"WHAT DO YOU KNOW?"

You who imagine you are so wise Will please stand up in a row, And I'll give you a little exercise To learn how much you know.

No doubt you'll all be very glad Our Presidents to name, Or to tell the number we have had,
Or the States from which they came.

And next please answer without delay—For this is an easy one—How many States have we to-day From Maine to Oregon?

And this is so simple it may amuse And even make you laugh—How many letters do you use In writing your autograph?

'Twould almost seem beyond belief If one of you should say You do not know how many teeth You still retain to-day.

You're now dismissed, but ere you go Here's a memory gem for you:
'T sometimes happens we do not know As much as we think we do."

OLD BALLADS.

By Frank H. Stauffer.

Bryant's beautiful poem, "The Old Man's Counsel," is very much a transcript of a conversation between himself, when a boy, and his old grandfather, who was a Puritan of the most pronounced type. In the later years of his life Bryant's heart turned so yearningly toward the scenes of his childhood that he repurchased the old homestead, which had passed into other hands, and remodeled it into a beautiful country residence.

Longfellow's poem, "Excelsior," was composed on the back of a letter received the same day from Charles Sumner. The entire theme was suggested by the word excelsior, which caught his eye in a torn piece of newspaper late one autumn evening in 1841.

Josh Billings failed to achieve fame as an essayist, and accomplished it as a humorist. He kept a lively stable in Pongkeepsie, and wrote short essays, which he regarded as chunks of wisdom and philosophy. Much to his disappointment they "fell flat," as the saying is. He rewrote them, euphonically misspelling the words, and found himself famous.

Commercially speaking, the first five numbers of Dickens' "Pickwick Papers" were a failure, the average sale of each not exceeding fifty copies. But the unique character of Sam Weller began to attract attention, and by the time the twelfth number was reached the serial had achieved a great success, the back numbers being in immediate demand, and the sales of each copy amounting to 40,000. The publishers made a clear profit of nearly $100,000, after paying Dickens $17,500.

Goldsmith is sometimes held up as a specimen of genius unrewarded, and yet he was paid $7,300 for his "Natural History." It was mainly a bad translation of Buffon, and rather inaccurate, as it, among other things, stated that cows shed their horns.

Coleridge's "Lyrical Ballads" appeared anonymously, and at once "caught on" to popular favor, the poem of "The Ancient Mariner," being especially highly extolled. The reviewer, "Many-Toned Pinkerton," as he was called, from the number and variety of his writings, was an intimate friend of Coleridge's, but did not know he was the author of the lyrics. He one day broke out against the book, calling it trash, an extravagant and a failure of absurdity, etc. "It is insufferable!" he said. "It is intolerable!" declared Coleridge. "It is detestable!" cried Pinkerton. "It is execrable!" insisted Coleridge. "I am glad we are of the same mind," Pinkerton said. "Let us fix a day for dining at the Turk's Head. We'll have a private room, a beefsteak and a quire of paper, and we'll give the ballads the tearing out they deserve." "I'm with you," assented Coleridge, as he laughed in his sleeve. They did not tear out the ballads, however, neither metaphorically nor jointly.

Robert Browning's meaning is so obscure that he has been called the opaque poet. His poem, "Sordello," met with much ridicule on account of the clouds which obscured its meaning. Punch offered £100 to anyone who would pretend to explain a single line of it, and announced, a year later, that no one had claimed the reward. Douglas Jerrold, the wit, one day met a friend in the British Museum. "Have you read 'Sordello'?" he asked. "Does it mean anything?" "It means nothing at all," replied his friend. "Thank Heaven!" exclaimed Jerrold, "I was afraid my mind did not work with clearness. How relieved I am to find that the fault is not in me, but in Browning."

