

HURRAH FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY.

Once more we are called upon to celebrate our national birthday and as usual all sorts of noisy explosives...

We keep up at least a show of loyalty, to the idea which governed the patriots of Seventy-six, when, staking their lives and property on the issue, they signed the memorable declaration that gave birth to the glorious republic...

But are we as loyal to the memory and the work of those brave old fathers of our boasted independence, as we pretend to be? Are we as zealous in guarding the liberty which is ours by inheritance as they whose wisdom and self-sacrifice secured it for their descendants...

But it is quite another thing to live up to the lofty ideal, which in the minds of our forefathers constituted a free and independent republic. Purity of purpose, honesty in the performance of every public duty, courage to resist evil, to punish wrong-doing...

Let its glorious banner then be thrown to the breeze as of old, amid the booming of cannon, the strains of martial music and the shouts of grateful voices, blending in glorious harmony as the sun rises on every returning anniversary of our Nation's Birthday...

Wm. MIZENER, a wealthy farmer of West Salem township, Mercer county Pa., was unaccountably killed by two confidence men, who succeeded in getting him to play three-card monte...

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

The money gifts to Yale College last year exceeded $1,500,000. The population of the City of London is now given at 5,877,000. Since 1821, 15,041,688 immigrants have arrived in the United States.

THE BUILDINGS OF Cedar Hill Seminary, in Mount Joy, Lancaster county, Pa., were destroyed by fire Tuesday.

PNEUMATIC transit is urged as a means of expediting the distribution of the mails in New York and Brooklyn. That tired feeling now so often heard of is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives mental and bodily strength.

Gov. BOIES, of Iowa, has issued an appeal to the people of the state for about one hundred families which require help by reason of the recent floods.

THE constant drift of immigration westward from New York is ascribed to the lack of efforts on the part of the South to make its attractions known.

SUBSCRIPTIONS DUE.

All subscribers to the CHRONICLE who began with the first number as well as those who came in on special offers made later, are respectfully notified that their subscriptions are now due.

There were several severe earthquake shocks at San Jose, Cal., Monday morning. Buildings were shaken and guests rushed from hotels unclad, but the only damage done was to crockery and insecure chimneys.

On Friday afternoon, near Mount Carmel, Pa., a terrific storm blew down a nearly completed colliery, and six lives were lost. The men were hurled to the ground 150 feet, and four of them crushed to a jelly by the heavy timbers.

The ladies of the Christian Church of Brantford, N. Y., gave the first ice-cream sociable of the season on Saturday night last. Forty-three people who ate of the ice cream were poisoned.

While Clayton Yost, aged eight years, was driving a vicious bull in Spring township, Berks county, Pa., Saturday evening, the animal attacked him, its horns penetrating and lacerating both of his lungs, fracturing several ribs and breaking his breast bone.

A DESTRUCTIVE cyclone passed through Colorado, 25 miles east of Denver, Thursday night. Houses were blown away, trees uprooted and carried away, and crops for many miles around are completely ruined.

THE flood in the Missouri river reached its highest stage at Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday, when it registered 26 feet 2 inches above low-water mark. The water began falling at the rate of an inch an hour, and all apprehension of further damage is set at rest.

THE July issue of The Electric begins with a timely article on "The Warfare of the Future," by Archibald Forbes. Messrs. H. James, Andrew Lang and Edmund Gosse discuss "The Science of Criticism" with much suggestiveness, and Max Muller talks about "The Enormous Antiquity of the East."

THE constant drift of immigration westward from New York is ascribed to the lack of efforts on the part of the South to make its attractions known. JEFFERSON A. HARLOW, a letter-carrier of Kansas City, Mo., slept near an open window with the moon shining full upon his face. When he awoke he was totally blind.

THE ELECTRIC STREET RAILWAY.

We have so far shown the general arrangement and disposition of the electric generators, switchboards, and the system of wires composed of the insulated feeders and the bare trolley wires.

