"HOW THE SKULE WUZ BUILT."

When old man Patterson passed away

From this tenement of mortal clay

He called his children beside his bed,

"I slowly an' solemnly he said;

"I never had no chance to 'arn,

With my row ter hoe an' my salt ter

'arn,

An' mebbe 'tis my head's tew thick

For readin', writin', an' 'rithmetic.

But, Hiram an' Sophronisby Jane,

These is my wishes, clear an' plain,

Thet ye put up a skule-house, stick an'

staff,

An' each on ye is ter put up half.

Ef ye hev'n't done it inside a year,

My will an' testament hez it clear—

For my mind ain't poor nor wand'rin' yit—

Not a single red cent will ye git."

Ye see, the old man hed 'em fast;

Though they kicked ag'in' the pricks an' ast

A dozen lawyers ter break the will,

An' spent thet money ter dew it, till

They'd done a plenty, fast an' last,

Ter run a farm; yit the will held fast.

To build wuz the best way aout o' the fix.

Jane, fer the looks o' the thing, said

bricks,

But Hiram vaowed, ez sure ez his name

Wuz Hi, his half should be honest frame.

They argyed an' argyed, sister an'

brother,

Tell they warn't on speakin' terms with each other.

Tell one day they sot on the old rail fence,

Watchin' thet seppit men commence,

An' tryin' ter show they didn't kear

An' each didn't know thet other was there.

Day after day, like tew old crows,

They sot while thet wonderful skule arose.

Tell it wuz finished an' made an' done,

The darn'dest skule-house under the sun—

One side mortar an' stone an' bricks,

Thet other plaster an' paint an' sticks;

One side high an' t'other low,

Ez ef they didn't know which ter go,

They sot an' looked at the humbly thing,

Thet woz neither fit fer winter ner

spring;

An' they thought o' the money throwed away,

An' the workmen demandin' double pay.

Hi looked at Jane, then down he stepped,

An' they fell in each other's arms an'

wept.

Is it st'ndin' yit? Oh, yes; the town

Hedn't no power ter take it down.

Go over by Jenkins' dawn the lane—

You couldn't miss it, it's clear an'

plain—

An' you'll see the darn'dest o' districk

skules,

A monymint ter them tew old fules.

—Florence E. Pratt, in Judge.

Father Damien's Heroism.

The Story of His Life Among the Lepers

Told by a Friend.

A life of Father Damien will be published in the course of a few days by the Macmillans. It is by Edward Clifford, the English traveler, who paid a visit to him last year at Molokai, the little island to the north of Hawaii which is used by the Sandwich Islands as a leper settlement. The whole civilized world has been deeply interested in the young Belgian priest who became a leper in order that he might work among the outcasts of Molokai. Other missionaries, it is true, have been as brave and self-denying as Damien, but there is something in the circumstances of his career particularly striking to the imagination. The fact that Damien gave his life for a class of sufferers who attracted the especial sympathy of Jesus Christ heightens the interest of his case.

FATHER DAMIEN.

The scene of his labors and of his death also, and the situation of his grave on a green, mountainous island in the midst of the vast and blue Pacific, is picturesque. The poetic and dramatic quality of his career has been well expressed in a beautiful sonnet by an English clergyman, the Rev. H. D. Rawnsley, a poet who is new to us:

THE GREAT EXPOSITION OF 1892.

The great celebration planned for 1892 in commemoration of the discovery of America, in which the people of the United States, laying aside the assumption that their particular country is America and they the only people entitled to the name of Americans, have invited, besides their Canadian brethren, the two divisions known as Central and South America to take part under the firm name of the Three Americas, in-as-much as they form part of the great continent supposed to have been discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1492; is likely to produce much heated discussion and not a little bad feeling as to the proper place for holding the exposition.

There ought not to be a question with regard to the matter, as the National Capital suggests itself naturally to the mind of every patriotic citizen as the proper place for the United States to prepare for the reception of the guests she has invited to join her in commemorating the birth of this glorious Western World.

But if the large hearted patriotism which is supposed to have instigated the movement in the first place, is to give way to the rivalry and greed that looks only to the power and profit to be derived from the event and each of our prominent cities north, south, east and west claims the right to reap the benefits which would result to the locality in which this stupendous reception is held, the people at large have surely a right to be consulted in deciding so important a question.

New York with the arrogant presumption which characterizes all its public actions completely ignores the possibility of any other locality being chosen, and is coolly deciding the site on which the buildings are to be erected, the amount of money necessary, and even publishing accounts of various sums promised in aid of the cause. There is never an "if" it should be decided to hold the exposition here we can do this and that," but all the arrangements are as coolly discussed as though there could be no question on the subject. And Philadelphia, as she can have no claims of her own, and is near enough to New York to share at least the reflected glory, to say nothing of the profits, unhesitatingly endorses the claims of the proud metropolis, and scouts the possibility of holding the great family gathering in any other place.

