LOVE UNEXPRESSED.

The sweetest notes among the human heart-strings
Are dull with rust;
The sweetest chords, adjusted by the angels,
Are clogged with dust.

We pipe and pipe again our dreary
music
Upon the self-same strains, While sounds of crime, and fear, and desolation,
Come back in sad refrains.

On through the world we go, an army
marching,
With listening ears.
Each longing, sighing for the heavenly
music
He never hears:

Each longing sighing for a word of comfort,
A word of tender praise,
A word of love, to cheer the endless
journey
Of earth's hard, busy days.

They love us, and we know it; this suffices
For reason's share,
Why would they pause to give that love expression
With gentle care?

Why should they pause? But still our hearts are aching
With all the gnawing pain
Of hungry love that longs to hear the
music,
And longs and longs in vain.

We love them, and we know it; if we falter,
With fingers numb,
Among the unused strings of love's expression,
The notes are dumb.

We shrink within ourselves in voiceless
sorrow,
Leaving the words unsaid,
And, side by side with those we love
the dearest,
In silence on we tread.

Thus on we tread, and thus each in silence,
In fate fulfills,
Waiting and hoping for the heavenly
music
Beyond the distant hills.

The only difference of the love in heaven
From love on earth below,
Is: Here we love and know not how to tell it,
And there we all shall know.

Did not Charley know that the baby was sick?—that Delia had left that very morning, in a rage, because her mistress had objected to three burly "cousins" of the male sex remaining in the kitchen until eleven o'clock the night before, and permeating the premises with stale
tobacco smoke?—that she herself
was far from well?

"Charley," she gasped, "how could you? And without a word of notice."

"Oh, hang notice!" cried cheerful Charley. A good housekeeper never requires any notice. My mother—

"Your mother kept three servants, Charley, and she was far more experienced than I have had time to become."

Mr. Aylmer shrugged his shoulders impatiently.

"Well," observed he, "I don't see any particular use in arguing the matter. The fellows are here, and I've invited them. I thought it would be a pleasant surprise to
you."

"A surprise, undoubtedly," said
Catherine, with a hysterical little laugh. "But as to its being pleasant—I wonder, Charley, how would you like it for me to 'surprise'
you,

"First-rate," said Mr. Aylmer, with alacrity. "Couldn't suit me better. Try the experiment, and see, any time you please. But in the meantime do make haste and toss up something. Howard and Dalrymple won't know what to think."

"But, Charley, Delia is gone!"
"Confound the girl!" grumbled Charley. "Can't you send in next door, and borrow Mrs. Hartell's girl?"

"Borrow! A maid of all work!"
gaped Mrs. Aylmer, half-laughing, half-crying. "Charley, I do think men have the queerest ideas!"

"Well, hurry up, whatever you do," said the irresponsible husband,
"and I'll go back and entertain the fellows as best I can."

"There is nothing but cold goose
and a piece of bacon in the house,"
persisted Cathie.

"Oh, I dare say you'll make out
very well—you always do!" said Charley, with a clumsy attempt at propitiation, as he blotted back into the little drawing-room, and closed
the door behind him, thereby shutting off all further communication
on the subject.

"How I should like to box his ears!" said Cathie, as she returned despairingly to the nursery where baby lay fast asleep, like a somno-lent rose-leaf, in his crib, and little Kate was stringing blue beads to make a doll's necklace.

"Kate," said she in a whisper,
"I'm going to place great confidence in you. I'm going to leave baby in your charge while I run around to the nearest restaurant to order some dinner for papa's friends. Will you be very careful of him?"

Little Kate's eyes—a dead match
for the blue beads—brightened up.
"Oh, yes, mamma," said she,
"I'll be very good!"

Half an hour subsequently, Mrs.
Aylmer joined her husband's guests, dressed in a trim black silk, with pink ribbons at her throat and a rose in her hair.

Charley thought within himself that he had never known her to look prettier or more vivacious.

"So sorry to have kept you waiting!" said she. "But dinner is ready at last."

A very excellent dinner it was—clear soup, a piece of delicate pink salmon, garnished with parsley, a pair of ducks, with red currant jelly, a shrimp salad and an English plum-pudding, followed by fruit
and black coffee.

"Whew!" thought Charley;
"the little gypsy has excelled herself this time. Well, I'm glad of
it. I won't deny that I felt uneasy once or twice, when Howard and Dalrymple exchanged those dubious glances."

Once, while they were discussing the salad, the sound of an infant's cry came from the room above.

Charley gave a little start and looked across the table toward Cathie, but she went on calmly talking of the last new book she had read.

"I dare say it's all right," pondered Aylmer; "but I wouldn't like the poor little thing to shriek herself into convulsions."

But no further sound reached them, and the impromptu dinner went on to its end without let or hindrance.

It was not until the guests had departed, expressing unbounded satisfaction with their entertainment, and loudly envying Charley Aylmer's good luck in a wife and a home, that the host ventured to inquire into things.

