THE REMINISCENT OAK.

BY MILES FARAWAY.

A landmark from forgotten time,
There stands a solitary oak,
Chanting for aye a wizard rhyme—
Perchance that some old prophet spoke
In that dim epoch of the past
When gifted ones a spirit form
Behold oft riding on the blast,
Or heard its voice above the storm—
Like the incessant overflow
Of thankfulness from the full heart
Of an enchanted brook, whose low
Sweet melody fills every part
Of some lone wood; although a vague
And melancholy undertone
Does seem at times its song to plague
And turn its laughter into moan.

A traveler found in some far land
A parrot, querulous and old,
Whose language none could understand;
Although it spoke (so he was told)
A dialect which long ago
A tribe had used. The tribe was gone!
But still this lone bird's tale of woe
Kept the dead language echoing on.
And so this ancient oak perchance
Its lore and language learned of yore,
When fauns and satyrs used to dance
By moonlight on the forest floor;
Its dreams are of the olden time,
Its long soliloquy of woe
Of speech blown down from fairy clime—
Of which this sad world is bereft.

The tribes of earth one after one,
Into oblivion file away;
Their very speech becomes unknown
To races of a later day.
But woods and waters still retain
These olden tongues, and use them yet;
Though we who listen strive in vain
Their lost significance to get.

The mystic murmur of the woods,
The liquid accents of the streams,
To him who o'er their meaning broods
Seen fragments of forgotten dreams.
But lack of every cadence sweet
In Nature's wondrous symphonies
(In time and tune with God's heart-beat)
No doubt some precious secret is.

When man the signs of morn can read,
And understand the voice of night,
There'll be no longer room for creed
In his philosophy of right;
And who shall say that unto each
In that good time for which we yearn
Some lost inheritance of speech
From limbo shades shall not return?
—Weekly Wisconsin.

Scenes in a Japanese Home.

BY HELEN E. S. THOMPSON.

Life in the home of one of the old families of wealth and position in Japan, is full of unique and picturesque interest. We may call it pagan or heathen, but it is still a home, and complete with suggestive history. Well do we remember one such, a grand, old house of solid timber, sixty feet broad by one hundred deep, with lofty rooms, and long, wide corridors. Its one story was an immense and sloping roof, which covered fourteen apartments and many balconies. The sliding partitions could all be removed and make on occasion a noble hall with many columns. The ceiling was made of fine-grained wood and fifteen feet from the floor.

The front of this house was protected from the inquisitive gaze of the world by a wall of tiles built with cement, and lined with a row of firs, of mighty girth and farspreading branches, which "measured their height by rods and their shadows by furlongs." The main gate of the court-yard was supported by heavy tree trunks, and covered with a handsome roof, while just within was the porter's lodge.

Near this lodge was clump of evergreens and under their shadow stood an arch cut from solid stone, perhaps four feet high, used as the family shrine, and holding in its depths sacred emblems and holy symbols. Just beyond was a rockery of great beauty, where fountains tossed their spray, and toyed with sun and moonbeams. Here and there the Moclainji tree shed its purple blossoms to the breeze from lofty heights, while azaleas and starry asters bloomed beneath its foot. All about the garden, camellias of brilliant red or purest white, unfolded their lovely buds from low-growing shrubs, while now and then a camelia tree, towering fifty feet in the air, entranced the eye with its wax-like blossoms.

Moats of running water were bounded by stone walls, moss-covered and flower-decked, where in the deepest, clearest water, darted and dived the varied tribes of fish. Here grew and bloomed the lotus—king among the flowers of Japan. Here came happy children, looking upon its wondrous beauty with unspeakable delight. Into this charming garden the infant was carried by its nurse and grew up the playmate of butterflies, bees and birds, thus fostering that passionate love for Nature, so extreme in the people of Dai Nippon.

In this home an ex-Daio (prince) and family dwelt, with whom we exchanged frequent hospitalities during our sojourn in Japan. As we were one of the family in which the Daio's youngest brother and eldest son had found a home while pursuing their education in America, we were readily received by the ex-prince in turn. The family then consisted of his wife, two little girls, two grown daughters and three sons one an infant, with their grandmother, a charming old lady, and three nurses besides a large retinue of servants.

