THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic State Convention met in Baltimore on Wednesday, and nominated candidates on their State ticket as follows:

For Governor—Elihu E. Jackson, of Wicomico county; for Comptroller—L. Victor Baughman, of Frederick county; for Attorney-General—William Pinkney Whyte, of Baltimore city.

The Convention was one of the largest ever held in the State. The names of Mayor Hodges, of Baltimore, Frank Brown, Postmaster of Baltimore, L. Victor Baughman, of Frederick, Stevenson Archer, of Harford county, and Elihu E. Jackson, of Wicomico county, were nominated for Governor. Capt. James McSherry nominated Col. Baughman in a speech that was remarkable for its happy terms and eloquent delivery. On the sixth ballot the vote stood Jackson 65; Baughman 34; Brown 13; Archer 5.

On motion of Colonel Buchanan Valley, of Washington county, the nomination of Mr. Jackson was made unanimous, and at 4 P. M., a recess until 8 P. M., was voted for. At the evening session Col. L. Victor Baughman was nominated for Comptroller by acclamation, and Hon. Wm. Pinkney Whyte was also by acclamation nominated for the office of Attorney-General.

Senator Jackson, the gubernatorial nominee, was President of the Senate of Maryland at its latest session; he is fifty years of age, was born on his father's farm in Somerset county, Nov. 3, 1837, and was brought up there; the entire family of four sons and two daughters, each doing their share of the usual labor. He received his education at the public school and by private study. At the age of 23 years he engaged in country merchandising along the Delaware railroad, his sole capital being $500, his own earnings through toil and economy. Subsequently he removed to Salisbury, Md., where he formed a partnership with his father and brother in the grocery and dry goods business to which they added lumber and grain shipping, gradually the business increased, requiring new facilities for transportation, &c., they established mills at Baltimore, Washington, and have lately purchased 80,000 acres of land in Alabama, and will shortly start a mill there. The Senator and his brother, have supervised the large Salisbury business and the others the other establishments. The firm employs several hundred men and is remarkable for its considerations for its employees. They have had no strikes or other labor troubles, the firm regulates its business by promotions and wage advancements, so that the men are directly interested in its success.

The candidate therefore, is a man of business, acquainted with business methods, and will bring his experience into whatever official relations he may hold to the advantage of the people.

Col. Louis Victor Baughman, needs no extended record for his introduction among the people of this, his native county, nor in all Western Maryland, where his is a household name, he is about forty-two years old, was educated at Mt. St. Mary's College, he entered the office of the Citizen, published by his father, the late well-known J. W. Baughman, and was educated to journalism. During the Civil War he went south and was in Captain Welch's Company of Maryland Confederate Cavalry. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Moorefield and sent to Camp Chase, where he remained nine months, after the war he returned to Frederick and spent several years in prosecuting the affairs of the Citizen. In 1870 he entered the law office of Lowe & Morgan, in New York, and remained there two years, and then went home to direct the Citizen on the death of his father. His interest in the democratic party for years past is too well known to be referred to in this connection, and his successful management of the Canal regains at once to our readers.

Hon. Wm. Pinkney Whyte was born in Baltimore, August 9, 1824. As a lawyer, a member of the Legislature, Comptroller of Maryland, Governor of the State, United States Senator, Mayor of Baltimore and a man renowned for eloquence, his distinguished services are well known near and afar.

The platform adopted by the convention, has been highly commended by the press. It endorses the national administration; the Governor and the Congressional Delegation of the State, promises a new constitution, a new registry law, and an election law embracing the best features of the Tilden law of New York. The evils of immigration in its present form are recognized and a demand for restriction is called for.

Thus the Democrats have entered their team for the races to come off in November. The grumbler's and dissatisfied reformers will henceforth take back seats; and the Republican advisors of the how not to do it sort, will no doubt find occupation in their own ranks, as soon as their party shall have made its nominations.

GOING TO ST. LOUIS.

Mayor Francis and his committee of seven-five strong, awaited upon the President on Monday and invited him and Mrs. Cleveland to visit St. Louis during the first week of October. The invitation was made in a graceful and very appropriate speech by Mayor Francis, and was replied to by the President in the following well chosen and eloquent terms.

"My reply to your very complimentary and hearty address will be very brief and practical. At the time you did me the honor, with so many of your fellow-citizens, to invite me to your city, I felt it was an invitation which should not be declined. I felt that you had something there of which you were deservedly proud. You had a city and a locality there of which it was only right and just that you should wish the chief magistrate of the country to see and appreciate. Of this feeling I have remarkable proof. It was not at all necessary to convince me of your good faith and sincerity that so many of your good people should come here at this inopportune season to bring this invitation, and yet you don't know how much it has pleased me to see you all. [Cheers.] The desire to come to see you has increased each day. I don't feel now that I can do otherwise than accept your invitation. [Great applause.] The arrangement made before was entirely free from any complications, and which presented no likelihood of any. You are aware that I agreed to visit the city of Atlanta early in October. I only speak of this because when we are about to determine upon the day when I can visit you, this Atlanta visit must be taken into consideration. However, this is a matter that can be arranged afterward. Luckily you have plenty of time. I shall be glad to meet or correspond with a committee of your citizens, and fix the date and make the arrangements in detail. But the thing must be done. I will come."