"Well, Cathie," said he, "you gave us a dinner fit for a king!
But I thought you said there was nothing but cold goose and bacon
in the house?"

"Neither was there," observed
Mrs. Aylmer.

"We certainly didn't dine on either of those viands?" inquiringly uttered Charley.

"No; I gave Betelli an order for the dinner. What else could I do?"

Again Mr. Aylmer whistled.

"Betelli's, eh?" said he. "We might as well have dined off melted gold! It's an awfully expensive place!"

"Possibly," said Cathie, with an exact imitation of her husband's favorite shrug of the shoulders. "But it was either that or to send your friends away dinnerless."

"And who took care of baby?
Surely little Kate couldn't—"

"No; you are right there," asserted Mrs. Aylmer—"she couldn't."
Fortunately, mamma happened to drop in, and I left baby in her charge while we were at dinner."

"Your mother is a jewel!" cried
Mr. Aylmer, fervently.

"Did ever any one hear such a tribute to a mother-in-law before?"
said Cathie, arching her eyebrows.

Charles Aylmer looked curiously
at his wife.

"Cathie is off her usual keynote," he thought. "Some change has come over the spirit of her dream, but I'm blessed if I know what it is!"

The next day he stepped in at an intelligence bureau, and sent up a highly recommended servant for general house-work to his wife.

He also brought her home a new lacebar, in filigree Roman gold,
when he came from the office—a sort of "Reward of Merit."

"She behaved like a trump!"
thought he. "But, after all, it's no more than a wife's duty to extend a hospitable welcome to her husband's friends."

Betelli sent in his bill a day or two afterwards. It was ten dollars.

Mr. Aylmer wrote a check with a groan.

"A regular swindle!" said he.
"But of course I am at the man's mercy."

The district messenger had had scarcely left the office, when another one appeared.

"Eh?" said Mr. Aylmer, "what now?"

"A letter sir," said the boy.
"A lady at Snook & Cruff's gave it to me to deliver. And you was to pay me a quarter, please!"

"A lady! Come now, Buttons, this is a put-up thing!"

"Honor bright, sir!" said the boy.

Mr. Aylmer flung the boy a quarter, and opened the letter.

"DEAR CHARLEY" (it said):
"You remember telling me that I couldn't suit you better than by surprising you some time at lunch? You told me to try the experiment any time I pleased.
Well, the hour and the moment have come. The new girl went home this morning with aqua in her face, just as I was dressing to receive Mrs. Dorillon and Fanny at lunch. So I just sent baby and little Kate around to dear mamma's, and decided on the spur of the moment to accept your invitation. So here we are in Private Parlor C. at Snook & Cruff's, as hungry as three hussies. Please make haste, or we shall eat the tablecloth and finger-glasses!"

Mr. Aylmer turned very red and began uneasily to fumble in his pockets. It was toward the end of the month, and his finances, as was generally the case at that period,
were at a low ebb.

"Three women can't eat so very much," he said to himself. "And,
anyway, there's no help for it that I can see. Here goes!"

And, putting the best possible face on matters, he proceeded at once to Private Parlor C. at the establishment of Messrs. Snook & Cruff, where Mrs. Aylmer and her friends—Mrs. and Miss Dorillon—
received him with effusion.

"We knew you'd be glad to see us," said Cathie, with smiling confidence.

"Your well known character for hospitality—" cooed Mrs. Dorillon, who was plump and soft-voiced, and somehow reminded one of a well-fed pigeon.

"Such fun!" cried Fanny, who wore tailor-cut garments and standing collars, and affected the masculine.

"Delighted, I'm sure!" said Mr.
Aylmer. "And now, ladies, here's a bill of fare—menu, I should say.
Favor me by making your selections."

"Oysters first, of course," said
Cathie, checking the separate articles with her pencil for the instruction of the smiling waiter, who stood eagerly by. "Blue Points on the half shell; green turtle soup next—one gets so few chances for real green turtle soup—some red snapper, please, for fish; and beef, steak with mushrooms, and canvas-

back duck, with snipe served on toast. For dessert, we'll try Nesselrode pudding, hot-house
strawberries and Italian cream,
Oh! and a lobster salad, with real lettuce; and—"

"You've forgotten the wines,
dear," said Miss Fanny Dorillon, who "dined out" a great deal, and was fully posted on these subjects.

"Wines?" said Mr. Aylmer.

"Oh, that's an understood thing," observed the well-fed pigeon, smoothing her silky
plumes. "Sherry with the soup,
claret with the oysters, and Rosder's dry champagne to finish up with."

"And tell the cook to make haste,
please," said Cathie.

Mr. Aylmer sat there like a martyr, with a lead-colored face; but he never flinched—no, not even when the hot-house strawberries, at twenty-five cents each, were served,
and Miss Dorillon sent back her plate for a dozen more.

Apparently all of them—Mr.
Aylmer alone excepted—enjoyed their lunch exceedingly; and after an hour's sojourn at the table, the ladies took their smiling leave.

