SOMEHOW OR OTHER.

Life has a burden for every man's shoulder;
 None may escape from its troubles and care;
 Miss it in youth, and 'twill come when we're older,
 And fit us as close as the garments we wear.

Sorrow comes into our lives uninvited,
 Robbing our hearts of their treasures of song;
 Lovers grow cold, and friendships are slighted,
 Yet somehow or other we worry along.

Every-day toil is an every-day blessing,
 Though poverty's cottage and crust we may share—
 Weak is the back on which burdens are pressing,
 But stout is the heart that is strengthened by prayer.

Somehow or other the pathway grows brighter;
 Just when we mourn there are none to befriend;
 Hope in the heart makes the burden seem lighter,
 And somehow or other we get to the end.

ROMANTIC NEW MEXICO.

A Conquering State that had a Civilization Before the Days of Columbus.

The prospect that a bill to admit Dakota, Washington Territory, Montana and New Mexico as States will pass in the next Congress is exercising the people of the four Territories to a considerable degree, but nowhere has it excited the people and the press to the same extent as in New Mexico, where they are fighting over the name of a State yet unknown.

Shall it be the State of New Mexico, the State of Montezuma, the State of Pueblo or the State of Kearney, or a State at all?

That is the question which now agitates the people of the Territory of New Mexico, who are to the man born and those of the native population who have become associated with them. The old man who, without his consent ever being asked, was made a citizen of the United States by the forces of General Kearney and the "Army of the West" in 1846, preserves his Aztec quietism. His son, born under the flag, has no idea whether the citizen of a State is better off than the citizen of a Territory, and is content to let Congressman Springer's "Omnibus bill," as far as it concerns the land he lives in, take care of itself, unless, indeed, the change threatens to increase the taxes on his one house and two lots which the Sheriff advertises in English and Spanish annually, as being liable to sale for non-payment of delinquent assessments. The fear that this may be the case inclines him just now against the change.

And then there are the Pueblo Indians, citizens of the United States, be it remembered, who are entitled to vote on the question, "Shall New Mexico enter the sisterhood of States?" There are fifteen thousand of them, and they live to-day much as they lived when Marcos de Niza first feasted his eyes on their great towns, when Coronado sought the mystical seven cities of Cibola and when Espejo had his headquarters at Zuni.

New Mexico has a history wild, weird and wonderful, surrounded with a halo of romance which is lost in the mists of antiquity. She is no off-spring of the pioneer and enterprising spirit of the Anglo-Saxon. She had a civilization before Columbus had given the Old World a knowledge of the New and the Spaniards had brought to it European customs and the Christian faith. Dakota, Washington Territory and Montana were howling wildernesses when American troops under General Kearney took possession of that country in the name of the United States.

There have been three epochs in the history of this Territory—the Pueblo, the Spanish and the American.

Of the Pueblo civilization, which built cities, followed trades and constructed great public works in a desert country given over to nomadic tribes, we have but the brief and, in many instances, incorrect accounts of the early Spanish travelers who explored the country.

The legend of Montezuma is of interest just now, as Montezuma is the name by which Mr. Springer suggests New Mexico should be admitted to the Union. It is briefly as follows: Montezuma is said to have been born in the pueblo of Teguayo—the present city of Santa Fe—of a young virgin to whom was given three pinon nuts, one of which she was to eat and keep the other two for her mother and grandmother. From the one she ate Montezuma was conceived and brought forth. According to tradition he was in his youth a poor, shiftless, Bohemian sort of fellow, who gave small promise of future greatness. In his wildest time the Chief of the Pueblo died and the principal men, not being able to agree on a successor, it was left to the young men to select one, and they decided to cast lots. The lot fell upon Montezuma and excited much discontent. The despised youth, however, assured them all that on the first day of the chase he would display his power to them. They should catch the small game with their hands and the large game would deliver themselves to capture. According to the legend, near the dawn of the day of the chase the Great Spirit appeared to Montezuma, and, finding him sad, spake encouragingly: "Montezuma, why art thou cast down?" Answering, he said: "Great Father, my soul possesses me in tribulation; this is the day appointed for the chase and I, as Chief, must lead. I know not how it may come to pass among my people." And the Great Spirit, answering, said: "Do not despair. Thou shalt be successful. Go to the cabin and search for the blankets and moccasins thy mother left thee before she died." He did as he was bid and found them, and they were adorned with turquoise. And the Great Spirit further said: "The arms thy mother held for thee are on the other side; re-enter and search and thou shalt find a strongbow and a well-filled quiver made of lion skin and a head-dress made of a plume of eagle feathers." The Great Spirit then gave him a rattle and commanded: "Thou shalt sound this rattle to the east, west, north and south as a charm and a sign for all animals to surrender to thee upon approach, and which same shall be published by outcry, after the manner of thy people."

