, hated, spurned and scourged with none to save. The Pharos knew him, and when Greece beheld, His wisdom wore the hoary crown of Eld. Beauty he hath forsown and wealth and power. Seek him to-day, and find in every land. No fire consumes him, neither floods devour, Immortal through the lamp within his hand. —Emma Lazarus in November Century.

A CITY'S TRANSFORMATION.
The Changes Natural Gas is making in Pittsburg.

Natural gas is king in Pittsburg. Says a letter from the "smoky city" to the New York Times. Every steel and iron mill, glass factory, and manufactory generally of any consequence, beside many private dwellings, now depend upon gas for fuel. Every day natural gas keeps in motion acres of machinery, heats thousands of tons of metal, and molds into shapes for articles of commerce millions of pieces of glass. The Philadelphia Company which is the largest concern, alone supplies with fuel sixty-six glass factories, thirty-four rolling mills, five steel works, forty-five large manufacturing establishments, forty-four other works, and 900 dwelling houses.

The advantages of natural gas over coal are numerous. Gas is far cheaper fuel than coal. The annual saving in this respect is roughly estimated at $500,000. Still, the inexpensiveness of natural gas as a fuel is not the most important economic item in its favor. The large numbers of men who two years ago were required to attend to fires have lost their occupation with the introduction of natural gas. The coal heavers, firemen, and ash haulers have been compelled to seek other employment. The change is startling. Where formerly thirty, forty, 100 firemen were at work in one boiler house hauling several hundred tons of coal, the spectator now looks upon a long row of boilers attended by one man, with not a lump of coal in sight. In many of the great works a pound of coal has not been in use for a year.

An ironmaster who has used gas for the past year estimated his saving in all quarters by its use during that time at $25,000. A glass manufacturer with a similar estimation placed amount saved at $20,000. A brickyard owner said he had saved $6,000. In private dwellings the average saving of each for a year by its use is reckoned at $50.

Natural gas has been the salvation of the industries of Pittsburg. When business depression was slowly smothering the fires in the many mills and factories nature came to the relief of the city with this new source of wealth. The declining industries were endowed with new life. Mills that have been idle for five years have started up with their old-time vigor. Glass houses that have been idle almost as long are at work again. New works of different kinds are being built. Capital from other cities has settled permanently at Pittsburg. Two Western iron firms, and twice that number of glass and tanning companies, have adopted the city of natural gas for their home within the past year. No part of America holds out more golden promises to the enterprising manufacturer than Pittsburg. The city promises with her new fuel to distance all competitors in the iron, steel, and glass industries elsewhere. The sabbath cloud of smoke which for generations has overhung Pittsburg now displays its silver lining.

Among the passengers on the St. Louis express on the Erie railway, between Port Jervis and Jersey City was a very much over-dressed woman, accompanied by a bright-looking Irish nurse-girl, who had charge of a self-willed tyrannical 2-year-old boy, of whom the over-dressed woman was plainly the mother. The mother occupied a seat by herself. The nurse and child were in a seat immediately in front of her. The child gave such frequent exhibitions of temper, and kept the car filled with such vicious yells and shrieks, that there was a general feeling of savage indignation among the passengers.

Although he time and again spat in his nurse's face, scratched her hands until the blood came, and tore at her hair and bonnet, she bore with him patiently. The indignation of the passengers was made the greater because the child's mother made no effort to correct or quiet him, but on the contrary, sharply chided the nurse whenever she manifested any firmness. Whatever the boy yelled for, the mother's cry was, uniformly: "Let him have it, Mary."

By the time the train passed Turner's the feelings of the passengers had been wrought up to the boiling point. The remark was made audibly here and there that "it would be worth paying for to have the young one chucked out of the window." The hopeful's mother was not moved by the very evident annoyance the passengers felt, and at last fixed herself down in her seat for a comfortable nap. The child had slapped the nurse in her face for the hundredth time, and was preparing for a fresh attack, when a wasp came from somewhere in the car and flew against the window of the nurse's seat. The boy at once made a dive for the wasp as it struggled upward on the glass. The nurse quietly caught his hand, and said to him coaxingly: "Harry mustn't touch! Bug will bite Harry!"

