The Life of George Washington Studied Anew.

By Edward Everett Hale, Author of "A
Man Without a Country," "Ten Times
One is Ten," etc. New York and London: G. P. Putnam's Sons.

Mr. Hale appears to have marked talent and taste for biographical studies, and certainly he has original and independent views, which are always offered with refreshing vivacity and "go." As he tells us, the absurd habit of deifying Washington, and of surrounding him with a sublime and unapproachable moral mystery, has so clouded his portrait in the minds of men that it is very difficult for them to grasp it. The biographer sets to work to dissipate this halo, which gleams like an aurora borealis shining in a polar sky, and to penetrate to the warm, throbbing humanity imprisoned behind the sameness of this historic iceberg. General Washington was pre-eminently human through and through, passionate, hot-blooded, and full of indomitable force, and not the piece of austere, cold-blooded perfection which all the biographers, from Jared Sparks, the father of lies on the subject, down, have so carefully limned. Mr. Hale rides at the subject like an old knight-errant, lance in rest, and clad in armor of proof. He certainly manages to find no end of joints in the mail of his historic antagonists.

The narrative has been written from a thorough study of all authorities attainable, and sketches Washington's career from childhood. It is not necessary to follow Mr. Hale's record, for the story is known to everyone in its main outlines. He certainly finds ample proof for the establishment of his thesis in nearly every part of his hero's career. The immense prominence of Washington above the other actors of the Revolutionary period, the tendency to hero-worship of the age which immediately succeeded it, the somewhat pompous and inflated methods of thought and writing which characterized the period, and the fact that such a myth as the Washingtonian demigod had something of a political and historic value at the time, will sufficiently account for his apotheosis and canonization. After a vivacious and lively account of the events of Washington's life, Mr. Hale sums up the elements which stamped his history as so peculiarly a triumph: "This is certain, that the eagerness of men to believe that pure moral power carries empire with it, is the reason why men study with personal interest the life and character of Washington. His success seems to be the triumph of humanity. In his success men believe that they will not for any length of time be given over to the sway of men who are merely intellectual tricksters or giants of physical force. Men agree to honor Washington because in his life they think they have a demonstration that right makes might." All this, and other historians, in fact, have asserted. But Mr. Hale differs in that he makes this consummate moral force and dignity to be eminently consistent with the faults of ardent passion, hot blood, quick temper, and, at times, bitter prejudice.

We reproduce the above from the "Literary Notices" of the Emmitsburg Chronicle for February, and trust our readers will appreciate it as well fitted to the time, and filling an important position in the literature of the day, to which the following will give added value.

A PORTRAITURE OF WASHINGTON.
From the Oration delivered before Congress Dec. 26, 1799, by Major-General Henry Lee, a Representative from Virginia.

"Possessing a clear and penetrating mind, a strong and sound judgment, calmness and temper for deliberation, with invincible firmness, and perseverance in resolutions maturely informed, drawing information from all, acting from himself with incorruptible integrity and unvarying patriotism; his own superiority and the public confidence alike marked him as the man designed by Heaven to lead in the great political as well as military events which have distinguished the era of his life.

"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life; pious, just, humane, temperate, and sincere; uniform, dignified, and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting.

"To his equals he was condescending; to his inferiors kind, and to the dear object of his affections exemplarily tender. Correct throughout, vice shuddered in his presence, and virtue always felt his fostering hand; the purity of his private character gave influence to his public virtues.

"Methinks I see his august image and hear falling from his venerable lips these deep-sinking words:

"O ye, sons of America, inheriting our separation. Go on, and continue by your wisdom the fruits of our joint councils, joint efforts, and common dangers. Reverence religion; diffuse knowledge throughout your land; patronize the arts and sciences; let liberty and order be your inseparable companions; control party spirit, the bane of free government; observe good faith to and cultivate peace with all nations; shut up every avenue to foreign influence; contract rather than extend national connection; rely on yourself only; be American in thought and deed. Thus will you give immortality to that Union which was the constant object of my terrestrial labors. Thus will you preserve undisturbed to the latest posterity the felicity of a people to me most dear, and thus will you supply, (if my happiness is now ought to you), the only vacancy in the round of pure bliss high Heaven bestows."

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

Special to the Emmitsburg Chronicle.
The investigation which has been going on before Congress with reference to the purity of hog-lard has developed the fact that the hog was but little contained in most of the so-called lard. In many instances the material differs according to who makes it.

The hogish manufacturers who are doing this business use nothing but beef fat and cotton seed oil. It is safe to say that no pure lard can be had from any of the manufacturers claiming to put out pure brands.

When the committee brought the manufacturers before it, they had to "peach" on business and tell the truth so far as they were concerned. A great deal of valuable information was obtained which may, no doubt, be useful in future legislation. But then one great question will come in and that will be whether cotton-seed oil is nutritious or not. It will be hard to decide this against cotton-seed for the next year, as the committee will have to give it a good long trial before they report; they will have to eat about a barrel apiece.