Weaker voices too, are calling for recognition in other parts of the country though all unheard or unnoticed, and it will be necessary for the nation to utter a united protest against these individual claims before the thing can be amicably settled.

That Washington is the proper place in which to celebrate this event, there can be no doubt, and it was certainly intended that this should be the spot when the celebration of this anniversary was first discussed, but if there is to be a choice of locations the people have the right to decide the matter through their representatives in Congress assembled.

As the invitation to the other nationalities of America, to join in the celebration comes from the United States as a nation, the place in which the imposing ceremonies are to take place as well as a general outline of preparations, and arrangements should be a national affair and decided by the regular representatives of every state in the glorious sisterhood assembled in the National Capital to work together for the honor and benefit of every member of brother Jonathan's political family.

The sooner the matter is taken in hand and authoritatively settled the better it will be for all concerned, and much bitterness of feeling, disappointment and jealousy will be spared by a thorough understanding of the objects in view as well as the plans for reaching their accomplishment.

Immense damage has been done to the crops in the Valley of Virginia by the recent rains.

The age limit for appointments of letter-carriers in non-civil-service postoffices has been extended from 35 to 40 years.

Neuralgic Persons
And those troubled with nervousness resulting from care or worry will be relieved by taking Brown's Iron Bitters. Genuine has trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

THE ESCAPE OF THE BLACK DIAMOND.
From the prize-crowd of one placed on her by the captain of the Rush permits the Behring sea question to be discussed now in an academic manner, without any flourishing of sabres and nickle-plated pistols. The whole incident was absurd. It was absurd to suppose we had any exclusive rights on the ocean seventy miles from land, and it was absurd to place a large vessel in charge of a prize-crowd of one man. A single man couldn't have taken the Black Diamond anywhere. He couldn't have been at the helm, at the pumps, aloft reefing sail and down below cooking and eating his "duff" all at once. So the prize-crowd had to ask the captain of the Black Diamond to navigate the ship. It is said the prize-crowd staid in the bunk the whole run home. It was probably so convulsed with laughter and full of French brandy that it could not be anywhere else. It probably thought it was going into Sitka when it was put ashore at Victoria. There was never a more ridiculous conclusion of an international incident.—Baltimore Sun.

A GREAT CONFLAGRATION.

The new city of Spokane Falls, in what will soon be the State of Washington, was visited by a conflagration Sunday night which swept away the entire business section, including the newly-erected public buildings. So complete was the destruction that communication with the outside world was cut off for the time being. Twenty-five solidly-built blocks of brick and stone buildings were destroyed, with their contents, involving a loss of about fourteen million dollars.

WILL HAVE A FACTORY.

Within a few weeks $70,400 have been subscribed at Jacksonville, Fla., for establishing a cotton factory there. It is thought the remainder of the $100,000 required to make the factory an assured fact will be subscribed in a short time and work on the building commenced at an early day.—Sun.

The Sioux Nation has been brought to terms at last by General Crook and his fellow commissioners and has signed an agreement to give up their reservation on the West Coast of the Missouri for the sum of fourteen million dollars, by which eleven million acres of land will be thrown open to white settlers.

As it has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that a person thoroughly saturated with water is in no danger of being struck by lightning it would be wise for any one exposed to a thunder storm to stay out in the rain till thoroughly drenched instead of seeking shelter.

The sugar trust is said to be embarrassed as to the disposition of $7,000,000 surplus profits on raw sugar.

WM. H. GOBLE, of Chambersburg, Pa., was killed at McKeesport on Wednesday. He was a conductor on one of the trains of the National tube works.

The Topeka Sugar Works, the largest in Kansas, were almost totally destroyed by fire Tuesday. The loss is estimated at $70,000; insurance $40,000. The entire plant a year ago cost $114,000.

A special examiner of the pension bureau is investigating a peculiar case at Belvidere, N. J., in which two women, both claiming to be the widow of Robert S. Millham, a soldier, have been paid $1,700 each as pension.

Two men robbed a train in Missouri Saturday night in regular Jesse James style. After "holding up" the passengers in one coach and securing their valuables, the robbers had a set too with the conductor on the platform, who being unarmed pelted them with his lantern until they jumped from the train while it was moving at the rate of 25 miles an hour. Two shots were fired at the Conductor without effect.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO.