Harry bited a savage yell and began to kick and slap the nurse. The mother awoke from her nap. She heard her son's screams, and, without lifting her head or opening her eyes, she cried out sharply to the nurse: "Why will you tease that child so, Mary? Let him have it at once."

Mary, let go of Harry. She settled back in her seat with an air of resignation, but there was a sparkle in her eye. The boy clutched at the wasp, and finally caught it. The yell that followed caused joy to the entire car, for every eye was on the boy. The mother awoke again. "Mary," she cried, "let him have it!"

Mary turned calmly in her seat, and, with a wicked twinkle in her eye, said: "Sure, he's got it, mum." This brought the car down. Every one in it roared. The child's mother rose up in her seat with a jerk. When she learned what the matter was she pulled her boy over the back of the seat and awoke some sympathy for him by laying him across her knee and warming him nicely. In ten minutes he was as quiet and meek as a lamb, and he never opened his mouth again until the train reached Jersey City.

Blowing up a Mountain.

POTTSVILLE, Jan. 9.—The greatest piece of blasting on the Pennsylvania Schuylkill Valley road was successfully accomplished yesterday. The people of this town had felt some alarm in reference to it, as it was known that over a ton of dynamite and Judson powder were to be used. Crowds gathered on the river bank and hillsides opposite the point to witness it, and a number of photographers took views at the instant of the explosion. One of the most serious difficulties encountered in the construction of the new railroad was Cape Horn, a spur of the mountain a mile below town. It was solid rock and the drilling of twenty-two holes into it to a depth of twenty-two feet each has occupied many months. It was feared that the shock would be so great as to do damage in town and many nervous people waited for its coming until long after it had passed without knowing that it was all over.

The holes were all fired at once by electricity and were touched off by Contractor Gaynor, who had personally superintended the drilling and charging of them. At half-past four he pushed the lever and in an instant the whole rocky mass rose several feet and then fell back into place with a loud, rumbling noise, shaking the ground in the neighborhood, but neither heard nor felt in town. Immediately following the first explosion there was another, which filled the air with rocks, some weighing a quarter of a ton. It is believed the mass disintegrated weighs fifty thousand tons. The explosion was witnessed by thousands of people.

Fortune Teller's Almanac.
To dream of having a great number of servants is—madness.
To dream of a bear foretakens mischief, which your vision shows you is a bruin.
When a fashionable young lady dreams of a filbert, it is a sign that her thoughts are running upon a colonel.
To dream that your nose is red at the tip is an intimation that you had better leave off brandy and water.
To dream of a mill-stone about your neck is a sign of what you may expect if you marry an extravagant wife.
If you dream of clothes, it is a warning not to go to law; for, by the rule of contraries, you will be sure of a nonsuit.
To dream of a fire is a sign that if you are wise you will see that all the lights in your house are out before you go to bed.
It is very lucky to dream that you pay for a thing twice over; since, afterward, you will probably take care to have all your bills receipted.
For a person in unembarrassed circumstances to dream that he is arrested is very fortunate; for it is a warning to him on no account to accept a bill.
"What shall we do with our Daughters?"
This question is asked by a well-known lady lecturer. Well, we can do a great many things with them; one thing, we must take good care of their health, and not let them run down and become enfeebled. For the feminine ailments, which may be summed up in one word—debility, we have a sovereign remedy in Brown's Iron Bitters, which has done much good. Miss Mary Greenfield, of Galatia, Ill., writes: "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of nervousness, indigestion and general poor health." Let the other young ladies take the hint.

