NOT TO MYSELF ALONE.

We find the following floating as a wait upon the vast ocean of literature, without credit—but its rare excellence demands for it a permanent place in our weekly sheet.

Not to myself alone.

The little opening flower transported cries: "Not to myself alone I bud and bloom; With fragrant breath the breezes I perfume, And gladden all things with my rainbow dyes: The bee comes sipping, every eventide, His dainty fill: The butterfly within my cup doth hide From threating ill."

"Not to myself alone,"

The circling star with honest pride doth boast: "Not to myself alone I rise and set; I write upon the night's coronet of jet His power and skill who formed our myriad host; A friendly beacon at heaven's open gate, I gem the sky, That man might ne'er forget, in every fate, His hope on high."

"Not to myself alone,"

The heavy laden bee doth murmuring hum; "Not to myself alone from flower to flower I roam the wood, the garden, and the bowyer, And to the hive at evening weary come; For man, for man, the luscious food I pile, With busy care, Content if he repay my cheerless toil With scanty share."

"Not to myself alone,"

The soaring bird with lusty pinion sings; "Not to myself alone I raise my song—I cheer the drooping with my warbling tongue, And bear the mourner on my viewless wings— I bid the hymnless church my anthem learn, And God adore— I call the worldling from his dross to turn, And sing and soar."

"Not to myself alone,"

The streamlet whispers on its pebbly way— "Not to myself alone I sparkling glide I scatter health and life on every side, And strew the fields with herb and dew, and flow'ret gay; Ising unto the common folk and bare My gladsome tune; I sweeten and refresh the languid air In doughty June."

"Not to myself alone,"

O, man! I forget not thou—earth's honored priest, Its tongue, its life, its pulse, its heart— In earth's great chorus to sustain thy part! Chiefest of guests at love's ungrudging feast, Play not the niggard, spurn thy native elod, And self disown— Live to thy neighbor, live unto thy God— Not to myself alone!

A PIECE OF RED CALICO.

BY FRANK R. STOCKTON.

I was going into town the other morning, when my wife handed me a little piece of red calico, and asked me if I would have time during the day to buy her two yards and a half of calico like that. I assured her that it would be no trouble at all; and putting the piece of calico in my pocket, I took the train for the city.

At lunch time I stopped in at a large dry goods store to attend to my wife's commission. I saw a well-dressed man walking the floor between the counters, where long lines of girls were waiting on much longer lines of customers, and asked him where I could see some red calico.

"This way, sir," he led me up the store. "Miss Stone," said he to a young lady, "show this gentleman some red calico."

"What shade do you want?" asked Miss Stone.

I showed her the little piece of calico that my wife had given me. She looked at it and handed it back to me. Then she took down a great roll of red calico and spread it out on the counter.

"Why, that isn't the shade!" said I.

"No, not exactly," said she; "but it is prettier than your sample."

"That may be," said I; "but you see I want to match this piece. There is something already made of this kind of calico, which needs to be made larger, or mended, or something. I want some calico of the same shade."

The girl made no answer, but took down another roll.

"That's the shade," said she.

"Yes," I replied, "but it's striped."

"Stripes are more worn than anything else in calicoes," said she.

"Yes; but this isn't to be worn. It's for furniture, I think. At any rate, I want perfectly plain stuff to match something already in use."

"Well, I don't think you can find it perfectly plain unless you get Turkey-red."

"What is Turkey-red?" I asked.

"Turkey-red is perfectly plain in calicoes," she answered.

"Well, let me see some."

"We haven't any Turkey-red calico left," she said; "but we have some very nice plain calicoes in other colors."

"I don't want any color. I want stuff to match this."

"It's hard to match cheap calico like that," she said; and so I left her.

I next went into a store a few doors farther up Broadway. When I entered I approached the "floor-walker," and, handing him my sample, said:

"Have you any calico like this?"

"Yes, sir," said he. "Third counter to the right."

I went to the third counter to the right, and showed my sample to the salesman in attendance there. He looked at it on both sides. Then he said:

"We haven't any of this."

"That gentleman said you had," said I.

"We had it, but we're out of it now. You'll get that goods at an upholsterer's."

I went across the street to an upholsterer's.

"Have you any stuff like this," I asked.

"No," said the salesman, "we haven't. It is for furniture?"

"Yes," I replied.

"Then Turkey-red is what you want."

"Is Turkey-red just like this?" I asked.

"No," said he, "but it's much better."

"That makes no difference to me," I replied. "I want something just like this."

"But they don't use that for furniture," he said.

"I should think people could use anything they wanted for furniture," I remarked, somewhat sharply.

"They can, but they don't," he said, quite calmly. "They don't use red like that. They use Turkey-red."