One little son of five years we dearly loved. Strange, indeed, did it seem to see the little fellow with his gold-billed sword hung in his girdle, while a lad three times his age attended him, bearing the longer badge of rank. The beautiful brown tint of his skin through which flashed the tell-tale blood of rosy hue, his merry black eyes and winsome ways, will not soon be forgotten.

The father was a noble specimen of devotion to his country, and an apostle of Progress. He was one of many who consented to the destruction of the old Government and had yielded his revenues and title without a murmur, for the public good. The lady mother and eldest daughter were peers to the ladies of any land, in their love of beauty, ornate, elegant dress, neatness, skill in household management and in the amenities of social and polite circles, such as etiquette prescribes.

This mother was as strong in tenderness and long-suffering for and with her children, as her Circassian sisters and equally faithful and assiduous in their training and education, according to her knowledge. She taught her daughters as her mother had taught her, that the three fundamental duties of woman are, obedience to her parents when a child, obedience to her husband when married, and obedience to her eldest son if she becomes a widow. She also instructed them from the "Japanese Ladies' Library," which is a compendium of the moral and physical duties of woman, household and social management, including rules for the strictest etiquette, guide to letter-writing, proverbs, poems from a hundred authors, memoirs of noble women, and ordering for the whole conduct of life.

They were likewise taught to read the standard histories of Japan in Chinese characters, and both boys and girls were thoroughly drilled in the traditional heroic and mythological lore of their own land. The sons were trained to manly sports and exploits, and their ambition fired by historic tales of heroes. They were taught to overcome obstacles by the symbol over the massive outer door, where swung the huge paper carp, suspended from a bamboo pole, ever reminding the youth of Japan how the carp leaps the waterfall.

These lads were also taught natural sciences and military tactics, from English and Dutch authors. Often in their half holidays have I found them constructing miniature earth-works by the aid of book, diagram and trowel. Then came the tutor with lessons in fencing and wrestling, the use of cross-spears, and swords, in the handling of which they become marvelously expert. The father instructed his sons in the Chinese classics himself, and stimulated their young souls by tales of classic lore.

When we ventured a morning call upon this charming household, we were immediately ushered into the long dining-room, with its cool, matted floors, and soft, luxuriant cushions. The low table, was often decked with bouquets of many hued camellias, and twigs of blossoming cherry and plum, while costly vases of bronze, held Japan's rarest flowers, and huge pyramids of half-peeled oranges and sliced sponge cake whetted the appetite. Soon obsequious servants appeared with lacquered trays of dainty plates and confections, and tiniest cups of tea, set in metal sockets. When we were served, they bowed with their foreheads to the floor and disappeared. We chatted upon the revolutionary changes then in progress and upon the educational system in America, and the ex-Daio expressed the conviction that it is the religion of the two nations that has made them differ.

If an invitation is sent us to dine or sup, an elegant tray is brought us, holding a delicate box of choice confections, a fan of exquisite workmanship, and a ceremonial folded paper, often blank, but symbolizing friendship—tied with the daintiest red and white silk cord. When dining, we find upon the board a fine fish and leg of vension, a goose or duck, with sweet potatoes and eggs; a basket of pears and oranges, or a tray of persimmons, sweet potato custard, cakes and lemon jelly.

Often have we sat in the wide corridors during the noon-day heats, watching the ladies weave their rich embroideries, or paint on silk; or paced the garden paths while the moonlight sifted through the tall firs, silverying the spray of fountains and illuminating the lotus-blossoms in the moat,—listening to tales from the quaint grandmother and little lady-mother, or the courtly speech of the father, of the dwellers in this old house, of more than two hundred years ago—of the children who had grown and played among the flowers, picking the lotus-petals for banners and its leaves for sun-shades; of the many births and deaths beneath this roof; sickness and joyous banquet, and marriage; of the many festivals—the Feast of the Dolls, for the daughters of the house, when year after year the great nursery was decked with blooming boughs, and the many toys in which Japan abounds, while beautiful mimic life of motherhood and housekeeping prevailed for one whole day; of the "Feast of the Banners," when the boys marched out in triumph to the streets, with emblazoned banners to enact a mimic war; of the New Year Day, when prince and retainers, master and servants, pledged anew their devotion to each other, and received gifts of good things; of the religious festivals, when the master's household like a great heart, beat for the birth and death, the joy and sorrow of his tenantry.