Hugging a Deaf-mute.
Men will not understand that they suffer materially, as well as mentally and morally, by spending their strength in the pursuit of place, and that prizes in politics are almost as rare as prizes in lotteries.

WHEN you have many tasks to accomplish, don't try to attack them all at once. Do one at a time quietly and as well as you can, and with a little patience you will get through them all.

Emmitsburg Rail Road.

TIME TABLE. On and after Nov. 22, 1885, trains on this road will run as follows: TRAINS SOUTH. Leave Emmitsburg at 8.45 a. m. and 3.40 and 5.45 p. m., arriving at Rocky Ridge at 9.15 a. m. and 4.10 and 6.15 p. m.

LOCAL ITEMS.

FEED THE BIRDS. SUBSCRIBE FOR THE EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE. THE prolonged day-light is now quite perceptible. GETTYSBURG is soon to have a new Steam Fire-Engine. HORSE thieves have been operating of late about Hagerstown.

To Avoid Hydrophobia. When you see the mad-dog, get into the house quickly, and bang the door. The Game Laws. The time to kill Partridges and Pheasants expired January 1st, and February 1st will close the season for woodcock and Rabbits. Turkeys are now privileged to roost low if they like.

The Ice Crop. The gathering and storing of ice has progressed actively this week. The product is the best in many years, seven and more inches thick, clean, clear, and thoroughly compact. There is at least some comfort in looking forward from the translucent scenes of to-day, to the changes that July may bring forth.

Sleighting Parties. Sleighting parties have been held all through this neighborhood every night during the past week. A very pleasant social gathering was held at Mr. John S. Agnew's on Thursday night, and on the return trip the Editor's sleigh came out a little the worse for an upset, and had to be left along the road. From the looks of our Foreman's hat we are inclined to think he must have put his foot in it, in his headlong debouchure.

We have received Vick's Floral Guide for 1886, and as it is bound in the same cover with the holiday number of Vick's Illustrated Monthly Magazine. A famous and uncommonly attractive contribution to the household literature. The Magazine is full of instructive and entertaining reading matter whilst the Floral Guide is fuller and more beautifully illustrated than usual. We advise every one in want of seeds or plants, either in the way of flowers, fruits or vegetables or instruction regarding their cultivation to send to James Vick, Rochester, New York.

In the Same Pew. 'Tis said that "misyery loves Company" but how is it when you don't know of the existence of the sympathy? when we were cut off from all knowledge of the outer world, at the beginning of this week, we were only circumstanced as many more favored places were at the same time. When the blockade was raised, it appeared they had a most cold and a terrible time on the Western Maryland Railroad, Monday brought release to fourteen engines and their trains that had been snowed up on that road, some at Westminster, three at Sabillasville, two at the Horse Shoe Curve, one at Blue Ridge and three at Midvale. Three hundred hands were employed on Sunday and sent as relieving forces. The high winds prevented the stoves from drawing, and it was difficult to keep up fires, the passengers were snow-bound about thirty-six hours, and got food from the farms houses as best they could, and thus the trouble proceeded on all sides; all railroads in the course of the storm fared likewise and other places were cut off from the knowledge of outside affairs as well as ours. It is lonesome not to know how one's neighbors fare.

THE Columbia Bicycle Calendar for 1886 has reached us, for artistic work and convenience of arrangement it surpasses all other calendars we have received. Each day of the year appears upon a separate slip, with a quotation pertinent to cycling from the best sources, the laws of the road, poems, &c. The calendar is mounted upon a heavy board with exquisite scenes by lake, by moonlight, &c. It is an ornamental affair for the office, library or parlor and is from the Pope Mfg. Co., Boston, Mass.