At this point the President asked Mayor Francis what would be the most attractive day of the fair week. The Mayor replied: "The third day of the month, when the Veiled Prophet's parade will occur; but if you can't be there then I might communicate with the Veiled Prophet in some way to postpone his visit as you have postponed yours." [Laughter and applause.]

On Wednesday a delegation from Kansas City, Mo., invited the President to visit that City during his Western tour in October, and he accepted the invitation for a date to be hereafter fixed between October 1st and the 15th.

MR. ROBERT GARRETT of the B. & O. Railroad, and his wife, sailed on the Canarder Eururia, on Saturday last for Europe.

GLEN MILLER, a gray stallion, owned by F. E. Fay, of Ohio, died at Peoria, Ill., Sunday. His owner refused $10,000 for him. After a trot on Friday he was given ice water, which caused his death.

TRINITY CHURCH is the richest ecclesiastical concern on the American continent in the goods pertaining to this world. It owns enough property to make a poor man's hair stand on end. There was a report made by the comptroller of the corporation to the State Senate, in 1846, showing some of its wealth. George H. Harrison was then its comptroller, and his report was as follows:

Houses and Lots..... 461
Number in the Lispenard lease..... 81
Number in the Monitor or Astor lease..... 256
Number not rented in 1846..... 1,377
Dwelling houses..... 3
Total..... 1,968
Nine hundred and thirty-eight houses and lots! Averaging them at as low a figure as $20,000 each, they are worth nearly $19,000,000. But that is far below the market. For Trinity is probably worth $60,000,000 to-day.—N. Y. News.

COWS AND WHAT THEY GIVE US.

Our American dairy interests are startlingly enormous. We showed in the Herald the other day that they represent an investment of nearly five times as much as the entire bank capital of the country—that is to say, the bank capital is a little less than $971,000,000, while the dairy interests amount to more than $3,000,000,000.

Of course our readers cannot swallow such frightful figures in a lump, and we will therefore arrange them in several smaller but still heroic doses.

The number of milk cows is estimated at 21,000,000. They give each an average of 350 gallons of milk annually. This would make an aggregate milk production of 7,350,000,000 gallons, a miniature ocean, a fair sized Niagara. Four thousand million gallons are used for butter, 700,000,000 for cheese and the remaining 2,480,000,000 pass through the adulterating hands of the milkman and grocer and down the throats of 90,000,000 men, women and babies in this land of freedom.

The quantity of butter manufactured and used is about 1,350,000,000 pounds and of cheese 6,500,000,000 pounds. The value of our dairy products for the last twelve months was nearly $500,000,000. This is $20,000,000 more than the value of our annual wheat yield, while it closely approximates that of our corn crop, which is the most valuable of our farm products.

To support this immense dairy herd 100,000,000 acres of pasture land are required, worth $2,500,000,000. It is easy enough to see, therefore, that the 4,000,000 farmers in this country are an important element of our national welfare and prosperity.—N. Y. Herald.

SUMMER LITERATURE.

The current number of Harper's Monthly deserves great credit for its earnest effort to supply the public with light-reading during the dog-days. Instead of puzzling his wearied brain with the tangled difficulties of strange and weird literature, the restful sojourner may gather himself in his hammock and learn the anthropological beauties of Siberia from Prof. Henry Langsdell, D. D., M. R. A. S., F. R. G. S., P. D. Q., etc., or follow Mr. Charles Dudley Warner through the labyrinths of Mexican history.

When the thermometer is 96 in the shade nothing can refresh the citizen more than to learn that the Gilyaks, Ostjaks, Yaptitago and Khalatniks are doing well at Mukkul, and it brings a sense of coolness and entire rest to know that away down in tropical Tezintzuntzan and Michoacan the napatlacatl legends concerning tutukinpocotapoff are still on deck, while the tales of Quetzalcoatl and Ixtlilxochitl have recently been freshened up in Nezahuacoyotl's calacalancolenchitlan.

There is nothing so conducive to sunstroke as a strain upon the mind in hot weather, and in furnishing these ephemeral and buoyant sketches, which are suitable for reading aloud in the domestic circle the magazine is filling a long-felt want.—N. Y. World.

THE COST OF WAR.

Mr. Lewis Appleton, of the British and Foreign Arbitration Society, has just published a pamphlet containing some statistics in regard to the cost of war. They are intended, of course, to aid the cause of international arbitration and the disbanding of the immense standing armies that are eating up a large share of the substance of Europe. The annual expenditure of all the European powers for their armies and navies is $3,867,500,000. The national debts of Europe, which were incurred by war nearly altogether, aggregate $24,113,057,650. Nearly $1,000,000,000 annually is paid out for interest.

