TARTARUS.

BY G. W. HOLMES.

While in my simple gospel creed That "God is love" so plain I read, Shall dreams of heathen birth affright My pathway through the coming night?
Ah, Lord of life, though specters pale Fill with their threats the shadowy vale,
With Thee my faltering steps to aid, How can I dare to be afraid?
Is there a world of blank despair,
And dwells the omnipresent there?
Does He behold with smile serene The shows of that unending scene Where sleepless, hopeless anguish lies, And, ever dying, never dies?
Say, does He hear the sufferer's groan,
And is that child of wrath His own?
O mortal, wavering in thy trust, Life thy pale forehead from the dust!
The mists that cloud thy darkened eyes Fade ere they reach the o'erarching skies!
When the blind heralds of despair Would bid thee doubt a Father's care, Look up from earth and read above,
On heaven's blue tablet, God is love!

SLEEP THEY NOT WELL?

BY CANON BELL.

Sleep they not well, the sainted dead?
For sorrow they have peace instead;
Our Father housed his children dear, Before the tempest gathered near And burst in thunders loud and dread.

Healed are the hearts that inly bleed,
The mourning souls are comforted,
And stanch the font of every tear;
Sleep they not well?

And if, until the Lord appear, Earth, like a mother pressing near To watch beside the loved one's bed, Wraps her dark mantle round their head
And shelters them from pain and fear,
Sleep they not well?
—Sunday at Home.

Who was the Third Maid?

It was on a wild October evening about a year ago that my wife and I arrived by train at a well-known watering place in the North of England. The wind was howling and roaring with delight at its resistless power; the rain came hissing down in large drops.
Our hotel was situated on an eminence overlooking the town; and as we slowly ascended to it in our cab, we thought: "Well, we must not be surprised to find our intended abode for the night has vanished."

However, presently we stopped in front of a building which looked substantial enough to withstand anything; and, in answer to our driver's application to the bell, the door was promptly opened by a smartly attired porter. He was closely followed by a person full of smiles and bows, who posted himself in the doorway ready to receive us.

All at once there was a terrific bang, as though a forty-pounder had been fired to welcome our arrival; and he of the smiles and bows was hurled headlong against the muddy wheel of our conveyance by the slamming of the large door. My wife's bonnet blew off and tugged hard at its moorings; the light in the porch was extinguished; while the wind seemed to give a shriek of triumph at the jokes he was playing upon us. Here we were, then, in total darkness and exposed to the drenching rain.
However, half an hour afterward all our discomforts were forgotten as we sat down to an excellent dinner a la carte.

Next morning I was abroad very early, looking for lodgings. Fortune seemed to smile upon me on this occasion, for scarcely had I proceeded fifty yards from my hotel when I came upon a very nice looking row of houses, and in the window of the first was "Lodgings to let." Knocking at the door, it was soon opened by a very neat-looking maid.

I inquired if I could see the proprietor, but was told that Miss G. was not yet down. I said I would wait, and was shown into a very comfortably furnished dining-room.
Soon Miss G. appeared, and proved to be a pretty brunette of about five-and-twenty, whose dark eyes during our short interview were every now and then fixed on me with an intenceness that seemed to be trying to read what kind of person I was; while her manner, though decidedly pleasing, had a certain restlessness in it which I could not help observing. Her father and mother being both dead she kept the lodging-house herself.

I asked her if she had a good cook, to which she replied she was responsible for most of that difficult part of the menage herself, keeping two maids to assist in the house and parlor work. She went on to say that her drawing-room was "dissected;" a term common among north country lodging-house keepers, and meant to express that it was undergoing its autumn cleaning, but she would have it put straight if I wished. I told her that we should be quite contented with the dining room, provided we had a good bedroom. This she at once showed me, and soon coming to terms, I returned to the hotel.