Here, for two centuries, the daughters had been given in marriage, without spoken vow, or priestly right; but by gift and song, dance and cheer, began their new career. From thence had gone out the father to Yeddo or Fuku, on public or private business, the sons for education and culture, the daughters for travel or religious duty. These walls had echoed with song and laughter, with cries and sobs. Each day with renewed force, I realized that a home it had been—not like ours, but none the less a home, for all the completeness of life had sanctified it. Here, the child had come to thrill the parent's heart with joy, and after one hundred days had been taken to the temple, where the shaven priest had written a charm and placed it in the child's prayer bag. From thence, down through the shadow of these mighty trees, had gone forth the funeral cortege with lanterns to the crematorium, with a hearse of pure white wood, borne on the shoulders of men, followed by men in ceremonious dress, with muffled swords, and women in white robes, wearing caps of white floss-silk. Then prayers had been read, bells tinkled, candles lighted, and the body of the loved one was laid on the pyre, after which the fires were lighted by the brother of the dead, and when all was over the ashes were deposited in the family monument, while in the oratory of this house where the sacred lights and incense burn, another black tablet was set, gilt-lettered, among the ancestral names, to be honored by later generations.

In the path, by the old shrine, made sacred by the reverent beliefs of generations, we took our final leave of this interesting family. Asking for a memento from its hallowed contents, the ex-prince gave me a cake of light wood, containing an amulet written in Sanskrit and Chinese for the protection of this ancient house, and as we passed out of the great gate we stood under a pile of charms a foot in thickness, which had been added year by year to ward off sickness and harm. As everything human is sacred, and most of all, heart-creeds, we were not ashamed of tears that filled our eyes, as we prayed that the religion of Christ, so potent to purify from superstition, might exalt this Japanese home, and reform it into a Christian home; and you, reader, could you sit beneath that grand, old roof, and witness the play of life and love, heroic patriotism, estheticism and principle would surely echo that prayer.—College Herald.

Making Trouble in a Boarding House.

"I want to give you a quiet talking to," said the manager of a leading boarding house to a wealthy guest. "I had to discharge a waiter to-day your account."
"What do you mean, sir?" asked the gentleman, with some show of indignation.
"You have spoiled three good waiters for me already," replied the manager, firmly and respectfully. "You gave the man I have just sent away $5 a month. Now, sir, that was either intended as a generous gift or meant as a bribe to the man to give you more food and better service than you pay for. No matter what the motive, the effect was the same. I am always in the kitchen at meal time and see to it that every guest has what he is entitled to and no more; so you got no advantage in that way, but you did receive a good deal more attention than you were entitled to. Mr. Jones, who sits at your table, pays me just as much as you do, and is just as good a customer to me. But he cannot afford to pay a waiter $5 a month as you do, and the consequence is the man neglects him to fuss with you. If he could afford to pay as much fees as yourself, neither of you would get any advantage, but he cannot, and himself and family have been so neglected that I expect they will leave the house and all your generosity does is to deprive me of a good customer."
"I never looked at it in that light before," said the wealthy guest, "and I guess hereafter I'll get along without subsidizing the waiter, or content myself with a present that is not expected."

A New Snake Remedy.

MR. TILDEN'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Hon. Samuel J. Tilden took place from his late residence, at Greystone, Saturday.

TILDEN'S WILL.

The will of Samuel J. Tilden was read at Greystone on Monday afternoon by Lawyer James C. Carter.

Col. Samuel J. Tilden, who spoke for the family, said that not a word about the will would be given to the press.

Hon. John Bigelow gives the following facts about the will: Mr. Bigelow, Andrew H. Green and George W. Smith are named as executors and trustees.

The funeral services were of a simple character. They were conducted by Rev. Dr. Wm. J. Tucker, who began the services by reading the 90th Psalm.

The estate is not as large as estimated by some people. The value has been placed at $10,000,000, but Mr. Bigelow says this is double its real value.

MR. TILDEN'S FUNERAL.

The plain democracy which made Mr. Tilden in life a representative of the people seemed to walk by his bier to the graves his remains were borne Saturday from Greystone to their last resting place at New Lebanon.

