DREAMS.

BY S. WALTER NORRIS.
Some they elude, one evening, grew mischievous, it seems.
And broke into the store-room where the Sand-man keeps his dreams.
And gathered up whole armfuls of dreams, all bright and good,
And started forth to peddle them a-down the village street.

Oh, you would never, never guess how queerly these dreams are sold: Why, nearly all the young folk bought dreams of being old:
And one wee chap in curls and kilts, a gentle little thing, Invested in a dream about an awful pirate king:

A maid, who thought her pretty name old-fashioned and absurd, Bought dreams of names the longest, and the queerest ever heard:
And, strange to say, a lad, who owned all sorts of costly toys, Bought dreams of selling papers with the ragged-est of boys.

And then a dream of summer and a barefoot boy at play Was bought up very quickly by a gentleman quite gray.
And one old lady—sitting through the grief she tried to hide—Bought bright and tender visions of a little girl who died.

A ragged little beggar girl, with weary, wistful gaze, Soon chose a Cinderella dream, with jewels all ablaze.
Well, it wasn't many minutes from the time they came in sight Before the dreams were all sold out and the elves had taken flight.
—St. Nicholas.

THE FIRST COWBOY.
He is a Brave Child of the Plains in Whom the Good Predominates.

The cowboy of the wild and woolly west is a being about whom is enwrapped a veil of mystery and awe in the minds of those who are not fortunate enough to have lived in or visited that part of this great country. By the older and more staid "easterner," and by the way the term easterner is applied to any one who lives east of the Missouri River, he is regarded with great disfavor, and as a dangerous and undesirable member of society. I have even heard him alluded to as a "cowardly brute," an expression which is not only untrue, but which, to those who have consorted with him on his native heath, is both unjust and absurd. By the impressionable and imaginative school boy, on the other hand, he is regarded as the beau ideal of manly strength and endurance, a hero in whom all the qualities of ancient chivalry are embodied; whose principal care is to relieve the weak and distressed, but who is at the same time the terror of his enemies. Again by the bad little boys who read dime novels "Scarred-Faced Dick, the Terror of the Plains," type he is looked upon in a still different light. To them he is the bold, reckless man who is the terror alike of friend and foe; whose skill with the rifle and six-shooter is phenomenal; who is always "spoiling for a fight" and does not scruple to take human life on the slightest provocation.

As a matter of fact, the cowboy has a distinct personality which is not described by any of the foregoing types, but which would probably be best expressed by taking the golden mean of all of them. I am speaking, of course, of a typical cowboy, as there are among them, as among any other class of men, some who are immeasurably superior, others who are far inferior, to the ordinary type. They are in fact composed of all sorts and conditions of men; some who have been brought up to the life from infancy, whose one idea relates to cattle, and whose only accomplishments consist in skill with firearms and in throwing the lariat; others who from choice have thrown off the restraints of civilized life and have given up good positions on the farm or elsewhere in the east, in order to live this wild, untrammelled life on the plains; again others who, owing to some crime or misdemeanor in which they have been involved, have been forced to seek the seclusion which these wastes afford, and who are well pleased to adopt some sobriquet such as "Jesse James," "Daniel Boone," etc., which their companions often confer on them, as it assists them to lose their identity. I also chanced upon some who, owing to disagreements with parents or other family ructions, had taken up this wild life as a relief for their troubles. Among this class may be found many men of superior ability and education, some even being college bred men with the refinements of thought and language which education brings; but they are few in number. These men also lose their identity to a certain extent, as they have not perhaps communicated with their friends or relatives for years, and have become indifferent to everything except their immediate surroundings.

The cowboy is brave; there can be no question about that in the minds of those who know him best. During the time he is on the round up, it may be said that not a day passes in which he is not in more or less danger of losing his life. While riding at full speed over rough ground, perhaps over a prairie dog town with its hundreds of holes, in pursuit of a fleet-footed steer, his horse is liable at any time to fall and throw the rider to the ground with sufficient force to break his neck. In the corral, while wrestling calves preparatory to branding them, he is also liable to sustain severe injuries during the struggles of the animal, especially if it chance to be a full-grown one; and while fording the broad and shallow rivers, which in the spring are converted into roaring torrents, he is in great danger of "boggling down" in quicksand, and drowning. I have known several to lose their lives in this way.

Perhaps the best example of their courage and fearlessness is to be found in the broncho-buster, a man who is highly respected and commands large wages on any cattle ranch. Any one knows that it is a difficult matter to ride any spirited horse for the first time, but one who has seen the extraordinary shapes into which these animals contort themselves as soon as a saddle is placed upon their backs can appreciate the fact that in this case it is many times more difficult.