Each of the cars is fitted on the roof with a queer looking structure, somewhat like a fishing rod with a little wheel at its tip. This is the "trolley pole" and the wheel is called the "trolley." The wheel is made of brass or bronze and has a deep groove on its face so as to enable it to follow the trolley wire, or, so to speak, to keep on the track.

The motors can be best described and understood by considering them merely as dynamos reversed. Going back to our bundle of insulated wires and magnets, if we pass a current through them from an external source, the bundle of wires, i. e. the armature, at once starts into motion and according to the quantity of current allowed to circulate through, the motion is accompanied by a greater or less exertion of power.

The following transfers of real estate have taken place in this county, as recorded in the Clerk's office during the past two weeks:

Frederick City Manufacturing and Development Company to Joseph Cronis, lot in North-west addition, 1870, Robert A. Kemp and Otis Kessler, to Peyton H. Canaway, lots in Brunswick, 8265.

Frederick City Manufacturing and Development Company to Frank V. Staub, lot in North-west addition, 8300. Lee J. and Fenton E. Gaver, executors to Carlton P. Routhan, 35 acres, 1 rood and 13 perches, 817.00.

Frederick City Manufacturing and Development Company to Wm. G. Zimmerman and S. G. Duval, lot of ground in North-west addition, 8210. John H. Freeze and wife to John A. Flengel, lot in Mechanicstown, $1,500.

The circuit of the car is in general as follows: Following down from the trolley to the base of the trolley-pole, the current is received into a large insulated wire which is led into the woodwork in the car roof, and passed down through the controlling devices to the motors, each motor receiving the full pressure of the current which is led to both equally by branching the wire.

The controlling devices consist of a reversing lever and a graduating lever. The arrangement and operation of these though extremely simple require a rather extended description and their consideration must be postponed to the next chapter.

A MISSTEP will often make a cripple for life. A bottle of Henry & Johnson's Arnica and Oil Liniment at hand, will prevent the misstep, but used immediately it will save being a cripple. For sale by J. A. Elder, Emmitsburg, and A. C. Musselman, Fairfield, Pa.

BIKE RIDGE SUMMIT ITEMS.

Mrs. George H. Howard, Misses Lillie and Mabel and Master Charles Howard are again in their old quarters at the Clemons. The register also shows the following names: Arvid Anderson, G. Brosteau, E. H. Oederman, J. C. Cresswell, J. R. Oller, J. R. Zollinger and Dr. A. H. Bonebrake, of Waynesboro, Pa.

One day last week while Joseph Hardman with other section hands was engaged in work along the railroad he was bitten in the hand by a large copperhead. A messenger was at once sent to the house of Col. Wm. F. Benchoff near by where a goodly supply of Antivenes or Walker's celebrated snake antidote was obtained.

This is not the first instance wherein Colonel Benchoff's benevolent generosity has benefited the suffering. Some years ago, in ante (local) belian days, when Miss Lizzie Bloom was bitten by a snake, it was the Colonel's whiskey that prevented fatal results; and he has testified on the witness stand to having been called upon by your correspondent to save his life when the latter's imagination led him to believe he was being attacked by the same species of reptile.

Mr. George Carter Irwin, of Baltimore, whose funeral took place last Sunday, had for a number of years spent a portion of the season at the Clermont. Mr. Irwin was a talented, comely gentleman of the old school and his many friends here heard of his death with profound regret.

Dr. J. F. Leary, of Baltimore, who held the market in this section, is falling off and giving room to the copper excitement which is again springing into existence.

Stranger! Philadelphia Brothers Meet Over a Tiny Coffin.

BY WILLA LLOYD JACKSON.

From the Philadelphia Weekly Times.

Everybody knows the Philo brothers. No? Oh! yes, they do, only that is not the way they spell their name, and perhaps it doesn't begin with a P at all. So—now don't you interrupt me again! and everybody in Philadelphia knows James and Joseph Philo, who are familiarly called Damon and Pythias by intimate friends. And in this sad old world of ours where the rank weeds of hatred and selfishness and greed so often choke the fair flowers of love and generosity, it is indeed a pretty thing to see the honest affection that exists between these brothers. Walk down Chestnut any morning you like from 8 to half-past, and you'll see them trotting along side by side on the sunny pavement, often arm and arm, their rosy, jolly faces wearing the self-same smile and their chubby limbs swinging in unison to the harmony in their hearts. Dear me! What a heart warming thing it is to see, and how many scowls and frigid bows it is worth!