Rev. Dr. John Maclean, ex-president of the College of New Jersey, died on Tuesday morning. He was born at Princeton March 3, 1800, and was the eldest son of Dr. John Maclean, first professor of chemistry in the college.

THE NEWS FROM BELFAST CONTINUES.

The news from Belfast continues to be of the most painful character. The seeds of race hatred, sown in misery and treachery, continue to reap their rich harvest of blood.

THE war cloud which has been hanging over Mexico and the United States, and which sober-minded citizens on both sides, hoped to see dispelled by peaceful and intelligent negotiation, is growing blacker.

War is a terrible evil, entailing so much suffering and misery, that even when important interests are at stake, humanity shrinks from the ordeal, but in this case, where the bone of contention, is a reckless braggart not worth the powder it would take to shoot him, it is doubly hard to reconcile the conflicting feelings of contempt for the man and respect for our national dignity.

TWO MEN navigated the Niagara whirlpool rapids in a cask on Sunday. They were coopers who were employed in the same shop with Graham who performed the silly feat some weeks ago.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

COUNTERFEIT $2 bills are said to be in circulation. The alarming reports about the Pope are said to be without any foundation.

CHOLERA of the most virulent form prevails among the French troops in Tonquin.

THE funeral of Col. Richard M. Hoe took place in New York on Thursday. Col. Hoe died six weeks ago at Florence, Italy.

THE announcement was made in New York after the close of business on Monday afternoon that, in consequence of the arbitrary action of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company have decided to decline to receive through freight for the present.

THIRD Assistant Postmaster General Hazen recently issued the following circular to postmasters: A new contract has recently been made at greatly reduced rates for furnishing the department with stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for the four years commencing October 1, 1886.

GIVEN AWAY! A PREMIUM THAT IS A PREMIUM This Announcement is of Interest to Every American Citizen.

The most magnanimous offer ever made by any newspaper.

The New York World, THE GREATEST NEWSPAPER ON THIS CONTINENT, CIRCULATION OVER 1,300,000 Copies a Week.

PRESENTS FREE TO EVERY SUBSCRIBER TO ITS WEEKLY EDITION (PRICE $1 PER YEAR) A History of the United States, BOUND IN LEATHERETTE TREE CALF, GILT, AND CONTAINING TWENTY-TWO FINE ENGRAVINGS.

This dainty book of 320 i. no pages is printed on good paper, with wide margins, and is a prize for a bibliophile's library.

This history is upon an entirely novel and original plan, which makes it indispensable to every person, no matter how many other histories he may have.

It is arranged chronologically by years, from the discovery of America in 1492. Every event is narrated in the order of its date. These are not confined, as in other works, to political matters, but embrace every branch of human action.

It describes under its proper date all important events, all discoveries in science and the useful arts; the digging of canals and the building of railroads and telegraph lines; the founding of towns and the erecting of notable buildings and bridges; the first performance of plays and the first appearance of actors and singers; fires, floods, hurricanes, tornadoes, and earthquakes; accidents and business failures, "corners" and phenomenal prices in all markets; labor troubles, strikes and lock-outs, and hundreds of other matters never mentioned by historians, which are of the greatest importance to all who wish to understand the progress of their country.

Besides being a history in the ordinary sense, it is a condensed newspaper file for four hundred years.

DO YOU WANT IT? The History will be sent FREE, by express, to every person who forwards $1 for a year's subscription to

The Weekly World. The Great Agricultural and Family Newspaper.

Containing also all the best illustrated, literary and miscellaneous matter that appears in the Sunday edition of THE WORLD, the only American newspaper which has now attained the unprecedented circulation of over 225,000 copies each issue.

If preferred, the History will be sent by mail at subscriber's risk when ten cents extra is forwarded to treasury postage. Clubs will find this express cheaper and single subscribers the mail.

This is beyond doubt the greatest offer ever made by any publication in this or any other country. The Premium alone is of more value than the amount paid.

A MILLION PEOPLE IN THIS COUNTRY WANT THIS BOOK.

We want 500,000 more subscribers to the Weekly World, and this is the One Premium that has been selected from among over a thousand to secure for the Weekly World A HALF A MILLION NEW READERS.

THE WORLD reserves the right to withdraw this offer at any time upon one week's notice in its weekly edition.