Inspired by the Great Spirit, all that Montezuma foretold came to pass. The Great Spirit then revealed to him that a large eagle would appear to him, on which he was to ride to select the future capital of his country. Eight days before starting the Great Spirit selected Melinche, a maiden from the pueblo of Zuni, as his wife, and she was proclaimed Queen. After several years of travel on the back of the eagle Montezuma arrived (A. D. 1325) at a lake, where the eagle alighted upon a prickly pear, seizing at the same time a serpent in its beak. Here was founded the great pueblo of the Aztec Empire under Montezuma, and this event was annually celebrated until the coming of the Children of the Sun—the Europeans.

Despite the romantic associations connected with the legend Montezuma finds little favor as a name for the new State among the New Mexicans.

The Spanish conquest of the Aztecs went on with quiet persistence until the cruelty of the newcomers drove, in 1680, the Pueblos into successful revolt and they were expelled from the country. They soon returned, however, and for years waged a war for supremacy, which terminated in 1696 in the final subjugation of the natives and the thorough establishment of Spanish dominion in the province of New Mexico. When Mexico revolted from Spain and established a republic New Mexico quietly changed its allegiance. Its history then became one of domestic disturbance and Indian wars in common with all Northern Mexico.

In the early twenties the Santa

Fe trail was established and St. Louis merchants commenced to do a most profitable business with New Mexico. The only way in which goods at that time could reach Santa Fe except by the trail was by sea to Vera Cruz, thence to the City of Mexico, thence to El Paso, and then by semi-annual caravans up the Rio Grande and across the Jornada. The Santa Fe trail for years was from Independence along the Arkansas River, thence across the Cimarron, thence to Las Vegas, San Miguel and Santa Fe. Another route not so much travelled was along the Arkansas, thence southwest to Raton Pass, following, in fact, the present line of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad. Pack animals were employed at first, but in 1830 they were completely superseded by prairie schooners. The average trip over the trail with loaded wagons was made in seventy days, and the return trip, with light load, in forty. In 1846 there were 414 wagons on the Santa Fe trail, and the value of the merchandise transported was estimated at $1,752,250.

This year witnessed the American occupation of the country by General Kearney and the "Army of the West." This title given to Kearney's little force would in our days seem to savor strongly of patriotism. It consisted all told of 1,658 men, the bulk of them being volunteers raised in Missouri and the remainder six companies of the First Dragoons, Kearney's own regiment. The army had also sixteen pieces of light ordnance, and was expected to march 1,000 miles through a desert and conquer a hostile and well settled province.

And it did what was expected. It marched across Western Kansas and Southern Colorado, then known as the Great American Desert. At times the men were without water, frequently on half rations, and on the day the American flag was hoisted on the plaza at Santa Fe but a third of a ration was served out to them, although there was plenty of provisions in the town. This strange state of things was owing to the people having been declared citizens of the United States and entitled to the full protection of their property. There was no money in the military chest to pay for supplies, and the Mexicans were not at the time very anxious to accommodate the enemies of the country. Kearney's occupation of the country was virtually a walk over, and he was its master before he issued the proclamation which made it part of the United States.

