THE MAN WHO BUILDS A HOME.

The hurrying host e'er crowds the van,
With plaudits and acclaim, To show its honor to the man Who makes himself a name; Indeed, all honor should be his That people can bestow.
A good name! fair and sweet it is,
In happiness or woe.

But praise where 'tis deserved the most Is grudgingly bestowed, As through earth's troubles rush life's host,
With light or heavy load;
The man who highest praise deserves, 'Neath Heaven's eternal dome, Is he who ne'er from duty swerves, And makes a happy home.

A home! Not mere two strong walls To turn the wolves away,
To rest within till grim death calls Unto a brighter day;
But such a home as hearts may love,
And live and bloom within,
Reflecting joys from above And never knowing sin.

The man who builds a home like this Is greater far than he Whose wealth may waken sensuous bliss Whose name fills land and sea.
His wealth may flee, his name go down;
But homes with hearts of love Will keep through ages their renown As echoes from above.

REMINISCENCES OF A SUMMER TRIP.

[Written for the Emmitsburg Chronicle.]
We left Paris on Wednesday, July 28th, at 11 A. M., having bought Cook's tickets to London, with the privilege of stopping at Canterbury.
At the station we had to buy tickets for our trunks, and then we had them checked through to London.
When this work was done we breathed freely, feeling that our last struggle in a foreign language was over. At the train we sought a compartment marked "dames," and found ourselves in very good company.

We had found out that the train stopped for refreshments at Amiens, and S. and G., arranged to take that opportunity to visit the Cathedral, for we carried our repast and could eat it at any minute. I was very willing to act the part of old lady and stay in the car to guard the bags and umbrellas. Alas, for "the best laid plans" of eager tourists! The train reached Amiens about one o'clock and stopped only five minutes. G. consoled herself and the party by dividing the last cake of Paris chocolate, a compound delicious beyond American comparison.

At a quarter of four we reached Calais, but had no time to look at the place for we had to hurry around a pier to the Channel boat, which we thought ought to have been near the train. The twin boat, Calais-Dover, was waiting for its victims.
It looks like two steamers fastened side to side for security and steady-ness. A cold wind was blowing, the sky was gray, the sea was angry. In order to be sheltered from the gale we were obliged to take seats at the stern, which I regretted, for I wanted to see Dover as we approached it. We muffled our wraps about us, and gave ourselves up to meditation. Fortunately we did nothing more than meditate, but many of the passengers were woefully active. The stewards had a lively time attending to the sick, and we were two hours in crossing.
Suddenly we found ourselves in still water, just as if we had crossed a charmed line, and going to the bow we saw that we were at the shore of Dover. The beach is narrow, the chalk cliffs rise abruptly and present a threatening appearance, not lessened by the sight of the guarded castle on the summit.

How delightful it was to hear once more the English language, and when the Captain said "ticket" instead of "billet" I could have blessed him. As we left the boat an officer looked into our bags, but did not make an extensive search.
It is an untimely moment to undo your traps just after you have shouldered arms and are ready to go on the gang-plank, and it is one of the many little things which help to weary the travellers in a foreign land. The train was waiting near the boat, and in a few moments we were speeding toward Canterbury.
What a lovely ride it was! The evening air had the coolness of autumn, the setting sun lighted up the beautiful green downs of Kent, which were made more picturesque by the flocks of sheep—hundreds and hundreds of sheep. We kept saying to each other: "Oh, isn't it nice to be away from the dirty Continent?" It gave me real pleasure to be again among blonde people; the guards of the train looked exceedingly clean and fair after the dark, oily, bristling Frenchemen. I actually felt that a link of sympathy connected me with Gregory of old, who exclaimed:

"Not Angles, but Angels!"

In twenty minutes we were at Canterbury on the Stour, once the most important city of England.
Guided by a boy who carried our bags we walked to the Fountain Hotel, discussing as we went the proper fee to be bestowed. In each new place the question of fees had been embarrassing to us, and we were not yet acquainted with English prices. Seeing an interested expression on the face of our gallant courier, we suddenly remembered that he understood our language. We could no longer talk to each other in the privacy of a speech unknown to the people around us. Our united purses bestowed a six pence on the youth, who took it with gratified surprise.
We learned afterward that this was a magnificent sum for such a service, and during the rest of our travels we often saw grown men doing errands for a penny, and twopence (tuppence) is a common fee.

The Fountain Hotel unites a look of comfort with a look of aged quaintness; the rooms are neat, the attendance quiet. My room had an iron bedstead painted green.
At the head of the stairs there is a large square landing, furnished something like a sitting-room, and ornamented with a large engraving of The Canterbury Pilgrims.

