THE STARS.

What are their years? The night's unfathomed deep Rings back no answer, gives no glimmering key;
And still unknown and beautiful they keep
The silent courses of eternity.

What are their memories of creation's days, When startled chaos, from its kingdom hurled,
First knew its master, and with glad amaze They sang the birth-song of our trembling world?

What have they looked on since, with patient eyes, While million years uncounted rolled away?
Who claims antiquity for man that dies Before such records of the past as they?

Can they to man the mystery explain, The why, the whence, of his uncertain state?
Unlock the riddle that he reads in vain And clear the tangled problem of his face?

Can they fashion to the future give,
And tell the whither of man's anxious quest?
Make life a less than weariness to live, Or stay the hazard of his wild unrest?

Oh, stars? what midnight message do ye bear
To minds grown weary with the year's increase?

The wistful eyes that watch you shining there Look out of troubled hearts that know not peace.

SCENES IN IRELAND.

(We have been permitted to make the following extracts from the journal of a friend who spent the past summer in European travel, and who from association was particularly attracted to Ireland and spent considerable time in visiting among family friends in the Green Old Isle.)

Why is it that travelers always have so much to write of England and Scotland and so little to say of the Emerald Isle, as it is fittingly called—with its beautiful hills and valleys mirrored in the sea?

Some of its cities can compare favorably with any in the world, in the architecture of buildings both public and private. And the municipal arrangements are said to be perfect.

Our first landing place was Londonderry. The old portion of the city is surrounded by a massive wall, which was built as a defence against the Danes, and now, serves as a promenade. The gates of this wall were closed to protect the city from the invasion of James II. It was here we encountered our first beggar, and as he implored the protection of Heaven in our behalf, we willingly gave him a few pennies. Then came our ride to the Giants-Causeway, delightful in its self, but made doubly so by the amusing locality of our chariot.

In a twinkling he would be off the car (I believe the horses here never think of starting in the absence of the driver) and come back saying, "here my lady is a bit of flax, or a primrose, to put in your book to take to America." Then he would spin some yarn about an old ruin on the top of a hill where some wonderful thing had taken place.

At last we reached the far-famed pile where we found a boat, waiting to take us around the base of the wall and into the mouth of a cave, when a boy suddenly appeared, fired off a pistol, and then, held out an oar, on which we were expected to deposit a small coin as a reward for the pleasure of hearing the echo.

In the evening we returned to the city thoroughly tired out, yet not disappointed with the days adventure.

Is there not an intense borrowed pleasure, which we feel, when we know that those we are especially interested in are enjoying and living over again the many happy hours of early years? The school house where they conned their A.
B. C's,

"Near the little brook
In the shady nook—
And the spot where the wildflowers grew."
Ah, the wildflowers! I saw a floral picture to-day, which so much reminded me of the earthly side of human life. The strong sturdy hawthorn with blossoms scenting the air and peeping beneath its branches the wildrose, showing its beauty, yet concealing its thorn—whilst modestly in the grass beneath, bloomed the bright and cheery buttercup.

I had pointed out to me to-day a wide spreading and peculiar looking tree, where my informant said when a boy he used to watch for the fairies. And I thought, in looking at the little shady nooks where the wildflowers formed a carpet, richer by far, than any but natures loom could weave, one could almost expect to see the fairies dancing to the music of the feathered orchestra.

To-day, we had a delightful visit to a stone cottage with a thatched roof built two hundred years ago.
The present inmate, over eighty, with her children and grandchildren living in a contented way not worrying themselves about the world with its fashions and its follies.
Near the entrance of a Roman Catholic Cemetery, is a Celtic Cross, said to have been found in a bog in the year 700. There is still a section missing. On the part erected are figures in "bass-relief" representing Adam, Eve and the Serpent, also, Abraham preparing for the sacrifice.

In this ground, where the thistle seemed to flourish unmolested—are very many old stones, a prominent one that of the "O'Neils of the bloody hand." The stone gives the history of several generations. On the top their "Coat of Arms," a shield with stars and two lions rampant, with a hand between them.

It is said, that they, with a rival faction went in boats, to take possession of Ulster, the prent province, decided, that the first hand that touched land should have possession, and one of the O'Neils seeing the other boat likely to win, cut off his hand, throwing it on shore, and from that originated their Coat of Arms.