This forcible conferring upon the New Mexicans of the citizenship of the United States was legalized subsequently by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which provided that all inhabitants of New Mexico, except those who chose formally to retain their American citizenship, should be recognized as citizens of the United States by the high contracting parties. The New Mexico of to-day includes an area of 350 miles square, covering five degrees of latitude, from the 32d to the 37th degree, and six degrees of longitude, from the 103d to the 109th degree. It contains 122,500 square miles and 78,000,000 acres of land, equal to the nine States of New York, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Delaware. The population is estimated at 134,000, of which about 23,000 are immigrants from the States and from Europe. The amount of taxable property is $58,000,000, the funded and floating debt of the Territory about $450,000, of which $350,000 is for the new Capitol and penitentiary building at Santa Fe. Few of the thirteen counties have any heavy indebtedness, and the total taxation for both territorial and county purposes is under two per cent. This includes a school tax of three mills on the dollar. So much for the material points in connection with the proposed new State.

As far as concerns the requirements for admission as a State there is no doubt, whatever, among Americans that New Mexico fills the bill, but there is considerable headshaking when the moral and social aspects of the question are considered. The truth is, the Territory at the present moment is suffering from Mexican ascendancy in legislature and council, and many resident Americans fear that as a State the present conditions of affairs would soon be intolerable. There are only the three counties of Grant, Lincoln and Sierra that can send Americans to Santa Fe. The American population is so small that it has not succeeded in changing the manners of thought of the mass of the people who are to-day much as they were when Kearney ran up the American flag on the plaza at Santa Fe. The majority of the Justices of the Peace are Mexicans, and the law, which is printed in both Spanish and English, is administered by them in their own tongue. Spanish is the prevailing language of the country, and there are many towns where a word of English is hardly ever spoken. In the district courts juries are often composed entirely of men who cannot speak a word of English, and interpreters have to be employed to convey to them not only the testimony of witnesses but the arguments of counsel and the charge of the Judge. The verdict is not rendered in criminal cases "guilty" or "not guilty," but "culpable" or "non-culpable." Many of the best American lawyers in the Territory, such as Colonel Albert J. Fountain, the Republican war horse of Dona Ana County, Conway of Santa Fe and Posey of Grant, address the jury directly in Spanish, so that their eloquence may not be filtered through an interpreter and lost in transit to the jury box.

In politics it is the same way. The Conventions are held in Spanish, and the proceedings translated for the benefit of the few few American delegates into English. You do not vote the Democratic ticket; you vote the "Boleta Democratica" or the "Boleta Republicana," as the case may be, and the offices which you vote to fill are also translated on the ticket.

These are the things which incline many conservative Americans in the Territory to wish to put off the day for its admission as a State until the American element assumes some real importance in the sum total of its population. This is important in view of the little value the average Mexican attaches to his vote, which in many counties is at the disposal of the holders of the old Spanish land grants and their representatives. These land grants are the curse of New Mexico. Some of them are of enormous extent, ranging from hundreds of thousands up to close on 2,000,000 acres. Their very existence has prevented the progress of American civilization in the Territory. Speaking of this evil, Governor Ross says:

"Their owners, some of them aliens, persist in holding these vast bodies of land intact, refusing to subdivide or sell any portion on any terms, with the avowed intention of establishing thereon a system of tenantry antagonistic to the extension of American industrial economy, American society and the American Government. This purpose of the holders of these estates, unless thwarted by prompt action can but breed mischief morally, industrially and politically."

The views of the Governor of the Territory are those of every intelligent citizen, but the abuse continues without remedy. The vote of the Territory is very evenly balanced between the Republican and Democratic parties, with the former slightly in the lead. The voters do not vote independently, but follow the lead of a few men, like the Armijos, Francisco Manzanaras, Antony Joseph of Taos, the present delegate to Congress, Colonel Ryerson of Las Cruces, and about half a dozen others, who carry the vote of New Mexico in their pockets. These are facts well known to every man in the Territory to-day.

Gardening for Ladies. Make up your bed early in the morning; see buttons on your husband's shirt; do not wash up grievances, protect the young and tender branches of your family; plant smiles of good temper, and reap a crop of health and happiness; root out the causes of nervous debility and "female weakness," by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a sovereign specific, and thousands of the fair sex bless the day they first heard of it. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

To cleanse the stomach, liver, and system generally, use Dr. Pierce's Pellets.