A writer for the Household, who ought to know, claims that with a little care di-h-washing will add to the looks of the hand rather than detract from its beauty. She says: "My hands were swollen and red, but this lasts but a short time; with it they are also pliable soft and warm; rubbing them with cream or vaseline keeps them so. Our esteemed neighbor the Clarion devoted considerable space in his last issue to certain comments of ours recently given on the following suggestion: "Explain it as you may, the idea remains as a matter of experience, that the weather changes are more conspicuously marked for Sunday, than any other day of the week," and would like to make it appear as if ours were "false premises," and would further prefer the words "remarked" instead as above. We used the word "marked" in the sense of manifest, and left the whole case to stand on observation. Our situation has called forth just such a noting, and we stand right there, that the conspicuous changes in the week for more than a year have dated from Sunday. It is just such another matter as those equinoctial storms, neighbour, if you have chosen to observe since we called your attention to the matter. Storms occur when they will and are not peculiar to the times of equal night and day. The explanation of the Sunday changes in the weather is left to individual experience as above stated.

A TERRIBLE SNOW STORM.

The Emmitsburg R. R. is blocked for 48 hours—County Roads Inoperable.

The cold wave set in at this place last week on Friday night, followed by a snow storm which continued until Saturday morning, but owing to the high winds which prevailed all the while, it was impossible to estimate the depth it reached. 1 1/2' winds prevailed all day Saturday, increasing at night, and on Sunday the Emmitsburg Railroad was so badly drifted, that engineer Gelwicks, in trying to force his engine through, got fast in a drift which was as high as the head-light, and stuck there, not being able to move either way. With the aid of half a dozen men with shovels he finally succeeded in backing out. Mr. James A. Elder, president of the road, put 47 hands to work on Monday morning, and they worked from daylight until dark, and resuming work at daylight on Tuesday morning succeeded in getting a train through by noon on that day.

Through the polite consideration of Mr. Elder a reporter for the Chronicle went down on the 3:40 train Tuesday afternoon, to view the work. The worst of the drifts encountered by the men was in what is known as Troxell's cut, near the dry bridge, where the snow is just cut out wide enough for a train to pass through, and is higher than the top of the passenger car windows, and running for a long distance, the fields in the neighborhood being as bare as though no more than a slight sprinkle of snow had fallen. The cut known as Mott's near Mott's Station had to be shoveled through it being drifted to about the depth of 10 feet. As nearly the whole line from the point where the Bruceville road crosses the track, a short distance south of Tom's creek, to the terminus at Rocky Ridge had to be shoveled, the wonder is that it was opened in that time. The managers of the Western Maryland road were surprised at not being called on for assistance, and had a gang of men in waiting to send at a moment's notice. The county roads were blocked in every direction, and the supervisors with all the hands they could get went to work shoveling them out, but there are so many bare places that the sleighing is not as good as might be expected. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to get from this place to Mechanistown by the turnpike road on Sunday and Monday, but that road is clear and open for travel now. In a good many places the fences have been removed and travellers are cutting through fields to avoid the drifts.

It was nothing strange years ago for snow to fall about Christmas and remain on the ground for weeks and months, often several feet in depth. The mercury dropped below zero and did not cause any wonder. Everything that usually ran on wheels was placed on "runners." It is very seldom that the mercury now reaches below zero, and snow rarely packs, even when it is not cleared away. An officer of the Signal Service in New York has this theory of the departure of the old-fashioned winter:

One principal cause for the change, can be seen from the windows of this station. Look around you in every direction. East, west, north or south, in this city, Brooklyn and Jersey City, and what do you see? Clouds of steam rising from almost every house-top. Elevators in offices and apartment houses, factories using steam as a motor, buildings heated by the same hot vapor, all sending forth clouds from the tops of the houses. Do you not suppose this has an effect on the atmosphere, warms the air and half melts the snow before it reaches the ground? Then there are the boilers under the side-walks and in the cellars; steam-heating pipes along the roadways and thousands of contrivances to generate heat not knowing a quarter of a century ago.—Ex.

[All that is very nice theorizing, but it don't account for things a thousand miles off in the same atmospheric condition. Prof. Henry used to say, of thirty years or thereabouts of higher and lower temperatures. Hunt up the tables.—Ed.]