After breakfast I went to the bureau to ask for my account.
While it was being made out, I observed casually that I had taken lodgings at Miss G.'s on Cliff Terrace, upon which the accountant looked quickly up and said: "Oh, Miss G.'s," and then as quickly went on with my bill. I hardly noticed this at the moment, though I thought of it afterward.
Eleven o'clock saw us comfortably enounced in our rooms. After lunch we took a delightful expedition, the weather having greatly moderated. We found that night at dinner, that Miss G. was a first-rate cook, and we retired to rest much pleased with our quarters.

We soon made the acquaintance of the two maids, Jane, who waited on us, and Mary the housemaid; and two very pleasant and obliging young women we found them.

About the third morning of our stay, on going up to my bedroom after breakfast, I was surprised to find a strange maid in the room.
She was standing by the bed, smoothing down the bed-clothes with both hands and appeared to take no notice of me, but continued gazing steadily in front of her, while her hands went mechanically on smoothing the clothes. I could not help being struck with her pale face, which wore a look of pain, and the fixed and almost stony expression of her eyes. I left her in exactly the same position as I found her. On coming down, I said to my wife: "I did not know Mrs.
G. employed three servants. There certainly is another making the bed in our room." I am short-sighted, and my wife would have it that I had made a mistake; but I felt quite certain I had not. Later on, while Jane was laying the lunch, I said to her: "I thought that you and Mary were the only two servants in the house."

"Yes, sir; only me and Mary," was Jane's reply, as she left the room.

"There," said my wife; "I told you that you were mistaken." And I did not pursue the subject further.

Two or three days slipped away in pleasant occupations, such as driving, boating, etc., and we had forgotten all about the third maid.
We saw but little of Mrs. G., though her handiwork was pleasantly apparent in the cuisine.

On the sixth morning of our stay, which was the day before we were to leave, my wife, after breakfast, said she would go up and do a little packing while I made out our route for the following day in Bradshaw; but was soon interrupted by the return of my wife with a rather scared look on her face.
"Well," she said, "you were right after all, for there is another maid, and she is now in our bedroom, and apparently engaged in much the same occupation as when you saw her there. She took no notice of me, but stood there with her body slightly bent over the bed, looking straight in front of her, her hands smoothing the bed-clothes." She described her as having dark hair, her face very pale, and her mouth very firmly set. My curiosity was now so much awakened that I determined to question Miss G. on the subject. But our carriage was now at the door waiting for us to start on an expedition that would engage us all day.

On my return, late in the afternoon, meeting Miss G. in the passage, I said to her: "Who is the third servant that Mrs. K. and myself have seen once or twice in our bedroom?"

Miss G. looked I thought, rather scared, and, murmuring something that I could not catch, turned and went hurriedly down the stairs into the kitchen.

An hour afterward, as we were sitting waiting for our dinner, Jane brought a note from Miss G. enclosing her account, and saying that she had just had a telegram summoning her to the sick-bed of a relation, that in all probability she would not be back till after our departure, but that she had left directions with the servants, and hoped they would make us quite comfortable, and that we would excuse her hurried departure.

A few minutes after, a cab drove up to the door, into which, from our window, we saw Miss G. get, and drive rapidly away.

Later on in the evening, while Jane was clearing away the dinner things, I said to her: "By-the-by, Jane, who is the third maid?" She was just going to leave the room as I spoke; instead of replying she turned round with such a scared look on her face that I felt quite alarmed, then, hurriedly catching up her tray, she left the room.
Thinking that further inquiry would be very disagreeable to her, I forbore again mentioning the subject. Next day, our week being up, we departed for fresh woods and pastures new.

Our tour led us considerable further north, but a month later saw us homeward bound. The nearest route by rail led us by X.
As we drew up at the station we noticed on the platform a person, in whom we recognized one of the clergy of X., whose church we had been to. Presently the door of our compartment was opened and he put in a lady, wished her goodbye, the guard's whistle blew and we were off. After a short time we fell into conversation with the lady and found her to be the clergyman's wife. Among other things, we asked after Miss G.