"Sing a Song of Sixpence" is as old as the sixteenth century. "Three Blind Mice" is to be found in a music book dated 1609. "The Frog and the Mouse" was produced in 1580. "Three Children Sliding on the Ice" dates from 1639. "London Bridge is Broken Down" is of unfathomed antiquity. "Girls and Boys Come Out to Play" is certainly as old as the reign of Charles II.; so is "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket," to the tune of which "Yankee Doodle" was written. "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, Where Have You Been" is of the age of Queen Elizabeth. "The Old Woman Tossed in a Blanket" was written in the reign of James II., and is supposed to allude to him. Some of these skippy verses were incorporated with "Mother Goose's Melodies," and suggested some of them. Mother Goose was a real, and not a fictitious, person. Her maiden name was Goose; she came of an excellent family, and was born in Boston. Her daughter Elizabeth married Thomas Fleet, a printer. They were blessed with a son, to whom Grandmother Goose became very much attached. It was for him that she composed and sang the ditties.

Mr. Fleet, her son-in-law, was a shrewd fellow. He saw that money could be made out of the nursery rhymes, and so he issued them in a book under the title of "Mother Goose's Melodies," and they became widely known and instantly popular.

"Little Jack Horner" is said to be founded on fact, and it is a very old jingle. There are several versions of the story, but the accepted one is that the Abbot of Glastonbury had offended Henry VII., by building his kitchen so substantially that the destroyers of the monasteries were unable to throw it down. In a rage, the king sent for the abbot, who, hoping to appease the monarch, sent to him his steward, John Horner, with a wonderful pie, the interior of which was composed of the title deeds to twelve manors. But as John Horner sat in the corner of the wagon that carried him to the king, he was induced, by curiosity to lift up the crust, and to abstract therefrom a title deed, which, on his safe and successful return home, he showed to the abbot, and told him that the king had given him the deed for a reward. The deed was that of the Manor of Wells.

Owen Casabianco, the hero of Mrs. Hemans's poem beginning "The boy stood on the burning deck," was a real character in history. He was a native of Corsica and was born in 1788. His father was a distinguished French politician and naval commander and his mother a beautiful Corsican lady. But she died young, and little Owen went with his father to serve in a war vessel. He was made a midshipman and at the early age of ten participated with his father in the battle of the Nile. The ship caught fire during the action, and Capt. Casabianco was lying wounded and insensible upon the deck. The boy, unconscious of his father's fate, held his post at the battery. The flames raged round him; the crew fled one by one and urged the lad to do the same. He refused to desert his post and fought on until the vessel was in flames. Then, too late, he sought refuge on a floating mast, when, with a tremendous explosion, the Orient blew up, and the mangled body of the young hero was afterward found among the wreck.

Damage to Adjoining Structures from Heavy Buildings.

With the increasing size and weight of modern office buildings there come not only serious problems of safe and economical construction, but the still more difficult question of how to prevent damage to adjoining structures, not merely from undermining of foundations, which can be avoided by suitable underpinning, but from the actual compression of the soil.

If any one will take the trouble to examine the old and comparatively light buildings alongside of which some high and heavy structure has recently been erected, the chances are that he will find the old buildings more or less damaged by their new neighbor, and cracked walls and sills, and especially cracked lintels over the nearest windows, will show that the old wall next the more recent structure has been carried bodily downward. As before intimated, this settlement in most cases is not caused by any defect in or injury to the foundation of the old building, but by the fact that the heavier structure has compressed the soil and taken the lighter one down with it.

As the evil is progressive, increasing as the new building goes up, and for some time after it is finished, it cannot be provided against once for all, but the remedy must be progressive also, and the only way to prevent the injury is to keep the old wall wedged or screwed up while the new one goes down. The only instance we know of where this has been done is in the case of a large building now being erected in Chicago, where the soil is so compressible that such a building is expected to settle three or four inches during construction, and where one fine tall building has had one corner carried down four or five inches by a heavier building alongside, with the result of very badly cracking the older structure from top to bottom through the nearest line of windows. To avoid such a disaster the wall of the old building, some seven stories high, next which the new building just mentioned is being put up, is temporarily supported on screws, and is by them kept slightly above its normal position, so as to allow for settlement between times. These screws will support the old wall for some six months after the new building is finished, and until all settlement is over. With a less compressible soil, or a lighter building, perhaps iron counterwedges between stout bearing stones would give sufficient lift, and could be left in when the new building was completed.—The Engineering and Building Record.

A "Grippe" Coincidence.