From the Banner Citizen. An effort is to be made to connect New Cumberland, this county, with Steelton, Dauphin Co., by a suspension bridge over the Susquehanna.

While huckster John Hann, of Manchester, was returning home a few days ago, his wagon upset and destroyed 15 dozen eggs. The wagon was also badly broken.

Parties have for the past several months been prospecting for silver ore in West Manheim township, near the Maryland line, traces of the precious metal having been found in several places.

The Washington hotel property, at York, has been sold to the D. E. Small estate for $26,525. It will be torn away and one of the finest business houses in the city will be erected where it and the McLean property now stand.

A corporation to be known as the Conewago Oil and Gas Co., limited, has been organized at York, with a capital of $3,000, and will begin boring for oil in the neighborhood of York in the spring. They have leased about 1500 acres of land in Manchester township, and are extending their domain in different directions.

About 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon of last week a ball, nearly shaped like an egg, filled with powder and ready to explode, was found in the yard of David Newcomer, in Manheim township. After the discovery of the ball, the stock, corn fodder and farming implements were removed from the end of the barn where it was found, to the outside. At 4.30 an explosion took place in the corn fodder which had been removed, another ball with powder being found to have been placed there. Mr. Newcomer and the neighbors were kept very busy extinguishing the fire. They had been on the lookout for something to occur after the first ball was found. It has been a usual thing in that vicinity of late to see a burning barn at from four to seven o'clock in the evening. The people felt themselves in great danger in Codorus and Manheim twps. This is the eighth barn in that section that has been fired within a few months.

A special in the Baltimore American says: "A notice has been hereabouts that seven more barns will be burned within a specified time."

Does It Pay. Three-fourths of our people are troubled with Dyspepsia or Liver Complaint in some form or other, which by nature of the disease has a depressing influence on the mind or body, preventing them from thinking or acting clearly in any matter of importance. Indigestion, coming up of food after eating, dyspepsia, sick headache, acidity of the stomach or liver (upon which the whole action of our system depends) are speedily and effectually overcome by the use of Green's August Flower. The most stubborn cases have yielded to its influence, as thousands of letters received will testify. The immense sale of this medicine is another guarantee of its merits, over a million and a half bottles sold last year. So we ask, will it pay to suffer from any of the above diseases when you can have immediate relief in the August Flower. Three doses will prove its worth. It is sold by all druggists and general dealers in all parts of the world.

Annex Items. BALTIMORE, Jan. 8.—Memorial services were held in Royer's Hill M. E. Church, in memory of the E. Newton Jones, Sunday, Jan. 6. Addresses were made by the Rev. John Goncher, of First M. E. Church, Rev. Edw. L. Watson, pastor of Royer Hill, Rev. C. D. Smith, pastor of Guilford Ave. M. E. Church, and others. Are we to Have Another War. Some political prophets aver that we shall. Be that as it may, the battle waged by medical science against disease will never cease until we arrive at that utopian epoch when the human family shall cease to be afflicted with bodily ailments. One of the most potent weapons which the armory of medicine furnishes, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is of special utility as a family remedy, as it is adapted to the immediate relief and ultimate cure of those disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels which are of common occurrence. Indigestion, biliousness and constipation are inseparable companions, and these ailments are completely eradicated by the Bitters. But the remedial scope of this specific is not limited to the ailments mentioned in also nervous ailments, rheumatism and kidney troubles; its action is, in fact, in the only complaints, being characterized by unequalled thoroughness.

The annual reunion and banquet of Cole's Cavalry was held in Baltimore on Thursday evening.

We were compelled to leave out the proceedings of the Blue Mountain Farmers' Club, which arrived too late for insertion this week.

MAJ. O. A. HORNER and family have taken possession of their new residence in the bank building. Mr. A. A. Annan and wife will occupy the old Annan homestead until next spring.