We asked the genial landlady how soon we could have dinner, and she said: "We 'ave a joint going now." Then we felt that we were indeed in England. The people in the dining-room were just like those you read about in English books, and I felt acquainted with them all; I had seen their pictures in the days of my childhood. The English have very flexible, agreeable voices, but they often run their words together in an indistinct fashion, which explains how easily proper names have been contracted and altered. Their rising inflections are twice as strong as ours.

After dinner we buckled on our armor and sallied forth to the Cathedral. We went along the High street and through Mercery Lane, past the site of the Inn where Chaucer's pilgrims stayed. We passed under a fine old stone arch, carved with angels, shields, crowns, and roses. The ground beyond this gate is called the "churchyard," though it seems just like a street, and you do not really come to the open green of the Cathedral till a few minutes later. All cathedrals have other buildings connected with them—libraries, priories, schools, etc.—altogether forming massive groups. In the soft, lingering twilight of that midsummer evening we walked round the green, through bushy arbors and beautiful gateways, and looked at the gray pile before us, the landmark of England's first Christian city. The present building is four centuries old, and stands on the site of the church that was given to St. Augustine. It has beautiful towers, buttresses, carvings, niches, and statues.

In the buildings which are used as a school (named, by Henry VIII., the King's School) we saw boys carrying chairs and benches. We learned that the school was closing for the long vacation, and the prizes were to be awarded that evening.
From time to time, as we walked on the green, we heard tremendous applause from an upper room of the school. We stopped at the sexton's house in the "churchyard," and learned that we could see the interior of the Cathedral at nine in the morning. There is daily service at ten, and there was to be a special service the next afternoon for the new organ was to be dedicated. Just think of a new organ in Canterbury Cathedral! G. asked whether the Archbishop of Canterbury often visited the Cathedral.

The sexton smiled at the question, and said the Archbishop had not been there for years.

If I could have chosen I would not have asked a more fitting introduction to England than this old "city of the men of Kent," with its narrow streets, little houses, and mighty Cathedral; nor can I refrain from repeating the Gregory legend, because it is inseparable from the history of the place. In the sixth century Gregory, a young priest, was walking in the marketplace of Rome, and noticed the fair skin and golden hair of some youths who were to be sold. "From what country do these slaves come?" he asked. "They are Angles (English)" the slave-dealers answered.
"Not Angles, but Angels," said Gregory, with pity and admiration.
"From what place do they come?"
"From Deira (Yorkshire)," the traders answered. "Deira!" said Gregory, turning the word into Latin speech; "aye, plucked from God's ire, and called to Christ's mercy! Who is their King?"
"Ella." The word seemed like a good omen, and Gregory triumphantly prophesied: "Alleluia shall be sung there!" Years after, when Gregory was Pope of Rome, he sent St. Augustine and a band of monks to preach the Gospel to the English people. The priestly procession entered the royal city of Canterbury, carrying a cross and chanting: "Turn from this city, O Lord, Thine anger and wrath, and turn it from Thy holy house, for we have sinned. Alleluia."

PRECISE.

A policeman was being examined as a witness against an Irishman whom he had just brought before the local court. After the officer had told his story the judge inquired,—

"What did the man say to you when you arrested him?"

"He said he was drunk."

"I want his precise words, just as he uttered them. He did not use the pronoun he, did he?"

"O, yes, he did! He said he was drunk; he acknowledged the corn!"

"You don't understand me at all. I want the words just as he uttered them. Did he say, 'I was drunk'?"

"Oh, no, your honor, he didn't say you was drunk. I wouldn't allow any man to charge that upon you in my presence."

A fledgling lawyer, occupying a seat in the court, here desired to air his powers and said,—

"Pshaw! you don't comprehend at all. His honor means, did the prisoner say to you, 'I was drunk'?"

"Waal, he might have said you was drunk, but I didn't hear him."

"What the court desires," said another lawyer, "is to have you state the prisoner's own words, preserving the precise form of pronoun he made use of in the reply. Was it in the first person, I; second person, thou or you; or in the third person, he, she, or it? Now, then, sir, did not the prisoner say, 'I was drunk'?"

"No, he didn't say you was drunk, neither. Do yer suppose the poor feller charged the whole court with being drunk?"

SIT STILL.

Let the timid women who are inclined to jump from a carriage every time the horse pricks up his ears read this story of a Westfield, Mass., girl. She was driving a spirited horse, when the headstall broke and the bit came out of his mouth. Of course he ran. The girl, perfectly powerless to restrain him, sat upright in her seat, while the frightened animal ran wildly through the streets. She never said a word, even when a daring man caught on behind and climbed into the buggy, only to find himself quite as powerless as the girl. But his added weight helped, for after a half-mile run the horse was tired enough to admit of his being caught, and the girl jumped out of the buggy, not much frightened, and not a bit hurt.—N. Y. Sun.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.