A rather singular coincidence is noted by Congressman Margan, of Mississippi, in reference to the appearance of the "grippe" during Harrison's term. "I remember very well," he said, "in my boyhood that after the election of Harrison and Tyler, and after the death of Harrison, when Tyler had become President and was overturning things in a political way, that an epidemic of influenza swept over the country, just as it is doing now. It had the same name, too, 'the grippe,' and I remember that everywhere it was spoken of as 'the Tyler grippe.' It was the same sort of thing as we have now, and it is a little odd that it should come back again during the term to which another Harrison was elected in it."

A WOMAN in Rhode Janeiro whom the Empress of Brazil was wont to patronize has had her sign changed to read "Senora X—, Corsetmaker to the Republic." This causes an exchange to express the hope that the republic has more "staying" powers than the empire.

The Adulteration of Confectionery.

To the Editor of the Scientific American:

In the editorial notes in your issue of January 18 you refer to the use of terra alba in confectionery, and state that the Board of Trade Journal of Portland, Me., is authority for the assertion that 6,000 tons of terra alba were recently imported through this port for use in confectionery. I have before me the letter of the editor of that publication in which he affirms that he had no authority for the statement, but that the article was clipped from some other publication and the credit left off in the make-up by mistake. I have been unable to trace the statement about the terra alba to any reliable source, or to find any truth in it.

The other statement in your note about the lozenges shipped to St. Louis over the South Shore Railroad emanated from the National Druggist, and I have before me the letter of the editor of that publication saying that the affair occurred five or six years ago, before the National Confectioners' Association was organized.

Believing the Scientific American to be a fair and honorable publication, that would not willingly do injury to an honorable calling, I write so that you may make such reparation as would be proper, to counteract the harm done by the publication in your widely circulated journal; for the circulation of such reports is an injury to the trade.

There is no terra alba used now by any reputable manufacturer of confectionery. The National Confectioners' Association "offers a reward of one hundred dollars for evidence that will enable it to convict any person of adulterating confectionery with poisonous or injurious substances, the association assuming the cost and responsibility of prosecuting the offender." The publisher of the New York Confectioner pledges himself to pay over an additional $100 to the person who furnishes him with the evidence that will enable the National Association to effect a conviction, and several large manufacturers each offer $100 upon the same terms as the Confectioner.

HARRY J. SHELLMAN,
Editor New York Confectioner, New York, January 17, 1890.

[The above assurances that the adulteration of confectionery with terra alba has practically ceased are very gratifying, and we have much pleasure in placing them before our readers.—Ed.]—Scientific American.

Henry Clay and the Goat.

The following anecdote of Henry Clay, has just been published for the first time: As he came out of the Capitol at Washington one day, seeing a frightened woman in the street striving to ward off the attacks of a sportive goat, he gallantly, in spite of his years and office, seized the goat by the horns. The woman thanked him and sped hurriedly on. Mr. Clay would have liked to move on also, but the goat had its own views about the interference with his innocent amusement. As soon as the woman's deliverer loosed his hold on the two horns, the animal rose majestically on its hind legs and prepared for a charge. In his own defence Mr. Clay now took the animal as before by the horns and thus for a time they stood, while a crowd of street boys gathered about, immensely amused at the unusual spectacle of a senator and a goat pitted one against the other in a public street.

As long as Mr. Clay held the goat by the horns, all was well; but the moment the quadruped was free, came a fresh preparation for a charge. Not a boy offered assistance, but after a while one ventured forward to make a suggestion.

"Throw the billy down, sir." Mr. Clay at once accepted and adopted the report of that committee, and tipping the goat up essayed to pass on. Before he could fairly turn away, however, the goat was up in lofty preparation for a new charge. Mr. Clay gave his enemy the floor once more and turned to his new adviser.

"And what shall I do, now?" "Cut and run like the devil," replied the lady.—Omaha Bee.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms.

Dyspepsia After Eating—Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and restores the tired mind.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." Last Friday evening Miss Mamie Sweeney of near Mt. St. Mary's attended service at St. Joseph's church, this place, hitching her horse to the horse-rack on Green street. After service Miss Sweeney discovered that her horse had been taken from where she left him, and a search being instituted he was found hitched at a rack along Main street. The horse and buggy were covered with mud, showing that it had been driven hard. Such an act is an unusual occurrence in our town, and it is to be hoped the offender may be brought to justice. By making an example of one a recurrence will probably be prevented.