I asked Commissioner Bragg the other day if he thought there would be any amendments to the Interstate Commerce Law offered this session.

"Yes," he replied, "I think there will be. If the commission's suggestions are followed the changes in the law will not be of a fundamental character, but they will tend to make the law more effective and easy working."

The most conspicuous male figure in any assemblage he may happen to be, is Mr. Liang, interpreter and man of affairs of the Chinese Minister. As everybody knows he speaks English with an ease and an absence of accent seldom noticed in foreigners. He said the other night, in answer to a question concerning his Celestial costume of delicate pinks and grays, that he would prefer to wear American evening dress, as he did during his life at Williams' College, but it would hardly be proper for him to do so now in his diplomatic position. "A close fitting evening coat would be much more pleasant to dance in," he continued, "than my flowing robes. Moreover, it would make my appearance more like that of the other men in the room. I would like to be distinctive in some other way, could I choose, than that of apparel."

The House committee on labor yesterday decided to report adversely the bill to license railway conductors.

Mr. O'Neill's joint resolution forbidding enlisted men in the Army or Navy, whether non-commissioned officers, musicians, or privates from engaging in any other occupation in civil life where the same shall interfere with the customary employment and regular engagement of civilians, will be reported favorably.

PRINCETON'S NEW PRESIDENT.

The Rev. Francis Landys Patton, D. D., who was recently elected to succeed ex. Dr. McCosh as president of Princeton College, was born in Warwick, a town of the Bermuda's, of Scotch parentage, in 1843. In 1884 he accepted the chair of the relations of philosophy and science to religion in the Theological Seminary at Princeton, and that of ethics in the college proper. Dr. Patton has been very popular in both the theological and academic departments of Princeton, and bears the reputation of being the best informed and widest read professor in that institution of learning.

THE GREAT WALKING MATCH.

JAMES ALBERT the little Philadelphia closed the six days go-as-you-please race in Madison Square Garden, New York, at ten o'clock on Saturday evening last, after having traveled 621 1/2 miles in six days.

THE PRINTING MONOPOLY.

To advance their personal interests by every favorable opportunity is the inherent disposition of most men, and of course to do so is commendable when the aims are legitimate and just, but unfortunately it too often happens that selfishness governs, and then the rights and the interests of others are overlooked and neglected.

It is in this wise that the tendency to monopoly manifests itself in so many and such various directions. We have frequently referred to the injustice done, not only to our rural newspapers, but more especially the people on whose behalf they carry forward their enterprises.

In the olden days when publication offices were scarce, and for the most part confined to the larger towns, naturally enough they were the beneficiaries, so to call it, of the official business of their localities. From the customs thus established there has been a practice of continuing the terms of the law, originally used, and to a great extent conveying the exclusive patronage to the presses thus favorably located. But the school master has been abroad in the land and knowledge has extended, even through the rural districts. We claim as heretofore we have argued, that the citizens of the Districts are equally entitled to learn regarding the conduct of their public business, through their local newspapers, as are those of the large towns, and that to restrict them for such information to the County-town papers, is to create a monopoly in favor of the latter to the detriment of the rural citizens. There should be a just distribution of patronage in such a manner that all interests may be promoted, and to this end the laws should be amended. Our country editors in pursuing the daily routine of their duties are for the most part separated from the influences that bring them in accord with the demands of their positions, and hence they are precluded from seeking to advance the interests of their patrons as they might with the ready aptness of their more favored brethren, to perceive and improve opportunities.

We have been moved to the above remarks by reading the following article in the Baltimore Sun of the 10th inst., which in spirit accords with the principle we advocate, and yet is put forth from the standpoint of its own distinguished position.

The disposition to take to the Legislature every axe to be ground has a striking illustration in the bill which has been quickly run through the House of Delegates and is now before the Senate of Maryland changing the mode of advertising "sales and notices," and requiring publication "in a legal journal if there be one published in the county or city where the publication of such notice is required." It is not known that any such journal as the one specified in the bill exists anywhere in Maryland except Baltimore city; but the act would encourage the establishment of "legal journals" in nearly all the considerable counties of the State; and effect a revolution not asked or desired by the people in the mode of making legal announcements. It may be said that the law journal which is published in Baltimore is a very good paper of its kind, and we wish it may succeed in the legitimate field of its enterprise. The practice of publishing legal notices in the newspapers of the State has been long established, and the people are used to look there for them in the company of other business announcements affecting their interests. It is not the right thing to require the publication of legal notices in a purely legal journal for the very nature of such journals restricts them to a circulation within the limits of a single profession. Very often the subject-matter of the announcement needs to be placed before the eyes of a very large number of dealers, investors, merchants or other business people in order to make a market and create competition in bidding, or in other cases to serve notice as widely as possible in order to insure individual or public protection. To attempt to control interests such as these is an assumption which should be treated promptly and decisively. The Senate could not do a better thing than to chop off its head by striking out the enacting clause of the bill.