The broncho, having been driven into a corral, is roped around the neck and led out; he is then blindfolded and the rider approaches him cautiously with a saddle and, watching a favorable opportunity, throws it on his back. No sooner does the horse feel the weight of the saddle than he gives a few preliminary bucks; but not finding this a very great annoyance he soon becomes quiet again and the rider now cautiously tightens the girths while some one else removes the bandage from the eyes. The pressure of the girths again causes the "bronco" to pitch in a lively manner, and the rider watches his opportunity to leap into the saddle, which to the bystander seems an almost impossible feat. Seizing an occasion when the animal subsides a little, he clutches the horn of the saddle, holding the horse's head up as high as he can by the bridle in his other hand, and like a flash leaps into his seat; the animal immediately throws his head between his front legs and contorts his body into the most remarkable shape, humping his back till it becomes almost cone-shaped, and going through a variety of zigzag movements. The experienced "buster," however, seems to move in unison with each movement of the broncho, and finally, the horse becomes exhausted and is conquered, the probabilities being that he will never "buck" again.

The cowboy treats a stranger with courtesy, although those who have spent all their lives in the wilds look upon a "tenderfoot" with a certain amount of contempt and consider him as lacking all manly virtues. They are fond of music and song, and some of them are very good vocalists. The banjo is their favorite instrument and while on the "round up" it is a common thing to see a group gathered around the camp fire, after the day's work is done and the supper disposed of, singing their favorite songs to the accompaniment of the banjo. One of their favorites is a funeral chant, sung in a wailing, nasal tone, the first lines of which are—
"O, bury me not on the lone prairie, Where the coyote howls and the wind blows free."
The cowboy is fond of display and when mounted on a wiry little broncho he presents a picturesque appearance. He rides with long stirrups, holding his bridle loose, its chain clanking in unison with his jingling spurs, which are often silver-mounted. They all wear the large, white, broad-brimmed hat, which is known to every one as essentially the cowboy hat. They usually wear a flannel shirt, buckskin breeches or often cloth breeches with leather "chaps" drawn over them, the latter being fringed at the side, and high boots with narrow heels. They usually have a bright-colored silk handkerchief around their necks and a broad leather belt around their waists with a pocket at the side, from which the ever-present six-shooter is seen projecting. Most of them are crack shots with both the rifle and six-shooter, but more particularly the latter, and altogether they are bad men to quarrel with.

In addition to the six-shooter, the rope is an essential feature of a cowboy's outfit, and the skill with which many of them use it is almost phenomenal. He always carries it neatly coiled and tied to the horn of the saddle, and many are the uses he makes of it, the principal being to rope a cow or calf which breaks away from a herd and can not be driven back, and in roping calves when branding. This is usually done by dropping the rope in front of the animals and catching them by the front feet, which is a difficult thing to do, but much practice has made some of them so expert that they can rope as fast, or faster, than the other men can brand.

I know of an occasion when three cowboys chanced upon two bears, and being without firearms determined to rope them. One of them threw his rope around the neck of one of the bears and although the shock threw the rider, he managed to secure his rope to the horn of the saddle, and the horse managed the bear alone, breaking his neck by a sudden twist of the rope. One of the others in the meantime had thrown his rope around the hind legs of the other bear, while his companion threw his rope around its neck, and in this way they threw the bear, and then jumped from their horses and wrestled with him as they would with a steer, and finally plunged a knife into his heart, not before one of them, however, had sustained severe injuries from the bear's claws.

The rope is also useful to pull cattle out of bog holes and to draw logs up to the fire.

During the spring and fall, and, in fact, nearly the whole summer, the cowboys are all engaged on the different "round ups," and consequently spend almost all day in the saddle and sleep in the open air or in tents. They rise and have breakfast before sunrise, and then ride out on "circle," perhaps for twenty miles or more, drive in the cattle, "round up" the herd, "cut out" the cows and calves and when this is done a large fire is built and each outfit proceeds to brand its calves, the whole operation lasting usually till sunset. They get very good wages but are great spendthrifts and usually gamble away in the winter that they make during the summer.

In the winter they are really without any occupation. Some of them lounge around the ranches doing odd jobs; others go into the towns and gamble and drink away their earnings. A typical western town has many saloons, all of which do a rushing business. I happened to be in Caspar, the terminus of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, on the occasion of the opening of the first brick building in the town, which, of course, was a saloon. The cowboys from the surrounding ranches were in town in full force, and the scene inside the saloon was an animated one. In one corner a musical genius was thumping a piano, while a number of bass voices were shouting a favorite song. In the center of the room were a couple of billiard tables, around which a number of rugged, unkempt "punchers" were gathered. Along both sides of the room a number of tables were arranged, around which an eager crowd were gambling away their hard-earned dollars, three-card monte and faro being the favorite games; and the click of the money on the table answered that of the glasses at the bar, around which another crowd was clustered, drinking themselves into a state of hilarious intoxication.