"We've enjoyed ourselves so much!" said Mrs. Dorillon, wipping her lips.

"Snook & Cruff's chef really has distinguished himself!" said Cathie leisurely fastening her glove.

Emmitsburg Chronicle.

FRIDAY, JUNE 27, 1890.

THE CHRONICLE will be issued on Thursday of next week in order to allow those connected with the office to observe the usual Fourth of July holiday.

A BUSY WEEK DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

The closing of school exercises for the year bringing as it does extra work to teachers and pupils in preparation for the intellectual "Harvest Home" which is intended to represent the results obtained through earnest faithful labor during the scholastic year, is an exciting time as well as a busy one, and the week now closing has been more than full of interest and occupation. The CHRONICLE being the only newspaper in Emmitsburg, and of course from its position the representative of the Educational interests of the neighborhood, is necessarily given up in a great measure this week, to the reproduction of the scenes attending the different commencement exercises which have occupied public attention during the week, to the exclusion of general news.

However, as all our exchanges are filled up pretty much in the same way, general news is a scarce article, school work and commencement exercises filling most of the news papers.

The sensational sheets, whose columns are filled with highly wrought accounts of murders, suicides, divorces, robberies, &c., are the only ones at this dull season of the year that find much news to circulate, as the world is resting during summer heats, preparatory to a fresh plunge into the vortex of business, politics, pleasure and the thousand and one things which make up life's movements, when all the world comes home again from its vacation. In the mean time, the CHRONICLE will move on in its regular course, gathering what crumbs it can and distributing them to its readers, in the hope of instructing some, amusing others and benefiting all.

The Pennsylvania Republican State Convention met at Harrisburg on Wednesday, and nominated George Wallace Delamater, of Crawford county, for Governor; Senator Louis A. Watres, of Lackawanna, for Lieutenant-Governor, and Thomas J. Stewart of Philadelphia, the present incumbent, for secretary of internal affairs.

FIDELITY AND DEPOSIT COMPANY.

This is a new corporation organized under a charter granted by the last Legislature, which will furnish security, manage estates, &c. Its rooms, 7 North Calvert St., Baltimore are handsomely fitted up, the first floor to be occupied as the banking and general business department, and the second to be used for the meetings of the directors and consultation with those having business with the company, which is authorized to act as surety, transfer agent or register of stocks, bonds, &c. It bonds being recognizable by clerks, courts, registrars and public officials in all the counties of the state.

Its special feature is the guarantee business. The company will assume the management of estates, but permits the lawyers and friends of beneficiaries to act as guardians, trustees or executors of such estates, and will furnish bond for them. Thus it is in no way antagonizes the legal fraternity, but is an important auxiliary to the profession, and enables its members to secure bond in trust estates at a moderate charge without having to ask personal favors from friends. Railroad, telegraph, postoffice, banking and other employees occupying positions of trust requiring bond can furnish security through the company. It numbers among its patrons many persons who could, without difficulty, procure personal bonds, but who prefer to pay for the service rather than be placed under obligations to friends.

A system of bookkeeping has been adopted by which the condition of any estate or case under the company's management can be seen at a glance, and duplicate correct records of all such cases are kept and are open to the inspection of guardians, trustees, &c. The stock is held by the most prominent business men, and the company is a purely home institution.

The officers are: Clinton P. Paine, president; Lloyd L. Jackson, first vice-president; Edwin Warfield, second vice-president; George W. Bishop, treasurer; William A. Hammond, general counsel.

THERE is talk of erecting a monument in York to commemorate the sitting of the Continental Congress in that place.

That tired feeling now so often heard of, is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives mental and bodily strength.

EIGHTY-SECOND Annual Commencement

Mt. St. Mary's College.

As previously announced in these columns, the Eighty-second Annual Commencement at this time-honored institution of learning was held on Wednesday, June 25th. The fine old buildings and classic surroundings appeared to unusual advantage on this perfect June day, while from the cupola of the main building the Stars and Stripes floated in the breeze. The exercises were held in the spacious commencement hall, which was tastefully decorated with bunting and laurel. Festoons of laurel drooped from the ceiling and wound around the pillars on either side of the platform, in the center of which hung a wreath with the center filled solid with oxeye daisies, in which the figures "90" were formed with pansies. This was arranged by Mr. Wm. E. Martin of the graduating class, and the effect was decidedly artistic.

At a few minutes past nine o'clock the College Band struck up the entrance march, during the rendition of which the presiding Bishop, escorted by the Faculty and visiting clergymen entered the hall and took their seats on the platform, after which the students filed in.

