DR. FAHNEY'S TEETHING SYRUP
It is safe to give to babies a few days old, and its good effects in ordinary cases, are seen in children five and six years old.
There is nothing in the drug market that gives more universal satisfaction than Fahrney's Syrup. Thousands of physicians are prescribing it daily. An over dose is not dangerous—it will prevent cholera infantum if used in time—no better soothing syrup made—many testimonials give proof of these words—all dealers sell it for 25 cts. Sample bottle sent on receipt of 10 cents. Made only by Drs. D. FAHNEY & SON, HAGERSTOWN, Md.

STOP. LOOK.

I have just received a large lot of PURE ALL RYE WHISKEYS for hard-wood and medicinal purposes, distilled by the well-known William Foust, at Glen Rock, York county, Pa., whose distillery was established in 1833. This Whiskey has no equal and is absolutely pure. Doctors recommend it as the best for medicinal purposes. Have high and low prices. Give me a call before buying elsewhere and be convinced.

FACTS! FACTS! FACTS!

Unclaimed Money and Estates.
MONEY AND ESTATES AWAITING DISTRIBUTION AMONG ASSENT HEIRS.
IT IS an undoubted, interesting, and important fact, that, during recent years, the number of properties and sums of money awaiting distribution among missing heirs and legatees are rapidly on the increase. Recognizing this fact I have for some years past engaged to a limited extent in the investigation of such matters, in which I have had great success. I therefore offer my services to those who believe that they are entitled to participate in the distribution of money or estates. All Correspondence Confidential. No charge unless successful. WATCHES,

GIVE A KIND WORD WHEN YOU CAN.

Do you know a heart that hungers For a word of love and cheer? There are many such about us; It may be that one is near. Look around you. If you find it Speak the word that's needed so, And your own heart may be strengthened. end By the help that you bestow.

It may be that some one falters On the brink of sin and wrong, And a word from you might save him— Help to make the tempted strong. Look about you, O my brother! What a sin is yours and mine If we see that help is needed And we give no friendly sign!

Never think kind words are wasted, Bread on waters cast are they, And it may be we shall find them Coming back to us some day. Coming back when sorely needed, In a time of sharp distress; So, my friend, let's give them freely; Gift and giver God will bless.

SAM-JACK.

The Story of a Pony That Knows a Thing or Two.

BY T. C. HARBOUGH.

From the Philadelphia Weekly Times.

His name was Sam-Jack and he was only a pony. I am not going to say that there have not been ponies as knowing as Sam-Jack, but he was the wonder of the neighborhood, and the remarkable thing he did one day made him famous even away from home. He got his queer name from his first master, a worthless fellow named Sam Jackson, who sold him to the village post-master, by whom he was at once christened "Sam-Jack."

It seemed that the pony knew everybody in town, and that the children came in for a big share of his good will, for often, when he was harnessed to the little yellow cart, which he drew without a driver, he would neigh in a friendly manner and move near the sidewalk, as if inviting the boys and girls to take a ride.

Sam-Jack became the mail carrier for the village office, and when the mail train was nearly due he might be seen trotting down to the station, where he would back up to the platform and quietly wait till the mail men threw the sack intended for Rosedale into the cart as the train shot by.

The next moment Sam-Jack would come trotting back with his load, and would land it safe at the post-office, where his owner would take the pouch from the cart and tell the pony to go to the stable. He was as regular as a clock and knew the arrival and departure of every mail train.

One day, to fool him, John, the stable boy, hung up in the stable a new time card, which he had devised for the purpose; but Sam-Jack was not to be deceived, for when the hour came for the arrival of the Western Mail, he came out of his stall and took his place in the shafts.

"That's the knowin'est pony in all creation," said the boy, amazed. "He knowed dat wasn't de right time-card I hung up dar. I'd like to see anybody fool Sam-Jack."

It happened that the pony's former master, after selling him, grew more trifling than ever, if such a thing could be. Sam-Jack seemed to cut his acquaintance, for he would resist his advances whenever he extended them, which he sometimes did when he had been to the grog-shop at the end of the street, and on one occasion the pony was seen to walk deliberately away from Jackson, who persisted in his unwelcome attentions.