On the whole, however, the cowboy is not so black as he is painted. His good qualities, as a rule, outweigh the bad.

W. LYNN WILSON.

Enforcing Obedience.

In training children it is so easy to pass over an act of disobedience, so hard to insist on submission to the parental will. But every instance of neglect to require obedience to an express command, especially in the case of a child whose will is strong, fosters a habit of disobeying, which is almost sure to gain in force until it is beyond restraint. How many children we meet over whom their parents have lost all moral control. If they obey at all, it is only on physical compulsion. Such children are a perpetual worry to their parents, and a source of annoyance to every one about them. Young as they are, they are on the high road to moral ruin. There is no need to perpetually "nag" at children in order to bend them to the will; they should be hedged about by as few rules and burdened with as few commands as possible, and only with such as are right and necessary; but a command deliberately made should be adhered to, unless found to be wrong—in which case the child, if old enough, should be made to understand why it is not enforced. No doubt children should be ruled by wisdom and love; but true wisdom and love require implicit obedience to parental authority. We read the other day that "a large majority of crimes of violence occur because the perpetrators have never been taught to control their feelings." Surely the first step toward acquiring this whole virtue is taken when children are taught to unflinchingly obey their parents.

A Specific for Hiccoughs.

Dr. Henry Tucker recommends, in the Southern Medical Record, the following very simple treatment of hiccough: Moisten granulated sugar with good vinegar. Of this give to an infant from a few grains to a teaspoonful. The effect, he says, is almost instantaneous, and the dose seldom needs to be repeated. He has used it for all ages, from infants of a few months old to those on the down hill side of life, and has never known it to fail. The remedy is a very simple one, and merits trial.

Undoubtedly Correct.

Pompous professor to his class in medical university—"The patient, you observe, young gentlemen, has one perfect eye, whereas the other is drawn inward toward the nose, causing a painful obliquity of vision. In this instance you, Mr. Pinkbone, may rise and tell the class what you would do."

Mr. Pinkbone (after a pause and seriously gazing at the patient)—"I presume I would look just as cross-eyed as he does."—Judge.

CREMATION brings out the fact that there is a time when a man can travel cheaply. It is after he is dead. A postage stamp will take the cremated remains of a human being to any part of the United States. A man about to die has only to mention to his friends the address to which he wishes to be mailed, and he arrives at his destination in good time and in proper shape.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MOTHER (policeman's wife)—"Willie, I've been shouting for you this half hour. How is it you're never around when you are wanted?"

Son—"Well, mother, I suppose I inherit it from father."—Boston Courier.

description of scenes and travels in the Holy Land and is profusely illustrated;
"The Rights of the Citizen as a Householder" is ably discussed by Frederick W. Whitridge; Joseph Wetzlar, M. E., has a lengthy and interesting paper on "The Electric Railway of To-day"; Octave Thanet's story, "Expatriation" is continued; there is a story by E. C. Martin, entitled "Javan Hackett's Ill-Mended Fortunes"; "In the Footprints of Lamb" by Benjamin E. Martin, will be read with interest by the admirers of the genial and unfortunate Lamb and his devoted sister; there is a paper on "Wagnerism and the Italian Opera" by Wm. F. Apthorp; Harold Frederic's story "In the Valley" is continued, which with a short story by Sarah O.
Jewett entitled "The New Methusalem" and several poems make up the contents of the peculiarly interesting number of this popular Magazine for April.

MORNING services in the Reformed Church will hereafter be held at 7.30 o'clock, and evening services at 7.30, instead of 10.30 and 7, as heretofore.

A GAME of base ball played at Gettysburg last Saturday, between the printers of the town and the members of the Grand Army Band, resulted in a victory for the types by a score of 19 to 13.

Imported Ice.

Six car loads of ice arrived here from Baltimore and were unloaded on Wednesday. Four loads went to St. Joseph's Academy and the other two were packed in Mr. Valentine's ice house. Mr.
Valentine furnished that delivered at St. Joseph's.

A Salary

With expenses paid will come handy to anyone who is now out of employment, especially where no previous experience is required to get the position. If you want a position, see advertisement on page 2d headed, "A Chance to Make Money." mar 28-4.

Successful Operation.

Mr. John Close was in Frederick this week and had an operation performed on one of his eyes for pterygium, (wing skin) by Dr. Hardesty, of Washington.
The operation was very successful and Mr. Close is much pleased with the result.

Surplus Stock of Peach Trees.