Rev. Thos. McGovern, D. D., Bishop of Harrisburg, Pa., who presided at the exercises occupied a seat in the center of the rear of the platform with Rev. P. F. McSweeney, D. D., of New York City at his right, and Rev. Edw. P. Allen, D. D., President of the College at his left, while on either side and within the railing of the second platform were seated the members of the graduating class. Seats on the first platform were occupied by members of the faculty and visiting clergymen. Of the first named we noticed Rev. Jno. J. Tierney, A. M., Vice-President; Rev. Francis P. Ward, A. M., Rev. Edw. F. X. McSweeney, S. T. D., Rev. Wm. L. O'Hara, A. M., Rev. Daniel Quinn, A. M., Prof. Ernest Lagarde, A. M., Prof. James A. Mitchell, A. M., Prof. Edmund J. Ryan, A. M., Prof. August Reutter, A. M., Prof. Gottfried Kochenbach and Prof. Thos. J. Donlon, A. B. Prominent among the visitors were, Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. T. Sullivan, Wheeling, W. Va.; Very Rev. J. Jos. The singing by the Mountain Quartette, composed of Prof. Kochenbach, Messrs. W. F. Cullen, M. C. The awards of the special medals are decided by the written examinations at the end of the year, and are distinct from the regular class honors, awarded according to the percentage attained during the year.

Immediately after the conclusion of the exercises a meeting of the Alumni Association was held in the College parlor, at which officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, A. V. D. Watterson, Esq., Pittsburg, Pa.; Vice-President, Thos. J. McTigue, Ph. D., New York City; Secretary, Chas. B. Ernst, Rochester, N. Y.; Treasurer, Rev. Wm. L. O'Hara, of the College. The other business transacted was of an unimportant character.

The Alumni dinner was then served in the College refectory, at which a number of invited guests were present. After dinner President Allen read several letters of regret at not being able to attend, among which were one from His Excellency, Elihu E. Jackson, Governor of Maryland and another from Hon. Carroll Spence, of Baltimore, who proposed a toast to that distinguished educator and worthy divine, the late Rev. John McCaffrey, D. D., for many years President of Mt. St. Mary's College. The toast proposed by President Allen to His Holiness, Pope Leo, XIII was responded to by Bishop McGovern, and at the request of Dr. Allen, Rev. James E. Duffy, V. F., of East Albany, N. Y., responded to the toast proposed by Hon. Carroll Spence. Rev. Duffy's response was an eloquent and touching eulogy. A toast was then proposed to Hon. Wm. McSherry, of Littlestown, Pa., whose presence on this occasion was in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation at the Mountain. Mr. McSherry responded to the toast in a few remarks addressed especially to the graduates, which with the celebration of the event called strikingly to memory Longfellow's "Mortui Salutamus," dedicated to the graduating class of Harvard College on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation. Toasts were then drunk to the Rev. President, Dr. Allen, to Bishop McGovern and to the graduating class. In response to the toast to Dr. Allen, that gentleman made slight allusion to the standing and financial condition of the College, in which he stated that when he was placed at the head of affairs at the Mountain, five years ago, the College was carrying an indebtedness of $65,000, which up to this time had been reduced to $28,000. This announcement was met with a loud burst of applause. Dr. Allen also stated that against 108 students in that year, the College roll now numbered 179. The Venerable Prof. Chas. A. Leppow, owing to his recent indisposition was not present at the commencement exercises, but greeted many of his friends in the dining hall, and we are pleased to learn that he is recovering his health.

On Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, lectures with experiments were given in the College Cabinet on "Oxygen," its effects and uses" by Eugene E. Grasselli, Cleveland, Ohio, and on "Electricity as a means of generating Light," by Bernard F. McKenna, Wilmington, Del. The young men were assisted in their preparations for the lectures by Prof. James A. Mitchell, who is instructor in both of these sciences.

The final contest for the Gold Medals in eloquence was held on Tuesday evening and there were ten competitors. The names of the donors and successful competitors for these medals appear among the list of special prizes.

Studies will be resumed at the College on Wednesday, September 10th.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful eruptions on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 2 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child."—J. C. Kaurig, N. J.

When the blood is loaded with impurities, the whole system becomes disordered. This condition of things cannot last long without serious results. In such cases, a powerful alternative is needed, such as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It never fails, and has no equal.

The wheat harvest this year in Maryland will be four days to a week earlier than usual, and the prospect of an abundant yield was never more promising. Well-informed farmers express the opinion that 35 to 40 bushels per acre will be harvested generally throughout the State.

We have received a communication signed "J. T. C." giving account of a wedding recently celebrated in this vicinity. If the writer had furnished his or her name a part of the article at least would have appeared, but as it is we decline. The rule of this office is that all communications must be accompanied by the name of the writer, as an evidence of good faith, and when the same is withheld the CHRONICLE withholds the article, thus we have a "stand off."