There is a society of women in New York known as the King's Daughters, which, despite its royal title, is purely democratic in organization. It was begun by ten women who felt a desire to do some organized religious work and objected to the trammels of a big, unwieldy society, so these ten met, made one president of the little band of pious princesses, and proceeded to adopt a motto, a watchword and a badge, consisting of a tiny silver Maltese cross suspended to a bit of royal purple ribbon.
Not a year has passed since then, but already the society has grown very large; not added to the original group, but organized in other branches of ten each; and the strange sight is seen sometimes of a shop, seeing the purple ribbon on the breast of the woman who serves her, extending her hand cordially and saying: "I am also a Daughter of the King."

The original ten have formed the nucleus of a general society, and are known as the Central Ten. To them perplexing matters are referred, but the organization is very elastic, and each little group carries on its own self-chosen work in its own way. One of the tens decided to visit the sick children in the hospitals, and chose that as their work. A number of them, various tens taking its turn, visit the Hahnemann Hospital and regularly assist in the institution, also bringing dolls, picture-books and toys for the little ones. One ten has undertaken to teach a class of poor working girls to sew and cook. Ten society girls with trained voices call themselves a Musical Ten, and sing in hospitals and at charitable concerts. One branch calls itself the Shut-in Ten, consisting of invalids who have been confined to the house for years; another ten devote themselves to these invalids and endeavor to bring light and joy into their lives, corresponding with them, visiting them, reading to them and teaching them all sorts of fancy work to beguile their tedious lives.
Some branches devote themselves to home and foreign missions, and there have been tens formed in boarding schools for their self-improvement. Girls prominent in society have joined themselves to the King's Daughters, finding an outlet for their surplus energies and room for whatever their special tasks dictates.—Maryland Farmer.

Why Girls Don't Marry.

A prominent woman physician of Boston has freely expressed her conviction that the great superiority in culture of so many of the young girls of to-day over that of the average men who go early into business exerts one very bad effect, namely, that these young girls do not want to marry such men. There is no doubt a great deal of truth in the statement. In fact, in other departments it has always been noticed that one of the standing ill effects of the culture, say of flowers, has been to make its votary prefer a tea rose to a head of cabbage; or of music, to prefer a harmonious orchestra to a discordant street band; or, of religion, to prefer piety to profanity. Now, there is no reason why the rule should not work equally in the case of marriage.
The maxim that "any husband is better than no husband" had once a great deal of truth in it, for the condition of the unmarried woman was in bygone days a forlorn one.
She could no more help growing sour than milk in a thunder storm.
Any and every woman with the most insignificant sprig of a husband could turn up her nose at her and embody a weight of public opinion in her contemptuous attitude that few single unfortunate could have the dignity and self-respect to stand up against. To-day, however, the scales tip the other way with a vengeance.—Maryland Farmer.

WHEN A VIRGINIA MOUNTAINEER wants a chew of tobacco this—according to one who has been there—is the way he asks for it: "Stranger, gimme a chaw yer black flat chawin' terbacker; that is, of yer do you chaw?"—Washington Critic.

SOMETHING ABOUT PNEUMONIA.

Pneumonia usually begins with a chill, intense and prolonged, generally at night, and followed by a correspondingly high fever and sharp pains in the sides. The disease is very rapid in its progress, reaching a crisis in from five to six days and sometimes causing death within three days. Usually but one lung is affected, and often the disease is confined to a single lobe. A person may have "double pneumonia," or pneumonia of both lungs, and recover from it, but the chances are against him. When the disease spreads to all of the lung lobes death is certain, as the patient cannot breathe and dies of suffocation.
The diseased lung, at first inflamed soon becomes hard and leathery, and incapable of performing its natural functions. A curious fact is that usually no second chill occurs when another lobe is attacked, and there appears to be no relation between the amount of lung affected and the intensity of the symptoms.
All physicians agree in saying that the disease is not contagious, but may be epidemic, and it has been noticed that it is developed under the same conditions as diphtheria—that is, the conditions which produce diphtheria in the young are apt to cause pneumonia among adults.
Without speculating upon these different theories, from what has been said in which all agree, it is plain that anything which lowers the vitality of the system is conducive to the disease and should be carefully avoided. Overwork, either physical or mental, has much to do with it, and this explains why so many business men and brain workers become its victims. Sudden changes of the weather and draughts of all kinds are also to be guarded against.

