HOW MY BOY WENT DOWN.

It was not on the field of battle, It was not with a ship at sea, But a fate far worse than either That stole him away from me. 'Twas the death in the ruby wine cup, That the reason and senses drove in; He drank the alluring poison— And thus my boy went down.

Down from the heights of manhood, To the depths of disgrace and sin— Down to a worthless being From the hopes of what might have been; For the brand of the beast besotted, He barked his manhood's crown; Through the gate of a sinful pleasure My poor, weak boy went down.

YOUTHFUL DEPRAVITY.

S. JENNIE SMITH.
"Mamma, I think I am not well," Said lazy little Mabel; The beans I'd given her to shell, Neglected on the table.

Her dimpled cheeks with roses vied; Her eyes the stars resembled; The chubby form my faith defied— My darling had dissembled.

"I'm sorry, dear," I gravely said, "Because you'll miss the puddings; The place for sick folks is in bed, With not a taste of good things."

She thoughtfully smoothed out her dress, This wicked little sinner; "Then I'm not sick just now, I guess, I'll wait till after dinner."

AN UMBRELLA.

Just as Mr. Rayford bade his friend Mr. Thomson good day, and was about to start for the railway station, a quarter of a mile away, the two gentlemen observed a dark cloud climbing up from the western horizon.

"You had better wait until the evening train," said Mr. Thomson, "and save yourself a wetting."

"It's important that I should go this morning; it isn't far to the station, and I can make it before the storm breaks."

"Wait till I give you an umbrella." He darted into the house and immediately re-appeared with a dilapidated cotton umbrella, of a faded blue color, bulging at the sides and evidently a relic of olden times.

"I can't say much for its beauty," remarked the owner with a smile, as he passed it to his friend, "but it will serve your purpose. When you get to the station, throw it away."

Mr. Rayford, who was a corpulent gentleman in middle life, let himself out; but, despite all he could do, the big drops of rain began falling when only two-thirds of the distance was passed.

"I believe I'll have to make use of the old thing, after all," he said to himself, as he hastily broke the twine which clasped the upper portion, like the band of a Mother Hubbard dress.

He shot the covering upward so energetically, as the fall of rain increased, that the check was broken, and his hand did not stop until it had slid the entire length of the handle. As a consequence, the umbrella was inverted and resembled a huge punch bowl.

A man was approaching at this moment on horseback. His animal zipped with a snort of fear, and came within a hair of unseating the rider. He quickly recovered, and, with a red face, called out: "For two cents I'd get off and hammer you, old man, for scaring my horse that way."

"I assure you, my dear sir, it was unintentional." Mr. Rayford was struggling to right the obdurate thing, when a blast of wind whisked it out of his grasp, and it went dancing and bounding like a balloon to the little creek on the outskirts of the town, and, sailing over the bank, skimmed out into the middle of the current.

"Thank Providence, I am done with you!" was the fervent exclamation of Mr. Rayford, as he broke into a heavy run for the station. By this time the rain was coming down in torrents, and when he rushed panting into the shelter there was not a dry thread in his garments.

Purchasing his ticket, he dropped into the nearest seat and was awaiting the starting of the train, when a barefooted urchin, hardly a dozen years old, came down the aisle with the collapsed umbrella in his hand. He had managed to get it into a shape, and though his clothes were dripping, he grinned as he extended the implement to Mr. Rayford.

"I seen you when the wind carried yer umbrella into the creek; I jumped in after it and came near drowning, but I swum hard and got it for you."

An angry exclamation was on Mr. Rayford's lips, but he checked it when he saw that a number of young ladies were looking and listening. He could not afford to appear mean in their eyes.

"Thank you, sonny; you are a brave little boy; that umbrella is a valuable heirloom in our family; here's a quarter for your trouble."

Without thanking the donor, except with a grin, the lad hurried out, for the cars were already moving. At that moment Mr. Rayford sprang to his feet and jammed his hands deep into his trousers pockets. Yes; he had handed the urchin the pocketpiece he had carried so long. Instead of being a quarter, it was a golden half-eagle.

He threw up the window and thrust out his head. "See here, sonny! Bring me that quick! I made a mistake!" he shouted, as he saw the youngster standing in a group of boys, displaying his prize.

"I'm sooted with this 'ere, old chap." The train was going too rapidly for the indignant gentleman to rush to the platform, but he thrust his head further from the window and shouted with crimson face, though without avail. He flung himself angrily back in his seat, but as he did so his valuable silk hat struck the edge of the window and fell off his head. He made a frantic clutch at it, but it eluded him, and was drawn by the suction of the wind under the wheels, where of course it instantly lost its identity forever.