EVERY one is entirely willing to be his neighbor's physician; yet tried remedies should only be employed. The popularity of Laxador is constantly increasing, which testifies to the real worth of this valuable family medicine. It costs only 25 cents.

Always reliable and efficacious. Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup never disappoints mothers and nurses, but cures at once the troublesome diseases of babyhood. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle.

Wedding at Mt. St. Mary's. Mr. Charles Eckenrode of Littlestown was married to Miss Lulu, daughter of Mr. Franklin B. Welty of this district, at Mt. St. Mary's College on Thursday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edw. P. Allen, president of the college. After a dinner at the residence of the bride's parents, the happy couple started on the 3:20 train for a trip to Baltimore and Washington. They will reside in Littlestown.

The Firemen and the Commissioners. A committee composed of Messrs. Jeremiah O'Donoghue, vice-president, Wm. H. Troxell, secretary of the Vigilant Hose Company, waited on the Board of Town Commissioners while in session on Thursday night, and requested that the company be furnished with six gun coats for the use of the nozzles and six additional lanterns. It is understood that the commissioners decided to furnish them with four coats and four lanterns.

ABOUT 4 o'clock, P. M., on Wednesday, the heavens suddenly grew dark in this neighborhood and for a time it seemed that it would be necessary to light the lamps, the winds roared, the rain descended threatening a violent storm, but in about an hour the storm subsided, the heavens grew bright, there was a fine sunset and the evening was remarkably bright and beautiful. The whole grand performance was but a side issue of the great cyclone of that day in Pennsylvania, which wrought such terrible destruction in several places.

Handsome Monuments. A handsome monument has just been erected in the M. E. Cemetery, this place, over the remains of the late Joseph Troxell and wife. It is mounted on a heavy marble base, with a sub-base bearing the name "Troxell" cut in raised rustic letters. The die is a heavy piece of Italian marble and has the inscriptions cut in relief letters. The die rests a tall obelisk shaft with tracing on the lower part. The height of the monument is 10 feet 3 inches. The inscriptions state that Mr. Troxell died April 15, 1888, aged 85 years, 2 months and 1 day, and Mrs. Troxell died Nov. 27, 1888, aged 80 years, 7 months and 27 days.

The monument was made by Mr. Wm. H. Hoke of this place, who recently erected one almost exactly like it in the Lutheran Cemetery, over the grave of the late Mr. Isaac Hyder.

Two Slight Fires. Some leaves and saw dust catching fire in the bottom of Mr. I. S. Annan's ice house, on Tuesday afternoon brought out the Fire Company in a rush. The fire was extinguished without turning on the water, and before any damage was done.

Another fire was discovered in the stable on the same premises about half past one o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. This was also extinguished without damage to the property.

A Handsome Calendar. Teach blow cheeks and rosy lips, deep blue eyes and curly auburn hair, are possessed by the lovely girl whose face adorns Hood's Sarsaparilla Calendar for 1889. She wears a dainty bonnet, and the head is "cut-out" so as to look quite realistic. Hood's Calendar is easily the best of its kind, and like the Sarsaparilla it represents a good thing to have in the house. The pad harmonizes with the exquisite array of color above, while the dates are easily read. Hood's Calendar may be obtained through your druggist or by sending 6 cents in stamps to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