But once—no matter how long ago—a dreadful thing happened. Someone made mischief between the two, and the lurking demon of suspicion that lies slumbering in every human heart awoke in those of James and Joseph Philo, and the brothers fell apart, at first with only a chill like that which heralds the early summer morning, but growing colder and colder till the ice reared itself mountain high, and at last hasty and harsh words completed the breach between the two. They walked arm and arm no more, but James stalked grimly down the one side of the street, while Joseph as grimly took the other, and the smile was gone and the brows were no longer open, but dark with distrust and spite.

Poor Mrs. James and Mrs. Joseph were wrought upon by their irate lords until they, too, were sure there existed no more artful and hateful creature on earth than the other, and so they no longer borrowed each other's patterns, exchanged recipes for cake and pudding, or consulted each other about the style of their new spring bonnets. The pew where they had worshiped God together for many years was given up, and Mrs. James sat stiffly on one side of the aisle, while Mrs. Joseph ignored her from the other. The poor little Philos were perplexed and harassed by maternal and paternal orders to leave their former playmates strictly alone, for the worst of these dreary misunderstandings and quarrels is that we are not content to vex our own souls with spite and hate and doubt, but we must need initiate our children into their meaning.

Well, well, it was a dreadful time, and there's no need to tell how the neighbors helped the thing along, and the tale-bearers grew more and more industrious, and the old Cain, dressed in modern garments and grown wily instead of violent, dealt deeper and crueler stabs to his brother than any knife could do. But one morning Joseph Philo's scowl had given way to an anxious frown as he went about his work, and his thoughts were away from his crowded office to a shaded, quiet room where a little sufferer lay moaning and tossing with cheeks too bright and hot for health. Alas! there sat upon his threshold a shadow form with giant wings half unfurled, that darkened all the sunshine for him, and shut away the things of earth as too small and trivial to be considered, and just as the day died this great angel caught the little sick child to his breast, and kissing the flushed cheeks till they paled as smitten lilies, flew away and there was a sound of dreadful weeping in the house.

Next morning as James Philo slammed his gate behind him in the irritable, fractious way which had been his of late, he saw a flutter of brief white skirts just ahead of him and recognized his little early-headed Annie under the big hat bobbing along. Wondering where the mite was going at that early hour the father followed until he saw her turn in at his brother's gate. He called her angrily and loudly, but she did not hear and toddled on up the graveled path, the low steps, and pushing aside the curtains veiling the low windows enter the darkened parlor. With rage at his heart James followed to snatch his child from all association with his enemy, as he called him, and he was too intent upon his spiteful purpose to note the badge of grief that fluttered on the door, so he was unprepared for the sight that smote him as he entered.

His little girl tiptoed beside an open coffin, a little, little coffin all in white, and sought to lay the flowers that she carried on the tiny form within. James noted this and passed, shocked to the heart, when the sound of a strong man's sobbing came to him, and he saw his brother kneeling with his face hidden upon the broken toy of a child. "Joseph," he whispered. "Joseph! Brother!"

The stricken man rose and the two, estranged so long, gazed into each other's faces, or tried to, for the tears that filled their eyes. Both then looked at the coffin and each remembered with a pang that was not all pain, for there was brotherhood and sympathy in the remembrance, of another day, years gone, when they had stood together beside an open coffin, in which a mother slept. Their hands sought each other and clasped again, and a memory of how they two had knelt and prayed beside that mother's knee came rushing sweet and full upon them.

Oh! the world had been much to both, but in this hour it faded like the night mist from a river, and left them standing like little children, with the sweet old petitions forgotten so long, but fresh and tender as of yore in this great hour, rising to their lips, and with the feeling that Time had somehow turned his current back for once, the brothers knelt and wept and prayed together.