Observing the plight the brakeman, after some search, brought him a flappy soft hat that had once been white in color and had several holes in the crown. It had probably been left by some tramp when stealing a ride on the train. It was several sizes too small for Mr. Rayford, but he was sensitive about making a display of his bald head, and he found it so soft and yielding that he succeeded in working it down to his ears.

"Confound that umbrella!" he muttered. "I'll rid myself of it this time."

He had thrust it partly through the window, when he drew it in again with a shudder. "It would be drawn under the wheels just as my silk tile was; like enough it would throw the cars off the track and kill and mangle half the passengers. I must get rid of the plagued thing in some other way."

He had handed the brakeman a five-dollar bill, and when he hurried out of the car Mr. Rayford supposed it was to get it changed, that he might return him nine-tenths of its value. If such were the fact, it must have slipped the brakeman's mind, for he made no further reference to it.

It was growing dark when the train steamed into the West Philadelphia station. Mr. Rayford had hit upon a scheme for ridding himself of the umbrella. When he rose from his seat he left it leaning in the corner near the window. He nervously hurried out upon the platform, fearful that some well-meaning passenger would call his attention to his forgetfulness, in which event he would have to thank him and gather it up as though it were a treasure indeed.

He did not breathe freely until he reached the Continental Hotel and ascended the elevator to the room of General Brushman, with whom he had an appointment. Mr. Rayford's home was in Camden, across the Delaware, but he had some important business to transact with the General.

They were in the midst of their discussion when a timid knock was heard.

"Come in," called the impatient officer, wondering what could be the cause of the interruption. The knob was turned and a man in the garb of an employee of the Pennsylvania Railway Company doffed his hat, as he stepped inside, with a gratified smile.

"I've had the greatest time to find you; I've been at the Girard, the Bingham, the Colonnade and the Lafayette, and was ready to give up several times, but I knew how bad you would feel over your umbrella, and I managed to trace you here, but it was a big job. Here it is!"

And he deposited the same cotton umbrella in the corner behind Mr. Rayford's chair. That gentleman felt himself unequal to the occasion.

"Allow me to clasp your hand," he said with a beaming face, as he rose from his seat; "you have saved me from a great sorrow; permit me to reward you to a slight extent for your trouble."

Mr. Rayford did not look at the bill he slipped into his hand. He made sure that he had enough left to pay his ferrage to Camden, and then, as his caller took his departure, he resumed his talk with General Brushman, who, without referring to the incident, cast several wondering glances at the bloated article in the corner.

"I'll fix it this time," mused Mr. Rayford, with a vague sensation of misgiving, as he stepped on the ferryboat later in the evening; "this thing has gone far enough."

He walked out to the chain in front of the boat, and stood calm and motionless until near the middle of the river. He noticed that several of the deck hands were watching him, as though they suspected he meditated suicide; but he treated their impertinence with indifference, and when, as nearly as he could judge, they were in the centre of the stream he flung the umbrella as far from him as his strength would permit. He saw it for a moment as it sailed out into the air, bulging apart like a parachute, and then it disappeared.

"Thank heaven!" he exclaimed with a sigh, "I'm done with that at last."

As he passed into the cabin the two deck hands followed him as if desirous of seeing his face with the aid of the gas light. They said nothing, but it was apparent they viewed him with suspicion.

Mr. Rayford walked rapidly homeward, and once in the bosom of his family he felt that all his troubles, so far as the umbrella was concerned, were over. The next morning, when he descended to his breakfast, his boy Billy startled him and the rest by exclaiming: "I wonder if this means you, pop!"

He had the Ledger in his hand, with his forefinger resting upon a particular article.

"What's that?" asked the father, with an awful sinking of the heart. "I'll read it: 'No new developments in the Miller murder case have taken place since our last issue. It will be a reproach to the fair name of the city across the Delaware if the guilty parties are not soon brought to light and made to suffer the punishment they deserve. The most skillful detectives are at work, and we are confident that something definite will be speedily accomplished.'"

"An incident that possibly has some connection with the tragedy has been reported. On the eight o'clock ferryboat last night from the foot of Market Street to Camden was a middle-aged person whose actions excited suspicion from the first. He was observed to walk toward the bow of the boat, where he stood as if meditating whether or not to leap into the dark waters. The expression of his face was that of a man suffering from remorse. When the boat was in mid-stream, he was observed to throw a bundle overboard. It resembled a package of old clothing, and it is suspected that they may have borne some relation to the author or authors of the crime which only a few days ago shocked the whole country."