I said no more, but left. The next place I visited was a very large dry goods store. Of the first salesman I saw I inquired if they kept red calico like my sample.

"You find that on the second story," said he. I went up-stairs. There I asked a man:

"Where will I find red calico?"

"In the far room to the left. Right over there." And he pointed to a distant corner.

I walked through the crowds of purchasers and salespeople, and around the counters and tables filled with goods, to the far room to the left. When I got there I asked for red calico.

"The second counter down on this side," said the man.

I went there and produced my sample.

"Calicoes down-stairs," said the man.

"They told me they were up here," I said.

"Not these plain goods. You'll find 'em down-stairs at the back of the store, over on that side."

I went down-stairs to the back of the store.

"Where'll I find red calico like this?" I asked.

"Next counter but one," said the man addressed, walking with me in the direction pointed out.

"Dunn, show red calicoes."

Mr. Dunn took my sample and looked at it.

"We haven't this shade in that quality of goods?" he said.

"Well, have you it in any quality of goods?" I asked.

"Yes; we've got it finer." And he took down a piece of calico, and unrolled a yard or two of it on the counter.

"That's not the shade," I said.

"No," said he. "The goods is finer and the color's better."

"I want it to match this," I said.

"I thought you weren't particular about the match," said the salesman. "You said you didn't care for the quality of the goods, and you know you can't match goods without taking into consideration quality and color both. If you want that quality of goods in red, you ought to get Turkey-red."

I did not think it necessary to answer this remark, but said:

"Then you've got nothing to match this?"

"No, sir. But perhaps they may have it in the upholstery department, in the sixth story."

So I got on the elevator and went up to the top of the house

THE COMMENCEMENTS.

The commencements occur now at the very time of the year, when they afford the highest satisfaction to all who have part in them, and thus also afford the period of recreation when it can be best enjoyed.

The term is often misapplied, sometimes being used as descriptive of the closing scenes of all schools at the end of the year; when correctly used it can apply only to such scholastic institutions as are incorporated and authorized to confer literary degrees.

Commencement day is a most important time in the life's journey of those who have secured the advantages of education, it signalizes the completion of prescribed courses under the restraints of governing forces whose authority may not be disputed, and fixes the starting point of entrance upon real life, for which the past has been but preparatory, hitherto the efforts have been to draw out (educate) or unfold the natural capacities of the learner in manifold directions; supplying suggestions, and eliciting the possibilities that are to be cultivated and extended in the time to come.

These are the best institutions of learning, that afford the most thorough training in such branches of study as give the completest discipline to the mental faculties, fitting them to pursue the special lines of future activity that aptitude or inclination may suggest; the institutions have their fixed courses, relating to contemplated results, which they bend every energy to meet, they govern with a sort of parental authority, and judge therein for the best interests of those they teach; they seek to promote scholarship and are not influenced by the utilitarian ideas that simply regard material property as the great end of life.

On Sunday last, there was a big fire in Chicago, five acres of buildings were swept away and with them millions of pounds of pork and lard. Armour & Co., lost 17,000 barrels of mess pork. Six hundred live hogs were roasted in the packing establishments. The total loss was estimated at $1,250,000.

THE SOLDIERS' REBUKE.

The annual reunion of the Army of the Potomac was held this week at Saratoga, and the gallant veterans of one of the most heroic armies that ever entered battle, gave a stinging rebuke to the blatant political demagogues who are ever struggling to involve the Grand Army of the Republic in the mire of partisan politics.

There were a few soldiers of the Fairchild, Tuttle and Foraker type at the reunion of the Army of the Potomac, and they in turn offered resolutions censuring the proposed return of the battle flags, but the soldiers who did the fighting when fighting was to be done in the flame of battle, consigned all such resolutions to the table, and thereby stamped their seal of condemnation upon all agitators for the renewal of sectional strife.

But the Army of the Potomac was not content to express its condemnation of the party demagogues who are struggling to dishonor the heroes of war after more than a score of years of peace. In order to put at rest at once and forever the issue of sectional hate that is yet agitated by fools and knaves, the survivors of the Army of the Potomac unanimously resolved to hold their next annual reunion at Gettysburg on the 1st, 2d and 3d of July, 1888, and extended a cordial invitation to the survivors of the Army of Northern Virginia to meet with them as their guests.

The gallant Philadelphia Brigade that withstood the chief shock of Pickett's desperate charge on Cemetery Hill, set the patriotic example this year by inviting the survivors of Pickett's Division to meet them as guests on the coming 3d of July, the twenty-fourth anniversary of that bloody conflict; and now the Army of the Potomac at once nationalizes the reunion of the veterans of the blue and the gray, to pacify the tongues of demagogic babblers.