Good-wife Grundle grieves and groans, Day and night with sighs and moans Wears her life away.

Good-wife Gayheart sings and smiles;
Time, the gray old thief, beguiles; Keeps as fresh as May.

The two women are of the same age but Good-wife Grundle looks fully fifteen years the older. She is the victim of ill health which might be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Pain, "female weakness" and low spirits are her constant companions.
Good-wife Gayheart, thanks to the "Prescription," enjoys perfect health and seems to grow more young, vivacious and agreeable every day. There is nothing equal to this remedy for all female disorders.

A GENUINE APRIL FOOL.

Editor Chas. E. Cassell of the Clarion, Takes in Newspapers by the Score, and Quietly Sits in His Sack and Laughing in his Sleeve.

In the issue of the Clarion, Clarion of the 27th ult., an article appeared, wherein the editor, in referring to the movement toward the building of a turnpike from Mt. St. Mary's to Crea-gerstown via. Motter's and Rocky Ridge, proposes to let his readers into the secret of what the movement really means, and adds, "it means a first step toward a new county with Rocky Ridge as the county seat." The territory for the new county to be secured by incorporating Middleburg and Taneytown districts of Carroll county and rectifying errors in the original survey of Mason and Dixon's line. The remainder to come off of Frederick county.
The writer then adds: "It is affirmed that Paul Motter of the Emmitsburg Chronicle, Vincent Sebald, Attorney-at-Law, I. M. Fisher, Tax Collector elect, influential citizens of Crea-gerstown and Woodsboro, and J. Sheridan Biggs of Rocky Ridge will have charge of the divorce proceedings in The North-End created some little amusement hereabouts, but no one ever thought of looking upon it in a serious light. We, knowing Bro. Cassell's fondness for a joke, and realizing that it was his last chance for one through the columns of the Clarion, were the first of April had passed, were satisfied to rest quietly and allow him the full enjoyment thereof, but never once dreamed that he would take in the press so successfully. But lo! The Banner of Liberty stumbled to the joke and treated the subject in a jesting manner, while the Westminster Sentinel swallowed the bait, hook and all, and a gullible correspondent from Westminster, forced it upon the Baltimore American and Baltimore Herald of last Friday, while the Frederick News of Monday is taken in by a "Westminster special" dated April 4.

The joke has proved a good one, but it is becoming a burden to those whose names are mentioned, since the office seekers have begun to besiege them for recognition in "their new county." We have had enough personal applications for the sheriff, collector, judge, shipments, etc., to run a dozen counties.

"Every Spring."

Says one of the best housewives in New England, "We feel the necessity of taking a good medicine to purify the blood, and we all take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the children free from humors, my husband says it gives him a good appetite, and for myself I am sure I could never do all my work if it was not for this splendid medicine. It makes me feel strong and cheerful, and I am never troubled with headache or that tired feeling, as I used to be."

From the Gettysburg Compiler.

There is a hitch in the sale of the McClellan Hotel property to Simon J.
Diller, growing out of a dispute as to the line along the railroad, on the north side. The latest movement is the filing of a petition by Mr. Diller asking Court to decide upon his rights under the sale.

A meeting in the interest of prohibition was held at Moritz's school house, Freedom township, last Thursday afternoon and evening. Mr. A. V. Scott was called to preside and invited a free discussion on both sides. At both meetings Rev. J. C. Tranger and John J.
Hill, of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary, discussed the various methods tried and found wanting. They gave the methods now proposed and urged the necessity of a third party to carry on the work. The negative side was not presented.

On Friday afternoon Mr. George A.
Warner, of this place, had a narrow escape from drowning at Lott's fording on Rock creek. The rain of the night before had swollen the stream, very much, and Mr. Warner and his son John, driving a horse in a covered spring wagon, attempted to cross. They did not go far before it was evident the other bank could not be reached. In attempting to turn, the wagon was caught in the current and overturned, throwing both into the water, the son escaping by swimming, but the father was caught in the rapid stream and carried some distance down, when he got hold of a stump and was rescued by a rope thrown him. The horse was drowned and the wagon badly wrecked.