There are at present actually under arms 4,123,675 men, and the number trained for war and subject to call is 19,697,484. Besides these there are 291,253 men in the navies, comprising 304 ironclads and monitors and 1,972 frigates. All this is sustained because of the ambitions and greed of a comparatively few men and the necessity of guarding against them. The workingmen pay the bills and necessarily remain in poverty. It is on them that the burden rests. Others may fail on account of it to be as rich as they otherwise would be, but the suffering comes on the laboring classes. There is a weighty sermon in these figures.—N. Y. World.

OUR COUNTRY CHURCHES.

The following article has been going the rounds of the press, so that we know not its origin. We reproduce it, as happily expressive of sentiments that should find the most extensive recognition.

The idea of planting the school-house grounds with trees and shrubs and flowers, has been persistently advocated, and there is some advancement in this direction, though it is slow. Naturally we may expect that a similar improvement may be extended to the church grounds. It is a work in which all are interested, and all can assist. A great bare building standing alone, without tree or twining vine to lend it grace, as the country church is usually seen, has little in its exterior to make it attractive, and there are few among us puritanical enough to think it better for the purpose it is designed for by reason of the poverty of its surroundings. Why should we not take a pride in making the grounds about the country churches neat and attractive? The stretch of straight board or picket fence usually seen on either side, and the carriage shed at the back, curbed clothed with hardy vines such as Clematis Virginiana, Vistarias and Honey-suckles. Low-branched trees can be set in clumps, in such a way as to screen the carriage shed from the view in front; and about the church there can be groups of low growing trees and flowering shrubs that will make the place a scene of beauty, instead of one of desolation, as it commonly is. Such a work should be a work of love, and many hands could make it a light work. Our thoughts and aspirations in the place would be no less reverent for these pleasing surroundings.

THE old Harriet Beecher Stowe House, in Andover, in which the famous authoress was born who wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was burned. The loss will reach $10,000; partially insured. The house has been an object of interest for all visitors to Andover.

FIRE broke out in a gambling den in Chinatown, Los Angeles, Cal., on Sunday morning. The fire companies, which were ordered out, soon appeared, but the slow actions of the firemen in getting water on the flames seemed to indicate that they were not over anxious to save the buildings. The fire continued spreading until it had consumed twenty-five buildings which a short time before had housed one thousand Chinamen.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

The decision made by the Supreme Court of the United States last October, that James C. Sanders was entitled to draw two salaries from the Federal Government for the same time, one as clerk to the Committee on Commerce in the House of Representatives and another as clerk in the Executive Mansion, has encouraged young men generally to throw aside their diffidence and claim as many salaries as they want. While the Supreme Court decided that way in the case of Sanders, there is a statute which distinctly set forth that no man shall concurrently draw two separate salaries from the Federal Government, and in some recent cases which have come before him First Comptroller Durham has acted, as he thinks, in accordance with the statute. For instance, Albert H. Mowry, of South Carolina, claims two salaries for the past few months. During the Forty-ninth Congress he was clerk to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and his patron, Representative Dibble, the Chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom he owes both appointments, has been to argue with Judge Durlin and to convince him that the two salaries are legally due Mr. Mowry. Judge Durlin, however, does not see it in that light and declines to allow the two salaries in this case until the Supreme Court is heard from again.

The ticket nominated in Ohio is composed of respectable material and is as loyal to the Administration of Mr. Cleveland as though the President had personally ordered its making.

Mr. Thurman would have carried the State without anybody's asking his opinions. The ex-Senator being unavailable, the next step should have been to nominate a candidate who was a friend rather than partisan of the Administration. Possibly Mr. Campbell would have filled this part of the bill. The candidate should also have been popular with the Labor organizations; and this was where Mr. Foran expected to get in his work.

Yet Colonel Powell, all things considered, is the stronger of the three. He is an energetic worker, an honest gentleman, an excellent political manager. He is thoroughly in sympathy with the Administration, as was the entire convention.

On the whole, the action of the convention will be well received by the party at large.

In a dispatch to the Department of State the United States consul at Guaymas, Mexico, speaking of the observance of the 4th of July there, says that the federal, state, and municipal buildings, all the shipping and the different foreign consulates displayed their national colors in honor of the day. THE latest news from Sicily and Southern Italy shows that the cholera epidemic, is far from being under control and rapidly decreasing, has broken out again with renewed violence. On July 21, in the town of Catania alone there were twenty deaths, and on the 22d the number of deaths was twenty-three. There are now 250 cholera patients in the improved hospitals. The City of Palermo has sent $2,000 to be distributed among the sufferers.

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme cases with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Pencil in the unprinted good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength" peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite.

I suffered from weakness and low spirits, and also had eczema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have received so much benefit that I am very grateful, and I am always glad to speak a good word for this medicine." Mrs. J. S. SYPHER, Pottsville, Penn.

Purifies the Blood

Henry Biggs, Campbell Street, Kansas City, had serious sores all over his body for fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured him.