All subscriptions must be addressed THE WORLD, New York, N. Y.

LOCAL ITEMS. WHEN we reduced the Subscription Price of the Emmitsburg Chronicle to One Dollar a year, it was unmistakably announced that that sum would be received for advance payments.

A Good Catch. Messrs. Joseph Snouffer and George Slato of this place, caught 40 fine fish on Friday last week, in Marsh Creek, among which were 16 bass.

Fall Ploughing. The favorable weather has greatly advanced the ploughing for the fall seeding, and the work has progressed much beyond the rate usual at this time.

A Beautiful Cluster. Mrs. John Reifsnider sent to this office a bunch of tomatoes all grown on one stem. There were seven on the bunch, all fine large ones. Weight 3 1/2 pounds.

A Successful Festival. The Westminster Advocate says the festival of St. John's Church, this city, closed after a week's duration.

The Circus. Hurlburt and Hunting's Circus and College of Trained Animals exhibited in this place on Monday.

From the Union. Last Saturday the trustees of Frederick College elected Mr. D. C. Winebrenner a member of the board of trustees.

From one Grain of Wheat. Silas Himes, of Sandy Hook district, found in one of his fields a bunch of wheat containing fifty-two stalks.

Horseback Party. Messrs. R. H. Johnston and Charles Waddles of this place and Elmantham Kerschner, Shields Hunter and Ed. Osher of Locust Grove Mills made a trip to Round Top Park and Gettysburg on horseback, Thursday afternoon.

A Grand Pic-Nic. The employees of the firm of William Knabe & Co., of Baltimore, celebrated the fifth-ninth anniversary of the founding of the firm, on the 6th inst.

Narrow Escape of Miners. On Friday evening, as the men were about quitting work at Hoffman mine, Allegany county, a miner staggered to the mouth of the slope and said that a number of miners were dying from want of air and a quarter miles from the mouth.

A Mystery. How the human system ever recovers from the bad effects of the numerous medicines often liberally poured into it for the supposed relief of dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism and other ailments, is a mystery.

THE NERVOUS, brain-working type of people, such as lawyers, clergymen, business men and students are the principal victims of hay fever. Sufferers may be certain that hay fever does not arise from an impure state of the blood.

List of Letters. The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., Aug. 9, 1886. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them:

Beat His Own Record. In our issue of last week we gave an account of Mr. D. Zeck of this place having caught a rat in two steel traps at once, and called upon our contemporaries to beat this if they could.

At East Berlin, last week, Mr. Joseph E. Bowser, whilst engaged in tearing down his old stone summer house, fell a distance of about ten feet, breaking a rib and receiving several painful gashes and bruises.

At East Berlin, on Tuesday, Miss Kate daughter of Mr. Jacob Rosser, whilst preparing dinner, was struck on the shoulder by a spent ball from a gun or revolver. She was not injured; but the reckless firing of deadly weapons is none the less to be deprecated.

From the Boonsboro Times. Efforts are being made to establish a mattress factory at Hagerstown. A new postoffice has been established at Beaver Creek, with P. R. Doub as postmaster.

A Canal Convention at Cumberland. A convention has been called to be held at the City Hall in Cumberland on Thursday, August 12, to consider measures for the improvement of the canal.

Get From Under. The human head is peculiarly an object of electrical attraction in a thunder storm. Lightning of course strikes the highest points when a discharge is made from a cloud.

CRAMP Colic and Diarrhoea can be relieved in fifteen minutes by using Victor Pain Balm.

DR. J. SHELDON M'KENZIE. Some of the farmers are done ploughing and are getting ready for the next year crop.

On Saturday last the Blue Mountain Club met at Mr. H. Maxell's and spent a very pleasant day notwithstanding the rain.

Quite a number of country folks attended Linwood Camp last Sunday. Mr. F. W. Biggs has taken a pleasure trip to Baltimore.

Miss Hammett will take charge of the Ridge School September 1st. Mrs. W. W. Crayster made a visit to Gettysburg.

Mrs. E. F. Krise expects to attend Emory Grove Camp.