Henceforth the soldiers of the two great armies will do their own work in their own way to banish the last vestige of sectional hate, and they will exchange their trophies of victory without heeding the jarring howls of the disturbers who would make discord eternal. They obey the last order of their Great Captain—"Let us have peace!" Phila. Times, June 25.

IMMENSE LOSS OF PORK, &C. On Sunday last, there was a big fire in Chicago, five acres of buildings were swept away and with them millions of pounds of pork and lard. Armour & Co., lost 17,000 barrels of mess pork.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, PENNSYLVANIA COLLEGE, GETTYSBURG, PA., JUNE 28th, 1887.

EDITOR OF THE EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE. My Dear Sir:—Having been requested to make a chemical analysis of the Emmitsburg Water, and knowing your interest in the matter of the water supply of your town, and that your paper was an important factor in the introduction of the "Mountain Water;" I take pleasure in submitting, through your columns, the following report of the analysis, to the Emmitsburg Water Company and its patrons.

Before proceeding with the details of the work, allow me to say a few words as to the methods employed; and I would take this opportunity to make my acknowledgments, to Mr. Franklin Menges, B. S., for his assistance in the actual work of the analysis; to Prof. E. S. Breidenbach, for his kindly supervision thereof; and to Mr. Paul Motter for his kindness in collecting the samples of water for the analysis.

In order to attain the greatest accuracy of results, and to eliminate, as far as possible, all elements of "personal error," Mr. Menges, carried out a parallel analysis. The samples of water were collected in bottles, sent from this laboratory, which had been previously carefully cleaned with acids and distilled water. After the bottles had been thoroughly rinsed out with the water they were nearly filled and the glass stoppers were secured by coverings of clean linen cloth, firmly tied and finally sealed.

The method of analysis followed was that of Wanklyn, consisting of the determination of the Total Solid Residue, Chlorine, Organic Matter, Free and Albuminoid Ammonia, Water Residue and Degree of Hardness. The determination of the Organic Matter can, at best, be only an approximation, the method here used is accorded by the best authorities to be the simplest and most accurate. The original source of the organic matter in water is from the remains of animal and vegetable life, these products decomposing, under certain given conditions, evolve the gas ammonia. In the process of an analysis this ammonia is determined quantitatively by certain appropriate reagents; thus giving an approximate measure of the organic matter held in solution or suspension by the water under examination.

Finding at the outset of the analysis that the Total Solid Residue was very small; it was decided to double the amount of water usually taken for the determination of the Water-Residue, thus insuring greater accuracy both in its qualitative and quantitative estimation. All of the evaporations were carried on under closed hoods, in order to prevent violation of the results by access of any extraneous matter, the determinations were made with freshly prepared standard solutions and the greatest precautions were observed in every detail of the work.

In the limited time at my command and with the comparatively small amount of water at hand, the analysis has been made as full and complete as possible. At some future time and under other circumstances I should like to make a more exhaustive analysis. For instance, the determination of Carbon Dioxide (carbonic acid gas), is omitted entirely, because it would have to be made, properly, at the springs, from which the water comes. The Iron and Aluminium Oxides, and the Oxides of Sodium and Potassium have been determined together; the process of separating the Iron from the Aluminium, and the Sodium from the Potassium, and the separate determination of each is quite a long one and had to be omitted solely from want of time. The unusual purity of the water added greatly to the difficulty of its analysis; the whole process is a tedious one, and it can readily be seen that, with such small quantities to work upon progress was, at best, slow and difficult, but, we claim, none the less sure. The chemical qualities of water are profoundly influenced by the character of the geological formations from which the water is derived. Rocks and soils which impart to water salts other than those of potash and soda render it more or less hard. The softness of this water and the absence of any large solid residue are clearly indicative of the fact that it has passed through strata of very insoluble rock and soil. The formation from which this water is derived is principally Granitic rock, which is of Igneous or Metamorphic origin; formations which, as a rule yield soft water. By "degree of hardness" is meant, the relative volume of standard soap solution destroyed by a gallon of water in producing a permanent lather. By "Albuminoid Matter" is understood, the nitrogenous constituents of the water, which nearly approach, in character, the nitrogenous constituents of the organized tissue of plants and animals in a more or less advanced stage of decay; this albuminoid matter is determined as ammonia.

The Free Ammonia of the analysis represents the final products of the decomposition of albuminoid matter, which has occurred in the water. The low proportion of Chlorine, the absence of Free Ammonia, and the small amount of Albuminoid Ammonia found in this water, are especial indices of its unusual purity.