Wallace Buck, of North Bloomfield, N. Y., suffered eleven years with a terrible venereal sore on his leg, so bad that he had to give up business. He was cured of the ulcer, and also of catarrh, by Breaks in the Canal. A heavy rain which fell on Tuesday night caused two bad breaks in the canal. One of these is in the "big pool," on the fourteen-mile level, between Hancock and Williamsport. Two weeks will probably be required to make repairs, and there will be about that much delay in navigation.—Sun.

A Bicycle Race. Six members of the Hagerstown Cycle Club road an eighteen-mile race last Monday evening over a circuit of turnpikes, beginning and ending at the post-office in Hagerstown. The race was won by Harry Dayhoff in one hour 25 minutes 26.25 seconds, Emory Miller and Frank Licklider being only a short distance behind him. The roads were in a poor condition. Medals were awarded to the three first in.—Sun.

An Important Element. Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar head-line "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by anyone who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

List of Letters. The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., July 25, 1887. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them. Rev. L. J. Bell, Mrs. E. Eyster, Miss Mary McDormatt, Mrs. Mary E. Mullin, Miss Lizzie Newcomer, John H. Waddles.

Uncalled for and Unwarranted. Speaking of the recent breaks in the canal, the Cumberland Daily Times says: "This unfortunate accident will result in an impediment to the traffic of from ten days to two weeks."

Surely the stoppage suspension, or what not of the traffic that calls for such a descriptive word, must be extraordinary and deep and wide as never before. If we are to retain a firm hold on the canal, it must be in English undefiled—as the laws demand.

Death from a Monster Tumor. Frank Oswald, of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, was several days ago admitted to the city hospital, Harrisburg, suffering from a large blood tumor on his throat, from which he died this evening. The tumor was located on and fed from one of the principal arteries of the neck, and it grew to such proportions that the patient could no longer lie down or even remain in a sitting position, but was for over a week compelled to stand, the tumor pressing so heavily on the windpipe that he was in constant danger of suffocating. This morning one of the physicians opened the tumor and drew nearly a gallon of blood from it. The tumor was a six months' growth.—American.

Give them a Chance. That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well. Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you you may depend upon this for certain.

BLACK PILLS remove costiveness.

Green Corn Again. After scoring the grains longitudinally on the cob and detaching them from it, the corn should be well masticated before swallowing. Most persons are too hurried in the work, and this may cause indigestion. All food should be eaten slowly. But the beneficial effects of corn are dependent on that course. Give your teeth a fair share of the fun.

Somewhat the most part of the storms reported here and there, are the severest, the most appalling and most destructive ever known in the neighborhood. Except as to the conditions of obstacles in the way the notion is sheer nonsense. Taken through a course of years it will be found that the variations are no more consequential, than are the mountain tops, in regard to the rotundity of the earth's surface.

On Wednesday night, Philip Stemer, who has been employed as hostler at different hotels in this place, was detected stealing chickens at Peter Settlemeyer's in this place, and rifling the bar and grocery at W. F. Spalding's Valley House. He was arraigned before Justice Stokes on Thursday morning, and waiting a hearing was committed to the Frederick county jail, to which place Constable Ashbaugh conveyed him in the afternoon.

Dry or Humid. With the subsidence of the late heated term, they've got to registering the humidity of the air, and no wonder for that was all there was to register; and one could gather it by the handful. The question since has been not "are you warm?" but "how's your moisture?" and every one could say "fully saturated!" There are seas of trouble beyond dispute, and the recent clear up has been delectable beyond expression.

Badly Stung. On last Monday near Trostle's Mill, a small child of Alex. Eichelberger, aged about 2 years, wandered from the house out in the yard to a bee hive. The child was not missed until its agonizing screams attracted attention, when it was discovered literally covered with bees, which were removed, with great difficulty. It was feared that death would ensue, but at last accounts the child was getting along nicely.—York Springs Comet.

Is preserving berries, tomatoes, and like things having many seeds, the great point is to thoroughly cook the seeds; their coverings retain the heat that causes fermentation and the mould that follows. When about to put the jars away, each should have a circular paper dipped in brandy or whiskey placed on top of the jelly or whatever it may be, and over the whole should be another paper covered with the albumen of an egg. If fermentation ensues, re-cook the marmalade and add more sugar. To use plenty of sugar at first is the best economy.

Miss MOLLE L. PEARRE, daughter of Mr. James Pearre, of the vicinity of Barnesville, Montgomery county, and a niece of A. J. DeLashmutt, Esq., of Frederick city, died at the residence of Wm. A. Wampler, in Westminster. Miss Pearre was on a visit to her cousins, the Misses Wampler, and was ill about a week. She was a niece of the late Judge George A. Pearre, of Allegany county, and was 22 years of age. Her remains were interred in Westminster Cemetery to-day at 2 o'clock p. m.—News.

List of Patents. The following patents were granted to citizens of Maryland, bearing date July 19, '87 reported expressly for this paper by Louis Bagger & Co., Mechanical Experts and Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C. Advice Free.