The climate of Ireland is, I suppose, better adapted for the growing of flax than any other country in the world, and linen weaving is one of its great industries. We visited a mill where six hundred looms were kept in constant motion by steam. There were apartments for dressing, folding, marking and packing, the whole employing several hundred men, women and children, and every thing in connection carried on in the most systematic way.

The building was of stone, nearly covered with ivy, and surrounded by shrubbery and flowers giving a pleasant outlook for the operatives during the noonday hour.

On our way to the mill we saw the ruins of an old castle built in the time of Cromwell. It was certainly more picturesque than comfortable looking.

It is a treat to an American to roam through house and grounds, where so many generations have lived and died, and find them so well preserved.

Col. B's domain contains eleven hundred acres. The house is of the Elizabethan style. The family being absent all but the proprietor himself, we were by him, kindly and courteously received—with full permission to ramble where we pleased. There was the "Hall" with its armor and other implements of war. The "Picture gallery," "Reception rooms" and "China room" which contained china from all parts of the world.
The "Library" where one whose inclination ran in that direction could shut himself up and live another life apart from this sympathy with those of the past.

Then the grounds with their many beautiful shrubs and flowers.
I however, enjoyed the part where nature was left undisturbed, save where the wildness was toned down just enough to harmonize with the care bestowed by man.

This has been a gala-day. About noon we took the train for Brag, the "Irish Brighton," which is about forty minutes ride from Dublin. I think it one of the most charming spots I have yet seen.
The expanse stretches for a mile along the sea, with seats for the weary. At night when brilliantly lighted, and with the merry throng moving to and fro, and the sounds of pleasant music, it was a joyous and delightful scene.

Brag has some fine residences and numerous cottages for summer visitors. The bathing accommodations are said to be all that can be desired. I must not forget the cool and artistically fitted up room where we had supper, and which in itself would tempt one's appetite, though fasting was recommended both for health and conscience sake.

On our return to the city, although nine o'clock when we passed Kingston, a scene burst upon our view that will not soon be forgotten.
There was still a faint glow from the setting sun, which threw a rose-ate tinge over the water, where the merry vessels and sailboats with their lights reflected in the sea formed a beautiful panorama.

The charms of the "Lakes of Killarney have been so well described by abler pens than mine, that it would seem like presumption on my part, to add one line more.

We lingered sometime at "Muckross Abbey," a ruin which is not in such a ruinous condition as to detract from the associations of the long ago. We ascended the spiral stair case to the dininghall into which the cloisters opened, and where now that birds make their nests and sing their matin song.

We have up to this time seen only the bright side of Ireland. After leaving Killarney going southward, we passed through a part where the poverty was plainly seen. The whole aspect of the country seemed changed, bare rugged mountains with here and there a little cabin with its patch of land on which with hard labour a few potatoes could be raised, and where, the beggars met one continually, indeed, they seemed to be lurking behind the huge masses of stone which lined the roadside ready to spring upon the traveler for the expected penny.

One is surprised how in a short distance so great a change takes place. A few hours after we drove up to the coziest of Hotels embow-ered in shrubbery and flowers. Just across the drive is a stone wall covered with hawthorn and beyond that "Glenariff Bay." One can look from the window and see the boats in every direction. Nearby is an island on which stands a ruined castle whilst the dark and well defined mountains can be seen in the distance.

I think every one visiting Ireland will be impressed with the splended roads and fine bridges which will enable one to ride in any part of the country, "Over stream and through valleys, o'er mountain and moor," without meeting anything disagreeable or dangerous, indeed, it seems like driving through a well kept park. Hedges of hawthorn, wild-rose and honeysuckle on either side with the trees forming a delightful archway.

We to-day, July 1st, 1890, say to Ireland, farewell. A country which providence has richly endowed in many ways, and yet where "Man's inhumanity to man, has made countless thousands mourn."

A Business Railroad.