"I just want to get even with that pony one of these days," Jackson was overheard to say after the incident I have just mentioned. "He is wonderfully stuck up since he entered the employ of the Government, I don't like stuck-up people myself, and I'd rather bring that pony down a peg or two than to get a fortune from the old country."

One day Sam-Jack came to the postoffice as usual for the mail pouch. He seemed to be in high spirits, perhaps on account of the bunches of early Spring flowers that John had placed here and there in the harness. Mr. Donson came out with the letter-bag and tossed it into the cart, at the same time telling Sam-Jack, in a merry mood, that he should hurry back with the mail, for John was to drive him over to Silver Creek that afternoon after a young lady, who was to spend several weeks in the postmaster's family.

Sam-Jack tossed his head and went off at a lively gait. Having reached the platform of the railroad he backed up, as usual, to await the train. Not far off, with mischief in his eye, stood Jackson, watching every movement of the pony. It had been noticed by some persons that Jackson had made frequent visits to the grogery that morning and was up to something, though no one could guess just what it was.

Rosedale was a way station and not many passengers got on or off there. It was the custom for every mail train to stop long enough to relieve the pony of the pouch in the cart and to give him another in exchange for it.

On this particular occasion the pony seemed to remember Mr. Donson's injunction to hurry back with the mail, for the moment he received the pouch he started off. Up to this time he had not seen his former master on the watch; but all at once he heard a noise alongside the road and in a second Jackson was at the wheel.

"Don't stop for me, old fellow," called out Jackson. "I'm only going to have you haul me back to town. You used to do that, you know, and it will seem like old times for the people to see us together once more."

Sam-Jack would have increased his gait if Jackson had not by a sudden movement landed on the seat and taken the lines in his hands. For a minute Sam-Jack didn't know what to do. Jackson fell back with a coarse laugh, and raising the whip, which was seldom used but was carried in its socket for ornament, struck the pony a cruel blow.

Instead of bounding away, Sam-Jack came to a halt and refused to budge.

"How is this? Don't you want to carry me?" roared Jackson. "The look he received as the pony turned his head said plainly: 'I don't mind carrying decent people, Sam Jackson; but you've made such a fool of yourself that I don't want to be seen in your company. Get out and go about your business.'"

"You've got starchy" since I sold you to old man Donson," cried Jackson. "What an elegant pony you are, to be sure. I see that John and the old gentleman have spared the whip, and by so doing have spoiled the nag," and once more the lash descended upon Sam-Jack's back.

The next minute the pony was bounding over the road to town at the top of his speed, for though a pony and not expected to go very fast, he was making better time than anyone thought he could make. This delighted the half-intoxicated Jackson, for he set up a series of shouts and continued to ply the whip.

Down the hill, at the foot of which was a new bridge spanning the clear waters of Sugar Creek, went Sam-Jack and his driver. At each end of the bridge was a sign that warned people not to drive faster than a walk, and Sam-Jack could not be induced to violate the law. When he reached the bridge he came to a full stop, and when Jackson ordered him to go forward he did so, but in the slowest of walks.

"Bless me, if I don't believe old Donson has taught this high-toned pony to read since he bought him," exclaimed the map.

But Jackson could not induce Sam-Jack to violate the law; he went across the bridge in a deliberate walk, and when fairly across started off again so suddenly that Jackson was nearly thrown from the cart.

Now, Sam-Jack was heartily ashamed of the company he was in, and when he reached the village, instead of keeping in the main street, as was his custom, he turned into a side one and rattled along.

"Here, old fellow! you shan't be ashamed of your old master," said Jackson, trying to turn the pony back into Main street; but he found a very stubborn pony on his hands, for Sam-Jack resisted with all his might, even to kicking, something he had not been guilty of since becoming the postmaster's property.

The actions of the pony and the sight of Jackson in the cart attracted a good many people.

"Can't you see that the pony is ashamed of you?" said one.

"Get out and let him go. They'll arrest you for interfering with the regular delivery of the mail," cried another.

Sam-Jack moved slowly towards Main street, as if he had changed his mind; but all at once he went off as fast as he could and, cheered by the spectators, carried Jackson away at a good speed.