Editor Assailed.

J. M. O'Connell, who has been in Hanover for several months establishing agencies for the sale of the "Monitor Combination Slat and Wire Fence," went to the Hanover Spectator office on Thursday of last week and assaulted Mr. William Leader, senior proprietor of that paper, and a fight occurred in which neither were seriously hurt. The cause of the assault was the publication of an article from the Littlestown Independent, calling the fence men "a party of sharpers" and their business "a nefarious trade," and comparing their manner of business to that of the "Bohemian oats" swindlers.

Blossoms and Herb Pads.

The discovery of the Herb and Blossoms of flowers that throw off an aroma obnoxious to contagious germs or microbes which float in the air, causing sickness, is wonderful. This combination of Herbs has been made into pads by quilting them between muslin, by Anni Rachel, an old successful nurse for over 50 years. It is a thorough disinfectant and curative to the wearer.

More Horses.

McNair and Patterson returned from Virginia last Saturday with another lot of fine horses, which can be seen at their stables. By fair dealing and handling good stock this enterprising firm has built up a large business in horse and cattle dealing.

Peach Culture.

Messrs. Chas. F. Rowe and Jno. M.
Stouter, each of whom has quite extensive peach orchards on the mountain side, have added 700 trees each to their orchards this week. Mr. Rowe also put out 100 pear trees. Mr. F. B. Welty is also going quite extensively into peach culture. It has been proved beyond a doubt that peaches will do as well on this side of the mountain as in the celebrated peach belt of Washington county, and ere long we expect to hear of more persons engaging in the industry.

That Ice Factory.

The movement toward starting an ice factory in this place has now taken definite shape. It has been decided to start a factory with a capacity of three tons a day, which can be gotten in operation by the first of July, provided the stock subscription books are promptly filled.
A joint stock company will be organized with a capital stock of $8,000 divided into 800 shares at a par value of $10 a share.
Subscriptions are now being received.
By every enterprising citizen subscribing a small amount the money will be easily raised and the ice factory may be looked upon as an assured enterprise.

Progress of the New Turnpike.

Another turnpike meeting was held at Mount St. Mary's Benevolent Association's hall, on Saturday last, which a large number of the citizens interested in the project attended. After discussing the most available methods of shortening the route by cutting off some bends of the road over which it is proposed to be built, the committee appointed at the previous meetings was called upon to report, but not having completed the survey of the line the final report was reserved for a meeting to be called by the committee at some convenient place along the line to submit a full report of their entire work. The interest in the enterprise is still increasing and very substantial encouragement is given to the committee having the matter in charge.

East r Services.

Easter services were held at the different churches last Sunday according to the programme announced last week, with the exception of the Ev. Lutheran church, where the evening service was omitted owing to disappointment in securing the services of an assistant minister.

The churches were all beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants, and the attendance on all sides was unusually large. The music was exceptionally fine at all of the churches, and it seemed as if the choirs were doing their utmost to celebrate the glorious Easter Festival in a joyous manner.

Eleven members were received into the Reformed church at the Saturday afternoon service, eight by confirmation and three by certificate. Thirty-three persons were received into the Lutheran church on Sunday morning, twenty-six by confirmation, three by baptism and four by certificate. The Holy Communion was administered to 340 persons.
The afternoon service at the M. E. church consisted of singing by the Sunday School Scholars, prayer and an address by the pastor, Rev. J. F. F. Gray.
The evening service at the Reformed church consisted of singing, prayer, responsive reading and a short address by the pastor, Rev. U. H. Heilman.

Commendable.

All claims not consistent with the high character of Syrup of Figs are purposely avoided by the Cal. Fig Syrup Company. It acts gently on the kidneys, liver and bowels, cleansing the system effectually, but it is not a cure-all and makes no pretensions that every bottle will not substantiate.

The New Assessment Law.