Where the Newspaper Goes.

Rev. Dr. Anderson, of Waterbury Conn., recently preached a sermon on Modern Journalism, in which he said: "You enter one of the simple country homes of Connecticut at some distance it may be, from any railroad station or busy manufacturing centre. It is a lonely looking place, for the children of the house have grown up and gone away and the farmer and his wife are growing old. The routines of his life are narrow, and they go through it day by day, if nothing else in the world were quite so important as that. You fancy that this elderly couple will be found still sojourning in the Middle Ages.
But look about you my friend, and you will see that once or twice a week it brings to these patrons tidings from the ends of the earth; you will find that they have more time to read it and to keep the run of affairs than you in your busy city life, and when you sit down to talk with them you will learn that they are not fossils, but well im-formed and perhaps cultivated people. The affairs of state not only but of the nation and of other nations, are familiar to them. They know some things, not only about agriculture, but about science and art, about social life in other places and countries. And so, while they linger beneath the old moss-covered roof, they are not shut in by the four walls, or by the line-fences of their farm, or by the bounds of their own town; their view embraces the great, wide world of humanity. And the window through which they look, or rather, they see it reflected, is the newspaper."

An exchange says: How inconsiderate are those who send abroad for a newspaper, and will not subscribe to one at home. They do not wish the local paper to go down, but times are so hard they can't afford to take two, at least the one they can borrow at home. If they want to publish a church, temperance or obituary notice, or a mammoth pumpkin or turnip, or large and luscious fruit, off they run to the nearest editor, and are vexed if he does not exclude something for them and have a paper in the bargain. How honest?

THE report of the Gettysburg monument commission, with a bill to carry out its recommendations, was offered in the New York Senate recently. It appropriates $50,000 for a memorial structure on the field, $135,500 for regimental monuments, $10,000 for land. It is proposed to erect eighty-seven New York monuments.

MORE OF THE EARTHQUAKE.

UNGER the murderer of Bohle was sentenced by Judge Barret in New York on Saturday last to twenty years imprisonment, the jury having found him guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. Unger showed no emotion.

WILD SORTS OF WEATHER.

THE German elections held on Monday resulted in favor of what is known as the septennate measure. To largely increase the army for a period of seven years. This result is universally believed to assure continued peace in Europe.

LOCAL ITEMS.

BLACK PILLS remove costiveness.

It is a very odd time for the troubles that are drowned in water.

The point of attraction for to-day will be the sale at Mr. D. Zeck's.

The Brown-Pickett murder trial at Hagerstown is set for March 1.

GETTING knocked down—horses, bulls, and things generally, by the auctioneers.

MR. ADOLPHUS FEARHAKES, late Clerk of the Circuit Court of this county, has declined to accept the position in the office of the Supervising Architect at Washington, tendered him recently.—Examiner.

MR. FELIX FOLLER cut his foot while hewing a log last Thursday, but fortunately not seriously enough to give him any great inconvenience. He is to be congratulated upon his narrow escape from more serious injury.

Real Estate Sale.

Messrs. Frederick J. Nelson and Charles W. Ross, Trustees, sold the farm of Mrs. Mary Ann Krise deceased, containing 994 acres of land, on Thursday to Elbridge F. Krise for $24 an acre.

Damages Against the Railroad.

In the Circuit Court for Frederick county, on the 17th inst., the jury in the case Elizabeth W. Cook vs. The Emmitsburg Railroad, gave a verdict of damages in favor of the plaintiff for injuries received, of $875.00.

A VERY pleasant surprise party was held at Mr. Joseph Byers, near this place, on Monday evening. Considering the inclemency of the weather and bad roads there was a good attendance, and the evening was very pleasantly spent in dancing.

SUFFERING will exhibit its presence by the cries of the baby; Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup will quiet it.

The procession and other exercises enlisted the attention of the citizens with great satisfaction.

INSIDIOUS death, in the form of consumption stalks through the land. Many a cough or cold if neglected will end in consumption, and the timely use of Victor Cough Syrup will cure your cough and prevent this dangerous lung disease. 119

A Good Buttr' Field.

A two-year-old Jersey heifer belonging to Mr. Joshua S. Motter, fresh on the 11th of January last, produced from the 11th to the 17th of February inclusive, 5 lbs. of marketable butter. This yield was made on a regular feed of 1 quart of bran and 1 quart of chop twice a day. Mr. M. has our thanks for some of the butter, which was delicious.

THE electrical action in the northern skies on Friday evening last made a very beautiful and interesting display. The play was apparently all along the northern horizon and seemed like the rolling and unrolling of the curtain of the heavenly dome in rapid and fitful successions. The light was white and evidently the reflection of far off storms in the north.