G. C. Bolgiano, Baltimore, street-rail way rail and conduit. H. F. D. Crawford, Baltimore, latch and lock. Greenleaf Johnson, Jr., Baltimore, making tongue and groove flooring.

C. K. Kahler, Baltimore, sewer-inlet. With the commendable disposition to look ahead, our esteemed neighbors of Mechanicstown are about to have "harsh case works" in their town. This will be in furtherance of the darkly put suggestions of the Clarion in its recent deliverances as to the things to come. The cases will be very handy for the catastrophe when it comes—for the dead and it may be the hopelessly wounded. We are always pleased to note the progress of our neighbors and wish them a bright future. Water works, fire department and burial cases involve elements of progress that appear as rare birds in the general order of municipal life. Progress however in general is a slow team, mostly mules, that must be dealt with kindly, and not be unduly hurried. Give things time to settle, is as good advice for them, as for coffee.

The August number of Scribner's Magazine is full of attractive reading, and beginning with the fifth installment of Thackeray's Unpublished Letters, one is led on, page after page, through every article to the end of the number, without a thought of weariness. The second article is a singular story entitled "The Lost Rembrandt," by T. R. Sullivan; "The Picturesque Quality of Holland" is described by George Hitchcock; there is a selected series of Selections from the Letters of Eliza Southgate Browne, descriptive of "A Girl's Life Eighty Years Ago"; "Seth's Brother's Wife" is continued; "The Instability of the Atmosphere" is described by N. S. Shaler; "A Perilous Incognito," by H. H. Boyesen, is concluded, and John F. Weir has a strong plea in favor of "The Revival of Handicraft"; "Realism and the Art of Fiction," is discussed by Arlo Bates, and "Father Acher's Little Game," by Lizzie W. Chapman, concludes the number, which is interspersed with fine illustrations and several poems. Published by Cass, Seaver & Sons, 713-715 Broadway, N. Y.

The Beginning of the End. The beginning of disease is a slight debility or disorder of some of the vital organs, the stomach, the liver or the bowels usually. There are dyspeptic symptoms, the liver is troublesome, the skin grows rawny and unusually looking, there are pains in the right side or through the right shoulder blade. The climax is often an utter prostration of the physical energies, perhaps a fatal issue. But if the difficulty is met in time with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is always effective as a remedy, and it should be resorted to at an early stage, there will be no reason to apprehend those injurious subsequent effects upon the system, which are often the result of curative diseases. For better or ill, also, to employ this safe remedial agent in fever and ague, and other malarial conditions, and in all other cases of general debility, even when they are chronic, and for a time, in the stomach and bowels the general health.

The Cumberland Daily Times Thursday changed hands, and is now owned by the Times Publishing Company. A certificate has been filed in the Circuit Court by the above company, with a capital stock of $20,000, with the following well known gentlemen as incorporators: Jas. Clark, P. H. Daughtrey, A. M. Rouser, J. W. Avritt and Col. P. W. Avritt. The directors have elected John W. Avritt president and business manager, John W. Keating secretary, and Col. P. W. Avritt editor.

At Manchester, Carroll county, on Friday 22nd inst., Mr. Henry Motter was sitting in front of his residence, talking with some children, when he began to complain of a pain at his heart. After walking up and down the pavement a few times, he passed into the house, and a moment or two afterwards his wife ran to Mr. Charles Gantzer's drug store, a few doors away, for assistance. Before Mr. Gantzer could reach him, Mr. Motter died. He was a prominent man in the community in which he lived, and well known throughout the county. He was a son of the late Geo. Motter. Mr. Motter was for several years a gauger in Baltimore, and at the time of his death was a justice of the peace, which position he had filled for many years. His first wife was Rebecca Weaver, and his second wife, who survives him, was Julia Ross, widow of David Ross, of Baltimore. He was a brother-in-law of Joseph M. Parke, of Baltimore city. He leaves five children—Parke, Hal, Charles, George and Joseph. He was sixty-five years old.

Safe Summer Drinks. A glass of cold water, not ice water, is the most delicious, grateful and gratifying beverage that a person can take in hot weather, besides costing nothing and leading to no bad habits. Men in glass factories, where the heat is fearful drink water only, not ice, and are healthy and vigorous. Field hands, on cotton and sugar plantations, drink a mixture of molasses and water. A safe drink for the harvesters is water in which oatmeal has been stirred. In warm weather, when there is excessive venereal action of the bowels, or looseness, as it is familiarly called, every set a person takes has a tendency to set the bowels in motion. Instinct and common sense, therefore, dictate the most perfect rest. Drinking fluids aggravates the malady. Lumps of ice chewed and swallowed in large pieces as possible will allay the excessive thirst. Parched rice boiled and eaten with boiled milk is the best food. This treatment will cure nine cases out of ten if adopted within 48 hours; if not, call a physician.—National Educator.