The Southern Maryland Railroad whose engines were burned some months ago, and which has since suspended operations, has again resumed. The resumption is only partial, however, and the method of operation is unique and primitive. Horse power is now used instead of steam in transporting freight over the line of the Southern Maryland from Hughesville, in Charles county, to Brandywine, in Prince George's county, a distance of about nine miles. At the latter place connection is made with the B. and P. Road, and the freight that once reaches there can be transported without difficulty to any part of the country. To Mr.
George I. Chappellear, a merchant at Hughesville, is due the credit of adopting the system now in vogue on the road. Mr. Chappellear is engineer, conductor, fireman, brakeman, baggage-master, section hand, station agent, and furnishes a part of the motive power of the rejuvenated road. Mr. Chappellear's method is as follows: He has procured two singletrees, which are attached one to each side of the car. A horse is hitched to each of these, and, using the sides of the track as a tow-path, they are urged on by the lusty voice and strong cowlhide whip of the conductor to pull the freight he had collected.
The horses objected a little to the work at first, but it is said that Mr.
Chappellear has broken them to make the trip without much coaxing. On the line of road traversed there is a high trestle work about eighty feet long. This at first was a puzzle to the enterprising merchant, for his horses could not walk the crossties. He overcame the difficulty, however, by unhitching the animals and leading them over on the ground beneath the trestle. After securing them he returned and with a strong crowbar pried the car over the bridge.
After this the horses were rehitched and all went smoothly and gayly on their way. It is said that Mr.
Chappellear has taken the contract to haul 4,300 cases of canned goods from Hughesville to Brandywine by his novel method. He can carry a load of several tons and can make the round trip in about eight hours.—Baltimore Sun.

BOTH white and yellow daisies have been prohibited by law in two States—New York and Wisconsin —and in Canada, being placed on a par with the thistle as noxious and mischievous weeds. The New York statute says that both daisies and thistles shall be cut down twice a year along the lines of all canals and railroads, and on lands bordering the public highways, in June and July and in August and September, and in certain cases they may be cut down by anyone at the expense of any corporation on whose land they are found. In many of the fields in the vicinity of New York and throughout the States of New York and New Jersey the grass will often be white or yellow, as the case may be with daisies, which means the serious depreciation of any crop sought to be raised on such ground. They are not eaten by any kind of stock, and cattle avoid hay in which they are found, while they propagate themselves so rapidly that it is most difficult to eradicate them. One of the highly recommended among insect powders, that known as buhach, is made from pyrethrum, which is only a name of one of the varieties of the daisy.

Sudden Death from Tight Lacing.

One of the dancers at the Court Theatre in Berlin was found dead in her bed. She had performed at the theatre the evening before, and seemed in good health. At first it was supposed that the girl had committed suicide by taking poison, but a post-mortem examination showed that she died from failure of the heart's action, due to tight lacing. The liver of the unfortunate young woman was horribly deformed and crushed out of shape.
Prof. Virchow, at a lecture which he lately gave in Berlin on "Diseases of the Liver," stated that half the cases of diseases of the liver as women were brought about by tight lacing.—Gallaniana Messenger.

FRIDAY, OCT. 24, 1890.

EMPLOYMENTS FOR WOMEN.

The time is past, when woman's sphere of action was limited to domestic duties and the so-called feminine employments and woman, to-day, stands side by side with man, not only in the struggle for means of subsistence, but in the ability, and the right to secure honorable recognition and equal facilities with the stronger sex to earn an independent livelihood.

There is scarcely any honorable career that is not open now to the woman whose talents, ambition or social position either prompt or compel her to self-dependence.

Nor need the refinement and delicate sensibilities, so essential to true womanhood, be laid aside, in the necessary contact with the enterprise and spirit of the working world, which is necessitated by a life of active remunerative employment. The true woman, will be womanly and refined however she may be surrounded or employed.

Every field of occupation, commensurate with her physical strength is at this day accessible to woman and every working woman from the humblest sewing girl to the most accomplished artist or litterateur is entitled to the respect and reverence of the world. When we say "every field of occupation is open to women" we take the liberty of protesting against her entering such as would detract from her innate womanliness.

Politics, for instance, with its unscrupulousness, its chicanery and its noisy publicity, should remain forever, outside of woman's sphere. She has no place in Legislative Halls, on the Judge's bench, or among the legal practitioners, there is no room for her as executor of the legal enactments of state, county or city, we do not want her services in the capture of criminals, nor in the management of institutions erected for their punishment, nor do we want to see her, however rich in zeal and piety she may be, filling the pulpits or administering the sacraments to christian congregations. Much as the prosperity and efficiency of the church depends upon her work and influence, she has no place in the public ministrations of the gospel.