Scraper's Magazine for July has a very beautiful engraving representing a picture in one of the Odes of Horace, Bruce Price writes of "The Suburban House" and the subject is made interesting by a number of fine illustrations. "Jerry," the pathetic and wonderfully realistic story commenced in the June number is continued. W. Hamilton Gibson writes of the arts and resources of the feathered tribes under the title of "Bird Cradles." E. L. Godkin in his interesting discussion of "The Rights of the Citizen," treats of his right "To His Own Reputation." Octave Thanet has a short story entitled "Under Five Shillings." "In the Valley," by Harold Frederic, is concluded. "Surf and Surf-bathing" is entertainingly described and illustrated by Duffield Osborne. George Lowe, M. D., writes of "The Last Slave Ship," and "The Point of View" being decidedly changed enables us to form opinions more or less correct on several subjects of which we are apt to entertain very decided opinions.

A Flat Contradiction.

Some one has told you that your catarrh is incurable. It is not so. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure it. It is pleasant to use and it always does its work thoroughly. We have yet to hear of a case in which it did not accomplish a cure when faithfully used. Catarrh is a disease which is dangerous to neglect. A certain remedy is at your command. Ask yourself if it before the complaint assumes a more serious form. All druggists.

Serious Charge.

Sheriff Gaver was in town yesterday and arrested Frank Woodard, colored, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and assault with intent to murder. He was taken before Justice Stokes and held for a hearing next Wednesday. The offense was committed on the night of the 14th inst., at which time Frank raised a tremendous commotion on the street. He submitted his case to the town authorities and had to pay a heavy fine in that instance. The Sheriff took him along to Frederick for safe keeping and will bring him back for the hearing next week, which will be before Justice Stokes.

MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT

DISTRIBUTION OF PREMIUMS

ST. EUPHEMIA'S SCHOOL.

The annual Distribution at St. Euphemia's School, this place, took place on Tuesday evening in connection with a brilliant musical entertainment. The exercises were held in the commodious hall which occupies the entire second floor of their new building, and was the first occasion of its being used for this purpose.

At a few minutes after five o'clock the performance opened with the entrance march which was well executed by Misses Maggie Tyson, Edna Hoppe, Belle Hann and Grace Linsinger, on two pianos with drum, cymbal and triangle accompaniment. During the performance of the march the scholars filed into the room, and after passing in and out of the different aisles, and between the rows of chairs, to be occupied by them, took their seats in perfect order.

The musical programme was as follows: Trio, "White Rose," by Misses Mary Sweeney, Katie Hann and Blanche Tyson; Boys' Chorus—"Star Spangled Banner," during which the Stars and Stripes were patriotically waived. "Slowly and Softly," a vocal duet, was finally rendered by Misses Mary Sweeney and Katie Hann. Grand Chorus, "All Hail Us Ye free," A waltz played on two pianos by Misses K. Weaver, B. Folger, S. Adams, M. Sweeney, S. Baker, and M. Corry. The Boys Solo and Chorus, "Where Did You Get That Hat," with Master Harry Hoke as soloist was an amusing and well rendered feature of the performance. An overture by Misses Maggie Tyson and Edna Hoppe which was admirably rendered. "Birdies Ball," a Little Girls' Chorus, was very sweet and pretty. "Two Merry Girls," solos and chorus, with Misses Mary Sweeney, Katie Hann, Blanche Tyson, Helen Tyson and Edna Hoppe as soloists; and "Qui Vive Gallop," played on two pianos by Misses Maggie Tyson, Edna Hoppe, Belle Hann and Grace Linsinger, with drum, cymbal and triangle accompaniment. The other musical selections were "Nanon Waltz" by Misses Marion Hoke, A. Baker, Helen Tyson and Master Harry Reinsdorf; Vocal Trio by Misses Blanche Tyson, Edna Hoppe and Helen Tyson; Cornet solos by Master Guy Hoppy, vocal solo by Miss Edna Hoppe and a grand exit march.

Premiums in Etymology, Grammar, Rhetoric, Sacred and Profane History, Geography, Algebra, Geometry, Book-keeping, Reading and Writing were liberally awarded throughout the different classes. Gold medals were presented to Miss Rose Donoghue and Master George Nussor of the first class in Christian Doctrine and Miss A. Kéim in the second class. A number of premiums were also awarded in these classes and also in music and drawing. Premiums for punctual attendance during the year were given to Misses M. Tyson, B. Lawrence, B. Hann, and H. Knouff, and a premium to Miss Alice McCarron for excellence in application. A gold medal for composition, subject—"The True Woman," was awarded to Miss Mary Sweeney, and Miss Margaret Tyson received honorable mention for the second best composition on this subject. A medal was awarded to Miss Gertrude Long for composition, subject—"A Good School Girl." Crosses for attendance at Catechism and Singing Vespers, were given to Master Ernest Adelsberger and Misses Edna Smith and Sadie Hoke.

The performance throughout was a most creditable affair, and must have proved very gratifying to the Sisters in charge, whilst the musical programme, which was rendered so well under the able direction of Miss M. Beck, shows that, although she has been but a short time with the school, she is doing a good work. The exhibition in crayon work was remarkable, and showed an unusual amount of talent. Among this collection was a portrait drawn by Miss May Donoghue, of her father Mr. John Donoghue, which is a strikingly life like portrait and would command attention in an artist's studio.