Under the new assessment law, passed at the recent session of the Legislature, Frederick county is divided into six assessment districts. The first district shall embrace Frederick and Tinsboro election districts; the second, Havers, Catoctin, Jackson and Middletown districts; the third, Buckeystown, Jefferson and Petersville districts; the fourth, Urbana, New Market, Woodville and Liberty districts; the fifth, Linganore, Mt. Pleasant, Woodsboro and Johnsville districts; and the sixth, Lewistown, Cregarstown, Mechanistown and Emmitsburg districts. There are to be three assessors for each district, making eighteen assessors for the county. Each of these assessors shall be a property-owner and tax-payer, and shall have resided in the assessment district for which he shall have been appointed for at least two years, and shall have adequate knowledge of the value of property in the district. Three suitable persons, who shall possess qualifications ascribed to the assessors, shall be appointed a board of control and review for the county, and this board will have the power to appoint its own clerk. The assessors are to assemble at the Court House on the first Tuesday in May, next, to qualify and enter upon their duties. The assessment is to be completed before the second Tuesday of September, upon which day the board of control and review meets, the board to give notice, by publication in one or more newspapers, two weeks before the second Tuesday in September, of their sittings. The compensation of the assessors, members of the board of control and review and their clerk, will be $3.50 a day each, all to be paid only for each day of actual service.—Union.

Don't Feel Well.

And yet you are not sick enough to consult a doctor, or you refrain from so doing for fear you will alarm yourself and friends—we will tell you just what you need. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will lift you out of that uncertain, uncomfortable, dangerous condition, into a state of good health, confidence and cheerfulness. You've no idea how potent this peculiar medicine is in cases like yours.

the accident to Mr. David Martin, as published last week. Mr. Martin was leading a horse to water and passing behind another one received the kick. The statement in regard to his clapping his However, Mr. Martin is doing as well soon recover sufficiently to be removed to his home, is the sincere wish of his friends.

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

Fine Musical Concert by the St. Cecilia Orchestra.—Visitors at the College, etc.

Mr. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, April 9.—
The St. Cecilia Orchestra gave a grand Eastern Concert this week in the Opera House in honor of the graduating class.

The programme included both vocal and instrumental selections. Among the former were several charming solos and choruses; while in the latter were the Overtures of Maritana and Martha by the Orchestra as well as some splendid solo exhibitions on the organ, violin and flute.

The intervals were taken up by recitations, embracing "The Brier-Rose" and "Chariot Race from Ben Hur" from Mr. F. Hugh Lee and Mr. John F. Seton respectively.

Besides the President, Father Allen, the Vice-President Father Tierney, the other members of the Faculty both clerical and lay and all the students, there were numerous visitors at the entertainment. Including persons from Brooklyn, N. Y., Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Reading, and Shamokin, Pa., and from the New Catholic University at Washington, D. C. The concert all in all was very successful.

Mr. Dominick Brown, for several years in the Ecclesiastical Seminary at the Mountain and organist of the Church on the Hill, but now a student at the Catholic University at Washington, and Rev. Father Gallagher likewise of the University are on a visit to Mt.
St. Mary's College.

Mr. James D. Casey of Pittsburg paid a flying visit to the Mountain this week to see his two brothers who are students at the College.

The billiard hall has recently been renovated. The pool and billiard tables have entirely recovered and present a fine appearance.

The Junior Base Ball Club reorganized this week and are now collecting funds for running expenses.

INTERESTING DEBATE.

Mr. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, April 10.—
"Is the Hope of a reward a greater incentive to duty than the fear of punishment?"
This was the question debated upon this evening in the College reading room by members of that well known literary society "The Purcell Lyceum."

It had been known for sometime past that the most skillful dialecticians of the society would enter the mental arena on this occasion and engage in friendly strife and so the absorbing topic of conversation of late has been the magnificent intellectual treat which the Purcell and its invited guests enjoyed this evening. Among the latter were the Rev. William L. O'Hara, Procurator of the Institution; the Prefects of the College and many of the Ecclesiastical students, all of whom received demonstrations of welcome upon their entrance into the Hall.