But as there is no gain without some loss to balance it, even so in the emancipation of woman from the thralldom which dwarfed and clouded her nature in the past, there is danger of her drifting to the opposite extreme and by the very independence of her position, forfeiting the chivalrous respect and consideration which has always been accorded her by the sterner sex.

On Tuesday the Maryland Court of Appeals, rendered a decision affirming the validity of the election law passed by the last Legislature.

At a meeting of the presidents of all the express companies now in operation, which was held in New York on Tuesday, it was concluded to increase the rates fifty cents on a hundred pounds for principal points and make a proportionate increase for intermediate localities. It is said this increase is in fact only a restoration of the old rates, which were reduced about a year ago as an experiment.

Yes, he loves you now, 'tis true, Lass with eyes of violet blue, Lips as sweet as honey-dew, Bonny little bride!

Will he love you as to-day, When your bloom has fled away, When your golden locks are gray,— Will his love abide?

Yes, if it is the true kind it will survive all the inevitable wastes and changes of life. But, it is every woman's desire and duty to retain, as long as she can, the attractions that made her charming and beloved in youth. No one can keep her youthful bloom or equable temper if weighed down and suffering from female weakness and disorders. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a remedy for these troubles. Sold by druggists.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special to the Emmitsburg Chronicle.

The extra session business is about dead. While the President and his advisers feel that there is much public business which calls for a longer working period than is afforded in the limited short session, the fact is recognized that Congress is "too onerous" a quantity to take any extra political chances upon its action. President Harrison, too, deemed it unwise to shatter the splendid record made by the Republicans during the last session as would have been done, in part at least, had the presidential intimation thus been conveyed that legislation of such importance was left as justified the calling of Congress in extra session. Of course everybody knows that the public business has now become so great that Congress cannot clear up its work in any single session, but the President never calls an extra session unless some formidable emergency arises, or, as said, when Congress has neglected or avoided much needed and imperative public legislation. As a member of the cabinet said to me: "Congress has not been guilty of such neglect, and while it might have been desirable to accomplish other legislation the record made was so good that the party can best afford to go to the people with it alone." No extra session, therefore, is likely to be called.

Indeed, the period for the regular meeting of Congress is so close that in the executive departments no changes have been made in the regulation of the official force and business arrangements which usually follow the final adjournment. Even in the government printing office things are going along the same as for months past. Public Printer Palmer having thought it inadvisable to take the office over now only to take it over again a few weeks hence. So matters in the executive branches are simply drifting with the tide which falls on the first Monday in December.

The death of Judge Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, has been so recent that he is not yet forgotten. No man has ever received more generous tribute from the cosmopolitan life of this city made up as it is of the higher, and let us hope better, grade of American citizens. The judge was a familiar figure of city life. Democratic in his ways no "insolence of office" surrounded his being, and he was never puffed up with pride. When the weather permitted he walked to and from court, and when he rode it was in the poor man's carriage, the street car. Indeed he had just left this public conveyance when stricken to the street with fatal sickness. He said to me once while riding from the capitol that he found the street car both useful and instructive as no place afforded a better glimpse of human nature, and he added, judges should be masters of the art of human life and action. He was one of the people, too, just such a man as Lincoln might have declared as molded after his own heart. In his domestic life nothing was pretentious or showy, unless it was the brilliant intellectual endowments of his girls, daughters and granddaughters. The house in which he lived, although in the fashionable quarter, would be considered only respectable in a medium sized town, while here it is lost amid "gilded palaces," such as kings inhabit, and is characterized as "modest" simply because the home of a Supreme Court judge must receive recognition in some way. As said it is fashionably located now, but twenty years ago three men of prominence moved out on the commons, the outskirts of city life, and as the bible says built better than they knew. These three men were Senator Edmunds, ex-Secretary of State Bayard, and Justice Miller. They built plain residences adjoining each other in a square which then had few other buildings and none of these devoted to fashion. Now it is the "toney" section of the city. I have wandered away from the Judge to his house, though, because of a great and good man every little particular is of interest. In conclusion it can be said, if poverty be a virtue Judge Miller died poor. Indeed this is a condition common to justices of the Supreme Court. Their salary of ten thousand a year enables them to live well, as they must live in this city, and nothing more. Chief Justice Waite died with nothing but the house he lived in, and ever since his death Senator Edmunds has been endeavoring to have Congress appropriate enough money to pay his family the salary he would have earned had he lived the year out. Curious lawmakers, they readily appropriate money to chisel the features of a dead man in stone and refuse bread to the helpless ones he left behind.