"As this individual entered the cabin he was closely scanned by two of the deck hands, who describe him as about forty or forty-five years of age, fairly well dressed, with a florid face, evidently caused by dissipation, a large wart on the side of his nose, and an expression denoting deep cunning and a degraded moral sense. Fortunately, the observant employees described the miscreant so accurately that the detectives are confident they will place their hands on him in twenty-four hours."

Mr. Rayford groaned. "Yes; that means me," he said, "and only to think that I never tasted a drop of liquor, and am a deacon in the church! Oh that umbrella!"

But from some cause or other Deacon Rayford has not been arrested up to date; and so much time has elapsed that the danger is probably past.

THEO. R. TATES.
Antiquity of the Carpenter's Plane.
A very interesting discovery has been made at the Roman city of Silchester. The excavators came across a dry well, which on being explored proved quite a little museum of antiquities. Some 15 feet down, a Times correspondent says, the diggers found an urn-shaped pottery vase, about a foot in length, quite intact, and, curiously enough, protected by lumps of chalk built around it. The vase, which probably originally contained some precious substance, was, however, quite empty. Above it were deposited a great number of iron implements, most of which were in a wonderful state of preservation. They seem to have been the tools of a carpenter and a coppersmith or silversmith, with some miscellaneous objects of blacksmith's work thrown in. The principal specimen is a carpenter's plane of quite modern type, although unquestionably more than 1,500 years old, three or four axes retaining their fine cutting edges and still quite serviceable, a number of chisels and gouges of all shapes and sizes, hammers, adzes, saws, files, etc. In the smith's department may be specified a brazier for burning charcoal, quite complete, two or three anvils of different sizes and shapes, a fine pair of tongs adapted for lifting crucibles, a curious tripod candleburn lamp, or candle-stick, and several other curious objects the precise use of which have not yet been determined. In addition there are several large bars of iron, a couple of plowshares, and a broken sword. Probably more will be found deeper down in the well. This is undoubtedly the most important find at Silchester since the discovery of the bronze Roman eagle, now at Strathfieldsaye, some years ago.

But it is said, that the disastrous financial panic which was impending at the moment when death laid his hand on one of the most prominent members of the Board, was averted by the interval of quiet which enabled the heated brains to cool somewhat and gave a few of the members time to reason.

It is a strange story, "founded on fact," as the romancers say, and might be worked up by some gifted pen with thrilling effect if introduced into one of the realistic plays or stories which delight the lovers of fiction, but the moral which it teaches would be left to the imagination of the reader and few would heed its teachings.

Every lesson of the world's life, seems to strengthen the desire for wealth and every added luxury it gives, aids in shutting out the truth, that death has claims that must be met, no matter when or where presented.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. John Hartman, alias Crager, confined in the Carroll county jail on the charge of larceny of money from C. H. Brown, of Frizlesville, and also wanted for alleged horse-stealing in Chester county, Pa., attempted to break jail, but was discovered in time to prevent his escape by Sheriff Wickert. His attempt was by digging two holes through the wall. He had evidently been working for several days before he was discovered.

Upton Cramer of Hagerstown is held on the charge of having in his possession $60 worth of postage stamps known to have been stolen. Several witnesses testified that Cramer told them he had gotten the stamps from Beasley, alias Gallagher, who was arrested some time ago as an accomplice in the robbery of the Snively store at Shady Grove, in Pennsylvania. Mr. Snively is the postmaster at that place, and $60 worth of stamps were stolen from his office.

The body of Mr. Wm. Hollahan, a respected citizen of Havre de Grace, was found in the canal basin Wednesday. Mr. Hollahan left his home about noon on Wednesday of last week, and on his return to put in an appearance next day a member was instituted by friends and members of his family. This search has been going on all the week, but no tidings of his whereabouts could be had until Wednesday morning, when it was reported that a hat resembling the one worn by Mr. Hollahan had been found near the outlet lock of the canal. Men were soon at work, and about 11 o'clock the body was found in about six feet of water near the end of Stokes street. A coroner's jury took a verdict of accidental death by drowning.

The Many Remarkable cures of Catarrh effected by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have suffered for years from catarrh, which was so severe that it destroyed my appetite and weakened my system. None of the remedies I took afforded me any relief, until I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I began to take this medicine last spring, and am now entirely free from that disgusting disease. My appetite has returned, and I am once more strong and healthy. - Susan L. W. Cook, 909 Albany street, Boston Highlands, Boston, Mass.

FREDERICK COUNTY ITEMS.

Saturday, the 22nd inst., has been selected as the day for holding the Democratic jollification at Frederick. The Creagerstown people will hold a Fair November 10-20 for the purpose of raising funds to furnish their new Town Hall.