"Oh, Miss G.," she replied;
"she is very well, but I hear, poor thing, she has not had a very good season."

"I am sorry to hear that," I replied; "why is it?" She was silent for a minute and then related to us the following facts:

At the beginning of the season a rather untoward event occurred at Miss G.'s lodgings. An elderly lady took one of the flats for a month. She had with her an attendant of about thirty. Before long Miss G. observed that they were not on very good terms, and one morning the old lady was found dead in her bed.

A doctor was at once called in, who, on viewing the body, found there were very suspicious marks round the neck and throat, as if a person's fingers had been tightly pressed upon them. The maid on hearing this at once became very restless, and going to her bedroom, which was at the top of the house, packed a small bag and, having put on her things, was about to descend the stairs when, from hurry or agitation, she missed her footing and, falling to the bottom, broke her neck.

But not the least extraordinary part of the business was that not the slightest clue could be obtained as to who the lady was, the linen of herself and maid having only initials marked on it. The police did their best by advertising and inquiry, but all they could find out was that they had come straight to X. from Liverpool, where they had arrived from America. There they were traced to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, in New York, where they had been only known by the number of their room, and to which they had come from no one knew whither. Enough money was found in the lady's box to pay the expenses of their funerals. An open verdict was returned at the inquests which were held. The police took possession of their belongings and had them, no doubt at the present moment,

At this point the train stopped, the lady wished us "Good morning," and left the carriage; and we, as we steamed south, were left to meditate on this strange but perfectly true story and to solve as we best could the still unanswered question of "Who was the third maid?"—The Argosy.

Raced With the Engine.

At a recent international fair or industrial exhibition in Buffalo there was shown a new sort of engine which went around and around on a circular track level with the ground.

As the crowd stood hemming in the track, gazing at the queer locomotive, a very stout woman, who was eating peanuts out of a paper bag, became frightened at a rearing horse near by and stepped upon the track directly in front of the moving engine. The engineer blew his whistle and this scared the woman so badly that her discretion was really frightened away.

With a scream she ran frantically along the track in front of the approaching engine, still clinging to the bag of peanuts and swinging it so violently in the air that it sprung a leak, scattering the peanuts in a thin trail behind her. She was stout, and the effort to run made her a singular spectacle, but she was in terror of her life and traveled around the track at a goodly pace.

The crowd became wildly excited.
"Hoory! hoory!" men shouted. "Go it! you'll git 'er first!"
"Stop your engine! you'll run over her!" shouted an elderly gentleman, waving his umbrella at the engineer as the machine went past him.

"No danger—I can't catch her at the rate she's going!" the engineer shouted back.

Women screamed, boys cheered and dogs barked, and all the time the engineer kept blowing his whistle. Meanwhile the stout woman had made three wild trips around the track. Then, in her desperation, her absent mind came back, and it occurred to her to step off the track. She did so, and the engine went past.

As she came off, red in the face and out of breath, she still grasped her paper bag firmly. But the pen-nuts were all gone.—Youth's Companion.

Acidity of the Stomach.

This condition is due to germs, and the cure lies in getting rid of the germs. Germs of fermentation in the stomach produce first alcohol, then carbonic acid, and then acetic acid. A person troubled with this form of dyspepsia should be careful to take only such articles of food as do not favor the development of germs, and thus starve them out. Another thing to do is to wash the germs out of the stomach by drinking freely of hot water before meals. If food is put into a stomach already sour, of course fermentation will be set up immediately. Some persons notice that as soon as they eat, their stomachs become sour.
Their third important thing to do is to stimulate the stomach to make more gastric juice, which is a natural antiseptic, and prevents fermentation and also hastens absorption. The glands may be stimulated by applying hot fomentations to the stomach for half an hour immediately after the close of a meal, or, easier still, by wearing a rubber bag filled with hot water directly over the stomach for half an hour. Heat is a natural stimulant, and there are no possible ill effects from its use in this way.— Good Health.