Two Iowans of fame lay dead in this city, at the same time last week, General W. W. Belknap, being the second. Never has it ever happened that a single state has been called upon to mourn the loss of two of her distinguished sons on the same day. Rarely, indeed, except in the calamities of war, has the nation wept for two at one and the same time, perhaps never since John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died on that July fourth 1826, much over a half century ago. Belknap was best known to the country as Grant's secretary of war, but there he was appreciated for his personal worth. His body will lie at rest in Arlington Cemetery now sacred as the dwelling place of thousands of the nation's dead, and gradually becoming famous as the tomb of those, like Sheridan and Belknap, eminent in war. Belknap's fitting eulogy is that none knew him but to love him.

BLUE RIDGE SUMMIT ITEMS.

BRICK RIDGE SUMMIT.—Among those who registered at the Clermont House last week, were: George H. Howard, Washington, D. C., Ex-Judge D. Watson, Chambersburg, Hon. David McConaughy, Gettysburg, Pa., Mrs. and Miss Anderson, Burkittsville, and the Misses Miller, of Rocky Ridge, Md.

Mrs. John W. Staley, of Clear Spring, Md., with her three interesting children spent last week with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Adam Bloom.

There seems to be much activity in the matrimonial mart at present. It appears that Mr. "Jerry" Duto and Miss Marie Turner, of this place, were married prior to Joseph Duto and Miss Childs, whose marriage was noticed in the CHRONICLE a few weeks ago.

James Masters, son of Wm. Masters, Esq., proprietor of the Park House, was married at Hagerstown on Thursday last, to Mary, the pretty and popular daughter of "Shockey" McClain, Esq.

Mr. John Miller, of Fountaindale, and Miss Florence Harrison, of this place, were married at Hagerstown on the 16th inst. The bride is the daughter of the old veteran "Billy" Harrison, who shows eleven sabre cuts on his body, as his share in the late "pompeian-ness" between the Blue and the Gray.

It is doubtful if the plucky young couple who were married on the grand stand at the Frederick Fair attracted more attention, or caused more complimentary remarks than did Mr. William Masters as he dashed around the grounds in the handsome carriage, propelled by the high-spirited, perfectly matched ponies, which he lately procured through Mr. W. P. Nunemaker. It is unquestionably a fine turnout, and the popular landlord is as expert at handling the ribbons as he is in dancing a first class hotel. Though the fine pair Masters drives should not be taken as a sample of the whole stock on hand, yet horses and carriages, above the average in appearance, may always be had on reasonable terms at the Park House stables.

Fourteen thousand dollars was the price paid for Mr. Gilbert's valuable property known as Buena Vista Springs. To those who are familiar with the place and comprehend its possibilities, this seems a small sum. Work has already been commenced on the premises, and a grand hotel with beautiful grounds and excellent roads, shine in the near future.

It is predicted that Mr. Benj. F. Wolty, the Republican candidate for the Legislature, will receive the largest number of votes ever given to one person in this county.

Scrofula

Is the most ancient and most general of all diseases. Scarcely a family is entirely free from it, while thousands everywhere are its suffering slaves. Hood's Sarsaparilla has had remarkable success in curing every form of scrofula. The most severe and painful running sores, swellings in the neck or groin, humor in the eyes, causing partial or total blindness, yield to the powerful effects of this medicine. It thoroughly removes every impurity from the blood.

Scrofula

"My little daughter's life was saved, as we believe, by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before she was six months old she had 7 running scrofula sores. One physician advised the amputation of one of her fingers, to which we refused assent. When we began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla, a marked improvement was noticed and by continued use of it her recovery was complete. And she is now, being seven years old, strong and healthy." B. C. JONES, Anna, Lincoln County, Me.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

In England last year 9,926 persons were imprisoned as debtors or on civil process.