We cannot close without noting the fine voices upon which the careful training given at the school is having marked effect. Conspicuous among these appear, Misses Edna Hoppe, Mary Sweeney, Blanche Tyson, Katie Hann and Helen Tyson.

The exercises were attended by about 400 persons, prominent among whom were Rev. H. F. White, C. M., pastor of St. Joseph's Church, and Rev. Fr. Mandine of Emmitsburg, who presided. Rev. Fr. Lavazzeri, of Emmitsburg, and Rev. Daniel Quinn and Prof. Donlon of Mt. St. Mary's College.

The school numbers over two hundred scholars, and strange to say, the boys are in the majority.

The following is the prize essay by Miss Mary Sweeney:

"WHAT CONSTITUTES A TRUE WOMAN."

Noble subject! I subject that would require a pen more gifted than mine to depict or portray as it deserves. How presumptuous, then, must it appear in me, a simple school girl, even to attempt to delineate in a few pages, a theme that would afford material for a good sized volume. The various characteristics that ennoble woman have likewise been so frequently depicted, that anything I could say, must be mere common place, or plain repetition of ideas, that have been strikingly outlined by gifted writers. Notwithstanding all these misgivings, sufficient to discourage one just learning to walk in the path of composition, this humble tribute to the qualities that should adorn a true representative of the gentler sex, the presiding genius of "Home, Sweet Home," how humble soever it be, is respectfully submitted.

Woman, placed on earth to be the companion of man, subject to him, should be self sacrificing, modest, and retiring in manners, while fulfilling the various duties appointed her. Inferior to man in physical strength, she, nevertheless, directs his household, while clinging to him for protection, as the vine to the sheltering oak.

Her position in ancient times was very different from that which she occupies at the present day, and which she has held for centuries preceding ours. This is owing, in a great measure, to the dignity conferred on a delicate Virgin chosen by God to be His Mother, thus ennobling in her person, all the daughters of Eve, through coming generations. Some men, who have neither religious instinct, faith, nor feeling, think women are created inferior to men. This is a mistaken idea. What would the world be if not for woman? Others, who have a truer sense of the fitness of things, place her in a higher sphere.

Woman should consider her character above all, and preserve it from ever being sullied by the most trifling blemish; in this respect she can never be too careful. Her innocence is the most precious treasure she can have on earth, and she should prefer death rather than lose it; in order to preserve it, she should fly from all danger, and if it be difficult to avoid, fight like a heroine for the preservation of a treasure above all treasures; employing every possible means to guard it unstained, not only before man, but particularly in the eyes of God. "Blessed are the clean of heart," says our Savior Jesus Christ, "for they shall see God."

Her conduct should be edifying to every one around her. Woman the sunshine of her house, should not be satisfied to illuminate it; she should warm it also, with her heart, dispelling like the sun, the mists and clouds that sometimes mar the cordiality of home. "Woman," says the Scripture, "should be the sun of her household."

St. Gregory Nazianzen says, in writing of his mother, that "she practised perfectly the advice in the Book of Proverbs, devoting herself so successfully to domestic affairs, that one might have thought she had no leisure for those of Heaven, and yet, so truly pious, as to appear a stranger to all household questions. Neither of these obligations interfered with the other." Women who are raised in delicacy, abundance, and idleness, are indolent and unhappy; while those who are diligent and fond of work are always cheerful.

The influence of a good mother over her children can not be over-estimated; the patience and self-sacrifice of a true mother, will bear its fruits in after years when her children will take their places in society. "The good and evil men do, live after them," is illustrated in the lives of many heroes and heroines of history. The virtuous actions of numberless religious women, who have devoted their lives to the care of the sick and the poor, are to be contrasted with those of beautiful women of the world, who use their influence for evil. A woman's value depends entirely, first, on her devotion to home and its duties; second, on the assistance she renders the world as an edifying member of society. I will conclude my effort by asking, "What constitutes a true woman?" and my answer will be taken from the Book of Proverbs; "A virtuous woman, is one who stretches out her hand to the poor, yea, she reacheth forth her hand to the needy, she looketh well, and eateth not the bread of idleness. Her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her." MARY SWEENEY, St. Euphemia's, Emmitsburg, June 24, 1890.

Firemen's Fair and Festival.

Arrangements are being rapidly completed for the Firemen's Fair and Festival next week. The Guardian Hose Company of Mechanicstown will attend the Fair in a body on Wednesday evening. On Friday a grand parade will be given, the full programme of which will appear in these columns next week.

Vacation in a Buggy.

A rather unique way of spending a brief vacation has been devised by Miss Emma C. Cook. In company with Mrs. Perry she left Washington Saturday afternoon on a driving tour through Maryland to the mountains of Pennsylvania. They have a light buggy and a good horse, and they expect to have a pleasant trip. Their itinerary is only generally laid down, but they expected to reach Darnestown, Md., Saturday evening, spend Sunday, and continue their trip on Monday.—Frederick News.