Samuel Gamble has a few hundred Standard varieties of peach trees in healthy condition for sale cheap. Standard varieties 10 cents each or $1 per dozen. A few Globe, extra large peach, 15 cents each, $1.50 per dozen. By the hundred very cheap for good trees of standard varieties.

Mad Dog.

Considerable excitement was occasioned at the West end of town on Sunday by a dog belonging to Lewis Beatty, colored, becoming mad. Fortunately he took to the fields back of town instead of the street. Several young men went out to kill him, and after having shot him once with a shot gun and eight times with revolvers, all hands decided that "the dog was dead."

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements.
All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other disease may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar" is true.

Child Blown from a Bridge.

During the wind storm which prevailed last Saturday a week, Katie, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. John A.
Koogle, residing along Catocin creek, about three miles south of this place, met with a serious accident. Whilst on the foot bridge which spans the creek between her father's house and barn, a heavy puff of wind blew her off into the bed of the creek, about ten feet below.
Her head struck upon a stone in the shallow water, which cut a gash about 24 inches in length above her right eye and at one point depressed the skull.—

Disinfectant and Curative Herb.

It disinfects the air you breathe before entering the lungs, and it cures by penetration and inhalation. The microbe or germ floating in the air that causes contagion are dispelled instantly and entirely by the Aunt Rachel Herb Pad, when worn on the throat and chest. They have been made for 50 years by Aunt Rachel Speer, who is now over 85 years old. The best thing for the Throat and Lungs. Address: Aunt Rachel Pad Co., Passaic, N. J.

Public School Exhibition.

The entertainment given by the scholars of the public school, at Gel-wick's Hall, last Friday evening was a very pleasant and successful affair.
The programme consisted of singing, recitations, dialogues and tableaux.
The manner in which the same was carried out and the perfect order maintained reflects great credit upon the teachers, Misses Annie E. Duphorne and Fannie M. Frailey. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity and we are informed that over $17.00 net was realized.

The Latest Swindle.

An exchange says the latest swindle is carried on by means of a double fonttain pen, one end of which is filled with good, substantial ink, the other with ink that fades away in a day or two.
The sharper writes his agreement, contract, or whatever particular lay he may have chosen, with the ink that fades, and has his victim sign with the other end of the pen in the ink that lasts. In a few days he has a slip of paper with nothing on it but a good signature, over which he writes any sort of a note that he can easiest turn into cash. Look out for the swindler, for he is dangerous.

A Bloody Affray

is often the result of "bad blood" in a family or community, but nowhere is bad blood more destructive of happiness and health than in the human system.
When the life current is foul and sluggish with impurities, and is slowly distributing its poisons to every part of the body, the peril to health, and life even, is imminent. Early symptoms are dull and drowsy feelings, severe headaches, coated tongue, poor appetite indigestion and general lassitude. Delay in treatment may entail the most serious consequences. Don't let disease get a strong hold on your constitution, but treat yourself by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and be restored to the blessings of health. The "Discovery" is guaranteed to cure in all cases of diseases for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded.

SAFE IN JAIL.

Joshua Ohler and his family have taken up their abode at Fort Gayer for the Summer.

On Monday Sheriff Gaver arrested the notorious Joshua Ohler, at Feagassville, and placed him and his entire family in jail. The charge he will be called upon to answer is stealing a lot of meat from Mr.
Daniel H. Starnes of this district, a full account of which was given in these columns last week.
At the time the arrest was made, Ohler and his family were on their way to Virginia, and many persons thought it better to allow him to leave quietly, than incur the cost of prosecution that would follow his arrest. Whilst looking at the case in that light, and allowing him to tramp off, would be a saving to the taxpayers, the question naturally arises as to whether it is not wrong to allow a noted criminal to pass scot-free, when the evidences of his guilt are strong enough to convict him of theft. As the case now stands six persons are likely to be confined in jail until the August term of Court, to answer the charge of stealing about twenty dollar's worth of meat. Ohler being a noted thief and a desperate character, his departure from the community in which he has resided for years is hailed with no little pleasure. It is well known that he subsisted almost entirely upon what he could steal, and when in want of a residence would move into any vacant premises he could find, where, under the shield of the law of possession he would defy the owner to remove him. At one time he took possession of an old unused church on the Taneytown road, which was torn down in order to get rid of him. In his thieving he has usually been smart enough to cover up his tracks so that it would be impossible to prove his guilt, although he was convicted a number of years ago and served a term in the penitentiary.

Now that he has been arrested it seems no more than right that he should be put away for safe keeping. A thorough investigation of his career should be made, and the children placed where any good that may be in them can be developed.

A Woman's Sweet Will.