The king of medicines—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It conquers scrofula, salt rheum and all other blood diseases.

The first locomotives ever used on the new railway from Jerusalem to Jaffa have reached the latter place. They were made in Philadelphia.

MAYOR GRANT of New York, has sent a letter to Secretary Noble asking in the name of the people of New York, a recount of all the inhabitants of that city.

THE Mayor of Philadelphia has decided to have an enumeration of the population of that city made by the police. He believes there is an omission of 100,000 persons from the count.

Cure is Cure

However it may be effected, but unjust prejudice often prevents people from trying a "proprietary medicine," until other remedies prove unavailing.

I. B. RICHIE, Commission Agent, Kingston, Australia, writes: "For years a confirmed scrofula, as it was last converted by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For months a bottle of this medicine, of which I had come into possession through the kindness of a friend, remained unopened in my closet, all one winter, with a violent cold accompanied by a racking cough. Having none of my usual remedies at hand, I thought of the Cherry Pectoral, and determined to give it a trial. The result was truly magical. Relief came almost instantly, and after repeating the dose, certainly not more than half a dozen times, I found myself cured. Subsequently my daughter was cured of a severe cough by the use of the Cherry Pectoral. I recommend this preparation to all sufferers from throat and lung troubles."

For group, whooping cough, bronchitis, asthma, and consumption the best remedy is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, PREPARED BY DR. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

Death of a Former Pastor.

Rev. Daniel McCarthy, C. M., a former pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church, this place, died on the 10th inst., at St. Mary's Seminary, Perryville, Md., aged 65 years.

INVALIDS should remember that the causes of sick and nervous headaches may be promptly removed by taking Ayer's Pills. These Pills speedily correct irregularities of the stomach, liver, and bowels, and are the mildest and most reliable cathartic in use.

House Warming.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. G. Byers moved into the house on the Arnold property, recently purchased by Mr. B., in Liberty township, on Tuesday, and that evening celebrated the event by giving a dance to their friends, which was largely attended.

To Dispel Colds.

Headaches and fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, use Syrup of Figs.

EDITOR CASSELL of the Clarion should bear in mind in his allusion to our marksmanship, that there is a great difference between the size of our henry and the ducks he scares annually on his excursions with the "old ten bore." At any rate, it is a bad time to ventilate the fact when one desires to be considered a dead shot.

Troublesome Tramps.

Union Bridge and vicinity has been overrun with tramps recently who have resorted to bolder means than usual to procure money. Last week Mr. Amos Burgee, principal of the public school at Union Bridge, while passing through the outskirts of that town, was set upon by a gang of these nomads, bent on robbery, but he resisted stoutly and forced them to retreat. The same evening, Andrew Graham, was attacked and his pockets carefully searched for money, of which he had but little.—Ez.

Survey Completed.

The preliminary survey of the route of the M. V. & F. R. R. has been completed from Catocin Furnaces to Yellow Springs. The route will of course be subject to change, but the line will probably vary but little from that now laid down. It has been found to be one of the most practicable in the matter of grades and curves, while the work will be surprisingly light. For the building of a road so advantageous to the section of country traversed, to Frederick City and to the Land Improvement Company's properties at Montona Springs, White Rock and thence to Frederick, there can be no question of failure or delay in the matter of stock subscription; if there is, these people and these large interests will deservedly suffer. We expect to have report of a large and ample stock subscription on the day the books are opened at the office of Mr. Granville Thomas, in Frederick City, Thursday, October 30th. If these subscriptions are not taken and the road not built, we cannot see how the proposed improvements at Yellow Springs and White Rock can hope to materialize; so it is evident that every interest in a measure, some wholly, depend upon the building of the road and build it will be.—Clarion.

Inventions of the 19th Century.

The steamboat, the reaper, the sewing machine, Cars running by night and by day, Houses lighted by gas and heated by steam, And bright electricity's ray.

The telegraph's click speeds like lightning released, Then the telephone comes to exclaim; And, to put on the finish, the last but not least,

Is the famed little Purgative Pellet. Last but not least is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellet, because it relieves human suffering, adds to the sum of human comfort, and enables the relieved sufferer to enjoy all the blessings and luxuries of the age we live in.