THE following patents were granted to citizens of Maryland, bearing date Jan. 5, 1886 reported expressly for this paper by Louis Bagger & Co., Mechanical Experts and Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C. Advice Free.

The Wayward Tramp.

The New York Tribune, in a recent discussion of the tramp question, alleges that the men who travel constantly about, refusing to settle down to any regular occupation, deluding themselves into the belief that they are beating the world out of a living without doing anything to earn it, in reality work harder and to less purpose than any class of people. And when one considers their ceaseless tramping, their exposure to all sorts of weather, the general misery of their lives, it looks as though the assertions were correct.

Old and Cold Winters.

It was nothing strange years ago for snow to fall about Christmas and remain on the ground for weeks and months, often several feet in depth. The mercury dropped below zero and did not cause any wonder. Everything that usually ran on wheels was placed on "runners." It is very seldom that the mercury now reaches below zero, and snow rarely packs, even when it is not cleared away. THE following is a verbatim extract from a communication to State's Attorney M. L. Keely from a justice of the peace of this county: "Let me know as to this: There is a law and a way to get at a fellow who beats his wife. But how to get at a— of a woman who beats her husband, and who has habitually ill-treated him for years, and finally winds up by hammering his head and stomach with an ax and picking his backbone with a railroad pick, is another problem that needs solution as well. The man in question has been laid up for more than a week, and the woman allowed no doctor in the house until compelled by railroad officials. Now, suppose he, through fear of her, or for misguided love, affection, or for sake of peace, (?) refuses to testify, can he be made to testify against her?"—Hagerstown Globe.

Dr. Jas. A. Elder was in Baltimore on Wednesday.

In the Storm.

Mr. Augustus Albert, drummer for Albert Bros., hardware dealers, of Baltimore, while going this way from Ellerton, in the upper part of the valley yesterday, had a terrible experience. While driving along the road between Ellerton and Harmony, in a buggy, the snow suddenly commenced drifting around him and in a moment the horse and buggy were almost covered. Mr. Albert quickly sprang out, and, detaching his horse, rode with great difficulty back to Ellerton, leaving the buggy sticking in the drift. Mr. Albert started from Ellerton this morning for Middletown on horseback by a circuitous route, and after meeting with adventures equally as dangerous as yesterday's, reached this place this evening. Mr. Albert says that it was only with the greatest effort that he was enabled to keep from becoming imbedded in the drifts and freezing to death.—Examiner, of Jan. 13th, inst.

No Boon that Science has Conferred

Has been brought with greater blessings than that which has accrued to the inhabitants of malarial hidden portions of the United States and the Tropics from the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The experience of many years has but too clearly demonstrated the inefficiency of quinine and other drugs to effectually combat the progress of intermittent, congestive and bilious remittent fevers, while on the other hand, it has been less clearly shown that the use of the Bitters, a medicine congenial to the frail constitution, and derived from purely natural sources, affords a reliable safeguard against malarial disease, and arrest it when developed. For disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, for constipation and renal inactivity. It is also a most efficient remedy. Appetite and sleep are improved by it, it expels malarial humors from the blood, and entitles circulation impoverished by malarial assimilation.

Almanac and Calendar.

The word Almanac is regarded of Arabic origin, and means to count, and hence is a book giving account of the civil divisions of the year, the astronomical phenomena, &c. Another view states the fact that the Germans used to engrave on squared sticks about four feet long the courses of the moons of the whole year, which they called al-moon agh, e. i. al-moon head, to-wit: observations of the moon, hence the name Almanac. Calendar is of Latin origin. The Romans made a three-fold division of the month into Calends, Nones and Ides. The Calends fell upon the first of the month; the Nones for some months on the seventh, and the Ides on the fifteenth. The word means to call, for on the first of the month the people were called together to be informed of the festivals and sacred days to be observed in the month. The Nones were the ninth day before the Ides. These last signified the division of the month, because they nearly halved it. Properly, Almanac means the division of time by the year; Calendar, by the month.