As a result of the report of the commission which investigated the needs of the New York Postoffice, Postmaster-General Wanamaker has directed that an additional allowance of $73,000 be granted Postmaster Van Cott. His present allowance is $1,034,000. An additional force of clerks to the number of 102 is also allowed him, which, with his present force, will make an aggregate working force of 1,298 employees. Messrs. Morgan, Wood and Plimley, representing Postmaster Van Cott, who have been here for several days conferring with the Postoffice authorities, were authorized to submit to the Postmaster-General for approval a general readjustment of salaries in the New York Postoffice, in line with the recommendations submitted by commission. ## THE HAY FEVER SEASON.

July, August, September.

"At this season, when life offers the greatest attractions and most delightful resources to persons whose soundness of body permits out-of-door exercises and amusements, multitudes are debilitated from the joys of the summer by hay fever, one of the most exasperating, wearisome, and depressing ills to which humanity is subject—obscure, inexplicable, descending on a given date like an invisible blow of fate. The sufferers from hay fever have looked in vain for any trustworthy remedy. Many of them, however, have looked in vain because they have been ignorant of Hood's Sarsaparilla, an admirable remedy for hay fever in all its forms. Agreeable in action, entirely devoid of any unpleasant after-effects, this Cream Balm quickly allays inflammation and secures that relief for which the sufferer has longed in vain."—From The Christian Union, New York City, July 13, 1889.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia, I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience the erasing I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

Work of an Incendiary.

The hay barns on the farm of Mrs. Fannie Burke, about two and a half miles northeast of New Market, were destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. #### A LEAF FROM HISTORY.

An Old Soldier's Visit to this place recalls an incident of the Late War.

During the month of July, 1863, while Maj. Starr's regiment, 6th U. S. Cavalry, was in this place, word was sent to town that a rebel train was at Diehl's Mill, about 4 miles north of here, in Adams county, Pa., hauling away wheat and flour, whereupon Maj. Starr's regiment was ordered immediately to the scene to capture the train. But alas! "The best laid plans o' mice and men," etc. Upon arriving at the mill the supposed train turned out to be a brigade of cavalry and a battery of artillery, which force Starr's regiment encountered at Fairfield of course suffering a complete rout, being literally cut to pieces, losing about 250 men and horses, either killed or taken prisoner.

This incident is recalled by the arrival in this place on Wednesday evening, of a man named William Lloyd—who was during the war a member of Starr's regiment, and on the occasion above mentioned was struck by a pistol ball, just at the upper corner of the left eye, the ball glancing to the side, and passing over the bone, lodged just above the ear. When shot Mr. Lloyd was on the streets of Fairfield, where about six or eight of Starr's men had made a desperate stand, and withheld the forces, who failed to follow them further. Mr. Lloyd was then taken in charge by his comrades, who returned to this place, and Dr. Andrew Annan removed the ball. He remained here during his convalescence, for about six weeks, and being of a bright and happy disposition became a social favorite throughout the town, winning to himself many warm friends. After his recovery Mr. Lloyd again entered the service and finally got into Texas, where the climate having a bad effect upon him, he received an honorable discharge, two years and a half after he was wounded.

Mr. Lloyd, as above stated arrived here on Wednesday evening and is now stopping at the McDevitt House, and a busier man has not been in town for many a day than he, traveling around renewing old acquaintances and exchanging greetings with the friends of years ago. He seems to be possessed of a wonderful memory and recalls many of his old friends at sight, although twenty-six years have elapsed since his sojourn in our midst. On Thursday afternoon he visited Fairfield, the scene of the terrible encounter.

It Got in His Ear.

On Wednesday evening as Charles Hardman was walking up the alley leading to the Lutheran church a butterfly flew into his ear. Charles caught it by the wings and in trying to pull it out, broke the wings off. On Thursday morning Dr. R. L. Annan removed the insect from his ear and it was still alive. He has suffered no inconvenience since its removal.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. A Grand Parade which was Enjoyed by a Large Crowd of Spectators.

The Fifth Annual Pic-Nic of the Vigilant Hose Co., No. 1, of this place was held last Saturday, and proved a grand success. At an early hour in the morning large crowds of country people began arriving in town, and by 9 o'clock the streets presented a holiday appearance. The parade was headed by the Chief Marshalls on horseback, who were Capt. Geo. T. Eyster of the Hose Company, Maj. O. A. Horner, Commander of Arthur Post No. 41, G. A. R., and Geo. T. Gelwicks, Past Sachem of Massasoit Tribe No. 41, In'd. Order Red Men. Then followed the Emmitt Cornet Band, in their bright uniforms, and with the lively airs they played seemed to stir up every one. A. R. men, and Sons of Veterans. The order of parade was the same as arranged for the Fourth of July.

The exercises at St. Joseph's Academy will be resumed on the first Monday of September.

The weather during the early part of this week was cool and delightful, being more like October than August.