A Seared Editor.

A rugged farmer stalked into the sanctum with a big whip under his arm. "Be you the editor?" he asked. "I am," was the half apprehensive reply. "Here's two dollars—send me your paper, for life," he said.

"You see," he went on, "our daughter was sick and liked to die; she drooped and grew weak and pale, had headaches, no appetite, back ached, feet and hands like ice, couldn't sleep, back with cough, and we thought she had consumption. No medicine helped her till we tried that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription mentioned in your paper, when she began to mend in no time and is now well and handsome as a rose—put me down as a life subscriber."

Now the editor is looking for another scare. The medicine has cured scores afflicted as was the farmer's daughter, restoring the female functions to healthy action, and removing the obstructions and suppressions which caused her trouble. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction, or price ($1.00) refunded.

DISTRIBUTION

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY

The Eighty-first Annual Commencement and Distribution of Premiums at St. Joseph's Academy, near this place, took place on Thursday. The sky was cloudless, the weather oppressively hot and the day bright and beautiful as a June day is expected to be. The hall of the Academy was comfortably filled with an audience well qualified to appreciate the exercises.

Rev. Thomas McGovern, D. D., Bishop of Harrisburg, Pa., presided, and entered the hall supported by Rev. Fr. Mandine of Emmitsburg on his right, and Rev. Edw. P. Allen, D. D., President of Mt. St. Mary's College on his left, and accompanied by Very Rev. Wm. Byrne, D. D., Vicar General of Boston, Rev. Jno. J. Tierney, Vice-President of the College, Rev. H. F. White, C. M., and Rev. Fr. Lavazzeri of Emmitsburg, Rev. James E. Duffy, V. F., Past Albany, N. Y., Rev. Daniel Quinn and Rev. Henry Murray of the College, and a number of other clergymen and members of the College faculty, all of whom occupied seats arranged for them in front of the audience. Prominent among the visitors present we noticed Chief Judge James McSherry, wife and daughter of Frederick, Dr. E. F. Shorb and wife of Hagerstown, Mr. Malloy, Troy, N. Y., Mr. Cornelius Kane, Pittsburgh, Miss Stuart Mosby, Washington, Mr. Melia and daughter, Glenelg, Md., Mrs. Higgins and daughter, Albany, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Nolan of Reading, Pa., Miss K. May, and Mr. and Mrs. Brennan, Shamokin, Pa., Mrs. Dr. Anderson, Messrs. Michael Mark and Matthew O'Brien of the Southern Express, Mrs. Hart, Wilmington, Del., Mr. Gaspari, Baltimore, Mr. Blanchard, New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Grassellier, Cincinnati, Mr. McKenna, Virginia, Mrs. Skinner and niece, Pennsylvania, Miss M. Beck of St. Euphemia's School, Emmitsburg, Mr. Muth, Baltimore, Mr. Martin, Westminster, State's Attorney E. S. Eichelberger, Sheriff Otto J. Gaver and Mr. John Eisenhour of Frederick, Dr. George S. Pouke, Westminster, Messrs H W Anderson, Jas B McElroy and F D Conyer of the graduating class at the College, and many others whose names we failed to ascertain.

The exercises commenced with the performance of a grand entrance march by Misses Margaret McKenna, Katherine Constock, Irene Gaspari and Loretto Muth, during which the scholars entered the hall, and bowing to the presiding Bishop, executed a drill in which many pretty and graceful movements appeared and then took their seats. The programme opened with "Estudiantina" by the Vocal Class. Premiums in Christian Doctrine were then distributed throughout the different classes, followed by "La Dame Blanche," a piano quartette, by Misses Emma Moore, Margaret Higgins, Mathilde Levert and Florence Droogan. Next in order was a beautiful Cantata, "Tribute to America," in which nine different countries were represented, each young lady carrying a flag of the country impersonated: America, Miss Emma Moore, England, Miss Clara Edwards, Scotland, Miss Margaret McKenna, Ireland, Miss Noemi Thompson, Germany, Miss Mary Brennan, France, Miss Louise McSherry, Mexico, Miss Pauline Mosby, Spain, Miss Ellen Hartman, Switzerland, Miss May O'Brien. At the conclusion all joined in a "Greeting to Maryland," and ended with Homage to His Holiness, Leo XIII. Next came the distribution of premiums in the various English Classes, Languages, Music and in the Art and Ornamental Department, followed by a finely executed "Ave Maria," by Miss May O'Brien. The Coronation followed and a large percentage of the young ladies received crowns for good deportment. "Elisabetha" a selection from Rossini, was then rendered by Misses P. Mosby, M. Brennan, L. Thompson, M. Shorb, S. Levert and L. McSherry, followed by a recitation of "The Famine" from Longfellow's "Hiawatha" by twelve of the young ladies in concert, a triumph of elocutionary skill, which was beautiful in the extreme, every word and gesture being in perfect accord. "Fiori Silvestri" was then rendered in chorus with piano accompaniment.