She is permanently deprived of her charms of face and form, and made unattractive by the wasting effects of ailments and irregularities peculiar to her sex. To check this drain upon, not only her strength and health, but upon her amiable qualities as well, is her first duty.
This is safely and speedily accomplished by a course of self-treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a nerve and tonic of wonderful efficacy, and prepared especially for the alleviation of those suffering from "dressing-down" pains, sensations of nausea, and weakness incident to women—a boon to her sex. Druggists.

Commendable.

All claims not consistent with the high character of Syrup of Figs are purposely avoided by the Cal. Fig Syrup

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

Notes of the Philomathean Society.—Par-cell Lyceum Medal Contest.—The Base Ball Season formally opened.

Mr. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, April 17.— The Philomathean Society received a letter this week from the Hon. Daniel Dougherty, the silver tongued orator of America and an honorary member of the Philomathean, regretting his inability in consequence of a trip already planned for Europe, to give an address before the society in June.

The preliminary contest for the best debater in the Purcell Lyceum, for which a prize is to be awarded, will take place shortly. Numerous names have already been entered upon the list and close race for the championship is expected.

Base Ball opened in dead earnest at the Mountain to-day. The first of a series of five games which have been arranged between "The Mountaineers" and "The Invincibles" the two leading nines of the College took place this morning on the ball field in the presence of a large number of spectators.

The object of these games is to decide who are to compose "The Mt. St. Mary's College Nine" for year 1890. The record of both teams and of each individual player is to be kept, and when the series is finished, the first nine will be chosen from those who make the best showing in these games.

This is certainly a great incentive to ball players to do their best, for to hold a position on the first team of Mt.
St. Mary's College, is equivalent to being named as one of the nine best amateur players in the State.

To-day the weather was fine and bracing and the field in excellent condition. Both nines did splendid work. They were very evenly matched and the game throughout was hot and exciting. There were some heavy slugging and fine fielding on both sides while in several instances the base running was simply superb.

Of course the teams did not play together as well as they might, but considering that this is the opening game they have every reason to be satisfied with the result. With a little practice there is no doubt but that they will hold together well.

Both batteries are powerful. The pitchers Brady and Sullivan each did splendid work, the former striking out seven men and the latter eleven. Behind the bat too was well guarded and there were on both sides some beautiful flings from home to second base.

To-day's game was called at 9.30 o'clock and lasted 14 hours, resulting in a victory for the Invincibles with a score of 16 to 13. There were two umpires.
Behind the bat—Joseph E. Ingoldsky.
In the field—Frank D. Confer. The game was kept by the official scorer Wm. E. McConnell. The table below exhibits the result of the game in full; also the names and positions of the players:

The diamond promises to be unusually interesting at Mt. St. Mary's College this year. Besides the game which has been arranged with the Pennsylvania College nine, to be played on May 3d, a challenge has been accepted from the New Windsor and Western Maryland College team for May 10th, and the secretary of the Base Ball Association is now in communication with the famous Pastimes of Baltimore; and also the Hagerstown Club, with each of which it is confidently expected a game can be secured.

Mr. Archer Deposed.

On Tuesday Governor Jackson deposed State Treasurer Stevenson Archer on the charges of malfeasance in office and misappropriation of the State's funds, and appointed Mr. Edwin H.
Brown, of Centerville, Queen Anne's county, to fill the position during Mr.
Archer's unexpired term. Mr. Archer's physical condition was such as to render him unable to attend the formal proceedings at Annapolis. On Monday he was admitted to bail in the Circuit Court of Harford county, in the sum of $25,000, which amount was promptly furnished.

The defalcations will reach nearly $200,000, and it is definitely stated that he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. The idea has been brought out that the ex-treasurer had owed a debt of $100,000 upon which he paid six per cent. interest annually, also that he had liquidated $30,000 of the debt after becoming treasurer. The investigation will be taken up again next Wednesday morning.

Nature in Convulsion

Is terrific. Volcanic eruptions, cyclones, earthquakes are awfully and tremendously picturesque, but scarcely desirable to emulate in action and effect by the administration of remedies which produce convulsion and agony in the abnormal portion of the human frame. Such is the effect of the old fashioned violent purgatives happily falling more and more into disuse, and which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the wholesome, pleasant and far more effective succedaneum. They weakened the intestines—the Bitters invigorates them. They lax the bowels because of the irritation caused by causing feebleness. The Bitters, on the contrary, and because it enlives, not forces, them to act—a vast and fortunate difference—permeates their activity and regularity. The liver is beneficently stimulated, the kidneys also are, by this medicine, which easily counteracts also, malaria, typhusness and rheumatism.

WORKMEN have been engaged this week in putting a steel roof on the Western Maryland Hotel.