PERSONALS.

Rev. Dr. E. E. Higbee and wife of Lancaster accompanied by their little granddaughter Miss Lucy Mull, made a visit at Mrs. H. Motter's this week.

Mr. George W. Myers of Martinsburg, W. Va., made a visit to his mother.

Mrs. Peter Grabel of Carroll County is visiting at Mr. L. M. Motter's.

Mr. Jesse Gilbert has returned to his home near Farmersville, Ohio, accompanied by Mr. George G. Byers. The latter going on a pleasure trip for a few weeks.

Maj. O. A. Horner attended the G. A. R. Encampment in Frederick on Tuesday, accompanied by his nieces Misses Helen and Gertrude Annan.

Mr. D. C. Myers has returned to his home in Martinsburg.

Miss Delle Rowe is visiting in Smithsburg.

Mr. Winfield Bott of Seven Valley, Pa., is visiting at Mr. J. L. Hoke's.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Bosche's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.

As a preventive for malaria, chills and fever, use the celebrated Victor Liver Syrup. 119

Managers Appointed.

The newly elected officers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society have announced the following gentlemen as the Board of Managers for the ensuing year: James H. Gambrell, David C. Winebrener, A. C. McCordell, Thomas R. Jarboe, Edward Nichols, J. Oliver Holtz, D. Henry Routhahn, D. Edw. Keifer. The above gentlemen with the President, Mr. John T. Rest; Vice-President, Geo. W. Miller and Treasurer, J. James Gettling, constitute the Board.—News.

Real Estate Transfers.

Among the transfers of real estate as recorded in the Clerk's office for the week ending February 22, are the following from this district: James O. Peddicord and wife to Union Building Association of Emmitsburg, 6 acres and 29 perches land, $208. Union Building Association Emmitsburg to John M. Stouter, 6 acres and 20 perches land, $140. Frank Click to John M. Stouter, 20 acres and 2 perches land, $110. E. H. Rowe and wife to James A. Rowe, 30 acres land, $600. Joshua Rowe to James A. Rowe, 1/2 interest in several lots ground, $72. James A. Elder to Rev. E. J. Lefevre, lot in Emmitsburg, $1,900.

From the Union.

The Frederick Base Ball Association has secured another battery—Drummy and Champlain, late of the Baltimore Mutals.

The grand jury after a session of about two weeks, adjourned last Saturday, and following is their report to the Court:

To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Md.—Gentlemen—The undersigned, in behalf of the Grand Jury of the State of Maryland, for the body of Frederick county, respectfully sheweth, that they have examined, with such care as the circumstances seemed to justify all witnesses and cases that came to their attention, and have disposed of the same, either by dismissal or indictment, according to the tenor of the testimony to the best of their skill and judgment.

We have visited, as required by law, the Jail, and also Montevue Hospital. We found the Jail a model of cleanliness, neatness and comfort, and the prisoners well taken care of, the only drawback, in our judgment, being the want of proper employment for them. Montevue Hospital, under the care of Mr. George W. Stranburg and his excellent wife, seem to be all that could be asked for or required in keeping of an establishment of that kind; safety, care, attention and cleanliness being the prevailing features apparent. The work on the outside of the building, as also the metal roof and spouting, is absolutely in need of painting. On the score of public economy it certainly should be done at an early day. Having discharged our duties as best we knew, with your permission, adjourn without delay.

Respectfully submitted, J. ALFRED RITTER, Foreman.

COMMUNICATED.

A Temperance Meeting under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, organized in this place in January last, was held on Monday evening, February 21, in the Lecture Room of the Presbyterian Church. The Rev. W. Simonton, D. D., presided and conducted the devotional exercises, and made a few introductory remarks, bearing upon the subject of a Constitutional Amendment prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

The Rev. E. S. Johnston made the speech of the occasion. He emphasized the danger attending the use of hard cider, relating in telling terms, a personal interview with a lady who sadly deplored the effects of it in her own family during the present winter, and who devoutly hoped there would not be such an abundant crop of apples the coming season. She and her sister-in-law had felt constrained to let the contents of some barrels leak away, as a means of restricting the evil.

Mr. Johnston also gave an estimate of the amount spent generally in the saloons and hotels of this place, showing that it was in excess of the entire sum expended upon all the churches and schools, and including all that is given in benevolence in the entire community. And for what? No Christian man, no good citizen could say it was spent for any really useful or beneficial purpose, but on the contrary did much harm. It made the rich man poor, the sober man intemperate, the happy family miserable, and sowed the seeds of disease, vice, discord, crime, insanity and death.