He Drive "Old Tippecanoe" in a Stage. Mr. Peter Logue, who lives at No. 314 Pearl street, is a vigorous old gentleman over 70 years of age, who in his younger days saw rough service in driving mail stages and other passenger vehicles through the mountainous portions of Maryland. Mr. Logue, during the hot hard-elder campaign of Wm. Henry Harrison, carried that gentleman from Emmitsburg to Frederick. He describes the ride as follows: "I was driving horses at the time for Mayor Wm. Otter, of Emmitsburg, who was in the lively and coach business. During the old Tippecanoe campaign I was called upon to drive Mr. William Henry Harrison, grandfather of the present President elect, to Frederick. There were in the carriage Joseph Welty, Joshua Motter and Dr. Annan, the last mentioned being still alive at Emmitsburg. One of the nicknames of Gen. Harrison was 'Old Granny,' and as I am a democrat my friends used to rig me by saying that I had to wear red petticoats on the trip. I recollect the drive as if it were yesterday. We drove from Emmitsburg to Mount St. Mary's, where a big dinner was served, and when we drove off about thirty of the young students had gups and banged away in salute as the last man got into the carriage. I couldn't hold the horses, and they dashed down the country road toward the pike, bumping over rocks and stumps, and I guess it was the roughest ride of the old General ever had. When we got to Tuscarora creek, which was swollen from rains, we dashed through and stopped to let the horses get a little wind and water. Mr. Welty pulled out his watch and said: 'We've made the seven miles in 37 minutes.' We had to bore holes in the bottom of the carriage to let out the water, which poured into the carriage from the creek. We then drove on to Frederick, where a tremendous crowd on horseback, in wagons and afoot had come to hear General Harrison speak. He talked from the veranda of a hotel on Patrick street." Mr. Logue is one of the oldest living veteran volunteer firemen of Baltimore.—Sun of Jan. 5.

The creek referred to must have been Owen's creek, near Loy's Station, which is about seven miles from the college. Tuscarora creek is near Frederick.—Ed.

Merit Wins. We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salves and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. All Druggists.

The Window-Dresser.

There is no man of greater importance just now than the professional window-dresser. Few people have any idea of his bigness and fullness of spirit, his autocratic sway in the dry goods store in which he is engaged, and the manifold qualifications that make up his value. An idea may be gained of his lofty position by the salary he draws. This ranges from $2,000 to $5,000 a year. Six or seven years ago he got $10 a week. That was before he elevated his calling to the pinnacle of art.

The Samuel Ready School.

We are permitted to publish the following interesting article from the pen of a scholar in the "Samuel Ready School" of Baltimore, which is conceded to be one of the most praiseworthy endowments in our State. As will be seen, Miss Helen Rowe, of Frederick, is the accomplished and esteemed principal of the institution, and Miss Clara Steiner, also of this city, is one of her most efficient assistants. A number of Frederick girls are attending the school:

ECLECTIC MAGAZINE Scribner's Magazine

For 1889. The publishers of Scribner's Magazine aim to make it the most popular and enterprising of periodicals, while at the same time preserving its high literary character. 25,000 new readers have been drawn to it during the past six months by the increased excellence of its contents (notably the Railway articles), and it closes its second year with a new impetus and an assured success. The illustrations will show some new effects, and nothing to make Scribner's Magazine attractive and interesting will be neglected.

Every large store with a professional window-dresser has a property-room, where the functionary keeps his kit of tools, pots of paint, talie and other utensils. In one corner is a water motor ready to turn mechanical toys in the windows. Near by a dozen wax ladies' heads sit upon a shelf next their bodies and skirt forms. Unlike most women, they can be taken apart and kept on the shelf when not showing off fiery.

The window-dresser, when laying out a job, can take anything out of the stock of the store that he likes. Extraordinary jobs of plumbing and carpentry and the like he orders outside, and directs the bill to be sent to the proprietor. He sends out for goods, fancy lamp shades, or any thing else. His only rule is to buy from the houses indicated by the boss, who bows in submission and foots the bill. His esthetic tendencies will not permit him to use pink lamp shades when they should be yellow, or vice versa.

Articles on ART SUBJECTS will be a feature. Papers are arranged to appear by Clarence Cook, E. H. Blashfield, Austin Dobson, and many others. ILLUSTRATED ARTICLES of great variety, touching upon all manner of subjects, travel, biography, description, etc., will appear, but not of the conventional commonplace sort.

WE WANT AGENTS. To be presented to the Agents sending the 221 largest clubs of subscribers to the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST before March 1st, 1889.

Remember these prizes will be presented in addition to the premiums or commission allowed for every club of subscribers received. It makes no difference how large or how small the club is, the persons sending the largest number of subscribers before March 1st will receive the first prize of a $600 piano, the person sending the second largest club will receive $200 in cash and so on for the balance of the prizes.