Finishing the South Pennsylvania. There have been a number of moves around Carlisle lately that indicate that work on the great South Pennsylvania Railroad is about to be resumed. A number of the contractors were in Shippensburg, last Friday, and said that while they might not be going to work themselves certain parties were. Today carts, material and men passed through Shippensburg on their way to the Blue Mountains, where the chief tunnels are situated. Evans & Ackerman, the contractors for the Kittatinny tunnel, which is about completed at this end, have moved their machinery and taken to the other end with a view to beginning work from there. Some men have been seen around the Blue Ridge and North Siding Tunnel making preparations. The North Siding Tunnel, the biggest on the road, being three-quarters of a mile in length, has been worked on for a year, and two months more would finish it. The general impression is that work will be quietly renewed and pushed with all possible haste.—World.

The Chambersburg, Pa., correspondence of the Baltimore Sun, gives the following interesting facts regarding a native of this locality: "Soon after the election in November last the right of H. J. Plough to the office of district attorney, to which he was entitled by the official count, was contested in behalf of W. J. Zacharias, who had held the office three years and who was a candidate the second time. Plough, the republican candidate, had a majority of two. The contest was made on the ground that all the votes cast in the first ward of Chambersburg had not been counted. An examiner was appointed and testimony was taken. The testimony was to the effect that several gentlemen had voted for portions of the prohibition ticket. The return did not show that their votes had been counted for the prohibition candidates. Upon this evidence being presented to the court a recount was ordered. The examiner made the recount, and ascertained that 22 tickets in the first ward had not been counted by the election board. Seventeen of these were for Zacharias, twelve for Plough, and the rest were scratched. Correcting the returns by these figures, it was found that Zacharias had received 4,900 votes in the county and Mr. Plough 4,906. The examiner was sworn into office, and will enter upon his administration. The outcome of the contest, which has dragged over eight months, is satisfactory to nearly every one in the county.

BLACK PILLS dispel melancholy.

The Philadelphia Ledger refers editorially to a new remedy for the cure of poison from poison vines. It is to bind a piece of bread, soaked in water and covered with common baking soda, upon the affected parts. This method of application keeps the soda moist a long while, and the bread also acts as a mild poultice, possibly promoting the action of the soda in neutralizing the acid secretions. While the Ledger does not vouch for the efficiency of the remedy, it deems it worthy of a trial as a convenient means of applying the soda treatment.

Four growers in the vicinity of Edge-mont, Washington county, have for the past two weeks been shipping peaches grown in the "belt" to the city markets, for which they obtain the handsome price of $4 per bushel. The shipments thus far are confined to the variety known as Amandans. They are put up in fancy baskets that hold a peck each and sell readily at $1 per basket. There is profit in this, as may readily be supposed. From 18,000 to 20,000 bushels of peaches will be taken this season from the Nicodemus and Stover farms alone, and that other farms in the vicinity will yield in proportions.—Globe.

From the Herald and Torch Light. One day last week while Mr. Allen Stone was cutting grass with a mower, his little child wandered into the high grass, laid down and fell asleep. The mower came around and the child was not discovered until the guards on the mower had penetrated the boy's body. The team was immediately stopped, and the child removed. Upon examination it was found that the boy had sustained no serious injury.

Mrs. Shafer, widow of the late George Shafer, of this county, died last Wednesday at her son's residence in Annapolis. Her remains were brought to Hagerstown on Friday and taken thence to Funkstown, where they were deposited beside those of her late husband. She was a daughter of the late J. V. Swearingin and sister of Mrs. Dr. Saml. H. Rench. Her surviving children are Mr. Geo. H. Shafer, Mrs. Elizabeth Beck, Mrs. Rose Cowman and Miss Martha Shafer.

Death of Mrs. Picking. The many friends of Mrs. Barbara Picking, widow of the late Thomas Picking, will regret to learn of her sudden death, which occurred after a few days illness, at her residence, about three miles north of this city, on the Emmitsburg pike, in the 68th year of her age. The deceased was well known in this city, and highly esteemed by her numerous friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Picking was a consistent member of the Reformed Church, of this city. Her remains were brought to this city on Sunday morning last and interred at Mt. Olivet Cemetery. Revs. Dr. Eschbach and M. Sheridan officiating. Mrs. Picking was the step-mother of Mr. William H. Picking, Mrs. Victoria Har-ding, of Pennsylvania, Mrs. James H. Dean, of Maunoth Hot Springs, Wyoming Territory and Miss Charlotte Picking, all of whom are still living. The pall-bearers were Val. S. Brunner, Geo. E. Shipley, Joseph Cronise, G. Joseph Doll, H. M. Kaufauer and John Roelkey.—Examiner.

The past week has been as remarkable for its showers as the preceding one, was for its torrid heat. If we have reached the torrid temperature, it naturally follows, that we must have its rainy period; and we have; rain in the early morning; at mid-day; afternoon and night; and of course with it the rarefied air, that sends the clouds low down and circumscribes the limits of breathing. To our experience the heat was more endurable than the stifling air that so often prevailed. But not only were these conditions at hand; the fogs, came forth in their liveliest moods, and most persistent determination to claim all situations as their own, irrespective of all rights, singular collective or mixed as regards others. After all the frisky insects are but claiming an honest living, and the clouds in which they have come prove the healthfulness of our surroundings. So that we must philosophically submit to their importunities and ill-bred familiarity, such for example, as is shown in the bold attempts to gauge the healthfulness of ones breathing, in the morning nap, by alighting on the nose, and when you brush away the festive impy, you are aroused perhaps for the better.