ANNAN, HORNER & Co. have had the pavement and cobble stones in front of their building raised and leveled where they had settled over the drain pipes.

Blacksmithing.

The undersigned has opened a Blacksmith shop at the old Hardman stand on West Main street, Emmitsburg.
Blacksmithing and buggy repairing of all kinds neatly and promptly done.

DR. S. R. TWINING, specialist on treatment of the teeth, hair and complexion is located at the Central Hotel, where he will attend to any and all cases in a satisfactory manner or no charge made.
His adv. appears in another column and presents his business. The Dr. has practiced in a number of cities and towns and comes well recommended.
He has given exhibitions on the street during the past week in extracting teeth without pain. This evening the Dr. is going to Taneytown and will be accompanied by the Emmitt Cornet Band.
Give him a call.

Lost a Horse.

A valuable Norman horse belonging to Mr. W. R. Troxell at Motter's Station, was so severely injured on Sunday that it had to be killed. Mr. Troxell had turned all his horses loose in the barnyard, which is enclosed by a rail-fence, and another horse backed the injured animal into a corner and kicked at him, whereupon he attempted to jump the fence, striking on his abdomen and disemboweling himself. Dr.
Reigle was sent for immediately, who on his arrival pronounced the animal beyond the reach of surgical skill, and he had to be killed.

Motter's Station Items.

Mr. Daniel H. Starnes made a trip to Frederick.
Messrs. I. M. Fisher and W. R.
Troxell were in Baltimore this week.
Mr. Chas. A. Manning, Jr., shot a hawk last Saturday which measured 6 feet 3 inches from tip to tip of wings.
Mr. John P. Seabold and Miss May Shorb attended a ball given in Mehring's Hall, Littlestown, on Monday night.

Tom's Creek Items.

Miss Nettie Hoover has gone to Philadelphia.
Mr. Townsend and Mr. Gilbert of Baltimore are the guests of Mr. James W. Troxell.
Mrs. William Morrison and her little daughter Miss Bruce are visiting in Frederick and Baltimore.
Mr. James W. Troxell lost a valuable cow last week. It had been sick but a short time, and its disease is unknown.
Miss Naomi Troxell has a pansy stalk which has been blooming all winter, and now has buds and flowers on it in all numbering fifty.

ITEMS FROM LOVS.

Miss Minnie Martin assistant teacher at Utica, has closed her school and returned home.
Mr. C. V. Fisher and wife, Mr. Grant Ogle and Miss Fannie Martin were in Frederick on Saturday.
Misses Minnie and Mazzeppa Martin and Mr. Grant Ogle attended the wedding of Mr. Grant Webster and Miss Kate Ogle, in Mechanicstown on Wednesday.
The Spring Term of school closed on Tuesday; average number of pupils for term was twenty-three. Bessie Martin and Mary Smith, (6th and 5th grade pupils) have not missed a day since school opened in September, Anna Robinson, (7th grade) was absent one day on account of sickness.

Arbor Day exercises were held here on Friday. The school children, together with their teacher, planted five trees and named them for different persons; two being named for deceased pupils. The program observed was: Exercises in the school room. Planting a tree, address by C. W. Loy; music, Tree Song; Concert Recitation; song, America; Naming trees; Dismissal.

MT. ST. MARY'S ITEMS.

Mr. Vincent Seabold made a trip to Frederick.
Mrs. William Shriver has returned from Baltimore.
Mrs. Bennet and her son Willie are visiting in Hagerstown.
Miss Dugan of Baltimore is visiting at Mr. Chas. A. Manning's.
Mrs. Joseph W. Rosensteel has returned home from Baltimore.
Miss R. McGuigan of Mechanicstown spent Sunday with Miss Annie Elder.
Mrs. Moore is putting a brick addition to her house. Mr. Zentz furnished the brick.
Mr. David Martin was removed to his home on Saturday and is much improved, greatly to the satisfaction of his friends.

Misses Mamie Sweeney and Annie Elder and Messrs. Chas. A. Manning and Harry Elder visited Mechanicstown on Sunday evening.

The opening game of Base Ball was played on the usual grounds and a large number of spectators were present.
The season promises to be one of unusual enjoyment in that line.

A meeting of some of the most prominent members of our community, was held on Sunday, to discuss the FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1890.

AN APPALLING SITUATION.

Capt. Collier, a well-known river man and coal merchant of Cincinnati, related a thrilling incident in his career. He and ex-Sheriff Wallace were neighbors one summer when the weather and the decrees of fashion forced everybody, even a coal merchant and a Sheriff, to wear white duck pants.

Capt. Collier and Mr. Wallace were opposite in the matter of physical proportions, the Captain being a large man and Mr. Wallace considerably undersized.