The following are the determinations: Organic Matter—None. Free Ammonia—None. Albuminoid Ammonia—None. Hardness, (in parts per million) .65. Chlorine, (grains per gallon) .23. Total Solid Residue, 2.20. Water Residue—Oxide of Silica, .3095. " Aluminium, .1245. " containing a trace of Iron, .1745. Oxide of Calcium, .2840. Oxide of Magnesium, .0290. Oxides of Sodium and Potassium, (determined in combination), .2570. In conclusion, I might sum up as follows: First—That the water is almost absolutely free from organic impurity; the small amount of albuminoid matter found is in all probability of vegetable origin.

Second—That from its softness it is of unusual excellence for domestic and manufacturing purposes. The washing of linen can only be performed with soft water. In personal ablution, also, the use of soft water is much more pleasant and efficient. In cooking, the extraction of the soluble parts of such materials as are submitted to boiling, or to digestion at a high temperature, is more completely and economically effected by soft than by hard water.

In manufacturing operations involving the use of water, soft water is, almost without exception, preferable to hard.

Dangerous incrustations in steam boilers are prevented by the use of soft water. Last—But by no means least; it is gratifying to the citizens of Emmitsburg to be congratulated on the possession of an almost unlimited supply of water of exceptional purity and softness, and for many reasons, hygienic, economic and aesthetic, it would be well if the whole community would use it to the exclusion of all other.

I have had occasion, recently, to analyze a well water which was as foul as this is pure; on examination I found an enormous quantity of Ammonia, both Free and Albuminoid, and Chlorine; this water was beyond doubt the cause of sickness in a family in which it was used; four members of the family being taken sick suddenly and in much the same way; the source of contamination was a privy vault near by.

Of the different varieties of potable water, the best for dietic purposes is spring water—such as the Emmitsburg water. It contains the smallest proportion of organic matter, and is almost always bright, sparkling, palatable and wholesome; while its uniformity of temperature throughout the year, renders it cool and refreshing in summer and prevents it from freezing readily in winter. Such water is of inestimable value to communities, and its conservation and utilization is worthy of the greatest efforts of those who have the public health under their charge.

MURRAY GALT MOTTER.

BLACK PILLS relieve palpitation. It is announced that Ovid's tomb has been discovered. The location is at Anadolkiol, near Kustendani. The stone marking the tomb represents Ovid's arrival at the Island of Tomi, when he was banished thither by Augustus, A. D. 8, on account of the poet's intrigue with the Emperor's daughter Julia, and Apollo's reception of him. Ovid's isle is a few miles from Kustendani.

THE Macon (Ga.) Volunteers, at a recent meeting, decided to erect a monument in that city to the late Sidney Lanier, the poet. The site chosen for the shaft is the triangle at the intersection of First street and Cotton avenue, directly in front of the armory. Mr. Lanier was a member of the volunteers, and campaigned with them among the hills of Virginia, where, it is believed, he laid the foundation for the malady to which at last he fell a victim.

HAGERMAN TUNNEL, near Leadville, on the Midland road, is completed. It is 2,000 feet in length, and in order to have it finished within the specified time three shifts of men have been at work operating at either end. The record of its construction has been unparalleled in tunnel-building. All kinds of improved machinery was applied and the boring and blasting were prosecuted with vigor, so much so that in July, as specified, trains will be running daily from Colorado Springs to Leadville and return.

Aside from its being a triumph of engineering the completion of the work is an achievement for the tenacity and pluck of the corporation. The machinery referred to was dragged through the snows of a diaphanous trackless wilderness. But all obstructions were eventually overcome and the machinery was put in operation. Through the snows of last winter as many men as could possibly work in so contracted a space were kept going night and day. Nothing impeded them, and as the days went by the intervening rock grew narrower at either end until finally the faint echoing of the rapidly contracting machinery was borne to the ears of the men in the heart of the mountain. When it became apparent that the rock had narrowed to a comparative veil the respective gangs prepared for an ovation and worked with stronger will.

When the drill finally pressed through the rock the fact was the signal for cheering, and as the men of the gangs met in cordial hand-clasp in the very centre of that living mass of rock each congratulated the other upon the speedy termination of the work.

COMMENCEMENT At Mount St. Mary's College.

The (79th) Annual Commencement of Mt. St. Mary's College took place on Wednesday. As early as Monday evening, former graduates began to arrive, enlivening the College with their hearty laughter. Most Rev. Archbishop Elder of Cincinnati, arrived, accompanied by his brother, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation. About eight o'clock in the evening his carriage was perceived approaching the gate. Immediately the College Band struck up a lively melody, and the students filled the air with shouts. The Archbishop, in a pleasant speech, thanked the boys for their cheerful music, and cheered, vo. es.