"PROFESSOR," said a student, in pursuit of knowledge concerning the habits of animals, "why does a cat, while eating, turn her head first one way, and then the other?"
"For the reason," replied the Professor, "that she cannot turn it both ways at once."

A Seasonable Sign.

One of the signs of spring this year at least is the sign "Shut the Door" still conspicuously occupying its old place.

THE EPIDEMIC OF SUICIDE.

During the prevalence of epidemic there is to the most careless and indifferent, a consciousness of the presence of danger and an anxious regard for the use of effective measures to stay their progress. Every body realizes the importance of avoiding anything calculated to spread or intensify the evil, whilst watching the records of its advance or the increased numbers of its victims.

There is not a malignant disease from gripe to yellow fever, which cannot fill entire nations with alarm when it assumes the form of an epidemic, and there is no hesitation about demanding such action on the part of public officials as shall be deemed most effective in combatting the evil. But the epidemic of suicide, which is becoming appalling; its records making up the largest part of the sensational news of the day, and which will have to be met and fought, with other weapons than those which any pharmacopoeia can furnish, does not seem to be recognized as a scourge from which we need to be protected, therefore no thought is given to the causes of the remarkable increase of this awful crime. Young and old, rich and poor, male and female, make up the list of victims, published daily in almost every part of the civilized world, though the larger number by far belongs to this land of liberty, which of all countries, would seem to be the one in which life is most worth living.

It cannot be simply that we are living too fast to appreciate what is involved in life and its responsibilities, nor is it ignorance of the awfulness of the crime of self-murder, but rather a contemptible moral cowardice, which shrinks from shame, exposure, or physical suffering; or else the senseless bravado which would make a display of self-sacrifice, for the dramatic effect it is likely to produce. In any case the moral nature must be totally depraved or insanely weak that would not

"Rather bear the ills we have, Than fly to others that we know not of." And if every attempted suicide were punished as a criminal, and every successful one, quietly buried without any sensational parade or notoriety, there would be a considerable advance toward making the crime disreputable and the diseased imaginations that are easily inflamed by vicious examples would not be exposed as they now are to this contagion of moral weakness which regards self-destruction as a compensation or a rebuke to society for the wrongs it has suffered or inflicted.

The readers of the EMMITTSBURG CHRONICLE will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. EQUAL TAXATION.

It is safe to say that the question of equal taxation has never been more fully discussed throughout the State of Maryland than at the present time. The farmers, who are undoubtedly suffering most under the present burden of unequal assessments and exemptions have become fully aroused throughout the entire State, and Emmitsburg District is taking the lead in the movement. Regardless of their personal political affiliations our farmers are almost to a man favoring the movement, and have announced their determination to support at the polls only such candidates as are favorable to the taxation of Mortgages. Although the work has as yet only been fairly begun, the plan of operation is one that cannot fail. Meetings have already been held in a number of the country school houses and before the nominations are made for next fall's election the most formidable organization ever effected will have to be met by those in opposition to the movement. We have been assured that the champions of the cause have entered the arena with the intention of fighting the opposition to the bitter end, and are determined to keep up the contest until the close of the polls on election day.

The effect this move is likely to have on the coming nominating conventions is obvious. It will arouse the workers in both political parties to the realization that they have to meet what is far stronger than any third party movement ever inaugurated. A movement that has been made in favor of a just and laudable cause and which will be met by supporting at the polls only such men as are favorable to their cause. Hence party workers will awaken to the fact that success can only be attained by placing the best available men in the field, men who are favorable to the farmers' movement and who will command their votes.