Mr. Ezra Smith, a well-known farmer residing a short distance southeast of Middletown, died Wednesday, aged seventy-one years. A six-year old daughter of Mr. James T. White of Mt. Carmel was fatally burned last Thursday, her clothes taking fire from the stove. She had been left alone in the house while her mother went to the spring for water.

At Urbana, this county, on election day, Frank Barnes, a colored man, was struck in the head with a four-pound weight by Beverly Fineour, a storekeeper of that place. Barnes' skull was fractured and a large gash cut in his head. He was unconscious for a while. Rev. Samuel T. Ferguson, a prominent member of the Methodist Protestant Conference, and for the past four years pastor of Liberty Circuit, died very suddenly Tuesday night. He was holding revival services at his church and was taken sick in the pulpit. His death is supposed to have been caused by apoplexy. He leaves a widow and six children.

Mr. Louis Haines, of Knoxville' was killed at Waring, on the Metropolitan Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Tuesday and Mr. Louis Leopold, of the same place, was seriously injured. The men were at work on a crane car, used in bridge building, when a fast freight train came around a curve and struck the car. Mr. Haines jumped, but was almost instantly killed by the car falling upon him. He leaves a widow and three children.

On Saturday evening last a party of colored people of Mt. Pleasant, this county, were playing in front of the church in that place when a row was raised by one of the party, a married man John Grafton, with whom one of the girls, aged about 17 years, refused to play. Grafton remarked that if she would not play with him he would shoot her, and as she still refused, he pulled out a revolver and fired into the crowd, the bullet striking Augustus Jackson in the hand and Charles Slater in the wrist. Both the wounded men are colored and both were painfully wounded. Grafton was arrested and taken before magistrate at Walkersville who held him in bail to await the action of the grand jury. - News.

On Friday evening last Wm. Boyd, colored, living near Freedom, Carroll county, accidentally shot Lizzie Reulbottom, about sixteen years old, also colored, in the face with a gun, inflicting a serious if not fatal wound. Boyd was arrested and held for the grand jury. He put a cap on the gun to scare the girl, and pointed it at her. He said he did not know the gun was loaded.

WILLIAM P. MAULSBY, JOHN C. MOTTER, Trustees, oct. 15, 1890.

ASK YOURSELF the QUESTION

Why should I go shopping around small stocks when I can go direct to G. W. WEAVER & SON, Gettysburg, and find there a big assortment of everything the newest and besides get the benefit of their large purchases in the matter of prices which oftentimes more than pays time and expense of coming a distance for—the question is daily answered in the affirmative by any number of people and our store is thronged by appreciative customers—who know that we sell only reliable goods and that our prices are bottom on every article.

WE MAKE A SPECIALTY

More than ever of LADIES COATS and our sales are unprecedented by anything done before. We have the assortment and style of the larger city stores, at a price in favor of the customer every time. Ask yourself why? We have no rent. Our clerk hire and other expenses much less than city stores. Yet we have all our garments made by the largest and best factories in the country. In our general line of Dry Goods and Notions the same answer to the question applies. So come direct to headquarters.

Scribner's Magazine

For the coming year will be noteworthy for a number of special features which the Publishers believe are of very unusual interest, and among them the following may be mentioned: Sir Edwin Arnold contributes to the December number the first of a series of four Articles upon Japan, its people, its ways, and its thoughts. Mr. Robert Blum, who was commissioned to go to Japan for Scribner's Magazine, has prepared a very remarkable series of drawings to illustrate Sir Edwin's papers. Articles upon the recent Japanese Festival will follow, illustrated by Mr. Blum.

Henry M. Stanley has prepared for the January number an important article upon "The Pigmies of the Great African Forest." Another contribution in this field will be Mr. J. Scott Keltie's account of the recent African Expedition held in London. Both papers will be amply illustrated.

The Wrecker, a Serial Novel by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne, will run through a large part of the year. Illustrated by Hule. A two-part story by Frank R. Stockton will also appear.

Ocean Steamships will be the subject of an important series somewhat upon the lines of the successful Railroad Articles. "Passenger Travel," "The Life of Officers and Men," "Speed and Safety Devices," and "Management," are some of the subjects touched upon and illustrated.

Great Streets of the World is the title of a novel collection of articles on which the author and artist will collaborate to give the characteristics of famous thoroughfares. The first, on Broadway, will be written by Richard Harding Davis, and illustrated by Arthur B. Frost. Others will follow on Piccadilly, London; Boulevard, Paris; The Corso, Rome.