Tuesday evening the contest for the Elocution Medal, given by Rev. Dr. Terry, of Albany, took place. There were three contestants, who had been previously selected from among the best speakers of the College. After appropriate music, the first speaker, W. J. Hutchinson, of Oconomowoc, Wis., ascended the platform and spoke "Mona's Waters" very creditably. He was followed by F. J. Sullivan, of New York, who rendered "Robert of Sicily." His gestures were very graceful; Edward D. Reilly, of Lancaster, Pa., then spoke "Kentucky Belle" in a becoming manner. The next speaker was J. L. Morrissey, of Little Falls, N. Y., who rendered "The Monster Diamond." He has a powerful voice, deep and distinct. Edward Duffy, of Rochester, N. Y., then followed with "The Death of the Old Squire." His voice is clear and ringing, and his gestures graceful. The last speaker was M. E. Reagan, who received the medal. He selected the piece, "The Black Horse and his Rider," and spoke it in a powerful manner. His voice is deep and strong, and his enunciation very distinct. He vividly described the exploits of the unknown horse and his rider in the thickest of battle. In the most exciting parts, where it was necessary to speak very fast; every word could be understood. This ended a contest, which reflected great credit on the contestants.

Wednesday, Commencement Day, dawned fair and bright. Visitors were constantly arriving, and at nine o'clock the commencement hall was well filled. The exercises were opened with a selection by the College Band, which was followed by the College orchestra and choir. George L. Ott, Wilmington, Del., then spoke on the "Primitive Man." The Mountain Glee Club then sang the "Three Chafers," which was followed by Prof. Kochenbach, on the "True Man." He was followed by the College choir, and Prof. Kochenbach, on the violin. Patrick J. Brady, Johnstown, Pa., then spoke on the "Modern Student." He was followed by the Glee Club, College choir, and Andrew Echeverria, of N. Y., on the violin. Bernard A. Cullen, of Spruce Creek, Pa., then spoke on "Oratory." The Glee Club then sang a very amusing piece, entitled, "Menn." After a selection by the band, the crowd dispersed for lunch. The first exercise after lunch was a "March" by the band. The degree of A. B., was then conferred on the four graduates, and the degree of A. M., on a number of others. George L. Ott then stepped forward, and addressed the Archbishop, congratulating him on the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation.

Most Rev. Archbishop.—With feelings of pride and affection, we welcome you to-day, and extend to you most heartfelt congratulations on the half-century that has elapsed since you went forth into the world, crowned with the brightest honors of our Alma Mater.

But, however hearty our congratulations, we cannot but feel how much more fitting these words would be spoken by those who first sowed in your young heart, the seed which has yielded such a golden harvest. But they have been called to their reward, and we, therefore, here respectfully pay our tribute to the one in whom they lived, their Learning, Wisdom and Virtue.

To-day, then, with pardonable pride, we mountaineers look up to you as one who has exemplified in his past life, the noblest, the pious, zealous Priest, the noble, yet fearless Bishop.

Whether we consider your life as a Seminarian at the Mountain, or in the Eternal City; or regard your subsequent labors here in leading young levites into the paths of knowledge and piety; we still perceive in you that disinterested charity, that spirit of self-sacrifice, which characterized the founders of our Institution, and marked you out as one, who was destined to do noble work in the cause of education and religion.

As professor your success was acknowledged. But you were not permitted to enjoy this congenial life of retirement and study; for the light of your brilliant talents and good works, had spread abroad, and excited the admiration of those who then governed the Church in this Country.

Our College had already given to the American Hierarchy many illustrious members, and when, in 1857, the See of Natchez was vacant, your name was one of the first called for, and you were most providentially selected to watch over that portion of the Lord's Vineyard.

There you displayed such unflinching zeal, such untiring energy, in the service of our Heavenly Master, that schools and churches sprang up everywhere. "The poor had the Gospel preached to them," and religion flourished in every corner of your diocese. You were ever at the post of duty, and the more meritorious, who is always ready to flee at the sight of danger, you were prepared to sacrifice life itself for those entrusted to your charge.

Not with all his honors, not pestilence with all its miseries could you cause you to forget that you were a follower of Him who taught, "He that shall lose his life for me, shall find it."

Such conduct won for you the esteem of all, and made you doubly dear to your own flock. But other scenes of greater activity, and trial awaited you, and the Holy Father, recognizing your eminent ability, appointed you coadjutor to the late lamented Archbishop of Cincinnati. Yes! when Archbishop Purcell, that other illustrious Mountaineer, the "Patriarch of the West" was sinking, crushed beneath the weight of his grievous misfortunes, you courageously took up his cross, and helped console the last days of his life, who first taught your youthful mind the varied beauties of Science and Virtue.

PERMIT us then, in the name of all our Alumni, to thank you for the kindly services rendered to him, who placed this College among the chartered institutions of our land; and to express our joy, that the mantle of the Master has fallen on the dutiful and grateful Disciple. But, what above all, endears you to Mountaineers, is the filial interest you have ever manifested in the welfare of your Alma Mater.