On the other hand, while this organization, so auspiciously begun is being pushed along and is undoubtedly gaining strength, it will be of no avail in the end unless persisted in most diligently. The politician with wily ways concealed is working all the while, and it has happened before that a movement thoroughly organized during the summer has been badly beaten in the fall by the same foe which was apparently routed by it when at its height. This because the apparent victor of the summer, feeling so happy over success has been satisfied to rest on the laurels already achieved, while the supposed vanquished foe is marshaling his forces, enlisting recruits and preparing to march on to victory.

CAPTAIN SPEER of Jacksonville Florida has started on a trip from that place down the east coast and around the Everglades into the Gulf and up the west coast to Apalachicola, on the back of an alligator. He has a bet of $5000 that he can make the trip, which is about nine hundred miles.

THE town of Chillicothe, Ill., is excited over the action of a teacher in one of the public schools. She tied the hands of two little children to a stovepipe in the school-room and lighted a lot of paper in the stove to punish them. The children's hands were severely burned. The teacher was dismissed.

BRICKLAYERS' Union, No. 1, of Milwaukee, Wis., numbering some 425 men, has left the American Federation of Labor. The men think they are able to take care of themselves and their affairs, and say that they do not propose to be told when to strike and when not to by a lot of men who are not connected with their affairs, and only interested in them as a means of reaching their own ends.

Scribner's Magazine for May reaches us in good time with plenty of good reading matter. The opening illustration represents "The Twenty-third St. Crossing at Broadway," "The Ship's Company," the second article of the series upon Ocean Steamships by J. D. J. Kelly, is abundantly illustrated and extremely entertaining, "An Alabama Courtship," a story by F. J. Stimson, is commenced; a short story by Octave Thanet entitled "A Spectre of Folly," "The Transfer of the Temples of Isis," described by E. H. House, "Jerry" the singularly pathetic story which has been running through the year, is dramatically and consistently ended. The first article of the series, on the Great Streets of the World, by Richard H. Davis, appears in honor of "Broadway," Mary T. Wright furnishes "A Fragment of a Play, With a Chorus," "Shakespeare as an Actor" is discussed by Alexander Carroll, Dossie A. Picklen writes of "Dream-Poetry" and T. R. Sullivan furnishes a story entitled "A Toledo Blade," all of which with "The Point of View," embracing Impressionism, Thackeray and the Biographer, Truth and Fiction, Emerson, and several poems make up a varied as well as interesting table of contents.

MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

There are no new developments in base ball matters. The Mountain Calets had a dress parade on Thursday morning in their handsome new uniforms, which are gray with black trimmings, and cap to match.

All arrangements have been perfected for the presentation of the Colleen Bawn which will be given with full regard to details and scenic effect. The rehearsals give promise of good success. The old Junior play room is being torn down to give place to a new gymnasium which is to be erected on the Junior department between the main building and the lately constructed dormitory.

The Rev. Dr. Allen and Father Tierney, the President and Vice-President of the College went to New York Wednesday morning to attend the Banquet of the Alumni Association of Mt. St. Mary's College, which took place in that city on the same evening at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Mount St. Mary's Alumni.