The Pledge was circulated and several names, active and honorary, were added to the membership of the Society. The exercises of the evenings were interspersed with lively singing. It is believed that a good impression was made by this first public meeting of the W. C. T. U.

A Chance for Health.

Is afforded those fast sinking into a condition of hopeless debility. The means are at hand. In the form of a genial medicinal cordial, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters embodies the combined qualities of a blood purifier and depurative, a tonic and an alterative. While it promotes digestion and assimilation, and stimulates appetite, it has the further effect of purifying the life current and strengthening the nervous system. As the blood grows richer and purer by its use, the who resort to this sterling medicinal agent, acquire not only vigor, but bodily substance. A healthful change in the secretions is effected by it, and there ensues rapid physical decay, which is chronic obstruction of the system, the system produces, is arrested. The prime causes of disease being removed, health is speedily renovated and vigor restored.

A FRIEND of ours was cured of fever and ague by "Dr. Sellers' Liver Pills." Now he recommends them to all he knows. Sold by all druggists.

BLACK PILLS relieve palpitation.

Wanted.

We want a few copies of the issues of this paper of January 8 and January 29, 1887, and will pay five cents a piece for them if delivered at this office.

The Veto Sustained.

The House on Thursday refused to pass the dependent pension bill over the President's veto. The vote was 175 for and 125 against the measure; a two-thirds' vote being necessary for its passage.

List of Letters.

The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., Feb. 21, 1887. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them:

Miss M. Eller, Miss Mary Fleagle, George Gearhart, Mrs. L. C. Heathcote, Mrs. Anna Meyer, I. J. Snouffer, Charles Shaner, Miss Ida Shields, G. W. Parke, Mrs. William Wagerman.

THERE is a good law and good sense in the decision of the Massachusetts Superior Court awarding damages to a tenant for sickness contracted through the bad sanitary condition of the building he had rented. It involves a recognition of tenants' rights, which, if regularly enforced, would go a long way towards protecting public health by making it for the pecuniary interest of the landlords to look after the wholesomeness of their tenancies.

Black Pills dispel melancholy.

The weather for this week has been highly capricious, we have had snow storms, spring showers, all hedged around and made most repulsive by dampness visible, and invisible, around, above and within mortal sensibilities in the most subduing forms. We have had mildness continued but it has been as the protection of the vulture for the lamb. Fortunately hope still points to the genial influences soon, as its assurances suggest—to come.

Prosopopoeia!

For self-sufficiency that defies rhetoric, grammar and the properties of language generally, we commend the Frederick News. It let loose on Monday last in the following crushing outburst of jubilant delight.

The thrilling events of 1861-65 shake hands cordially today with the peace and smiling prosperity of 1887. The gap has been bridged.

Verily clocks have hands, but as for events, they should flap their wings.

BLACK PILLS aid digestion.

Burglars at Hagerstown.

The tax collector's office in the court-house at Hagerstown was broken into on Tuesday night. An entrance was made by prying up one of the windows in the rear of the building. The large iron safe in the room was unmoisted, and the robbers secured nothing. The office of the Union News Company was also broken into and robbed. Here the burglars were more successful, securing between $50 and $100 in cash and a lot of cigars. There is no clue as yet to the perpetrators.—Sun.

It is said the "devil knows his own." Those fields, both small and large, that have to be ever more directed to "shut the door," are universally recognized as belonging to the hopeless crew. Highly appropriate to the case, G. G. Green, of "German Syrup," "August Flower" and "Aque Conqueror" fame, has sent us a copy of his "Shut the door cards," which being nicely colored and artistically gotten up, are well adapted to enlist attention to their call of horror. Call and see it at this office—but shut the door—coming or going.

Nearly Suffocated.

Mr. Frank Englar's family, living near New Windsor, came near being suffocated by gas from a coal stove on the morning of the 11th instant. About 4 o'clock Mr. E. stirred up the fire and left the house, not noticing that gas was fast accumulating, and on his return a few hours later found his wife and two children almost unconscious. Fortunately, Mrs. E. managed to get to a window and hoist it, or the result might have been fatal. Dr. Norris was called in and rendered the assistance needed for their recovery. The sleeping apartment was heated by a Lathrop stove, and some defect in the flue or pipes allowed the gas to escape.—Banner.