They had the same washerwoman, and one Sunday morning she delivered the Captain's large and commodious duck pants to Sheriff Wallace and Sheriff Wallace's meagre duck pants to Capt. Collier.

"I was always kicking about something when I had to get ready for church," said Capt. Collier, "and my wife had got so she paid little attention to me. She had the children to look after anyhow, and naturally thought I could look after myself. But those cursed pants, they stuck so infernally that it is no wonder I growled at the laundry-woman for shrinking them and offered to bet that if I ever succeeded in getting into the things I would never get out again. My wife did not sympathize with me, but continued to busy herself with the children, only admonishing me, now and then, not to be the biggest baby of all, but to stir my stumps and get ready for church. I tugged and sweat and sweat and tugged. At last I got into the confounded trousers, which were so tight at every point that they actually choked me. We were late, of course, and off we hustled for church, my wife looking after the children and leaving me to take care of myself. We got to church finally, but I think if we had had another block to walk I would have dropped dead with heart failure or something like that."

"Not until I was walking down the aisle ahead of her did Mrs. Collier take notice of my style, and then, as she said afterwards, she thought she would sink through the floor with shame and mortification, and all on account of those abominably tight breeches of mine, the like of which she believed had never been seen outside of a circus. She got me into our pew and concealed me from observation as best she could. She leaned over and asked me, in pity's name, where I had got those pants. I had nothing to conceal in the matter and told her that I had got them out of the bundle that Mrs. Rubadab had brought home."

"Presently Sheriff Wallace and his family came in. The Sheriff had on a pair of white duck pants that simply hung on him, and that was all. He had them turned up at the bottom and trussed up at the top, besides being reefed in around the waist. But if the Sheriff had had any eye for the eternal unfitness of things, and particularly trousers, he must have seen that he was wearing garments that were never made for him. Mr. Wallace's pew was on the opposite side of the aisle from mine. After they had been seated a few moments I was considerably embarrassed to see Mrs. Wallace looking at my duck pants and then at her husband's. Then I saw my wife looking at Mr. Wallace's duck pants and then at mine. The two women then looked at each other and laughed. The awful situation had dawned upon them, and finally it dawned upon Wallace and me. The sermon? Well, I think the minister preached a powerful sermon on eternal punishment, but I was not sure of it, and neither was the Sheriff."

"When the sermon was finished I motioned for Wallace to come over into my pew, as I wished to confer with him, but he shook his head. He beckoned me to come into his pew, but I would have suffered martyrdom before I would have stirred before all those people. We sent our families out with the rest of the congregation, and when the church was empty we called the minister up to us and made a frank statement of the case to him. The preacher was a kindhearted man and a good Christian, and through his loving kindness we were permitted to glide into his private room and exchange our trousers."

"Swans sing before they die." They have to, if they sing at all.

TALKING AT TABLE.

There is no end to the modes of conducting table talk as a means of child education; and there is no end to the influence of table talk in this direction, however conducted. Indeed, it may be said with truth, that table talk is quite as likely to be influential as a means of child training when the parents have no thought of using it to this end, as when they seek to use it accordingly. At every family table there is sure to be talking; and the talk that is heard at the family table is sure to have its part in a child's training, whether the parents wish it to be so or not.

There are fathers whose table talk is chiefly in complaint of the family cooking, or in criticism of the mother's method in managing the household. There are mothers who are more given to asking where on earth their children learned to talk and act as they do, than to inquiring in what part of the earth the most important archaeological discoveries are just now in progress. And there are still more fathers and mothers whose table talk is wholly between themselves, except as they turn aside, occasionally, to say sharply to their little ones: "Why don't you keep still, children, while your father and mother are talking?" All this table talk has its influence on the children. It leads them to have less respect for their parents, and less interest in the home table except as a place of satisfying their natural hunger. It is potent, even though it be not profitable.

Table talk ought to be such, in every family, as to make the hour of home meal time one of the most attractive as well as one of the most beneficial hours of the day to all the children. But in order to make table talk valuable parents must have something to talk about at the table, must be willing to talk about it there and must have the children lovingly in mind as they do their table talking.—Sunday School Times.