Floating Prairies of Louisiana. A curious phenomenon is to be witnessed at the Ames crevasse, says a New Orleans letter, and, indeed, is one of the causes of the great damage it has done. Under any circumstances the water from this crevasse would overflow the rich country lying between it and the Gulf of Mexico, causing damage to the amount of several million dollars, but, to the surprise of many, not content with running down stream and overflowing the country below, it has taken to running apparently up stream. Some curiosity was felt over this phenomenon, and the case on examination shows it to be due to the prairies, trepanets—the floating or trembling prairies of southern Louisiana. All along the gulf coast the large border of land floats on the surface of the water. The land is made by fallen timber and grasses. It gradually accumulates dirt, and becomes in the course of time sufficiently firm to support brushes and even trees, but the soil is only three inches or less thick, and below it is the water, upon which it floats on account of its lightness. Occasionally pieces of trembling prairie are detached and become floating islands. There are quite a number of these in Salvador, these lands, floating from side to side, being frequently carried at a rapid rate by the wind breeze, trees acting as sails to catch the wind.—Commercial Advertiser.

Half Rates to the Northwest via B. & O. R. R. On account of the Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at Minneapolis, Minn., July 9th to 12th, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company will sell round trip tickets to that City from all stations on its lines from July 6th to 8th inclusive, at the low rate of one fare for the round trip. These cheap rates are not restricted to delegates, but are open to the general public. Tickets will be valid for return journey on trains leaving Minneapolis July 12th to 15th inclusive. Those desiring to remain longer can do so by depositing their tickets for safe keeping with the Agent of the terminal railroad at Minneapolis until they wish to begin their return journey such date not to be later than August 26, 1891.

Baked Bananas. Select large ripe bananas, and bake them in the oven as you would potatoes. When the skin begins to split at the seams they are done. Take them out, and serve to each person as a vegetable. They should be peeled, and eaten with butter and a little salt.

A great blood purifier for all domestic animals, Biggs Bros. Crown Stock Food.

FOR a good home-made "concrete walk" mix with ashes and coal screenings some unslaked lime, adding water sufficient to make a concrete. Put it on when it is the consistency of water and roll smooth. This should grow as hard as an oak floor, and one application is only necessary to fill out the uneven spots.

WHEN meat is to be boiled, be sure and put it into boiling water to start with, as that closes the pores instantly and keeps the goodness in the meat. When boiling it for soup put it into cold water and bring it to a boiling heat as slowly as possible, for in this case the object is to extract the strength and goodness from the meat instead of keeping it in.

Rice Waffles. One gill of rice, three gills of flour, one ounce of butter, three eggs, a little salt. Boil the rice until tender; add the butter, flour, salt and yolks of the eggs (previously beaten light), after which the mixture must be beaten very hard. Have the whites of the eggs very light, stir in gently; then ready for baking. Butter; serve hot.

Very Embarrassing. Algernon. "I've a widdle for you, Miss Miranda. Why are children like tooth brushes?" Miranda. "I don't know. Why are they?" Algernon. "Because everybody pwefers his own. See?" Miranda (frigidly). "No, I don't see. Not having any children—"

Algernon (stammeringly). "Oh, of course not; but you—you—you have a tooth-brush, you know." Kate Field's Washington.

Cold Custard. Heat a quart of milk till it is lukewarm; add two tablespoonfuls of sherry and four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Stir the ingredients gently together. Liquid rennet can be purchased by the small bottle at groceries and drug stores. As soon as the ingredients are mixed pour the custard immediately into the bowl in which it is to be served. Set it on the ice as soon as it is cool and serve it for dessert with preserves or cream and sugar. It will be firm in about two hours, and should be used soon after.

To Sweep a Printing Office. We don't use a leaky old sprinkling pot to sop the floor all over in puddles when we sweep. No, sir! We have wet sawdust, and I put a row of it across one end of the office and sweep that right along to the other end, just like a regiment marching across a ten acre lot. It catches all the dirt and carries it along. If it gets a little dry I add some more. Some folks scatter sawdust all over the floor, but that's no goods; the reason for using sawdust is to avoid wetting the floor all over, and to have something that will absorb the dust.—British Printer.