The March Eclectic gives the place of honor to an extraordinary article called "The Land of Darkness," presumably by Mrs. Oliphant, though anonymous. It is a most powerful descriptive study of the place of punishment in the after-life. It is worthy of the genius of the author of "Old Lady Mary." Mr. Gladstone reviews the progress made by England in the last generation in an article suggested by Lord Tennyson's last great poem, in an optimistic strain. Andrew Lang criticizes M. Renan in a study of his later literary works. Many people will be highly interested in Stuart C. Cumberland's "A Thoughtful Man's Experiences," a discussion of a topic just now one of the nine days' wonders of the age. One of the most vigorous and searching contributions to the Irish question yet published is that by J. Parker Smith entitled "The Causes of the Union with Ireland." Helen McKeele gives us a very vigorous protest in favor of her sex and its intellectual claims in "The Lower Education of Women," and Mrs. E. Lynn Linton is represented by a clear and readable paper on "Womanhood in Old Greece." Other articles of interest are "Paganism in Old England," by J. Theodore Bent, a characteristically bright and scholarly paper by Max Muller, and an exceedingly suggestive, though somewhat pessimistic article, called "An Alexandrian Age." The entire contents of the number will, we think, be found of great attraction. Published by E. E. Peiton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per annum.

When I visited Carl Bur's place to "sample" Aladdin, by Jay Gould, with a view to driving him through the Eastern Circuit, I saw his brother CANTON trot the last half of a soggy track and face a strong breeze in 1:17, drawing a driver weighing 200 lbs. There is no doubt in my mind that he can enter the 2:30 circle. He is a majestic looking bay stallion, upwards of 16 hands high. His gait, form, carriage and disposition, coupled with his breeding, eminently qualify him for a sire of trotters and carriage horses.—E. C. WALKER (Veritas). Jan 1-6m

No. 4, folios 2 &c., one of the Land Records of Frederick County, and which mortgage has been duly assigned to me, John C. Motter, I will offer at public sale, on the below described premises situated in the 5th Election District of Frederick County, Maryland, on Monday, the 7th day of March, A. D. 1887, at 1 o'clock p. m., all the following described Real Estate, to wit: That Farm containing

182 ACRES OF LAND, more or less, situated about 3 miles South East of Emmitsburg, in Frederick County, Maryland, adjoining the lands of Isaac S. Annan, Dr. Andrew Annan, William Koonitz, and others. It is about one mile East of Motter's Station. It is improved with a LARGE STONE DWELLING HOUSE, which is comfortably arranged, also a large Stone Bank Barn, Wagon Shed, and other out buildings incident to a farm. The land is in a fine state of cultivation, and is divided up into convenient fields. There is fine water on the place and also various kinds of fruit. About 30 acres is well timbered. This place is reasonably convenient to stores and schools. Also that

TRACT OF MOUNTAIN LAND situated South of Mt. St. Mary's College in the 5th Election District of Frederick County, containing 23 1/2 ACRES OF LAND, more or less, which adjoins the lands of Mt. St. Mary's College, Felix Walter, and others, which is well timbered. Both of the above tracts of land are the same of which Jacob Munshower died seized and possessed and are the same as described in a deed to the said John M. Shoemaker, which deed is duly recorded in Liber T. G. No. 11, folios 615, one of the Land Records of Frederick County, by reference to which it will fully appear. The above real estate is sold subject to a first mortgage of about $1000, the exact amount of which will be made known on the day of sale.

Terms of sale as prescribed by the mortgage. JOHN C. MOTTER, Assignee of James A. Elder, Mortgagee. J. H. Webb, Auct. feb 12-15

Cure for Diphtheria.

Dr. A. Brondel writes, in the Bulletin General de Therapeutique of November 15, 1886, concerning the treatment of diphtheria by benzoate of sodium, and asserts that of two hundred consecutive cases he has not lost a single one. He admits the possibility of a mistaken diagnosis in some instances, but, even excluding fifty per cent. on this account, he still has one hundred cases without a death. His method is as follows: Every hour the patient takes a tablespoonful of a solution of benzoate of sodium, fifteen grains to the ounce, and at the same time one-sixth of a grain of sulphide of calcium in sirup or granule. In addition to this the throat is thoroughly sprayed every half hour with a ten per cent. solution of benzoate of sodium. This is done religiously at the regular intervals, day and night, but no other local treatment is employed. No attempt is made to dislodge the false membrane, and no penciling nor painting of the fauces is resorted to. Tonics are given and antipyretics are used when occasion calls for them. The nourishment consists of beef juice, tender rare meat, milk, etc., but bread and all other articles which may cause irritation of the throat are forbidden. The sick room is kept filled with steam from a vessel containing carbolic acid, turpentine, and oil of eucalyptus in water.