The price of Scribner's Magazine admits of adding a subscription to one's other reading at very small cost. Orders should be sent at once. $3 00 A YEAR. 25 CENTS A NUMBER.

THE Democratic Advocate published at Westminster, by Vanderford Brothers, entered upon its 26th volume last week. Although the Advocate is bitterly partisan in politics, it always contains a large amount of instructing and entertaining reading. The Advocate is the best printed paper that comes to our office, and in this line we have always looked upon it as the ideal newspaper.

A Lunacy Case.

The Frederick News says: Mr. Eugene L. Rowe, attorney, has filed a petition for a writ de lunatico inquiring in the Clerk's office in the case of Francis Keim, alias Chas. Wagner. An inquisition in the case will probably take place on Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Syrup of Figs.

Col. Cline's Land.

Col. George T. Cline, a well-known resident of Frederick, has just received from the Messrs. Armour, of Chicago, an offer of $1,537,500 for a tract of 2,050 acres of land owned by him near that city, on which they desire, it is understood, to build their new meat-packing establishments. Up to this time the offer of $750 an acre has been declined. The land, it is said, cost Colonel Cline from $5 to 12 per acre about thirty years ago.—News.

Funeral of Mrs. Grindler.

Mrs. Emma Welty Grindler, whose death was noticed in last week's issue of this paper was buried on Monday morning last from St. Joseph's Catholic church, of which she had been a life-long member. The services were conducted by the pastor Rev. H. F. White, C. M., and consisted of a Requiem High Mass with the usual funeral ceremonies and a short sermon, in which the certainty of death and the importance of being always ready to meet the awful summons, was forcibly presented; together with an earnest tribute to the many virtues and devoted christian character of the deceased, by the pastor who had so long been her spiritual guide, and who in consigning her body to the grave was able to comfort the bereaved husband and children with the assurance that the end of earthly life to her, was the beginning of a glorious immortality. A large concourse of friends and neighbors followed the body to its last resting place, and the profession of floral tributes testified to the appreciation in which the deceased was held.

That Little Tickling.

In your throat, which makes you cough once in a while and keeps you constantly clearing your throat, arises from catarrh, and as catarrh is a constitutional disease the ordinary cough medicines all fail to hit the spot. What you need is a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Many people who have taken this medicine for scrofula, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, and other troubles, have been surprised that it should cure this troublesome cough. But to know the actual cause of the cough is to solve the mystery. Many cases of consumption can be traced back to the neglect of some such slight affection in its early stages, and the effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla in purifying the blood, building up the general health, and expelling the scrofulous taint which is the cause of catarrh and consumption, has restored to perfect health many persons on whom this dreaded disease seemed to have a firm hold.

To enjoy good health, aim to always have abundant sleep; this can generally be secured by management, unless you have a crying baby, in which case Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup will greatly assist.

A very good recommendation:—I used Old Saut's Catarrh Cure for influenza and was cured.

Impromptu Turnout.

Last Friday evening our citizens were aroused by the sound of a drum corps and the light of a procession on the street, which turned out to be a band of our Republican citizens marching in solemn procession, and a large banner at the head showed that they were bound for the dismal shores of "Salt River." This good-natured way of accepting the situation was highly commendable, and as the whole affair was gotten up in about half an hour, it was one of the quickest pieces of work on record. A number of Democrats who were at the time arranging for their jollification, turned out and viewed the procession from the side walk in a body.

A Ray of Hope.

For all who are held by the chains of scrofula or other diseases of the blood comes from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which by imparting the elements of good health and strength to the vital fluid dissolves the bonds of disease and sets the captive free. No other remedy in existence combines the positive economy, the peculiar merit and the medicinal power of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A Williams' Story in Luck.

One of the most gratifying results of Tuesday's election, is the re-election of Mr. I. Snively Motter, as Prosecuting Attorney for Allen county, Ohio. Mr. Motter is a staunch Democrat and defeated his opponent by 1500 majority, more than that he is a native of this place, and that is why we feel like joining our voice in the victorious shout that comes up from the Buckeye State. This is an instance in political life where merit wins and can be duly appreciated. Mr. Motter possesses an indomitable spirit, backed by experience and ability, which we predict to win for him a still-higher road on the ladder of fame.—Transcript.

10,000 Found in an Ash Barrel.

A New York rag-picker is reported to have found $10,000 in greenbacks in an ash barrel. This was a rare piece of good luck, but how much more fortunate is the sufferer from consumption who learns that, although the doctors may have pronounced his case hopeless Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure him. Consumption is a scrofulous disease of the lungs. The Discovery, which is the most potent blood-purifier of the age, strikes right at the root of the evil, and there is no resisting it, if taken in time. In all scrofulous or other blood taints, skin and scalp diseases, old sores and swellings, it is guaranteed to cure, or money paid for it promptly refunded. By druggists.