Before the debate began, the regular business was disposed of including two splendid recitations. The first "The Charge of the Light Brigade" by Mr. John F. Seton, of Emmitsburg, Md.; the second "The Irish Patriot" by Mr. Peter Campbell of Boston, Mass. Both of which were effectively rendered and reflect great credit on these two gentlemen.

The historic exhibitions over the oratorical fireworks immediately began. The affirmative was defended by Mr. Joseph Cavanagh, Boston, Mass., who was ably seconded by Messrs. Eugene E. J. McDonald, Jersey City, N. J., and John J. Dillard, Shellsburg, Pa. The negative was sustained by Mr. Arthur Keegan, Philadelphia, Pa., who was likewise aided by Messrs.
Charles F. Kessler, Lancaster, Ohio, and Frank J. Sullivan, Lowell, Mass.

The sides were very evenly matched and although the subject was regarded by some as rather too philosophical, yet this very fact stimulated the contestants to even greater efforts than they would probably have otherwise made. Each debater had made diligent researches both into the weak as well as the strong points of his thesis, and while advancing forcible arguments and convincing proofs in support of his own proposition was quite ready to defend it against the numerous objections of his antagonist. Consequently from beginning to end the discussion was as intensely exciting as interesting.

To review the arguments here and thence deduce the conclusion would require too much time. It is only necessary to say that each disputant acquitted himself in a manner worthy of a member of this time honored organization. All did well.
Occasionally well. Of course some did better than others. This was to be expected.
Otherwise the debate could not have been decided.

The leading supporter of the affirmative Mr.
Cavanagh gave an exceptionally fine display of oratorical as well as reasoning powers. He made a tenacious resistance to his antagonists and for some time held the decision in the balance. Messrs. Eugene E. J. McDonald and Chas. F. Kessler, the one on the affirmative, the other the negative, both distinguished themselves for the keen discrimination with which they challenged and refuted objections.

But unquestionably the best exhibition of dilectical and analytical talent and the argument on which the debate was chiefly decided, was that of Mr. Arthur Keegan. To the skill of the logician, this gentleman adds the analysis of the Mathematician, and he certainly deserves great praise for so successfully demonstrating his proposition.

Before rendering his decision the Critic thanked all for the earnest and praiseworthy manner in which they had fulfilled their onerous duties and on the mastery with which all had handled the subject. Then he announced that judging from the arguments brought forward in this discussion, he was forced to the conclusion that "The hope of a reward is not a greater incentive to duty than the fear of punishment."
The negative therefore won the debate.

The merits of each speaker was amply recognized by the numerous and select assemblage which filled the hall; and which frequently expressed its appreciation of particular dexterity by fitting applause.

At the close of the debate, the Rev. William L. O'Hara was called upon to address the society. This he did kindly in his usual happy strain. He congratulated the Lyceum on its very creditable exhibition this evening and especially on the marked improvement it had made in its public displays this year. Laying special stress on the lively interest and earnestness with which all acquitted themselves. He concluded his remarks by saying that from the delightful treat he had received on this occasion the incentive which would induce him to revisit the Purcell often hereafter would certainly not be the fear of punishment, but by all means the hope of a reward.

The organ-grinder, that never-failing sign of spring, made his appearance on our streets at noon to-day.

The sale of the W. G. Horner property in this place advertised to take place to-morrow, has been postponed.

The blooming fruit trees make a lovely contrast with the grass now. Grain is looking fine and all nature is clothed in spring attire.

EASTER SUNDAY was a lovely day, clear, bright and balmy, the churches were all well filled, and the Easter services were interesting and impressive.

Mr. LEWIS A. BOLLINGER of this place has been granted an army pension. Also a pension was granted to Catherine E., widow of Simon Willhite, of this place.—Clarion.

Mr. A. M. PATTERSON's sorrel mare foaled a fine colt on Saturday night.
The colt is a beautiful sorrel by James Smith's horse "Circulator," of Woodsboro, and Mr. Patterson has refused an offer of $100 for him at four months old.

The entertainment by the public school scholars at Gelwick's Hall this evening should be well attended. An interesting programme has been arranged and the proceeds will be devoted to a most worthy object, that of improving the school library.

We are indebted to Mr. William Gamble for a lovely cluster of trailing Arbutus