Now, there stood and had stood for years near the gutter in a certain place, a town pump of the old-fashioned sort. It was large and ungainly in looks, but it furnished excellent water and was one of the pony's favorite drinking places. Sam-Jack kept in the middle of the street until he had nearly reached a point opposite to the pump, when he veered towards the gutter. All at once the left wheel of the cart struck the pump and there was a sudden upset, with Mr. Samuel Jackson underneath.

Sam-Jack went down, too, but in a flash he was on his feet, and looking back and seeing that he had spilled his load, with the exception of the mail-pouch, which, catching on a hook, retained its place, he ran on, leaving the demoralized Jackson in the dirt. He did not stop until the door of the postoffice was reached.

By this time some of the spectators had gone to Jackson's relief and helped him to his feet.

"That pony ran against that pump on purpose," said Jackson. "I saw revenge in his eye when he concluded to go back to Main street. He was bound to get rid of me this side of the postoffice, and there was no other way of doing it."

I am quite sure that Jackson was right, for there was a merry twinkle in Sam-Jack's eye when John took him to the stable and rubbed him down.

Honesty in a Machine.

A novelty in the way of automatic selling machines has been placed on the market. It is honest, says the New York Times. When a penny is dropped into its slot and for any reason it fails to send out a sample of the wares with which it is charged the patron does not go away swearing at penny-in-the-slot machines. The penny rolls out into the little pocket made to catch it or the sample and no harm is done. One of these honest machines has been running for several weeks in the rotunda of the county courthouse. It is stocked with chocolate bars. A lawyer dropped in five pennies at one time the other day and when he got only three pieces of chocolate he said the machine was a cheat like all the rest. The next day he dropped in another cent for which there came out one piece of chocolate and a penny. Another trial brought out another piece of chocolate and another penny, and then the machine ran regularly again.

It Can't Be.

A New York surgeon who has made a specialty of nerve centers says the music of a hand organ is pleasant to at least ninety-nine out of every hundred people, falling upon the nerve centers and tympanum of the ear with soothing effect. He says that when you meet a person that cries out against this sort of music you can safely put him down as a falsifier and deceiver.

ORIGIN OF OLD SAWS.

Both Shakespeare and Dryden believed it proper to "Give the Devil his due."

Smollett in "Translations of 'Gil Blas'" and Elliott in his "Essay on Field Husbandry" discovered that "facts are stubborn things." And Bunyan, Macklin; and Ray found out that every tub must stand on its own bottom.

When you were a boy, and your father wanted to get you out of the way so he could have a quiet game of draw with one of the neighbors he took you upon his knees and told you that Benjamin Franklin used to say:

Early to bed and early to rise, Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise. Franklin did say that. So did a man named Clarke, in 1639. Pity you didn't have a book on quotations so you could call the old man down on his learning.

"Comparisons are Odious," wrote a half dozen authors, the names of some would not be recognized by the every day newspaper reader. In Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" it is written, "Comparisons are Odorous."

You say "As cold as a cucumber." never stopping to think that Fletcher said it in 1615. How often have you read in the playbills, heard in the sermons, and said it yourself, "All that glistens is not gold." It nowhere occurs in that way. Shakespeare wrote it "All that glisters is not gold." Middleton put it "All is not gold that glistereth." and Chancer thus:

But all thing which shineth as the gold Ne is not gold, as I have hear it told, referring to the same idea as having been expressed by another in 1294. "All is not golde that outward shewith bright," is the way it is written by Lydgate, Spenser is "Fairer Queen" put it "Gold all is not that doth golden seem." And Dryden thus, "All, as they say, that glitters is not gold."

The origin of the saying, "Where the shoe pinches," is thus explained by Pintarch: A Roman had sought to be divorced from his wife. He was blamed by his friends, who asked: Was she not chaste? Was she not fair? He held out his shoe to them and asked them whether it was not new and well made? "Yet," he added, "none of you can tell me where it pinches me."

It is often written and often spoken, "There is no royal road to learning." The proper rendering is, "There is no other royal path which leads to geometry." So it was spoken to Ptolemy by Euclid.