Academic Honors were then awarded. In testimony of having passed honorably through the graduating class, a Gold Medal to Miss Martha Melia, Glenelg, Md., Miss Pauline V. Y. 3d Senior—Miss Coana Hennessy, Chicago, Ill. 1st Intermediate—Miss Anna Campbell, Washington, D. C.

The Valedictory—"Farewell to St. Joseph's," by Miss Martha Melia of Glenelg, Md., was then sung by the Graduating Class. After which Bishop McGovern delivered an address to the Graduating Class, giving them lots of good advice and warning them against the evils and temptations of the world and pointing out some of the duties and responsibilities which as intelligent Christian women would necessarily devolve upon them. The Exit March, by Miss A. Jarrell, Miss N. Skinner, Miss M. Welty and Miss S. Levert, closed the exercises.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Beautiful Observances in the Presbyterian and Lutheran Churches.

The beautiful custom of observing Children's Day is growing more popular throughout the entire country every year, and the celebrations at both the Presbyterian and Lutheran Churches last Sunday, were ahead of any previously held here.

Service at the Presbyterian church was held at 10 o'clock, A. M., and opened with singing hymn No. 150 from the Hymnal, followed by the Invocation by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Simonton, D. D. The hymn, "Again the day of Gladness" was then sung, after which followed a Baptismal Service, at which two infants received this sacrament, viz: Oliver Alexander, son of Maj. and Mrs. O. A. Horner, and Anna Augusta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Annan. The service was then continued by singing "Hail the Cross of Jesus," Bible reading from Mark 9: 36, 37; Luke 18: 15-17; and Luke 8: 41, 42; 49-55. Next followed a Recitation and Song by the Primary Class, after which Bible Reading—"Children's Hosannas," Matthew 21: 13, 16, followed by the 148th Psalm. After singing "Children of Jerusalem" a conference on Sabbath-School work was held; then the offerings were collected, followed by the hymn, "Happy are We, God's own Little Flock." The pastor, Rev. Dr. Simonton, then delivered a brief and appropriate address. "On our Way Rejoicing" was next sung, after which the exercises closed with prayer, Doxology and Benediction.

Although the attendance at the Lutheran Church in the evening was large, a number were prevented from going by the storm which came up about six o'clock, and which continued during the entire service. The programme here was carried out as follows: Doxology—"Praise God from Whom all blessings flow." Responses; Gloria Patri; Concert Reading—1st Psalm; Singing—"The Children's Day has come again." Prayer by the pastor, Rev. Luther DeYoe; Singing—"Seek the Lord," "Gladly Sing," by the infant-school; Recitation—by four little girls; Hymn—"Hark, Hark," Solo—"Shall I gather at the river," by little Miss Madeline Pringle, aged five years; Recitation—"Loom of Life," Miss Grace Gelwick; Male quartette—"Home all Beautiful;" "Little Workers"—Primary Department; Recitation by Miss Elsie Myers; Singing—"Immortal King;" "Summer Song"—solo and chorus, Miss Helen Hoke soloist; Recitation—"Lord of Harvest," by five little boys and six little girls; Song—"There is something to do," by three little girls. After a brief address by the pastor, Rev. Luther DeYoe, the collection was taken up and the service concluded with singing "Jerusalem my happy home," and the Benediction.

Mrs. Jno. Bookman of Baltimore is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Walter.

A. V. D. Watterson, Esq., and Mr. Gallagher of Pittsburgh made a visit at Mr. Wm. Shriver's.

I. M. Fisher & Co. have at last secured a smith in the person of, well, I will say, "Old Dad Divine." This completes the force of thirteen hands and the firm now hopes to be able to turn out new work rapidly. They sent two more park wagons to Penmar this week, and but four more are required to complete that contract.

On Monday night Messrs Lawrence Dielman and George Manning made a visit to this place, for the purpose of attending the meeting of the orchestra but unfortunately they were disappointed as the orchestra didn't meet owing to some of the members being unavoidably absent. In return the visitors, who are both good musicians, rendered some excellent music on their violins.

A Haunted House.

This body of ours has been likened to a tenement. It often has a haunted apartment—the stomach. Scared by the eldritch spirit, dyspepsia, digestion flies and refuses to return. What can break the spell, what can raise the ban laid upon the unhappy organ? We answer unhesitatingly, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and we are warranted in the response by the recorded testimony of myriads, covering a period of over a third of a century. A course of the Bitters, begun in any stage of the affliction, and persistently followed, will terminate in cure positive, not partial. The Bitters restores tone to the digestive nerve, cures and purifies the juices exuding from the cellular tissue that act upon the food digestively, expels bile from the stomach and the blood, and promotes a regular flow of body. Malaria, kidney complaint, nervousness, rheumatism and neuralgia give way to this medicine.
