Length of Our Lives Increasing.

At a recent international health exhibition held in London, Sir James Paget delivered an address before the association, the Prince of Wales being present.

The learned physician asserted that people live longer than formerly, and that less sickness prevails among the mass of people, and he then gives the following reasons for the decrease of mortality during the last few years:

"There is less from intemperance, less from immorality: we have better, cheaper, and more various food; far more and cheaper clothing; far more and healthier recreations. We have on the whole better houses and better drains, better water and air, and better ways of using them. The care and skill with which the sick are treated in hospitals, infirmaries, and even in private houses are far greater than they were; the improvement and extension of nursing are more than can be described; the care which the rich bestow on the poor, whom they visit in their own homes, is every day saving health and life; and even more effectual than any of these is the work done by the medical officers of health and all the sanitary authorities now active and influential in every part of the kingdom. But we want," adds the lecturer in closing, "more ambition for health—a personal ambition for renown in health as keen as that for bravery or for success in our athletic games and field sports."

A Mechanical Telephone.

What is described as a "mechanical telephone" has just been introduced to telegraphic scientists of this country by two American electrical engineers, Messrs. A. A. Knudson and T. G. Ellsworth. The object of this telephone is to establish communication on short distances without the aid of electricity. The apparatus consist of a wooden case similar to a small ordinary clock face, in which is fixed the diaphragm, formed of small strips of willow wood interlaced and varnished. This wood has been found by experiment to be highly sensitive to sound vibration. In the centre of the diaphragm is attached a small metal disc to hold the end of the wire, which may then be carried any distance desired up to two miles, where the other end is attached to a precisely similar instrument; the telephone being, in fact, a sender and a receiver in one, the slightest sounds travelling freely over it. It is stated that communication by word of mouth can be carried on with the greatest ease and several feet distant from the instrument. It is anticipated that the new telephone will be of great use in large business places, between railway stations and signal boxes and in many ways where prompt and easy means of communication are desired.—Iron.

How Bees Predict the Weather.

No 17 of Die Natur contains an article by Herr Emmerig, of Laingen, on German bees as storm warners. From numerous observations, the writer advances tentatively the theory that, on the approach of thunder storms, bees, otherwise gentle and harmless, become excited and exceedingly irritable, and will at once attack anyone, even their usual attendant, approaching their hives. A succession of instances are given in which the barometer and hygrometer foretold a storm, the bees remaining quiet, and no storm occurred; or the instruments gave no intimation of a storm, but the bees for hours before were irritable, and the storm came. He concludes, therefore, that the conduct of bees is a trustworthy indication whether a storm is impending over a certain district or not, and that, whatever the appearances, if bees are still, one need not fear a storm.—Scientific American.

D. L. SNYDER, Stribling Springs Va., says he used 300 lbs. to the acre of a compost made with Powell's Prepared Chemicals, to which he added 500 lbs. Dissolved S. C. Bone to the ton. This application gave him splendid wheat and a fine stand of clover. He recommends it to the farmers, Powell's Prepared Chemicals costs only $6 per bbl., enough to make one-half ton complete fertilizer. Address Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

Table Manners of Young Folks.

Young children who have to wait till older people have eaten all there is in the dining-room door during the meal and ask the host if he is going to eat all day. It makes the company feel ill at ease and lays up wrath in the parent's heart.

Children should not appear displeased with the regular courses at dinner and then fill up on pie. Eat the less expensive food first and then organize a panic in the preserves.

Do not close out the last of your soup by taking the plate in your mouth and pouring the liquid down your childish neck. You might spill it, and it enlarges and distorts the mouth unnecessarily.

When asked what part of the fowl you prefer do not say you will take the part that goes over the fence last. This remark is very humorous, but the rising generation ought to originate some new table jokes that will be worthy of the age in which we live.

Children should early learn the use of the fork and how to handle it. This knowledge can be acquired by allowing them to pry up the carpet tacks with this instrument and other little exercises such as the parent mind may suggest.

The child should be taught at once not to wave his bread around over the table while in conversation, or to fill his mouth full of potatoes and then converse in a rich tone of voice with some one out in the yard. He might get his dinner down his trachea and cause his parents great anxiety.

In picking up a plate or saucer filled with soup or moist food, the child should be taught not to parboil his thumb in the contents of the dish and to avoid swallowing soup bones or other indigestible debris.