Fervid historians unloaded upon the student the expression, "The guard dies, but never surrenders," and credited the same to Cambridge, the commander of the old Guard of Napoleon at Waterloo. Cambridge denied that he ever uttered any such words. They were invented two days after the battle by apologetic writer (a correspondent) in the Independent.

The right arm is always a little larger than the left, but the left foot is almost always larger than the right, presumably because, while nearly every man uses his right arm to lift a weight or strike a blow, he almost invariably kicks with his left foot, while the longer stands on his left leg and lets his right fall easily, because he has learned by experience that this is the attitude he can assume to prevent lassitude and fatigue. This constant bearing of the weight on the left foot makes it wider than the right, and it often happens that a man who tries on a shoe on the right foot and gets a close fit has to discard the shoes altogether because he cannot endure the pain caused by the tightness of the left. If when riding on a street car you will take the trouble to notice, you will see in lace shoes the gap is much smaller on the right foot than on the left, while with button shoes the buttons have to be set back ten times on the left shoe to once on the right.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

NEW USE FOR DYNAMITE

It is made to do duty in a daring train robbery. Del Rio, Tex., Sept. 3.

DEL RIO, TEX., Sept. 3.—A telegraphic message from the Southern Pacific railway, located in a thinly settled section, gives an account of a daring train robbery committed by six masked men.

ALL the money and valuables in the safe in the express car were secured by the robbers, as well as several sacks of mail and registered packages from the mail.

THE train was just pulling out from the station when six masked men, who had selected their positions, simultaneously mounted the engine, and the express cars.

THE effect of this was to tear the window out and otherwise damage the car. The express messenger was stunned, but he recovered and used a revolver to good advantage.

THE robbers took their time in doing the job and with the utmost coolness and exhibition of nerve.

VICTORY COMPLETE.

VALPARAISO, AUG. 31.—Santiago has been formally surrendered, the triumph of the Congressional party is complete and peace and quiet may be looked for in Chile before many days have passed.

THE insurgent leaders intended to make it a question of only a very short time, too, for active preparations were being made to send a force of men sufficient to overcome any possible opposition at Santiago as soon as the railroad could be repaired and arrangements made for the transportation of the troops.

ALL this was made unnecessary, however, for word was received from representatives of Balmaine at the capital asking for a conference, with a view to surrender. The request was readily granted, and General Baquedano, who was formerly commander-in-chief of the army, was designated to act for the Congressionalists.

THE terms of the surrender were arranged. A few days more and the Junta will form a provisional government, which they insist must be recognized as the only legitimate government of Chile.

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER. When the insurgent fleet came into the bay the sailors were greeted almost enthusiastically as were the soldiers when they entered the city.

THE behavior of the insurgent troops since their entry into the city has been most exemplary. Perfect discipline has been maintained and officers and privates have endeavored to keep the unruly elements here in order.

THE total number of killed on the government side is now given as 700 men, and of the opposition 290. It is impossible to learn the number of wounded.

Commissioner Handy Complains of Unjust Criticism.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Moses P. Handy, of the Chicago World's fair commission, has favored the United Press correspondent with an interview as to his European experiences.

Catarrh Can't be Cured with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O. WANTED.—A live experienced agent to act as General Agent in this State for our great Alliance book "Labor and Capital." Big commissions given. Book meeting with tremendous sales every where introduced. Write at once. THE R. D. ROBINSON PUB. CO., aug. 28-31. Raleigh, N. C.

At a meeting of the Board of County School Commissioners held last Wednesday, the bond of Mr. E. L. Boblitz, of Mechanicstown, who was appointed Treasurer and Examiner of the School Board to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Glenn H. Worthington, was submitted and approved. Mr. Boblitz assumed charge of his duties on Tuesday.

A correspondent of the News at Jefferson says that he saw a rare curiosity on Friday last. It was nothing more or less than a pole stalk fully two and a half feet in height, growing up in a water birch tree about twenty-five feet from the ground. The seed must have been carried by the wind or a bird and deposited in the decayed portion of the tree, in which it flourished.