In the hour of her darkest need, when even her truest friends despaired, your wise counsel and generous heart, inspired all with fresh courage, and gave renewed assurance, that our beloved College should not go down, but should still continue her glorious course, and repeat the history of the past, in the splendor of her future.

As a slight token of our gratitude, and as a memento of this happy occasion, we beg you to accept this address and accompanying testimonial; while we will ever pray that you may continue for many years to be the honor of the Episcopate, the glory of our College, and that when the Prince of Pastors shall come, you may receive a never-fading crown of glory.

At the conclusion of the address Archbishop Elder rose, and with much emotion, expressed his thanks and grateful appreciation for the testimony and tribute paid him. "I thank you," said he, "because anything to remind me of the mountain will be ever dear to my heart. I am always made happy by having my name identified with this spot." He then referred at length to the occasion he was celebrating—the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation. Of the five who composed the class of which he was a member, two others besides himself are still living—Hon. Carroll Spence of Baltimore, and Hon. Outbridge Horsey, of Frederick county. To both of these gentlemen the Archbishop paid a happy tribute. Continuing, he spoke of the college as it was fifty years ago and as it is today. He narrated numerous interesting reminiscences of his early life, and dwelt on the great work accomplished by many of his children. In concluding he tendered some good advice to the graduates.

DISTRIBUTION At St. Euphemia's School.

The distribution at St. Euphemia's School, the Parochial School of St. Joseph's (Catholic) Church of this village, took place in the Hall of the School on Thursday. The school is conducted by several of the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph's House. The Hall was tastefully decorated with natural and potted flowers and evergreens and with the brightness and balminess of the day, the occasion was one of much enjoyment. The room was comfortably filled with the scholars and their parents, and invited guests. We note the presence of Mr. J. A. Elder, Dr. John B. Brainerd, Messrs. F. A. Adelsberger, John Hopp, Jacob L. Hoke, J. M. Kerrigan, N. Baker. Rev. H. F. White, (Pastor) presided. The programme was quite elaborate and presented musical performances, recitations, dialogues, &c.

The salutary was delivered by Master B. Elder, who acquitted himself very commendably. With the rendering of the Entrance March by Misses Marion Elder, Mgt. Tyson and Eleanor Gehr the pupils filed into the room and took their seats. The music was very excellent and showed the thorough training in that department. Many of the children being scarcely five years old their proficiency was remarkable in the several parts they played. A very interesting performance was given, with a juvenile chorus that elicited much applause, it was called "See Saw" in which a board balanced on a tressle was mounted by little girls at each end, with a boy standing in the middle, to its movements in rhythmic accompaniment the children sang, marching, and running around the "See Saw" and so on as they sang.

"The Three Sailor Boys," a trio was admirably rendered by Master J. Adelsberger, E. Moore and W. Tyson. Most Rev. Archbishop Elder entered the Hall at this stage of the performance, when the entire audience arose. Having been seated, the Calisthenic exercises were gone through, they consisted of the greatest variety of manipulations with wooden dumb-bells, accompanied with singing throughout, and were accomplished without mistake, that we could discern, and there were marchings and counter-marchings in time with the music. "The Little Rebels" was an entertaining performance; about twenty boys were tricked out in triangular paper-hats with fanciful ornaments of many colored paper flags, and thus marched to the music of the cornet and drum. "That dreadful Boy," was recited by Master F. Hoke, in a manner that called forth considerable applause. "The Charade" was perhaps the great figure of the exercises; nine little girls representing birds and each of them rendered their parts in song and mimicry, &c.; there were two scenes of the charade, in which the nightingale, lark, blue bird, robin, wrens and other birds and faries made the jolliest demonstrations. "The American Flag," recitation by Master Jno. Adelsberger (lines by a Catholic Priest) was executed very creditably, and was followed by the presentation of a large bouquet. Little Guy Hopp aged 4 years next played a cornet accompaniment to the Piano and at its close was presented with a miniature barrel and highly applauded. The awarding of the Premiums followed next; books, pictures, nicely painted, lithographed cards, medals, &c., were distributed, among which we can but note as follows:

Girls Department.—In the Second Class Premiums were awarded to Misses Marguerite Tyson, Bernadette Fuller, Mary McGrath, Etna Galt, Stella Adams, Grace Metzger, Alice Grider, Catherine Hann, Emma Shorb, Eleanor Gehr, Adelaide Plautt and Mary Agnes Bowers. A Gold Medal was awarded to Miss Edna Hopp for proficiency in Sacred Music; and Gold Medals to Misses Emma Grider, Emma Shorb and Alice Grider, and Silver Medals to Misses Eleanor Gehr and Catherine Hann.