Horse Thief Arrested.

On Wednesday night three horses were taken from the stable of Mr. W. H. Dietrick, of Butler township. The following day Charles Long, of Schuylkill county, was arrested in Chambersburg on suspicion of being the thief. He was trying to sell the horse in his possession at such a low figure that suspicion was aroused. Mr. Dietrick was notified, went to Chambersburg and identified his horse. Yesterday Long was brought here by Chief of Police Null and turned over to Sheriff Taughenbaugh. On him were found burglar's tools a revolver and chloroform. He is supposed to be an old offender. Mr. Dietrick recovered the other two horses in the mountains where they had been left by confederates of Long who skipped.—Star and Sentinel.

Do not suppose that because it is recommended for animals that Arnica & Oil Liniment is an offensive preparation. It will not stain clothing or the fairest skin. For sale by James A. Elder, Emmitsburg, and A. C. Musselman, Fairfield, Pa.

A Suspicious Find.

On Sunday morning a son of Mr. Adolphus Harner found a buggy blanketed and whip, a man's hat and a piece of tobacco on the Bruceville road near the railroad crossing, and from the appearance of the road he is inclined to think that some one was robbed at that point during the previous night. The tracks on the road indicate that a scuffle occurred there and he describes the same as having been made by the dragging of a buggy wheel, evidently held by some one to prevent its turning, while the foot tracks were such as to indicate the presence of several men. Mr. Harner has the blanket and hat in his possession and describes the former as being a good one, and the hat as a brown slouch one with a black band, the size of which would indicate that the wearer had a small head. Suspicions of foul play have been indulged in, although in that event the victim would undoubtedly have been missed and a search instituted by this time. Yet the fact that the lost articles have not been inquired for is puzzling, and the finding of the piece of tobacco would lead to the supposition that some one's pockets had been rifled. Several tramps were seen in that locality about 7 o'clock Saturday evening, and suspicion naturally rests on them.

The Buccaneers of Old.

Flamted the skull and cross bones, their ensign, defiantly at the masthead. Your modern pirate, not on the high seas, but upon the high reputation of standard remedies skulks under various disguises. His hole and corner traffic has never to any degree affected Hood's Sarsaparilla, although that standard invigorant and corrective has long been the shining mark at which his shifty eye has been directed. Cheap local bitters, composed of fiery unrefined stimulants, with an infusion, or extract, possibly, of some tonic bark, are still sometimes recommended as identical with, or similar to, or possessing the virtues of these kindred remedies. Hood's Sarsaparilla, these perils, specify, while the great sudorific and preventive of disease purifies the system, overcomes malaria, dyspepsia, nervousness, kidney troubles, constipation and rheumatic ailments, not only in this but in many continents.

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

The Purcell Lyceum's First Debate.—The Philomathian—A Challenge.—Tennis Association.—Notes.—The Coming Toss.—The Billiard Association.

Nov. 11.—Last Thursday evening the Purcell Lyceum held its first regular debate of the season. Nearly all the members were present and that they were interested was shown by the frequent outbursts of applause that greeted the speakers.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Mr. Wm. McConnell, and after the Secretary's reports were read and adopted, the following students were proposed and accepted as members: Messrs. James O'Brien, '94, Aloysius Malone, '94, and Edward Weisser, '94.

The Secretary then proceeded to read the Constitution and By-Laws of the Society, but after reading sometime, the President found it necessary to postpone further reading until the next regular meeting. Declarations now being in order, Mr. E. J. Donohoe, '94, recited "Life's Game of Ball." He was followed by Mr. E. J. McVeigh in "Wolsey's Fall." The critic gave both gentlemen some valuable hints, which, if acted upon, will greatly improve the delivery of both speakers. Then came the debate. The subject was—"Resolved, That a College Education is Not Necessary to Success in Life." Mr. Jno. A. Ferry, N. Y., '93, was the first speaker for the affirmative. Mr. Ferry is an interesting speaker and was very well informed on the subject. On the negative, the first speaker was Mr. Jno. N. Farrell, S. C., '93, who, although brief in his remarks, brought up some very good arguments and refuted, cleverly the arguments of the preceding speaker. Mr. Wm. Cashmann, Mass., '93, was the next speaker. He is a splendid debater and his remarks were listened to with interest. Mr. Cashmann was followed by his brother, Jno. Cashmann, '94, who favored the Society with some very choice language. His arguments were to the point and he promises to be a decided acquisition to the Purcell. Mr. Jas. Monaghan, Del., '94, was the last speaker for the affirmative. His arguments were forcible and to the point and from the time he began to speak until he finished, he was regarded with attention. Mr. Jno. J. Quinn, of the negative, owing to a misconception of the subject, did not speak. At the request of the President his place was taken by one of the members. Volunteers were then called upon to express their opinions and a great many responded. Among those who distinguished themselves by their earnestness and thorough knowledge of the subject were: Messrs. Jno. J. McCloskey, '94, Dennis E. Behen, '94, Francis Byrnes, '94, Jno. J. Gornly, '93, Lawrence McBride, '93, Allen R. Lakin, '94.