THE Hanover Fair, Sept. 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th, promises to be a big exhibition. Pawnee Bill's Wild West, with Indians, cowboys, Mexicans, trappers, Texas steers, buffaloes, mustangs and bronchos, will give free exhibitions every day, rain or shine. Fancy shooting, fancy riding, lariat throwing, Indian fighting and a full programme illustrative of wild life on the plains in the far west. Although this attraction has been engaged at great expense, the usual trotting and running races will be given, without any increase in the charge of admission, 25 cents admitting the visitor to all parts of the ground except the grand stand. Excursion tickets will be sold over all the railroads.

HOUSE and STORE BURNED. About 4 o'clock Tuesday morning Mr. John Welker, who keeps a general store at Mt. Pleasant, went into his store and lighted a lamp and a lantern, and immediately went to the stable in the rear of the store to find his horse. In a short time he observed the interior of the store room enveloped in flames. His dwelling adjoins the store and as there was no possibility of getting anything out of the store, he went to work to get his family out to a place of safety. It is not known whether the fire started from the match dropped on the floor or from the lamp left burning in the store. The dwelling, store and contents were totally destroyed.—Examiner.

THE September issue of the Eclectic Magazine opens with a very appreciative article by Sir John Macdonald. Mrs. Lynn Linton's attack on women extremists entitled "The Wild Women Politicians," should attract attention. The article on "Telepathy," by Reginald Courtenay, discusses a topic in vogue to-day with much suggestiveness. Sir Henry Parkes speaks on the "Union of the Australias," and Count Tolstoi makes one of his characteristic utterances in "The Right of Revolution." Andrew Lang contributes an article on "Life in Homer's Time," and Archibald Forbes a very interesting paper on "A War Correspondent's Reminiscences." The paper on "Cookery" is always pertinent. Among other papers the study by R. E. Prothero, of Theodore de Banville, and Canon MacColl's discussion of "Morality in Fiction."

A Mystery. How the human system ever recovers from the bad effects of the malarious miasms often literally poured into it for the suppurative relief of dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism and other ailments, is a mystery. The miasms done by bad miasms is scarcely less than that caused by disease. If they are weak, bilious, dyspeptic, constipated, rheumatic, would often be guided by the experience of invalids who have thoroughly tested Hood's Sarsaparilla. They would in every instance obtain the speediest and derivable from rational medication. This medicine is a searching and at the same time a thoroughly safe remedy, derived from vegetable sources, and possessing, in consequence of its basis of pure salts, properties of a medicinal stimulant not to be found in the very local bitters and stimulants often resorted to by the debilitated, dyspeptic and languid.

Some time ago Mr. Frank Topper, of near this place, set a chicken with a lot of eggs, which hatched out last Friday, and among which is a little chicken without eyes. There is not even any marks to indicate where the eyes ought to be.

Confirmed.

The favorable impression produced on the first appearance of the agreeable liquid fruit remedy Syrup of Figs a few years ago has been more than confirmed by the pleasant experience of all who have used it, and the success of the proprietors and manufacturers of the California Fig Syrup Company.

H. J. BLECHER, of York, a freight conductor on the N. C. R. W., was run over by his train on Wednesday, at Emigsville, this county, and so injured that he died a few hours afterward. His left leg was mangled from the knee down and the foot cut off; the left hip was also mangled. He was 51 years old, and had been in the employ of the company for 20 years. He leaves a wife and six children.—Hanover Citizen.

PEACH growers say that thousands of peach trees have the "Yellows." They believe that the disease begins at the roots, and some claim that a remedy has been discovered. It is this, plant a wild cherry tree and let it grow for two years. Then they cut it off about six feet from the ground and put on a peach graft. It takes a few years longer for the development of a peach tree, but it is said that such a tree is proof against the "Yellows."

$25.00 Reward.