The employment of benzoate of sodium is not a new method in the treatment of diphtheria, for it has been tried and is recommended highly by Letzerich, Kien, Feregal, and others. But this, of course, speaks so much the more strongly in favor of the remedy; and as Dr. Brondel's results were better than those obtained by others using the same drug, it is to be presumed that his method of employing it is the best. Medical Record.

Impure Ice as a Cause of Disease.
The State Board of Health, having been asked by the Board of Health of Syracuse to examine into the purity of ice taken from Onondaga Lake, from the Erie Canal at Syracuse, and from Cazenovia Lake, has not only made a careful investigation into the quality of ice from those sources, but has also prepared a report on the general question of the pathogenic powers of contaminated ice. The Board comes to these conclusions: Ice farmed in impure water has caused sickness; it may contain from eight to ten per cent. of the organic matter dissolved in the water, and in addition a very large amount of the organic matter that had been merely suspended or floating in it; it may contain living animals and plants, ranging in size from visible worms down to the minutest spores, and the vitality of these organisms may be unaffected by freezing.

PATIENT—"Tell me candidly, doctor, do you think I'll pull through?" Doctor—"O, you are bound to get well; you can't help yourself; the Medical Record shows that out of 100 cases like yours 1 per cent. recovers invariably." "That's a cheerful prospect." "What more do you want? I've treated ninety-nine cases, and every one of them died. Why, man, alive! you can't die if you try; there's no humbug about statistics."—Texas Siftings.

In using student lamps never let the oil accumulate in the cup below the wick, but pour it out at least once a week. Let everything used about lamps—rags, soakers, or extra-wicks—be kept in a small box together; an empty starch box being best. Burn lamp rags every few weeks. If allowed to lie, filled with oil, spontaneous combustion often takes place, many fires having been caused in this way.

COVENTRY PATMORE told a friend of a visit which he once made to Leigh Hunt, when the poet kept him waiting for two hours, while he arranged himself, faultlessly, in an airy and becoming costume, exclaiming, as he entered, to his weary and impatient guest, "Ah! what a beautiful, happy world we live in, Mr. Putmore?"

LABOR disgraces no man: unfortunately you occasionally find men disgrace labor.—U. S. Grant.

YOU can be cured

OF RHEUMATISM by using RUSSIAN RHEUMATISM CURE.

It is not a cure-all. It cures nothing but Rheumatism, but it is a safe and sure cure for that disease. Thousands who have been cured will testify to its efficacy.

Mr. G. R. ULMER, of 121 N. 12th St., Philadelphia, wrote four months after he had been cured by the Russian Rheumatism Cure (writing to see whether it would return), saying he was bedridden with the disease, and thought he would lose his reason from the agony he had to endure; and inside of two weeks he was cured by this remedy, although he had his house physician and used other remedies without result, previous to trying this wonderful remedy.

Mr. Chas. A. Cox, American and Morris St., Philadelphia, said: "My wife was bedridden, and her condition made it impossible for me to leave her. I tried every remedy, but she was cured by the Russian Rheumatism Cure cured her in one week."

1837. THE SUN. 1887. A. S. ABELL & CO., PUBLISHERS, BALTIMORE. THE PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE. On the 17th of May, 1887, THE BALTIMORE SUN will celebrate its Fiftieth Anniversary. From the earliest period of its career THE SUN has been a "household word" in the homes of its subscribers, and a synonym for accuracy of statement, fair dealing, promptness, energy and enterprise in the collection of news. It is noted throughout the country for the independence, conservatism and thoroughness of its editorial utterances. There is probably no newspaper in the United States whose opinion carries more weight or whose influence is more widely extended than THE SUN's, a fact upon which it may justly pride itself as the legitimate result of painstaking care in the preparation of all matter admitted to its columns. THE SUN's facilities for collecting news from all quarters of the globe are being constantly extended and improved, and new features are added without regard to expense as the occasion demands.

READ THIS TWICE. In addition to our premiums of music and "Mikado" cards, we have just issued a beautiful panel picture, in colors, 14x23, a facsimile reproduction of one of the Paris salon painting for 1884, entitled "Two Sisters." It is a perfect gem, and well worthy a place on the wall of any of the patrons of Dobbin's Electric Soap. We have copyrighted it, and it cannot be issued by any other house than ourselves. The edition is limited, and will be issued gratis to readers of this paper in the following manner only:

Save your wrappers of DOBBIN'S ELECTRIC SOAP as soon as you get twenty-five mail them to us, with your full address, and we will mail you "The Two Sisters" mounted ready for hanging, free of all expense. The soap improves with age, and those who desire a copy of the picture at once, have only to buy the twenty-five bars of their grocer to do so. This will insure the receipt of the wrappers by us before the edition is exhausted. There is, of course, no advertising on the picture.