The debate was then handed over to the Critic who went briefly over the arguments advanced by both sides and made some comments upon them. He gave a summary of the strong and weak points made by the respective speakers and finally ended his remarks by deciding the debate in favor of the negative. The following students are appointed for duty the next regular meeting night: On duty, Messrs. Chas. Sullivan, '94, and Thos. Wilson, '94. For declamation, Messrs. Lawrence McBride, '93, and Walter Edwards, '94. On the debate, Messrs. Thos. Grasselli, '93, Dennis Behen, '94, Allen R. Lakin, '94, for the affirmative. Negative, Messrs. Jno. J. McCloskey, '94, Simon J. Codori, '94, Patrick McGuinness, '94. The subject chosen for the debate is—"Resolved, that the Printing Press has done more for Mankind than the Steam Engine." The committee on subjects for this session is composed of the following members: Jno. J. McCloskey, Jno. A. Ferry and Simon J. Codori.

Prof. Lagarde has appointed Mr. D. E. Behen, Toast Master of the 3rd Elocution Class. Mr. Behen has arranged the following list and the students assigned will respond Friday, Nov. 14th: "Our Class," E. J. Saunders, "Thanksgiving—The Day We Celebrate," A. R. Lakin, "The Old Mountain," W. E. Cross, "Education," E. E. J. McDonald, "Our Country," J. A. Teague; "The Legal Profession," J. J. McCloskey; "Exhibition Day," P. J. Campbell; "The Ladies," S. J. Codori; "Our Flag," J. J. Lenney.

In the Philomathian Society, Sunday evening, Nov. 9, an interesting debate took place. The subject was—"Resolved, That the English citizen enjoys as much freedom as the American citizen." The affirmative speakers were, Messrs. Chas. H. A. Watterson, '91, Jno. M. Slaven, '91, H. King, '92, and Joseph E. Malone, '92. Negative, Messrs. Fitzhugh Lee, '91, Jos. E. Ingoldsby, '92, Francis J. Clark, '92, and John Dillard, '92. The speakers were well prepared, especially Mr. J. Miller Slaven, '91, who presented some interesting facts about taxation. Mr. Slaven's arguments greatly aided the affirmative, as did also, Mr. Watterson's fine distinctions between Monarchical and Democratic Government. Of the negative, Messrs. Lee and Ingoldsby especially distinguished themselves; the former quoting Lingard freely, while the latter depended mainly upon his knowledge of American Politics.

The critic, Rev. Wm. L. O'Hara, A. M., highly praised the leaders of the debate, Messrs. Watterson and Lee, and, after going over the many arguments brought up, awarded the debate to the affirmative.

Sunday afternoon last, The Mountain Billiard Association held a meeting and elected officers for the ensuing term. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Wm. D. Madden, '91, who briefly explained its object. Mr. Madden was then re-elected President and upon accepting the office made a brief speech, returning thanks to the members for the honor done him. The other officers elected were: Vice-President, B. J. McKenna, Del., '91; Secretary, J. J. Sullivan, Mass., '93; Treasurer, J. J.

Madden, Mass., '92. The following gentlemen were elected directors: Emmett Farrell, D. Behen, J. Hearn, W. Campbell, J. Teague, Jno. Quinn, M. Fleming, J. Malone, J. McCoy.

President Madden then told the Association that the Supervisors would be appointed by the President of the College.

The following are the officers elected by the Mountain Lawn Tennis Association: President, Wm. A. Cullin, '92; Vice-President, Wm. McConnell, '93; Treasurer, Wm. Casey, '94; Secretary, Thos. Grasselli, '93. The members are: Ed. Casey, F. G. Echeverria, J. M. H. Slaven, José Molina, José Boleo, M. Perault, Wm. Nagle, J. Teague, E. Farrell, F. Clark, F. Lee, D. Behen, B. J. McKenna, T. McTigue, Ed. Mullen.