DR. J. SHELTON M'KENZIE.

Oculist and Optician. Graduate of the University of Edinburgh, College of ophthalmology, and Royal Eye Infirmary has opened an office, in the Telephone Exchange Building, East Patrick street, Frederick, where he may be consulted by those suffering from disease of any difficulty of their eyes. Dr. M'Kenzie has made a special study of diseases of the eye and having had an active practice of ten years in Europe and America believes he can successfully combat the diseases which are so destructive to this delicate organ. All examinations are made with the ophthalmoscope and other scientific instruments used in modern ophthalmology. A correct diagnosis is made of each person's case and an accurate statement given of the exact condition of their eyes, in functional diseases of the eyes, where glasses are indicated, the doctor cuts grinds and adjusts them for each person thus insuring perfect vision, ease and comfort to the wearer. These glasses are free from the imperfections usually found in glasses, viz: Mud specks, scratches, flaws, waves, blisters, &c. They are made from pure quartz, very white and as transparent as the purest spring water. These goods are not put on sale in the shops. They are only ground and fitted to order. Thousands of people who are suffering with their eyes from over-lachrymation, pain, over the eye and through the globe, a dull heaviness of the eye itself, a morbid feeling as though there were sand imbedded in the mucous membrane of the lids, very sensible to light and air and a desire to partially close the eyes, or an incipient inflammation in the globe of the lids. These and a great many more troubles may be cited which can be entirely overcome if the person so afflicted will consult an oculist who understands physical and physiological optics, the laws of light, refraction, etc. The cure of every few cases of eyes or vision but can be brought to approximate nearly normal vision with properly adjusted glasses. Testimonials of the most substantial character. Cases treated since the Doctor has been in town can be readily ascertained by any person who will take the trouble to inquire. Student Mechanics.

The most ardent supporters of technical schools do not claim that they can supersede the workshop; but they do claim, properly, that the inexperienced boy can obtain in them a general knowledge of the character of materials, the methods of working them and the reasons why these methods differ.

Sometimes boys of fourteen or fifteen see clearer than do their elders the possible advantages of a theoretical mechanical education; but no experienced mechanic can visit one of our modern technical schools without feeling that he was a loser because they were not in his boyhood days, and that he had no opportunity for the advantages which they unquestionably give to the embryo mechanic.

An instance in illustration is that of a boy of fourteen, left by his father, a prominent government official, with a considerable fortune. He shows a decided taste for mechanics, is provided by his sensible mother with a home workshop used in vacations will leave his grammar school for a technical school at the expiration of his course, and will be graduated from thence—if events are fortunate—to a workshop; so instead of going into a "genteel" profession, he will become a useful mechanic.

A college professor in an Eastern State "releases his mind" by employing himself in a workshop in his attic. He has placed many articles of elegant and useful furniture in his house, which are the work of his own hands, and are admired by all who visit at his house. By the connivance of his wife, broken chairs, leaky tinware, dilapidated toys, and similar articles are gathered from the neighborhood to delight the sedate and learned professor, who revamps them as an amusement. He said in conversation, a short time ago, that if the technical school had existed in his callow days, he would have been at the head of a mechanical shop instead of a professor in a college, and he thought he might have been a more contented man.

No Lakes South of Pennsylvania.

It is a remarkable geographical fact that while all the groups of mountains of the Atlantic slope, north of the Delaware Breakwater, are liberally sprinkled with pretty lakes, large and small, increasing in size northward to the chain of the great lakes, there is not a lake large or small, in any of the groups of mountains south of the Delaware Breakwater down to where the Appalachian chain melts away in the northern hills of Alabama and Mississippi. And these mountains of Wayne and Pike and the surrounding counties full of lakes are small compared with the grand Alleghenies and the Blue Ridge range in Virginia and West Virginia, where not a lake is to be found. Again, in the magnificent mountain ranges of North Carolina, in which there are thirty peaks higher than Mount Washington, there is not a lake. Nor is there one, large or small, in the extensive mountain systems of Western Pennsylvania or of Kentucky or Tennessee.