A REMARKABLY handsome woman is said to be the moving spirit in a philanthropic movement in Russia to supply the poor of that country with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

In chronic and stubborn cases of neuralgia, gout, and rheumatism use Salivation Oil. It is the greatest pain-destroyer of the age. Price only 25 cents.

To the Point.

A. I. Heywood, who had charge of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station Exhibit at the Frederick Fair, said: "I wish the farmers of Frederick county would turn their attention to the Maryland Agricultural College. The College is now in splendid standing and it wants the young men of Maryland. It can do them good."

Removed to Hagerstown.

The plant of the Hess Manufacturing Company was removed to Hagerstown this week and Westminster loses that growing industry. It had been quite successful here and had orders always ahead. A larger field of operations was offered at Hagerstown, but the success of the enterprise here was safe and certain. Its removal is a matter of sincere regret. We cordially wish Mr. Hess and his corps of clever workmen the fullest success in their new field.—Westminster Sentinel.

Our County Finances.

The present bonded indebtedness of Frederick county, including $100,000 bridges for the building of new bridges over the Monocacy river in 1889, is $313,700. The expense account of the county for the past fiscal year was $135,512. Of this amount $35,000 was paid for public schools, $15,000 for Montevue Hospital, $7,000 to build new public school houses, $5,600 for pensions, $12,700 for interest, $5,000 for road and bridge fund, &c. The county taxable basis is $24,230,500.

Catholic Diocese of Wilmington.

The Annual Synod of the Catholic Diocese of Wilmington, was held in St. Peter's Church, Wilmington, Del., this week. A solemn mass of requiem for the deceased priests of the diocese was celebrated on Wednesday morning, in the presence of Bishop Curtis. The sermon was preached by Rev. P. J. Donahue, Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Baltimore. A conference was held Wednesday afternoon for theological discussion. Rev. Jno. J. Tierney, of Mt. St. Mary's College was chairman, and Rev. Dennis J. Flynn, of Wilmington, Secretary. The Synod closed on Thursday.

An Offensive Breath.

It is most distressing, not only to the person afflicted if he have any pride, but to those with whom he comes in contact. It is a delicate matter to speak of, but it has parted not only friends but lovers. Bad breath and catarrh are inseparable. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases as thousands can testify.

That Frederick Fountain.

On Friday last our attention was called to the following which appeared under the heading of "Local Logic" in a recent issue of the Frederick News:

The Emmitsburg CHRONICLE of the 4th, is kind enough to say that Frederick City has been making marked advances in the line of improvement recently and regarding the city fountain but it is ill edited for Frederick as we shall place a four-foot black and white marble pavement with cut granite edging and thus the CHRONICLE will see that we go a chustant above their persimmon.—M. P. Morse.

Although the person from whom these words of wisdom emanated is unknown to us, we must say that he shows bad taste in his would be sarcastic expressions. It is evident from his remarks, that he feels bad about something, but that his feelings should find relief in such insinuations makes him appear rather small. Perhaps he doubts the existence of the Pyramids of Egypt, because he never saw them, as we are aware that they are not visible to the naked eye, while that eye is in Frederick. The taste that would prefer a marble pavement to a well kept grass plot in that position is hard to imagine. However, we have since seen the Frederick fountain, and after noting its insignificant proportions as compared with ours, together with the extravagant use of gilt and gaudy colors in its decorations, have concluded that Joseph's Coat would have appeared plain beside it. Further, if a fountain, the size of ours had been erected in its place, with the four-foot pavement around it, there would not have been room enough left in the street for two vehicles to pass each other. No, Mr. Morse, you should be more particular in making statements for publication. Better say nothing than undertake to talk about things you know nothing of, and when you make use of a quotation, better be sure it is right. A man who can't distinguish between a huckleberry and a chestnut, should not doubt the existence of anything twenty-three miles distant because he never saw or heard of it.

Shaken out of Gear.

By malarial disease, the human machinery cannot half perform its office. Digestion, secretion, evacuation are disordered, the blood becomes watery, the nerves feeble, the countenance sallow, sleep disturbed and appetite capricious. Terrible is this disease, let its consequences. There is, however, a known antidote to the miasmatic poison, and a certain safeguard against it. In malarious regions of our South and West, in Southern America, Guatemala and on the Isthmus of Panama, as well as in the malarial countries where the scourge exists, this infallible preventive and remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has during the last thirty years, been constantly winning the praise of its usefulness, and demonstrating its sovereign value. Liver complaint, dyspepsia, constipation, kidney trouble, rheumatism and debility are all remedied by it.