Toothpicks are generally the last course, and children should not be permitted to pick their teeth and kick the table through the other exercises. While grace is being said at table, children should know that it is a breach of good breeding to smudge fruit cake just because their parents' heads are bowed down and their attention for the moment turned in another direction. Children ought not to be permitted to find fault with the dinner or fool with the cat while eating. Boys should, before going to the table, empty all the frogs and grasshoppers out of their pockets, or those insects might crawl out during the festivities and jump into the gravy.

If a fly wades into your jelly up to his gambels do not mash him with your spoon before all the guests, as death is at all times depressing to those who are at dinner and retards digestion. Take the fly out carefully with what naturally adheres to his person and wipe him on the table-cloth. It will demonstrate your perfect command of yourself and afford amusement for the company. Do not stand up in your chair and try to spear a roll with your fork. Say "thank you" and "much obliged" and "beg pardon" wherever you can work in these remarks, as it throws people off their guard and gives you an opportunity to get in your work on the pastry and other braca-lrac near you at the time.

Both-Handed People. It is supposed to be a great misfortune to be left-handed; but it is not at least a misfortune to be merely right-handed—why not be both-handed? We do not often realize that a useless and ineffective member this poor left hand of ours is until our right arm is disabled in some way or burdened with a fretful baby who must be held while we want to work. Now, if we could only sew or write with the left hand what a blessing it would be. Then, too, the right hand may be lost by some accident, when the use of the left hand becomes a prime necessity. Now, why not teach children to be both-handed? They naturally use both hands with equal ease, and why should they not be trained to use both with equal facility? It is cruel to tie up a child's left hand when he attempts to use it—unless he uses it to the exclusion of his right hand—since it practically maims him for life. Constant use of the right hand makes the right side of the body larger and stronger than the left, which is in itself a reason for not doing so. Let children have the free use of both hands, and encourage them in it. While nearly all machinery and working implements are constructed to be operated with the right hand, there is little enough encouragement for the left hand.

THE OLD WAY.

New York City, Oct. 7th, 1885. THE SCHOFIELD Mfg Co. Gentlemen—Monday, Sept. 28th, I bought an outfit and commenced canvassing on West 12th and Perry Streets, this City, for your Patent Cake Griddle. Had never seen nor heard of the Griddle previous to starting out. The first day I took 10 orders, and only made 16 calls and up to Saturday noon, Oct. 3d, had obtained 42 orders all A. 1., and from intelligent ladies, and had delivered 12 of them. I am quite sure I did not make over 60 calls to secure the 42 orders, which were all for the large Griddle, except 6. In two instances during the week my sample was kept and money tendered; one lady saying she would not give it up but said, "there is $1.25, you can get another." My net profit for not exceeding five days work figures up just $24.50, which is more money than I ever made before in the same length of time by canvassing. I have determined this week to take 50 bona fide orders. I am willing to go before a Notary Public if you wish and make affidavit that the above is the truth and nothing but the truth.

Only Temperance Bitters Known.

No other medicine known so effectively purges the blood of diseased elements. Millions bear testimony to its wonderful effects. It is a pure Vegetable Preparation, made from the native herbs and roots of California, its medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. It removes the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health.

It is the great Blood Purifier and Tonic; a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the power of Winegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to.

The Alterative, Astringent, Diuretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudo-ric, Anti-Bilious, Solvent, Diarrhetic and Tonic properties of Winegar Bitters exceed those of any other medicine in the world.

No person can take the Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bowels are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs are beyond the point of repair.

Biliousness, Rheumatism, Intermittent and Malarial Fevers, are prevalent throughout the United States, particularly in the valleys of our great rivers and their tributaries during the Summer and Autumn, especially during seasons of unusual heat and drought.

These Fevers are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. In these cases, the Bitters, exerting a powerful influence upon these organs is absolutely necessary.

There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S WINEGAR BITTERS. It will specifically remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring healthy functions of the digestive organs.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, the Bitters have no equal. In these, as in all constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S WINEGAR BITTERS has shown its great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, the disease of womb, or of the turn of life, this Bitters has no equal.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood when its impurities burst through the skin in eruptions or sores; cleanse it when obstructed and sluggish in the vessels of the liver. It is foul; your feelings will tell you when, and the health of the system will follow.

Be careful of cheap imitations. Give the Bitters a trial. It will speak for itself. One bottle is a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Around each bottle are full directions printed in different languages. H. H. McDonald Drug Co., Proprietors, San Francisco, Cal., and 238, 239 & 240 Washington St., New York.