Live Fence Posts.

If wire fences are to come into universal use there appears to be no good reason why all our outlines should not be surrounded by a line of trees a proper distance apart to serve as posts; this would save the expense of posts and at the same time secure a permanent fence.

Around fields that are to be ploughed and cultivated, there would be an objection on account of the roots; but around pastures there not only seems to be no objection, but a positive advantage secured by the shade which the trees would afford.

In setting trees for this purpose care should be taken to set durable trees, and also trees adapted to the soil and the climate. Some localities require one kind and other localities quite a different kind. Within 15 or 20 miles of the ocean the red cedar would be one of the best for this purpose; it will grow on any soil from a stiff clay to a dry sand or gravel. It is true it will not make quite as rapid a growth as some other trees, but it bears transplanting as well as most deciduous trees, and will soon begin to grow; by the third, and often the second year after set, it will grow as fast as if left to grow where the seedling first started.

The locust would be a still better tree if it were not for the borer that gets into the trunk, often in such numbers as to kill the tree. This is a very rapid growing tree, and yet would not grow large enough to encumber the land. Where the borer does not work this would be an excellent tree for live fence posts.

The chestnut would make an excellent tree for posts if it did not grow so large; it grows very rapidly and runs up straight, but when standing single it grows very large. The black walnut is a quick-growing tree, and it grows in good form for a post.

The white ash in some localities would be a good tree, but occasionally would in time get too large. The red maple is easy to transplant, grows well, and would make a very good tree for posts in wet land.

The walnut would also make a good tree on dry land, but it is very difficult to transplant it, and the time required to get it large enough for a post would be an objection.

He who attempts to surround his land with live fence posts should first make himself so familiar with the habits of the different trees, that he may not make a mistake by setting the wrong trees on the different soils which surround his farm.

Collecting Debts in China.

"I believe that debts which are not settled on New Year's eve cannot subsequently be recovered, for a curious custom exists, whereby a creditor who has vainly pursued a debtor all through the night may still follow him after day-break, provided he continues to carry his lighted lantern, as if he believed it was still night. This however is his last chance."

THE Pacific Poultry Gazette says: "To rid poultry houses and fowls from vermin, hang up in your poultry house one, or, if a large house, two or three, open mouth bottles, half way from ground to top of the house, one-half pint of kerosene oil in each bottle, and as it evaporates slowly, fill again, say two or three times a year, and you will never see a louse in the building or on the fowls."

A BOSTONIAN cures the morphine habit with this recipe: "Every time she takes a dose of morphine out of the bottle let her put in its place the same amount of pure water. This gradually weakens it, and almost before she knows it the craving is gone."

A GRAIN of sand may be the germ of a new world, but a button in the right place does more good in the rushing present.

Humorous.

AN epitaph in a New Jersey cemetery reads: Weep, stranger, for a father spilled From a stage coach and thereby killed: His name was John Sykes, a maker of sassegers, Slain with three other outside passengers.

"THANK heaven," exclaimed a fond father, as he paced the floor at mid-night with his howling heir, "thank heaven, you are not twins!"

AN American girl wears a big bouquet in her belt, while a Hindoo maiden wears a big brass ring in her nose. It amounts to the same thing. Each has her nose gay.

"WHAT do they do when they install a minister?" inquired a small boy. "Do they put him in a stall and feed him?" "Not a bit," said his father; "they harness him to the church, and expect him to draw it alone."

"THEN you think he struck you with malice aforethought?" Witness indignantly: "You can't mix me up like that. I've told you that he hit me with a brick. There wasn't no mallets nor nothin' of that kind about."