Miscellaneous.

Some time ago, as I was coming up the street, I met a young married friend, holding her little boy by the hand. The child had evidently had a fall, for the pretty suit he wore was covered with splashes of mud.

"Just look at Willie's new coat," she said in an aggrieved voice. "It is perfectly ruined; and I have had such trouble to get it made. Is it not too bad?"

While I was expressing my sympathy, the little fellow looked up into my face with a woful expression on his own.

"And mamma is going to whip me just as soon as we get home," he cried.

"I certainly am," she said in the same indignant tone. "I have told him at least fifty times to take hold of any hand and he never will do it, and this is the consequence."

"It seems to me," I answered somewhat dryly, "that if you have condoned the sin of disobedience for forty-nine times, it is for the sin of falling down that the child is to be punished; for if the accident had not happened, I imagine that the fifth act of disobedience would also have passed without comment."

Her cheek flushed for a moment, then her honest, hazel eyes met mine steadily.

"Your reproof is a just one," she said, "and I shall not forget it."

I would like other young mothers, also, to carefully consider this question of punishment, for it is a most important one. While grave moral faults are often passed over carelessly, a child is frequently very severely dealt with for the tearing of a dress, or the breaking of an ornament, or any other fault that involves trouble or expense, even though the mischief may have been unintentionally done.

Shocking as the statement may sound, it is not true, that when the angry mother relieves her annoyance by punishing the object of it, she is really revenging herself upon it for the trouble it has occasioned?

Certainly, it is very provoking to have beautiful things broken and work that has been the result of much patient labor destroyed through heedlessness and carelessness, yet sometimes ago, when I heard a child who had torn a handsome dress, answer sagely to another who had told her that "her mother would whip her for tearing it."

"No, my mother never whips for clothes," I felt sure that she was in wise as well as loving hands.

Later on.

Two Sides to a Story. "Well, mother," said a working-man to his wife, as he returned from the Common, where he had been hobnobbing all the forenoon with his fellow strikers, "let's have dinner."

"No dinner to-day, old man," she replied.

"No dinner, what's up?" "I've struck for eight hours' work and two meals a day; so has Mrs. Johnson, so has Mrs. Spring. In fact we've had a meeting, and we have concluded that sixteen hours a day is too much for delicate females when strong men can only stand eight hours."

It is reported that the paterfamilias at once promptly seized his hat and ran out to see if he could have a committee of arbitration appointed.

A Thermometer in the Sick Room.

A thermometer should be hung in every sick-room, and the temperature should be carefully regulated by it. An open fire-place is the best ventilation when it can be had. If the room is warmed by steam, a coal stove, or register, keep a metal dish filled with boiling water where it will keep hot to moisten the atmosphere. A window should be arranged to open from the top, with a piece of bairn or coarse flannel tacked across, to admit fresh air without a draught. The general temperature should be kept at sixty-eight degrees, although it must be regulated according to the nature of the disease.

There are lots of people who mix their religion with business, but forget to stir it up well. As a result, the business invariably rises to the top.—Hebrew Standard.

Stella's Lesson.

Six young ladies of a graduating class were gathered at a window overlooking pleasant grounds, and talking eagerly about the future. Their plans were various, reaching onward without a thought of grief or sorrow. Wealth, admiration, fame, were among the attainable. Music and art would each have its devotee. One would continue her studies at a higher institution; another would become the mistress of a beautiful home.

One had not spoken, and when the question, a second time, was asked impatiently, "Louise, what are your plans?" her answer was eagerly awaited.

"I shall help my mother," said Stella Louise.

"O-o-h, we all mean to do that, of course," said one; "but what plans have you? You can't mean to just stay at home in a poky way and not try to do anything."

"Girls," said Louise, "I do mean to do that for the present, at least. My business shall be to help my mother in any way that is possible for me to help her."

A glance at the puzzled faces around her, and she continued:—"Shall I open my heart to you a bit, and let you read a sad passage from it? You remember Stella Morton? You remember that I once visited her during vacation? Her home was very pleasant, and a large family of brothers and sisters made the days pass merrily. Our pleasures kept us so much out of doors that we saw little of Mrs. Morton—a delicate, quiet lady, always ready to bestow sympathy when needed. I noticed that the girls were not so fondly and helpful about the house as I had been taught to be; but, as I did not see who supplied all deficiencies, I thought little about it. One day a picnic had been planned, and I heard the girls impatiently commenting upon the illness of the one servant, as it threw upon them some disagreeable household duties. How Mrs. Morton over-accomplished the delicious lunch we ate that day only such overworked mothers can explain; the little assistance given by Stella and Alice must have been most unsatisfactory."