It is that lady at the lecture the other night only knew how nicely Hall's Hair Renewer would remove dandruff and improve the hair she would buy a bottle.

Reformed Synod.

Barn Burned in Carroll.

The large bank barn and wagon shed belonging to Leander Pull, four miles from Westminster, were destroyed by fire, supposed to be of incendiary origin on Tuesday night. 400 bushels of wheat, 20 tons of hay and Mr. Pull's farming implements were consumed. The loss is about $4,000. The reflection of the fire was plainly visible here.

Annual Levy List.

To all our readers living within the limits of Frederick county we enclose a supplement this week, containing the Annual Levy List of the county, and to which we refer them for a full statement of the counties finances. These Supplements are furnished us by the county commissioners, already printed, and our work is completed when they are distributed.

The Fairs Over.

The Fairs held last week at both Hagerstown and Frederick were very successful and the attendance was unusually large. This was especially so at Frederick on Thursday, the day of the wedding, which came off promptly as announced. The couple, Mr. Jacob Martin Knode and Miss Ella Nora Grazer, accepted $100 from the Agricultural Society in lieu of the trip to Niagara.

The Republicans of Emmitsburg District organized a McComas Club at Gelwick's Hall on last Friday evening with quite a large membership, and elected the following officers: President, R. E. MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

Also Reminiscences of and Stories Told by "Old Mountaineers."

On last Sunday evening the Philomathian Society was reorganized, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Bernard F. McKenna, President; Conrad O'Shaughnessy, Vice-President; Martin J. Fleming, Secretary, and Chas. H. A. Watterson, Treasurer. Considerable difficulty was experienced in deciding upon a suitable critic, and as yet no body has been chosen. The society numbers about twenty-five members, and as several of the members have made reputations for themselves, as debaters during past years, it is to be hoped that each one will do his best this year to make the society as interesting as possible.

The annual retreat which was postponed last week, will in all probability begin on Wednesday evening and last until Sunday morning.

Very Rev. E. P. Allen, D. D., and Rev. William O'Hara, went to Brooklyn last week to attend the ceremonies of Bishop Laughlin's golden jubilee.

Rev. Jno. J. Tierney attended the Annual Synod of the Catholic Diocese of Wilmington, in session at Wilmington, Del.

Mr. Samuel Sebald has reached Dayton, O., in safety, whither he went on a visit to his sister. The old gentleman was intrusted by Dr. McSweeney with some business that he has been pending for the last fourteen months, and about which the Doctor had written in vain to different parties. Mr. Sebald at once took hold, and writes that he has received from the party in question the promise of a speedy settlement.

Mary Reilly, for many years a seamstress at the College, died last week at the home of her niece in Chambersburg.

The friends of the Mountain will be pleased to read how the students of the Mountain are regarded at St. Joseph's Seminary, Troy, N. Y., the Archdiocesan Seminary. A gentleman writing from that institution to a friend in New York, says: "They have a great opinion of the Mountain at Troy. The reason of this is that the only one who was known to get Theology here was by the name of McAvoy, who graduated three years ago at the Mount, and who, after having undergone a strict examination here in Philosophy, got Theology. At that time they had a great opinion of Mt. St. Mary's, but this year out did it. There was a crowd here who presented themselves for Theology, many of them being graduates from —, and many other Colleges, together with a young man who made three years Philosophy at —, and received his A. B. and A. M. from them, and out of all these no one got Theology except two from the Mountain, namely, Gibbons and Morrissey, the last named being the one who delivered the valedictory and who is now adopted for Albany. Many of these graduates from other Colleges not only did not get Theology, but had to commence logic. McLaughlin, who finished his second year at the Mountain, underwent an examination here and got his class, which is third year in theology. There are two other boys here who finished their third collegiate at the Mountain and who commenced philosophy here."

This is certainly a fine showing and proves that the Mountain is more than able to hold her own in competition with Colleges which are alleged to have superior advantages.