Twenty-five Dollars Reward will be paid for the arrest and conviction, or any information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person injuring, molesting, destroying or damaging the property of the Emmitsburg Railroad Company, or placing any obstructions on the track of said road.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Aug. 22, 1891. EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE.—Having at last arrived in this quaint old town where the immortal Shakespeare was born, taught and perhaps fogged in the old school house still shown to visitors. I have so much to write about that I can hardly make a selection. Every thing here has the name of Shakespeare inscribed on it and the stores have apparently nothing to sell except wares associated in some way with the bard of Avon. The house in which he was born, the school where he was first taught, the desk at which he sat in the rule school room, the Hathaway house where he courted and won his wife and finally the old church on the Avon where his remains repose are sacred shrines visited by over 20,000 pilgrims every year. As the postal card is limited I must conclude, with best wishes to your readers. JNO. J. TIERNEY.

MOTTER'S STATION ITEMS.

Mr. J. B. Shorb made a trip to Pen-Mar. Mr. I. M. Fisher made a trip to Frederick. Miss Celeste Elder spent some time at Motter's. Mr. John Seabold made his weekly visit to Mt. St. Mary's. Mr. Walter Hobbs and family, of Kansas City, are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Hobbs, of this vicinity. Mr. Basil A. Shorb has gone to Indianapolis where he has secured for himself a fine position. As "Bas" is a very smart little clerk and has such a winning disposition it will not be at all difficult for him to make lots of friends. I. M. Fisher & Co's Cornet Band held a very successful picnic in Eckenrode's grove last Saturday. The Graceham Cornet Band was in attendance. The horse race on Mr. Speck's track was a stand off. It will be renewed in about two weeks when they expect to have some fine stock to enter.

The Maryland Agricultural College.

A great change has occurred in the condition and prospects of this Institution. Instead of being barely able to exist, with land and buildings run down and burdened with debt, as was the case a few years ago, Congressional grants now insure it a comfortable income, the debt has been mostly paid, the buildings well repaired, and the farm is being improved as fast as possible with such soil. For the first time in the history of the College it has a full corps of ten professors, besides special instructors and lecturers, and is prepared to give thorough instruction in all "those branches of learning relating to agriculture." Every department is in charge of a competent specialist, secured by a fair salary, and supplied with the latest and best appliances to facilitate instruction. Within a year several thousand dollars have been expended for models and apparatus of the most approved patterns. The greater part of the income from the U. S. Treasury can be expended under the law "only for instruction and facilities for instruction," so that while these important parts of the college work are well supported, the aid of the State is still necessary to maintain the property and meet the general expenses of administration.

The regular report of the College for the last year and the announcement for the next year have been lately issued. They give the facts above and also show the institution to be gaining in number of students and in many ways substantially improved, and prepared better than ever before to do well the work for which it was established. The new year opens the 15th of September. Particulars can be obtained by addressing the President, at College Park, Prince George's County, Md.

REV. CLARENCE EYLER filled the pulpit of the Lutheran Church in this place on Sunday last. Mr. Eyler has many personal friends in Emmitsburg who were glad to have an opportunity of greeting him.

The Poonersboro Times entered upon its twelfth volume last week, and the announcement has been made that the paper has been sold to Mr. W. L. Irwin, a former graduate of the office, who will conduct it in the future. We wish the new editor success.

The arrangements for the excursion to Washington, D. C., on Thursday, September 17th, under the auspices of Arthur Post No. 41, G. A. R., and Massasoit Tribe No. 41, I. O. R. M., of this place, are being rapidly completed. The round trip fare from all points along the Western Maryland Railroad from Sabillasville to Westminster is $1.85; from Emmitsburg $2.10 and from Motter's $2. See bills.

Which people in run down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver.

A National Bank opened.

The First National Bank of Gettysburg was opened Wednesday. It is owned by a stock company, and has a capital of $50,000. The officers are: President, Upton Darby; R. H. Moore, of the Mount Jackson National Bank, Va., cashier, and James E. Trundle, teller. The bank building cost $7,000, and is fitted up with the latest improved appliances for safe keeping of money. The deposits Wednesday amounted to more than $42,000. Over 200 persons partook of a dinner served at Nicholl's Hall near by.—Frederick News.