"We returned by moonlight so tired that we went to our rooms without seeing anyone, if, indeed, anyone was up at that hour. By-and-by—I don't know how long we had slept—a frightened voice called Stella, who shared my room, and soon we all knew that gentle, tired Mrs. Morton was alarmingly ill. At sunrise she was gone, without hearing the voices so full of love and sorrow. Girls, I can't describe Stella's grief. She placed her own delicate hand beside the thin, toil stained hand one, and said, 'See, Louise, at what cost mine is so fair, and I have been vain of my white hands.' She kissed the cold fingers again and again.

"One day I found Stella at her mother's work-table, holding up some unfinished piece, evidently left in haste. 'Louise,' she said, 'mother asked me to do this, and I really meant to; O, why didn't I do it at once?' "You can understand what an impression all this made upon me, and when, a few days later, I was called home by the illness of my own mother, the feeling was intensified. Mother was very ill, and as hope grew fainter my distress was hardly less than Stella's. One night, when my sister and I were too anxious to sleep, I told her about Stella, and we then pledged ourselves to take from mother every possible care, and to make our home our first object. To make the promise more binding and real, we exchanged rings. Mother's illness made it seem more natural and easy at first, and everything moved on so smoothly that I really think she regained her health the more quickly. All the mending and sewing were done promptly under her direction, and we always silenced her by saying we liked to do it. She seldom knows what is prepared for tea or breakfast; we beg her not to inquire, for we know that she enjoys little surprises. The boys and the dear baby are better and happier for having so much of her time and attention.

"Last summer I visited Stella again. She is the light of the home. Only for the discipline I had passed through could I understand how she was able to accomplish so much. Once when I expressed something of this to her, her eyes filled with tears, as she asked: 'Do you suppose she can see us—that she knows what I am trying to do?' Her hands were not fair and delicate, but I thought her more beautiful. Why, girls, I never see a pretty hand now without wondering whether it has a right to be fair and white. So I am going home to help mother; I shall be happy, because I know it is my duty."

As Louise finished speaking, the retiring bell sounded. Not a word was spoken, but the kiss that was bestowed upon the flushed face of the earnest speaker told of the impression her words had made. Those mothers alone can tell whether the influence was lasting.—Everybody's Magazine.

Humorous.

You've heard of a man being cried down at a meeting, but did you ever hear of a man being cried up? No. Well, how about the man who owns a three-month old baby?

"You say you stumped Texas for the Prohibition ticket. What peculiarity of your audience struck you most forcibly?"

"Well," said the missionary, "the chunks of clay and pieces of brick struck me most forcibly; but the eggs stayed by me the longest."—Burdette.

Something Wrong.

An old farmer living near Chambersburg, Pa., was telling a member of the Sixth Michigan cavalry how he took the invasion of the state by Lee's army. Said he:

"We'd gone to bed and I heard our dog bark. Says I to the old woman, says I, there's somebody moving around or that dog wouldn't bark that way. Go to sleep, you old fool! says the old woman. Says I, I won't do it! I tell ye, a critter or somethin' or other has got into the garden, or that dog wouldn't keep up his barking. Wall, he barked and barked, and I finally went to sleep and left him barking. I spotted the bridled cow would get in and eat all the cabbages up, but I was sort o' mad at the old woman and didn't kear. I woke up about 6 in the morning and that dog was barking yet."

"What at?"

"That's what I wanted to know. I knowed it must be suthin' or other, and I went out to see."

"Well, what was it?"

"Jist about 35,000 rebels had bin stringin' along past the house during the night, and that's what ailed Bose. I knowed that dog had his eyes on critters or somebody."—Detroit Free Press.

A Book Agent's Prayer.

At a Friday evening prayer meeting in a fashionable up-town church, recently the brethren observed that a stranger was among them. He was a tall, lank, sorrowful looking man with large feet and a three days' growth of beard. After the opening exercises the pastor requested any who might feel so disposed to rise and state their experiences for the benefit of their fellow sinners. The stranger immediately sprang to his feet and began as follows:

"I feel that it is good to be here to-night." ("Amen," from several of the brethren.) "As I look around me I find it difficult to analyze the emotions with which I am filled. You are all strangers to me, yet I feel as though I had known you for years. I am surrounded by an atmosphere of congeniality. I believe that I may speak freely and frankly—that I need have no hesitation in saying to you all that I long to say." ("Go on—go on!" from an enthusiastic deacon.) "Thank you, brother, I will go on. I am introducing a work in this neighborhood which is certain to find a ready sale as soon as its merits are understood—a work which every one of the intelligent men and women to whom I am speaking to-night ought to possess. Its price is nominal, being but twenty-five cents per copy, and it will be completed in fifty parts. The work to which I refer, my dear brethren and sisters, is—"

There was a brief intermission, during which the stranger made a hasty and somewhat ungraceful exit, assisted by the janitor. Then a hymn was sung and the assembled throng soon forgot the sad-eyed man, who stood outside gazing pensively at the silent stars and murmuring: "It was a daisy scheme, and blame me if I can see why it didn't work."