Bananas in Jelly. Make with boiling water a quart of strong and sweet lemonade, using only the juice of the lemons. Soak half a box of gelatine one hour in a small cup of cold water; stir it into the boiling lemonade and set it where it will cool, but not harden. Cut three bananas in lengthwise halves and lay them in a mould wet with cold water, cover them with half the jelly, and set the mould upon the ice until the jelly sets. Then slice in three more bananas and pour in the remainder of the jelly. Serve with cream or soft custard.

ONE Sunday as Mr. Beecher was returning from church, he was overtaken by one of his parishioners who held his little daughter by the hand. In his sermon that day he had earnestly exhorted every one to practice human kindness. The little girl—evidently anxious that her father should be rebuked—volunteered the information that papa had scolded Mary that morning. "And who is Mary?" inquired Mr. Beecher. "Why Mary is our cook," replied the little gossip. "Well, well, that is too bad! But I hope papa doesn't scold mama," said Mr. Beecher with a twinkle in his eye, as he glanced at old friend.

"Well, I guess not," said the small damsel with a toss of her head: "My mama isn't a servant; none of my parents ain't servants; why, they ain't even servants of the Lord!" No farmer or dairyman can afford to be without Crown Stock Food. It is a boon to breeders of all domestic animals.

"Is there much money to be made out of literature?" "Oh, my; yes. In fact there's more made out of it than in it."

It's no wonder that the question, "Where do all the pins go?" is so hard to answer when they're all pointed one way and headed another.

We are told that "the evening wore on," but we are never told what it wore on that occasion. Was it the "close of a summer's day?"

NEVER sun feather beds. Air them thoroughly on a windy day in a cool place. The sun dries the oil and gives the feathers a rancid smell.

"WHAT does 'Good Friday' mean?" asked one schoolboy of another. "You had better go home and read your 'Robinson Crusoe,'" was the withering reply.

GRAHAM on being asked to define a present, replied: "A present is something you do not care to keep, given to a person who does not want it."

Faith Cure on Obstinate Subjects. When you remember that in Bible days they believed in a faith that could move mountains, it does not seem so absurd that in these days there are people who believe in faith that will remove warts.—South Chester News.

Remedy for Roaches. The Scientific American gives the following remedy: Take three pounds of oatmeal, or meal of Indian corn, and mix with it a pound of white lead; moisten with treacle so as to form a good paste, and put a portion down at night in the infested building. Repeat for a few nights alternately, and in the morning remove the paste and the corpses to a convenient place.

CONSUMPTION CURED. An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. The North End Real Estate Agency, OF FREDERICK COUNTY, MARYLAND. NOTICE OF CO-PARTNERSHIP.

BEING aware that a large number of real estate owners in the North End of Frederick county are desirous of disposing of their holdings, and realizing the advantages such persons would secure from a regularly established real estate agency at home, the undersigned have this day formed a co-partnership for the purpose of conducting such a business under the above name; said co-partnership to continue for one year from the date hereof and continuously thereafter until a notice of dissolution is published in some newspaper printed in Frederick county. It is also a condition of the co-partnership agreement that the firm name shall not be used as the maker or endorser of any promissory note or any other evidence of debt, except when countersigned by both members of the firm, such use of the firm name having in each individual case been agreed upon.

CHAS. E. CASSELL, PAUL MOTTER, EUGENE L. ROWE, ATTORNEY, Emmitsburg, Md. March 17, 1891.

TO REAL ESTATE OWNERS. THE NORTH END REAL ESTATE AGENCY enjoys exceptional facilities for advertising, having at its command the columns of two liberally circulated local newspapers, together with the output of their respective job printing departments.

Farms, Country Homes, Town Property, Etc., will be taken for sale at a fair valuation on commission. It is the aim of The North End Real Estate Agency to fully represent this section both at home and abroad, and to that end a system of correspondence will be arranged. Rates will conform with those of other established agencies.

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED. Address the Agency at either Emmitsburg or Mechanicstown.