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Church Council of Elias Evangelical Lutheran Church, of Emmitsburg, Md., held Thursday, Aug. 24th, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: WHEREAS, In the providence of God our beloved pastor Rev. Luther DeYoe, has been called to labor in another field, and has severed his pastoral connection with this congregation, be it therefore, Resolved, That with great sorrow we the Council and Congregation of Elias Evangelical Lutheran Church part with our beloved pastor and that we cherish for him the most heartfelt love and sympathy, and that we appreciate his untiring energy and zeal for the cause of the Master while among us, and Resolved, That our prayers go with him in his new field of work, praying that God will abundantly bless his labors. And be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the local papers and the Lutheran Observer.

By THE CHURCH COUNCIL.

FAIRFIELD ITEMS.

Mr. Amos Bennett left on Monday for Merceburg College. Mr. Sam'l Grove of Hanover made a business trip to this place last week. Prof. Robert Suttle of Centre-Mills is visiting Mr. J. M. Musselman of this place. Mr. and Mrs. Beaver of Waynesboro are here visiting their son, Dr. A. P. Beaver who is very ill. Capt. E. McGinley has removed to the residence of Misses Maggie and Lizzie McGinley, where he intends making his home. The Sons of Veterans will have a Festival on Friday and Saturday nights of this week, and will have an exhibition of fireworks at the same time. Rev. Mr. Heilman of Mount Joy, preached in the Lutheran church at this place last Sunday, and Rev. W. J. D. Shearer preached at Mt. Joy.

Your correspondent was treated, last week, by Mr. Sam'l. Dubs, to some of the nicest peaches he ever ate. Mr. D. said his father brought the tree from York many years ago, and it is still a good bearer.

The building committee of the Lutheran church has had a great many meetings but nothing definite has been accomplished as yet. It is supposed they will give up the building of a Sunday School room and remodel the church, perhaps build a tower.

Your correspondent went on the excursion to Williams' Grove last Wednesday, and nowhere saw better corn than in Hamilton Township. There was a large crowd of people at the picnic but they did not have as much machinery as usual.

A book dealer recently sold a book to Mrs. George Naugle, and when it came to the financial part of the transaction a dispute arose between the parties and the book dealer left at rather a fast gait, whilst she followed throwing stones after him, and he went down the road quite lively.

Messrs. Sheely and P. W. D. Hankey of the Public School Board met in the school house last week to discuss the changing of school books, and on the same night Mrs. Fren was frightened by seeing two men standing against her house, whom she took for robbers, as Mr. F. who is mail-carrier was supposed to have drawn his money. Mr. F. got his revolver in readiness but they disappeared without his using it, and it was learned that, instead of being robbers, they were two of the directors who wanted to avoid meeting the book agents, and stood there to keep out of sight.

LIVERY stable keepers should always keep Arnica & Oil Liniment in the stable, nothing like it for horses. For sale by James A. Elder, Emmitsburg, Md., and A. C. Musselman, Fairfield, Pa.

SEPTEMBER has begun its reign with charming weather and earth, air and sky seem filled with a voluptuous beauty that makes one feel like dreaming away the hours in luxurious idleness.

Silver Wedding.

The Hon. John A. Swope and wife, of Gettysburg, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding on Monday last with a brilliant reception, which was attended by friends from Washington, Hanover, Westminster and other places as well as a large representation of Gettysburg society.

ARNICA & OIL LINIMENT is equally good for man and beast. 25 and 50 cents per bottle. For sale by James A. Elder, Emmitsburg, Md., and A. C. Musselman, Fairfield, Pa.

In a New Field.

Mr. J. C. Hess, formerly of Hagers-town, has gone to Newville, Pa., where he will be located for several months. He is at present employed in starting the new knitting mills at that place and giving instructions in the business, and will in the future devote his attention to the starting of new plants instructing beginners. He was formerly engaged in the business and is thoroughly versed in the details.—Village Record.