The following little girls were rewarded for reciting five chapters of their catechism perfectly:—Misses Anna Stout, Alice Baker, Gertrude Galt, Elizabeth Sweeney, Alice Grider, Mary Agnes Lawrence, May Kerrigan, Dora Sweeney, Stella Adams, Genevieve Tyson and Mary Gertrude Florence.

Edgar Moore received a special premium for geography, history, reading and improvement in arithmetic.

Second Division of Fourth Class—Robert Baker, Charles Sweeney, James Flower, Fred, Rider, Erastus Slate, Henry Byrne, Robert Kretz, John Adams, Hiram Lawrence, George Sanders and Charles Wagner.

Sixth Class—Romans Grider, Joseph Ham, James Kerrigan, John Seabarger, Charles Long, Edward Berger, John Bell, John Adams, Lawrence Stotter, John Slate, Henry Reitzinger, Felix Ginter, George Slate, James McGrath, Clara Elder, Howard Miller and Joseph McNulty.

Being the best little boys in St. Euphemia's School—Joseph Slagle, Guy Hopp, James Elder and Bernard Slate.

Archbishop Elder made a short address in which he contrasted the present with the past. The great improvement of our times, and said he perceived in the dear old village of Emmitsburg its evidences. He reviewed the absence of former friends, noted the Telegraph, &c., and the progress made within the past few years, and commended the substitution of the Grand Fountain on the square for the old Town Pump, that had so many pleasing associations of boyhood. Altogether the entire entertainment may be summed up as a beautiful representation of the laborious work of the year in which Fr. White, and the good Sisters may felicitate themselves, as having achieved great success, and the patrons of the school as being privileged to enjoy the benefits in a form accorded to but few places.

The distribution at St. Joseph's Color school was held on Thursday afternoon.

Riding on a Bull's Horns. Mr. J. Thomas Erb, a butcher, residing in Westminster, met with an accident on Thursday last, while driving a bull along the road from Mr. Jacob Essig's. He thought the animal was nearly exhausted, and approached it, when it attacked him and carried him some distance on its horns. As soon as he got away from it, he climbed a tree on the opposite side of the fence. He was considerably bruised about the hips and feels very sore, but was not otherwise injured.—Sun.

Frederick Harris, colored, was hurled from the platform of the rear car and rolled some distance down the mountain. The train was stopped, but after a diligent search the missing passenger was not found. A later train, however, managed to find him, and he was taken to his home, at Hagerstown badly injured. Besides having a leg broken, he was considerably bruised about the head and body, and is supposed to have received internal injuries.—American.

Dr. Diehl Granted a Long Vacation. We understand that at a special meeting of the Council of the Lutheran Church, on Tuesday evening, a resolution was unanimously passed granting to Dr. Diehl, the pastor, (in view of the affliction he is suffering) a vacation of six months, from July 1st until January 1st, 1888, on full salary, the pulpit in the meantime to be supplied by the Council. We consider this a graceful act, but one fully deserved, by reason of the able and faithful services rendered to the church by this highly esteemed gentleman, for a period of more than 35 years.—Frederick Citizen.

There is a movement on foot to secure the attendance of the young ministers of the Reformed church at Merceburg college during the early portion of August. It is the plan of those fostering this movement to have the ministers remain there one week from Tuesday, Aug. 2, and during this time to devote themselves to study. Some of the most important points in the church doctrines will form the subjects of addresses by the older ministers of the denomination. The ministers who have agreed to take part in the meeting believe it will be productive of much benefit to all.—Examiner.

Their families have the sympathy of many friends in their double affliction.

Enjoy Life. What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it.

An Old Western Maryland Family.

A recent article in the Citizen stated that the town of Frederick (now Frederick city) was laid out in 1745, three years before the county was organized, and is therefore, one hundred and forty-two years old. In 1735, the Schleys, with several families from Switzerland, France and Germany, settled on the beautifully sunny and flowery banks of the Monocacy. Thos. Schley erected the first house in Frederick, on the corner of what is now known as Neidhart's alley and Patrick street, on precisely the site where Mr. Neidhart's house now stands. He soon erected eight other houses, and the first white child being born in Frederick was his daughter, to whom he gave the significant name Eve. Thomas Schley was the great-grandfather of Dr. Fairfax Schley. From the Frederick branch of the family also descended Frederick A. Schley, father of the Col. James M. Schley, of Cumberland, and Col. Geo. and Buchanan Schley, of Hagerstown. Another branch of the family went South and settled in Georgia, where they became citizens of prominence. Schley county, Ga., being named from one of their number. Judge Schley, of New York, was also a descendant of this branch.