"HALLOA, where are you going with that horse?" asked a gentleman of a suspicious-looking man, whom he met in Ballaghadereen, on horseback.

"Well, I hain't a-going nowhere with him," said the other, "but he is going somewhere with me."

I DOAN know why er pusson wants ter cut off er dog's tail. If Natur hadn't wanted de dog ter have er tail she would n' hab gin him one. It's er pityful sight ter see er glad dog try ter wag his tail when he ain't got none. It puts me in mine o'er man dat hab los' er bowf arms tryin' ter shake han's wid er frien'.

THE editor of a religious paper remarks: "We recently hired a colored man to beat a carpet for us. He had what seemed to us a villainous face, and we watched him somewhat closely. We were not surprised when he brought in a bill of four dollars. 'But, sir, this is too much. You surely would not cheat a preacher!' 'Ah, brudder,' said he, 'you must remember dat I see a preacher too.'"

It is a difficult matter to impress upon the mind of the rural man of Arkansas the necessity of paying immediate attention to the heathen. During a camp meeting in Saline county, a preacher from Little Rock made an eloquent appeal in favor of the poor wretch who eats harkless missionary instead of eating harkless bulk pork. When the preacher had concluded, an old exhorter arose and said: "Brethren, I've been mightily interested in this 'lectioneerin' fur the heathen an' I would now like to know something about him."

Then addressing the minister who had just taken his seat, the exhorter said: "Brother, I would like to ask you a few questions. The boys all say that they are waitin' to see what stand I take, so you won't object to a few questions, will you?" "Certainly not."

"Thankee. Wall, now, how's politeness in the heathen's country?" "He knows nothing of politeness."

"Ah, hab. Wall, how's the question o' capital an' labor?" "There is no capital—no labor."

"No strikes?" "No."

"Got no canderdates?" "No candidates."

"Don't have to wear no clothes, if I understand the situation?" "They have no clothes."

"No lawyers or editors there, I reckon?" "No."

"Wall, parson that's the country I'm lookin' fur, an' ef er emigration agent was to come here he'd ketch every sensible man in Saline county. Boys, I don't think we ken give Mr. Heathen anything. It would be as foolish as haulin' water and pourin' it in the river."

Only Temperance Bitters Known.

No other medicine known so effectively cures the blood of deep-seated diseases. It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-giving Principle; a Gentle Purgative and Tonic; a perfect Restorative and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the power of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. The patient recovers his health.

It is the great Blood Purifier and Life-giving Principle; a Gentle Purgative and Tonic; a perfect Restorative and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the power of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to.

These Bitters are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these organs, is absolutely necessary.

There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as it will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the bowels.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with Vinegar Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fortified.

It invigorates the stomach and stimulates the torpid Liver and Bowels, cleansing the blood of all impurities, imparting life and vigor to the frame, and carrying off with it the aid of Calomel, or other minerals, all poisonous matter from the system.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Pleurisy, Dizziness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are at once relieved by VINEGAR BITTERS.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, the Bitters have no equal. In these, as in all constitutional diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS has shown its great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Painting and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Typographers, Gold-beaters, and others, as they advance in life, are subject to Paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take occasional doses of Vinegar Bitters.

Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Swellings, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scalds, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scuffs, Discolorations, Humors of the Face, and all other eruptions, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of the Bitters.

Pin, Tapeworm and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like VINEGAR BITTERS.

Measles, Scarlet Fever, diphtheria, Whooping Cough, and all children's diseases may be made less severe by keeping the bowels open with mild doses of the Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, this Bitters has no equal.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood when its impurities burst through the skin in Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when; and the health of the system will follow.

In conclusion: Give the Bitters a trial. It will speak for itself. One bottle is a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Around each bottle are full directions printed in different languages.

R. H. McDonald Drug Co., Proprietors, San Francisco, Cal., and 125 and 127 Washington St., Cor. Charleston St., New York. Sold by all Dealers and Druggists.