Tuesday morning, as Harry Walter, oldest son of Chas. H. Walter, was taking a horse rake from the field, the horse he was driving became frightened and started on a run; after running a short distance one wheel of the rake struck a post fence, throwing Harry with great force under and in front of the teeth of the rake, one of which penetrated the flesh just under and back of the left arm, and tearing a terrible wound, severing the muscles both at the back and front of the arm; beside this he received several severe bruises.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Jacob Eiker met with a very serious accident. They were very busy hauling in oats, and she insisted on going out to the field to assist them, and got on the wagon for that purpose, when by a sudden lurch of the wagon she was thrown to the ground, she was taken to Dr. Beaver's office, who upon examination found the bones of her arm fractured in three places between the wrist and elbow. He adjusted the fractures and she is getting along quite comfortably.

DIED. DAMUTH.—On the 6th inst., at Mechanicstown, Mrs. Mary Damuth, wife of Jacob Damuth, aged 74 years and 22 days. Deceased was a sister of Henry Stokes, Esq., of this place.

Summary of News.

THE POPE is dangerously ill.
CHOLERA is raging in Tokio and Yokohama.

WM. POTTS and George Hazlitt, two coopers, shot the whirlpool rapids at Niagara in a cask, on Sunday, in the presence of 15,000 people.

WOODPECKERS RAINING STEEPLES.
At Mattoon, Ill., the wooden spires of the churches have been pierced in hundreds of places by woodpeckers looking for food or for places for nests. The holes in the Methodist church became so unobtrusively that a man was employed to shoot the birds. Then bees took possession, and their honey drips from the holes and smears the steeple. The Congregational church steeple is well filled with honey, and so are the steeples in neighboring towns. Six swarms of bees were seen to quit the spire of a Paxton church in one day.

THE DIRECTOR of the Mint estimates the amount of gold coin in the United States on Jan. 1, 1886, to have been $533,485,453; of silver dollars, $218,259,761; subsidiary silver, $75,034,111; or a total stock of coin of $826,779,325.

OF THE STOCK of gold coin, the United States treasury held, over and above outstanding gold certificates, $75,434,379, and the national banks $150,353,592, including treasury and clearing-house certificates. One thousand and fifteen State banks and trust companies held, November 1, 1885, $31,255,789, which left in the hands of the people and other banks $270,541,633. Of the silver dollars which have been coined, the United States treasury owns (not represented by silver certificates) $72,538,725; the national banks $6,940,627. The amount owned by private individuals and other banks (including those in the treasury represented by certificates outstanding) is $138,780,408. Of the subsidiary silver about $27,000,000 was in the treasury and $47,000,000 outstanding.

RIOTING at Belfast continues. A cable from Belfast to the Baltimore American on Sunday says: The excitement here is unabated. This morning rioting broke out in Old Lodge road, and the police were obliged to fire in order to disperse the rioters. This afternoon the rioting was renewed, with great violence in Old Lodge, Grosvenor and Springfield roads. Many persons with gunshot wounds have been sent to hospitals. Additional troops have been telegraphed for. The aspect of affairs is serious. The mayor presided to-day at a three-hours' meeting of the executive committee. There are rumors current of many fatalities, but it is difficult to obtain accurate accounts. A panic is seizing peaceable inhabitants.

ON THE SAME DAY the following was received from Dublin: In response to urgent telegrams received from Belfast this evening, four hundred infantry soldiers, some of them being on furlough, were summoned by bugle in the streets and were despatched in haste to Belfast by special train. A body of two hundred dragoons and infantry will leave for Belfast at four o'clock to-morrow morning. The police of Belfast will be superseded by the military.

WHEN THE EMPEROR William travels, says the Pall Mall Gazette, every possible measure is taken to provide for his comfort. The Emperor's special train consists of three saloon carriages, connected with each other by a covered way. The imperial carriage proper is richly hung with blue damask, and at one end there is a small compartment, in which the Emperor likes to stand at the window when making short journeys. A small saloon next to this coupe contains a sofa and a spring seat, opposite which is the Emperor's camp bed. Near the saloon is the study, in which stands a desk with writing materials, whose appearance shows good wear. Upon a bracket above the desk is a small model of the Column of Victory in Berlin. Adjacent to the study is a dressing room, fitted up with extreme care and good taste. A final room contains two small sofas, a leaf table, and a large mirror. With the Emperor's own carriage is a carriage for his suite, and this is, of course, quite differently fitted up. It contains five or six apartments, each containing a table and two small couches. All the rooms are connected by telegraph with the Emperor's apartments. The carriages are provided with gas throughout.