We Got Frightened. Last week we received certain propositions for some advertising for the "Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company," Arizona, office in New York City. We were offered two shares of the stock for one insertion each of five articles, the par value of the stock being $2 per share. Capital $1,000,000. The Company is so respectable in its make-up, and its prospects are so bright, admitting never a doubt of large returns on small investments; that the reading of the circular, set us a thinking, and the more we thought, the more glowing the rich harvests of gain appeared to grow, when all of a sudden the suggestion arose—"something in this; what if we should awake some morning to find ourself a millionaire?" On the idea of joining the glittering throng; the conception startled us, and the cold chills ran down our spinal column, and it grew upon us that to attain such prosperity, would be, for us, the end of sub-lunary action; that all the wealth could do in our name, would be the rise of a monumental pile over our tomb, if the heirs did not object, and in perhaps a thousand years, more or less, the pile would crumble into dust—such is earthly glory!

We are not easily diverted from the even tenor of our ways, but were thoroughly frightened at these conditions of the case, and to recover our equanimity began to call loudly to our equanimity for proof, for which we have acquired some affinity, it gives forth the bearings of the issues to come. It is out of the nature of things that we could find time to bother over great prosperity. The Tortilitas Mines soon became hillocks to our view, and at last vanished into the lengthening shadows of night. We were free, and avail ourself of the happy condition to say—subscriptions promptly paid at this office, availed for our needs, vastly more, than those over which hope casts its illusive shadows, and every payment in advance yields the subscriber a discount of 3 1/2 per cent., and postage free!

The Gettysburg Reunion. Fraternal Fellowship of the Blue and Gray on Pennsylvania's Historic Field.

The Philadelphia Times of Saturday says: The arrangements for the reunion of the "Blue and Gray," the Philadelphia Brigade and Pickett's Division, at Gettysburg, have nearly been completed. The main body of Pickett's Division will leave Richmond July 2, reaching Gettysburg the same evening. The Philadelphia Brigade will leave Broad and Filbert at 12 o'clock noon. It will meet at 10 o'clock at Eleventh and Chestnut, march down Chestnut to Fifth, then reviewed by Mayor Filtter, and his Cabinet, George W. Childs, Thomas Dolan, Hamilton Disston and a few other warm friends of the brigade, thence up Fifth to Market, thence to railway station, the Hibernia Rifles, 100 strong, acting as an escort. The brigade will reach Gettysburg at 5:30 p. m.

Pickett's men will be escorted to the Court House where a camp-fire will be held. Colonel Charles H. Banes, as commander of the brigade, will extend a soldier's welcome. Colonel Aydelott, of Virginia, will respond on behalf of Pickett's men, then will follow A. K. McClue, on behalf of the city of Philadelphia and State of Pennsylvania, and the Mayor of Richmond will accept the fraternal welcome on behalf of Richmond and Virginia.

On Sunday morning an early visit will be made to the spot where Pickett's Division made its heroic charge upon the Sixty-ninth and Seventy-first Pennsylvania Volunteers at the Bloody Angle. Then services will be held. At 1:30 p. m., the Sixty-ninth will dedicate its monument.

At 2:30 the California Regiment—the Seventy-first of the Pennsylvania line—will dedicate its monument. At four o'clock Cowan's Battery will dedicate its monument. On the Fourth a five hours' drive over the historical points of the Gettysburg battlefield will be made. The exercises for the afternoon of July 4 have not been yet determined.

Secretary Frazier, of the committee of arrangements, says that it is the unanimous belief of his committee that the Philadelphia Brigade, having once established the principle of fraternal reunions between the blue and the gray, by making this one successful, such reunions will be held annually all along the line from the Potomac to the Mississippi and that they will do more to establish American fellowship and fraternity than anything else that has taken place since the war ended.—Com-piler.

Ask your druggist for Black Pills.

The scaring of horses at objects by the wayside is a matter, concerning which their owners are more concerned than is sometimes considered, and they are always ready to blame others as occasioning the mishaps that occur; the highways are as much the property of bicyclists, the owners of steam engines, &c., as of those who use horse-power.

The responsibility lies with the horse-trainers, it is for them to make sure that the training has been correct before they are brought to brave frightful situations, not extraordinary in character. This is a necessary part of the education, so to call it. No one pities the horse that stultifies himself to his personal injury, but every body sympathizes with the owner who may be injured by his stupidity.

How Napoleon Terrorized People. All equality, all familiarity, freedom, or companionship fled at his approach.

Some days later, at Albenga, the generals of division, among the rest Angereau, a kind of heroidal, rough old soldier, proud of his tall form and of his bravery, came to headquarters very badly disposed toward the little upstart whom they had sent to them from Paris.

They are admitted, and Bonaparte makes them wait. He appears finally, girls on his sword, put on his hat, explains his dispositions, gives them his orders, and dismisses them; Angereau had remained dumb; when they are outside he first recovers himself, and finds again his customary oaths.