MR. JOHN LATE for many years well known and respected in this community suffered an attack of grippé sometime ago, from the effects of which he never entirely recovered, his mind at times appearing to be seriously affected, and we regret to learn that it was found necessary to send him to Frederick on Tuesday last, in consequence of a violent outbreak at the home of his parents in Graceham. A jury of inquest will be impaneled to investigate the case and decide upon his mental condition.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of real estate have taken place in this county, as recorded in the Clerk's office during the last week:

The Frederick City Manufacturing and Development Company to Geo. W. Smith and M. E. Getzendanner, two lots in Frederick city, $900. Frederick City Manufacturing and Development Company to Victor M. Marken, lot, &c., in Frederick city, $150. Frederick City Manufacturing and Development Company to John J. Bielfeld, lot, &c., in Frederick city, $150. Samuel L. Culler and wife to Millard F. Culler, lot in Jefferson, $400.

Attempted Wreck.

The passenger train which left Hagerstown for Winchester at 8:25 Monday morning, when nearing Beddington station, a few miles north of Martinsburg, ran into a big pile of crossties and rocks which had been placed on the track. The engineer slowed up as soon as he saw the obstruction, but not until it was too late to prevent the engine from striking the pile. Owing to the ties not being propped or fastened on the track, when the pilot struck the heap, the ties and rocks spread, allowing the engine to pass through with but slight damage to it. Evidently this was the work of train wreckers.—Village Record.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 27, 1891. DEAR MR. EDITOR.—Your paper is a very welcome visitor to me, I always look forward to the time when I shall receive it, and I assure you that its columns are perused with the greatest interest. From the 8th till the 17th of this month, St. Joseph was favored with a grand encampment. The camp was about four miles Southwest of the city, but there were lots of boys in blue in the city every day. There were about 1200 and they had a battery from Ft. Leavenworth, Kan. On the 13th they gave a grand parade here in the city, there being about 1000 in line of march. The trade with jobbers is excellent this season. All of the jobbers are doing a rushing business, they have to call their men back at night in order to get the goods out fast enough. The weather has changed during the last week and is very much cooler. The Emmitsburg boys are all getting along finely both in health and business. The farmers are in excellent spirits on account of the good crops. Fruit is also very plentiful. A SUBSCRIBER.

SABILLASVILLE ITEMS.

Mr. Geo. Harbaugh was at Williams' Grove last week. Miss Emma Eyler of near Gettysburg is visiting Miss Nora Harbaugh. Messrs. Samuel Harbaugh and James Poole are spending several days in Middletown Valley. Miss Edna Sheffer left here on last Friday for Burkittsville, at which place she will attend school during this scholastic year.

Mr. Isaac Miller was stricken with paralysis on Monday. Mr. Miller was attacked in a similar manner about a year ago, and has not, since that time been able to move about without assistance.

Mr. Columbus Shriner was bitten in the foot by a copper snake one night last week. Getting up from his bed to get a drink of water for his little child, Mr. Shriner found some difficulty in opening the door which led into an adjoining room. After he succeeded in opening the door he kicked at what he supposed to be a shoe, when to his surprise the poisonous reptile took revenge by biting Mr. Shriner, but we are glad to state it did not prove fatal.

An Immense Yield. At Montevue Hospital Wednesday, the members of the board of charities and correction who were assembled there, had the pleasure of seeing a barn full of potatoes, the yield of the crop planted this year, the result being better than ever before obtained at Montevue. Off of 1/2 of an acre, 298 bushels of Early Rose potatoes were raised, and the yield of the entire acreage was about in proportion.—Frederick News.

Edward Stake for Judge.

The Republican Judiciary Convention of the Fourth Circuit, including Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, met in Oakland Wednesday and nominated Mr. Edward Stake, of Washington county, for associate judge. Mr. Stake had no opposition and was nominated by acclamation. Wm. J. Reed, of Cumberland, was chairman of the convention; F. F. McComas, J. B. Stottley and A. L. Gnagney, vice-presidents; P. H. Veitch, of Garrett, secretary.—Sun.

Fire in Mount Pleasant Township.

On Thursday evening, about 6 o'clock, the house of Mr. John Dermody, on the Hanover road, below Bonneauville, was destroyed by fire, with its contents, all the furniture, and the clothing not worn at the time by the family, with thirty bushels of potatoes and two bushels of dried apples. The fire is attributed to accident and there is no insurance, which makes the case a hard one for Mr. Dermody and his family.—Gettysburg Compiler.

Dyspepsia

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 125 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, Intense palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pain to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.