AN ATLANTA, Ga., reporter, who once "pulled a hand press" on a country weekly, tells this: One day while the paper was being worked off, a man from the country came in, and, awaked around the room, finally stopping near the press and watching the work very earnestly. "Anything I can do for you?" asked the man at the lever, passing between impressions. "Nay," was the reply; "I don't want nothin'; jis come in to see you edit."

Humorous.

SPECTACLES are pair o'sights on the nose.
ONE of the most extensive chicken farmers in Pennsylvania is named Hatch. His first name is Henry.

"WAKE up and pay for your lodgings," said the deacon, as he nudged a sleepy stranger with the contribution box.

IT IS SAID there are more lies told in the sentence, "I am glad to see you," than in any other six words in the English language.

"IF de wedder grows much worse and de work harder all de time," said an Alabama colored man, "dis nigger will have a call to preach."
—Lynn Item.

"PA, who was Shylock?" "Great goodness, boy! You attend church and Sunday School every week, and don't know who Shylock was? Go and read your Bible, Sir!"

SMOKER—Look here, Isaac, this cigar that I just bought of you won't draw. Isaac—Vot't draw? Vell do you subsume I'se givin' away sugtion bumps mit dem five-cent Victorias?

TOMMY (who has just received a severe scolding)—Am I really so bad, mamma? Mamma—Yes, Tommy, you are a very bad boy. Tommy (reflectively)—Well, anyway, mamma, I think you ought to be real darn glad I ain't twins! —Harper's.

JUDGE PARDEE, of the Circuit Court of the United States, says: "Labor organizations are generally laudable associations, but they have no legal status or authority. It is preposterous that they should attempt to issue orders that free men are bound to obey."

A SCOTCH minister, in one of his parochial visits, met a cow-boy, and asked him what o'clock it was. "About twelve, sir," was the reply. "Well," remarked the minister, "I thought it was more." "It's never any more here," said the boy; "it just begins at one again."

"HAVE you heard the news, Pat?" said a jester to an Irishman. "An' what's that, sor?" "The devil is dead."

"TAKE that, sor," it's all I have by me, or I might do better," said Pat, handing him a penny. "I niver s'nd an orphant' away in my hand, sor."

DON'T refuse an invitation to the theatre on your wife's account. Don't mind about sending her word, and go right for your place of business. She will conclude by 10 o'clock that you are not coming, anyway, and if she sits up and rocks the baby till 2 she will be more glad to see you when you do come.

A LITTLE girl at one of the Episcopal Sunday Schools last Sunday was asked what she intended to deny herself during the Lenten season, the necessity for some such denial being impressed on the scholars by the different teachers. "Well," replied the female scholar, "I can't do without candy, 'cause Lent's too long and candy's too good. I guess I'll do without meat—I don't like meat anyway."

IT WAS ONCE reported to the notorious Judge Jeffries that the Prince of Orange was on the point of entering into the country, and that he was already preparing a manifesto as to his inducements and objects in so doing. "Pray, my lord chief justice," said a gentleman present, "what do you think will be the heads of this manifesto?" "Mine will be one," he grimly replied.

AT A RECENT justice trial in this city in which a jury was drawn all questions of law and practice had to give way to the all-important question which emanated from the fertile brain of one of the jurymen after all the evidence was in, arguments made, and the case was submitted to the jury. The question was, "What we want to know is, if that was a verbal contract, when it was writ?" —Norwich Bulletin.

RUSSIAN RHEUMATISM CURE

which is working such wonders with all Rheumatic sufferers who have ever tried it.
IT COMPLETELY CURED J. F. NEWTON, 513 Broadway, Camden, N. J. Who says: "I was so severely afflicted with rheumatism that I had to carry my arm in a sling. My hands were swollen, my fingers stiff, and the pain so intense that for seventeen nights I was unable to sleep. I tried all the remedies I could find, but nothing helped me. A friend suggested the Russian Rheumatism Cure. I tried it. Just one week I had full use of my arm and hand, and have been well ever since."
It has cured every one afflicted with rheumatism who has given it a fair trial.