A New York special to the Baltimore Sun, dated Wednesday says: The annual dinner of the Alumni Association of Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., took place this evening at the Metropolitan Hotel, in this city. It was a most enjoyable reunion of the sons of the "Old Mountain." A sort of reception was held in the hotel all the afternoon. The president, Mr. A. V. D. Waterson, of Pittsburg, Pa., was on hand to welcome the alumni, assisted by Mr. J. J. Rooney, of the reception committee. Among those who participated or sent their felicitations were Bishop J. A. Waterson, of Columbus, Ohio; Bishop Thomas McGovern, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Lawrence Gardner, Washington, D. C.; President Allen, of the college; Rev. Wm. Byrne, of Boston; Rev. W. J. Birmingham, Wilmington, Del.; John H. Byrne, New York; Dr. Charles Carroll Lee, New York; Joseph A. Campbell, Dorchester, Mass.; Rev. James Donahue, Rev. W. J. Hill, Rev. T. J. Fitzgerald, J. J. Rooney, L. J. Rooney, Rev. Joseph Kilpatrick, Geo. M. Nichols, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Rev. Thomas F. Doran, Rhode Island; Rev. James E. Duffy, East Albany, N. Y.; E. F. Duffy, M. D., New York; Rev. P. Hennessy, Jersey City; Rev. J. J. Lane, Boston; Rev. J. H. McMahon, Rev. Thomas McLaughlin, Rev. W. J. Tole, Rev. M. J. Murray, Rev. C. B. O'Reilly, Rev. E. T. Powers, Rev. D. P. Ward, New York; Thomas J. McTigue, New York; E. P. Slavin, New York; Fathers Ward, Tierney and Professor Lagarde, Mt. St. Mary's; Peter Condon, president St. Francis Xavier's school; Rev. D. J. McMahon, D. D., Manhattan alumni; James J. Glover, Seton Hall alumni; Rev. E. J. Slattery, St. John's alumni; Sergeant Dunn, of the weather bureau, and a number of others. Letters of regret at their inability to attend were received from Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Corrigan and Monsignor Bernard J. O'Reilly, D. D. The banquet room was beautifully decorated with flowers, and an orchestra played popular airs during the dinner. The old boys showed they still had young hearts by joining with zest in the choruses that the melodies evoked.

President Waterson's annual address of congratulation and welcome was first on the toast list, followed by these set speeches: "The Old Mountain," Rev. P. I. Duffy, of Charleston, S. C.; "The Ladies," Hon. Edward J. Dumphy, Members of Congress; "All the Rest of the World," Dr. Charles Carroll Lee. After this a number of impromptu efforts kept up the festivities to a late hour.

Worked Backwards.

A farmer living in a Hagerstown District went out and sawed a plank that ran across the Antietam, thinking to catch a friend unawares, who would be crossing soon by that same plank, he saved it nearly through and went into the house chuckling to himself as he fancied his friend standing on his head in the cold water. When he sat in his house the thought came to him that maybe the plank was not sawed through enough, and to satisfy himself went out to see. When he stepped on the plank he found out quickly that it was sawed plenty, and that the water was cold enough too. He is dry now, and won't saw anymore planks.—Mail.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can CURED It Be

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. "My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofula from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lumps and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLISLE, Naughton, N. J.

Arbutus.

We notice frequently in your columns mention made of the flower called Trailing Arbutus. We knew nothing of the plant except from descriptions of it, until a few days ago when in company with a pleasant companion on a bright afternoon we took a drive after the far famed pink and white little beauties. Our drive took us up the Old Maria Furber road where we had been told by a friend Arbutus was to be found. By inquiry of several persons along the way we were able to find the spot, and best of all, a guide in the form of a little little Mountaineer came out from a house near by when we saw us stop and showed us where to find the plant. After a climb of two or three hundred yards up the mountain side

"We found the flower so rich and rare, Which nature had set to please us there."

And pleased we were, for the sight of the fragrant and shy little flower, whose sentiment is "Welcome," could not help but make us glad. We gathered some of the flowers, but took along a very fine large bunch which our little guide had gathered in the morning for some one who might chance by and want it. Before leaving we took a view of the old Viaduct, better known here as the Wirecable or simply Dock, which was closed by it. It is a grand piece of masonry and well worth a visit by any one who has never seen it. It is an arch of stone work about 250 feet in length, designed as a water course for Tom's creek, and also as a roadway had the railroad been completed. The stone-work is still perfect, although more than fifty years have elapsed since it was built. Remains of the old furnace are still to be seen along the road and the western extension of the W. M. R. R. here makes a veritable horseshoe curve where it crosses from one side of the valley to the other. The large blue rock where such tremendous blasting was done during the construction of the road is just over head as you drive along, the old dumping bank and other points of interest make this a very pleasant drive for any one who delights in the beauties and grandeur of nature. Fairfield, Pa. L. E. W.