Life is Too Short, and time and money too precious, to be frittered away in the trial of uncertain means of cure, when one is afflicted with any lingering or chronic ailment of the liver, lungs or blood. Now, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is such a positive remedy for all such ills, as to warrant its manufacturers in selling it, as they are doing, through druggists, on condition that if it don't do all that it is recommended to, the money paid for it will be promptly refunded. There are a great many blood-purifiers advertised, but only the "Golden Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce could sustain itself and be sold under such trying conditions. To sell any ordinary medicine under such a guarantee, would bankrupt its proprietors, but with the "Golden Medical Discovery" all that is asked for it is a fair trial, and if it don't do all that it is advertised to, the manufacturers will cheerfully and promptly refund all money paid for it. By this singularly peculiar method of business, alike liberal to the purchasers and exacting to the manufacturers, the invalid can be sure of getting the value of his money, which is not true of any other medicine. All diseases arising from a torpid liver, or from impure or poisoned blood, are conquered by the "Golden Medical Discovery." Especially has it manifested its marvelous potency in curing Salt-rheum, Tetters, Eczema, Psoriasis, Impetigo, Erysipelas, and all skin and scalp diseases, no matter of how long standing. Scrofulous affections, sores and swellings, as Feversores, White Swellings, Hip-joint Disease and kindred ailments yield to its positive, purifying, strengthening and healing properties. Lung-scurf (commonly known as Consumption of the Lungs) also yields to it, if it be taken in time and given a fair trial. Contains no alcohol to inebriate, no syrup or sugar to ferment and impair digestion; as wonderful in its curative results as it is peculiar in composition. Don't accept any substitute, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit.

SHE.—"Oh, I do like history so much." HE.—"Indeed. What is your favorite?" SHE.—"The discovery of North America by the Indians is so interesting and they were so far ahead of Columbus that I think they ought to hold the World's Fair in the Indian Territory."—New York Herald.

WORKINGMAN—Give me work, and I do not care for the rest of the world. Tramp—Well, give me rest, and I don't care for the work of the world.

"BREDERN," observed a negro preacher as he leaned on the pulpit, "Mankind am like a meerscham pipe—dey's all de mo' valuable when dey's colored."

No wonder it lights up.—"I do like to hear Mr. Jaysmith talk," remarked Mrs. Larkin, "His face lights up so." "Yes," assented Larkin, "he's lantern jawed."

A COUNTRYMAN visiting the surrogate's office, on observing the huge volume of wills on the shelves, asked if they were Bibles. "No, sir," said the clerk, "they are testaments."

Over the walnuts and the wine. "Did you ever fight a duel, doctor?" "Never; what satisfaction could I derive from killing a fellow-creature?"

"Oh, I see; you're so used to it."

"It seems to me, Maria, that we've had nothing but real, real, real for breakfast all this week," remarked Mr. —entley. "You forgot another thing we had, Robert," replied the old lady quietly, "we've had growl, growl, growl for breakfast every day, too."

LITTLE sister—"Ma wants you, Sammy. Where've you been?" Sammy—"Fishing." Little sister—"Did you catch anything?" Sammy (sadly)—"Nothin' 't all." Little sister (reassuringly)—"Oh, but you will when you get home."—Cleveland Leader.

At this season of the year the majority of your hens have grown fat. This is not the condition you should have them in when they begin to show signs of wanting to sit. It is best to keep them from now on until the breeding season, in a condition that will reduce fat.

A YOUNG man, arraigned for stealing a watch, pleaded guilty, and said that having been ill, the doctor told him to take something, which he did. The Judge asked him why he took a watch.

"Why, I thought if nature had time it would work a cure," the rogue replied.

A Trade Combination. "Why don't you go to work?" she asked of the tramp.

"I am a-working, lady."

"At what? You show no signs of it?"

"No matter for that, mum. I'm a-working as a traveling adverb, for a soap firm. I'm the 'Before Using' card, and my partner around the corner represents the 'After Using' end of the combination. Thank you, mum."

Women's Superstitions.

Are you superstitious? Well, no, of course you are not, but you had rather not sing before breakfast because you might cry before tea.

When the palm of your hand itches you know you are going to get money, so you rub it on wood that it may come good.

If your nose itches you, you know most positively you are going to meet a fool or kiss a stranger.

If you see a pin you are going to pick it up so you will have good luck all that day.

You would not walk under a ladder, not because you are afraid it might fall on you, but because you are perfectly certain that the gentleman in black is waiting for you at the other side of it.

You would muddy your best gloves carrying home a dirty horse-glove picked out of the middle of the street for fear of losing the luck it would bring.

You know there is going to be a death in the family because you dreamed of white horses last night.

You would let a mangy-looking yellow dog follow you all over town because it is going to bring you a blonde husband.

You know the reason you did not get a letter to-day was because you failed to pick up a hairpin you saw on the floor.

Oh, no, none of us are so superstitious; these are just little fancies, but if you promise not to tell anybody I will confess to you that there is a woman in New York who carries a horse chestnut in her pocket so she won't get the rheumatism, and her name is B.A.B.

LADIES. Needing a tonic, or children that want building up, should take BROWN'S LAX PILLS. This pleasant laxative cleanses the bowels, and builds up the system. All druggists sell it.