The Association is in a flourishing condition and President Cullen states, that in view of the increasing membership, it is the intention of the Mountain Lawn Tennis Association to lay out two new courts, one of which will be single, the other, a double. Next Spring, the Association will hold a tournament, in which the more prominent players will take part.

President Madden and Manager McKenna of the Mountain Foot Ball Association, are in a quandary: Saturday they received the following letter which will explain itself:

"Dear Sir:—We would be pleased to play you a game of Foot Ball here, the 25th inst. Answer and state your guarantee. Yours very truly, J. F. MAGALL, Manager F. B. Team."

Now, the Mountain eleven has not been organized this season. And Quarter-back Slaven, the strongest man on the team, has determined not to play foot ball again; so, there is very little prospect of a game at present. However, the outcome of the matter will be awaited with interest.

Zimmerman-Gilson. On Wednesday morning, Nov. 12th, at 11 o'clock, Cornelius F. Zimmerman, Esq., of Buckeystown district and Miss Fannie E. Gilson, only daughter of Mr. Wm. J. Gilson of this district, were united in marriage at "Cedar Grove," the hospitable home of the bride's father, in the presence of a large company of friends of both parties. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. A. Koontz, an uncle of the bride, assisted by her Pastor, Rev. J. F. F. Gray. The bride was neatly and handsomely attired, and carried a bunch of beautiful La France roses. The groom wore the usual suit of black. Immediately after the ceremony the guests were called into the dining room where they were very sumptuously entertained. At 2 o'clock the bridal party, mid showers of rice and with the best wishes of their numerous friends for their future happiness and prosperity, were driven to the depot and at 3 p. m. left for Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York on a brief bridal tour. The bride was the recipient of many useful and handsome presents. Among the guests present were Mr. A. Quick and daughter of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Ensor of New Windsor, Mr. and Mrs. Myers of Uniontown, Mr. John Crapster, Mr. W. W. Crapster and wife of Taneytown, Mr. E. R. Zimmerman and wife, Mrs. Emilie Barriek of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Troxell, Miss Belle Zimmerman and Mr. C. E. Zimmerman a sister and brother of the groom, Mr. John Edel of Baltimore, the Misses Gilson of Frederick, Miss Icker of Hanover, Pa., Misses Helen and Anna Annan and others.

The Democrats Jollify. Probably the largest political demonstration that Emmitsburg has witnessed for many years that of Tuesday evening, when the Democrats assembled to rejoice over their recent victories. The town was ablaze with lights and the residence of nearly every member of that party in town was brilliantly illuminated, some of which were beautiful. A large torchlight procession paraded the principal streets, in which delegations from the surrounding towns and country participated. A special train from Union Bridge brought two carloads of people, with the Union Bridge Band, a band from Taneytown was also present, besides the Emmitt Cornet Band and a Drum Corps composed of citizens of Emmitsburg. Mr. C. T. Zacharias was chief marshal and he was assisted by twenty-four aids. The procession was ablaze with lights, and numerous transparencies bearing mottoes suitable to the occasion appeared. After the procession the crowd was addressed by Wm. P. Maulsby, Jr., Esq., of Frederick, and Vincent Sebold, Esq., of this place. Altogether the demonstration was very successful, and no disturbance or unpleasantness of any kind occurred to mar the pleasure.

Railroad Meeting.

Pursuant to a call issued through these columns a number of prominent citizens met at the City Hotel last Saturday evening, to discuss the outlook and arrange for the construction of the proposed railroad between this place and Gettysburg. This was really the first regular meeting held in its interest, and from the enthusiasm manifested the projectors feel highly encouraged. The meeting was called to order by the election of Mr. John Donoghue, chairman, and Paul Motter, secretary. The chairman stated the object of the meeting as being to ascertain the feeling of our citizens in regard to building the proposed line, and arranging to form a company with that end in view. It then decided to hold another meeting at the same place on Saturday afternoon, the 22nd inst., at 10 o'clock, at which time a company will be formed and stock subscription books opened at once. A profile and maps of the route were shown to those present, and the same will be on exhibition at the next meeting, when estimates of the cost of construction will be presented. A committee was appointed to arrange for the next meeting, as follows: The Chairman and Secretary, John Donoghue and Paul Motter, Messrs. I. S. Annan, Jas. A. Elder, Maj. O. A. Horner, E. R. Zimmerman, S. N. McNair, F. A. Maxwell, Geo. P. Beam, A. M. Patterson, Nicholas Baker, J. Thos. Gelwicks, J. W. Reigle, Geo. L. Gillilan. Invitations have been extended to persons living along the line to attend the next meeting, besides a number of prominent people in Gettysburg, and every arrangement will be made to facilitate business on this occasion.