For Women Who suffer from nervous and physical debility great help is found in taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It produces the rapid effect of a stimulant, without the injurious reaction that follows the use of stimulants. The result of taking this medicine is a permanent increase of strength and vigor, both of mind and body. "I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla just what I have needed for a long time. I have tried different medicines or tonics, but never found a cure until I used this. My trouble has been a low state of the blood, causing faint turns."—Lena O'Connor, 121 Vernon St., Boston, Mass. "I have been a victim for the past two years of general weakness with turns of fainting. Have tried various remedies, but with little result till I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Some six months since I began to use this remedy, and am greatly benefited."—Miss K. E. White, Somerville, Mass. "This is to certify that I have been using Ayer's Sarsaparilla for some time, and it has done me a world of good. It has cured my headache, cleared my blood, and helped me in every way, and I am determined to use it so long as I need such a medicine."—Mrs. Taft, 152 First Street, Lowell, Mass.

THE Fairfield correspondent of the Star and Sentinel says: Mrs. Joseph Musselman (Senior) had a stroke on Saturday evening last. She complained of not feeling well, walked out into the orchard (which is near the house) where she was found by her husband lying on her back unable to speak. She was taken to the house and Dr. A. O. Scott was called in, who rendered the necessary medical attention. This Monday morning she is somewhat better.

THE opening article of the May Eclectic discusses the career of Crispien, the late Italian premier, one of the great men of the time. George Sainsbury talks about the essential characteristics which distinguish literature in France and England. An interesting article on "Pessimism as a System," by R. M.
Wenley, sums up one of the philosophical tendencies of the day. J. W. Cross has a paper recognizing the immense attractions of the "New World" civilization. One of the most striking papers is that on "John Wesley," whose centenary was recently held, written sympathetically by Rev. Hugh Price Hughes. Dr. F. H. H. Guillemard discusses an imminent question in his "Islands of Bering's Sea," and the silver problem in the United States, is able treated by Sir Lyon Playfair. Hon.
J. W. Longley, of Nova Scotia, treats of imperial federation as connected with Canada, and Sir Frederick Pollock, threshes out the problem of "Anglo-American Copyright." There are many short papers, stories, poems, sketches, and the number is full of interesting alike in the line of amusement and instruction.

Farmers' League Meeting.

A meeting of the Farmers' League will be held at Gelwick's Hall on Saturday afternoon, May 9th, at 2 o'clock.
Everybody is invited to attend this meeting, and especially those favoring equal taxation.

A REVIVIFYING of nature's latent force's occurs every spring. At this time, better than at any other, the blood may be cleansed from the humors which infect it. The best and most popular remedy to use for this purpose is Ayer's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla.

A VALUABLE horse belonging to Mr.
Geo. L. Gilliland dropped dead on the street last Saturday. Mr. G. and his son were driving up street at the time, when the horse suddenly stopped and showed signs of illness and dropped dead as soon as he was unhitched.
Heart disease was the cause of death.

Crown Stock Food will prevent all the ills that dairy cows are heir to.

Fire Monday Night.

The fire which was observed Monday night was in Creagerstown district. The barn of Mr. Carlton Speak was entirely consumed together with a lot of machinery, buggy, harness, hay, etc. A valuable horse also perished in the flames. The Frederick News says the fire was of incendiary origin.

What It Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessaries of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes, because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is only medicine of which can truly be said "100 Doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Death of Mrs. Hammett.

Mrs. Seraphine Hammett, widow of the late David F. Hammett of Westminster, died at the residence of her son, Mr. D. H. Reiman, near this place last Saturday, in the 82nd year of her age. Her remains were taken to Westminster on Tuesday for burial, funeral services being held in the M. E. Church at that place. Mrs. Hammett leaves three children, Mr. D. H. Reiman of this place, Mr. Wm. Hammett of Gower, Missouri and Mrs. Cook of Baltimore.

Editors Entertained.