MR. BLAIN SAYS HE WILL NOT RUN.

Mr. Blaine has written a letter in which he declines allowing his name to be presented to the Republican National Committee as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

SNOW IN EUROPE.

Despatches report fearful snowstorms on the Continent, and Avalanches have caused great loss of life.

THE MURDER RECORD.

There have been frequent records of late in the newspapers of drunken men killing their wives and then committing suicide, and in several instances the children have been involved in the number slain.

Crime is surely epidemic, else, why the recurrence of like manifestations, even at distant points? and we insist that the publication of them so remorselessly indulged in, is the fruitful source of suggestion in the case.

The mere announcement of a murder, a suicide and such like offences should suffice, and the recital of details should be accounted a misdemeanor, and punishable as such. The weak are easily influenced by the suggestions contained in such accounts, and the maliciously inclined seize upon them with avidity.

Why do not the benevolent persons, who are so intent upon preventing "Cruelty to animals" and such like matters, take up this question, in the interest of morality and of humanity itself?

D. R. LOCKE, Editor of the Toledo Blade, widely known as "Petroleum V. Nashy" died at that place on Wednesday of consumption in the 55th year of his age.

The Weekly Times of Philadelphia began its Twelfth volume this week. It stands in the very front rank of popular family journals.

Two great enemies—Hoods Sarsaparilla and impure blood. The latter is utterly defeated by the peculiar medicine.

The Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph says: "It has been found from official sources that all the troubles and internal dissensions in the South Pennsylvania Railroad have been settled, and on Saturday afternoon last the final papers were signed by the parties in interest. The proposition upon which the road will be completely originated with Andrew Carnegie, and has been agreed to by the Vanderbilt and Messrs. Hostetter and Bagaley of this city. These three parties represent $10,000,000 of the capital stock. The stockholders controlling the other half million of the stock have agreed to the plan, which consists of an immediate cash subscription of twenty per cent. This will realize three million dollars, making ten millions spent on the road thus far. As soon as this is expended $10,000,000 thirty years six per cent. gold bonds will be issued, the money derived from which will complete the road and put it in good running shape. The Vanderbilts have agreed to take $3,000,000 of the new bonds, and Hostetter, Bagaley and Carnegie $600,000 each. All suits will be withdrawn except those of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and the work of completing the road will be pushed at once."

Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severe salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine. "I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely affecting my face and neck, and it was only by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla that I was cured. It is a wonderful medicine, and I can truly say that it has saved me from a life of suffering. I have tried many other medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the agonies disappeared, and now I am entirely free from the disease. My blood seems to be thoroughly purified, and my general health is greatly benefited." LYMAN ALLEN, Sexton N. E. Church, North Chicago, Ill.

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and the claws of his legs, so bad that they would crack open and bleed. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. STANTON, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

From 108 to 135

"I was seriously troubled with salt rheum for three years, and receiving no benefit from medical treatment I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now entirely cured of salt rheum; my weight has increased from 108 to 135. Mess. ALLEN, STANTON, Stamford, Conn. If you suffer from salt rheum, or any blood disease, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured many others, and will cure you."

Hon. C. Edwards Lester,

Late U. S. Consul to Italy, author of "The Glory and Shame of England," "America's Advancement," etc., etc., etc.,
writes as follows:

New York, August 1, 1886.
122 E. 27th St.,
New York.
Gentlemen:—A sense of gratitude and the desire to render a service to the public impel me to make the following statements:
My college career, at New Haven, was interrupted by a severe cold which so enfeebled me that, for ten years, I had a hard struggle for life. Hemorrhage from the bronchial passages was the result of almost every fresh exposure. For years I was under treatment of the ablest practitioners without avail. At last I learned of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which I used (moderately and in small doses) at the frequent recurrence of cold or any chest difficulty, and from which I invariably found relief. This was over 25 years ago. With all sorts of exposure, in all sorts of climates, I have never, to this day, had any cold nor any affection of the throat or lungs which did not yield to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral within 24 hours.

Of course I have never allowed myself to be without this remedy in my travels and travels. Under my own observation, it has given relief to vast numbers of persons; while in acute cases of pulmonary inflammation, such as croup and diphtheria in children, life has been preserved through its effects. I recommend its use in light but frequent doses. Properly administered in accordance with your directions, it is in any house. I speak earnestly because I feel earnestly. I have known many cases of apparently confirmed bronchitis and cough, with loss of voice, particularly among playmen and other public speakers, perfectly cured by this medicine. Faithfully yours,

C. EDWARDS LESTER.