Hon. Frank Brown gave a luncheon to the editors of Maryland at Hazzer's Hall, Baltimore, on Monday, and a royally good time they had. Mr. Brown welcomed his guests with a neat speech in which he thanked the press for the substantial aid given him in making the exhibition at Pimlico in 1889 successful. A number of the visitors responded and "Farmer" Brown was warmly endorsed as a candidate for Governor. As the CHRONICLE has already seen fit to advise Mr. Brown's nomination, this feature pleased its representative very much.

Pipe Creek Dunkards.

The yearly love feast of the Dunkards of Pipe Creek Congregation, near Linwood was held on Saturday and Sunday last. It was estimated that about 1500 people were present during the meetings, 450 partaking of the sacrament.
This is the last meeting that will be held in this old building, which will be torn down in a few days to give way for the new structure. The present house was built in 1806. An addition was built in 1866. Previous to 1806 religious services were held in an old log building, which, after the erection of the church, was for many years used as a school house. The new meeting-house will be built of brick, with blue limestone foundation, 45 by 80 feet, and will occupy a site in close proximity to the present one. The meetings will be held in the school house, a short distance away, until the church is finished, which will be the 1st of October.—Sun.

Strange Freaks of Lightning.

During the thunder storm of last Saturday evening the lightning played some strange freaks on the premises of Mr. Isaac Repp, near Uniontown. A large tree standing near the barn was struck and splintered only at the top.
To this tree a gate was hung, supported by an iron rod; the electric current followed this rod to the middle of the gate and shattered the middle bar. Another bolt struck the top of the barn, the current divided, one part following the spouting while the other entered the barn; the latter shattered the timbers of the barn, tore a hole in the end of a granary and let a lot of wheat run to the ground, and following a post to the stabling, glanced from the post to a horse standing near and killed him instantly. The timbers were wonderfully shattered and it is remarkable that the barn was not set on fire as dry hay was very near the place struck.—Carroll News.

known keeper of the toll gate near town band on Monday evening. The CHRON-ICLE offers its congratulations to the happy couple.

Euclid, celebrated the 85 anniversary of her birth. The celebration was a sur-

School Board Notes.

At the meeting of the Board of School Commissioners last week $10 was appropriated for a library at the public school, this place, the law in regard to raising a similar sum having been complied with. Another important action from this section was the presentation by Mr. Vincent Sebold of a petition from the citizens of Motter's Station asking for a new school district and new school house in that locality. A committee was appointed to investigate the matter and make a report. We feel confident that a favorable report will be made, as a school house is badly needed at that point.

Fire at Westminster.

A disastrous fire occurred at Westminster on Friday morning which, had it not been for the prompt and efficient work of the fire department, would have destroyed a whole block. The fire was discovered at an early hour in Geiselman's furniture factory, and the highly inflammatory condition of the building and its contents made it impossible to save even a part of it. The blacksmith shop formerly occupied by the Hess Co., was badly charred and only saved from burning by hard work, while at one time it was feared that the elevator adjoining the Meyer Steam Roller Mill would be destroyed. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin and the loss estimated to be $12,000.

Through the Weary Hours.

Of many a night, made doubly long by its protracted agony, the rheumatic sufferer toying to and fro on his sleepless couch, vainly praying for that rest which only comes by fits and starts. His misery is one which ordinary medicines too often fail to relieve, but there is a simple evidence to prove that the efficient blood purifier, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, affords the rheumatic a reliable means of relief. Check the malarial in its incipient stages, when the first promontory twinges come on, with this agreeable medicine, and avoid years of torture.
What else is the rationale of the active ingredient of the Bitters upon this malady, certain it is that no evidence relating to its effect is more direct and positive than that which relates to its action in cases of rheumatism. Like all sterling remedies, however, it deserves a prolonged, systematic trial, and should not be abandoned because not at once remedial. It is equally efficacious in dyspepsia, indigestion and kindred diseases.
