DR. FAHRNEY'S TEETHING SYRUP

It is safe to give to babies a few days old, and its good effects in ordinary doses, are seen in children five and six years old.

There is nothing in the drug market that gives more universal satisfaction than Fahrney's Teething Syrup. Thousands of physicians are prescribing it daily. An over dose is not dangerous—it will prevent cholera infantum if used in time—no better soothing syrup made—many testimonials give proof of these words—all dealers sell it for 25 cts. Sample bottle sent on receipt of 10 cents. Made only by Drs. D. FAHRNEY & SON, HAGERSTOWN, MD.

STOP. LOOK.

I have just received a large lot of PURE ALL RYE WHISKEYS for harvest and medicinal purposes, distilled by the well-known William Foust, at Glen Rock, York county, Pa., whose distillery was established in 1836. This Whiskey has no equal and is absolutely pure. Doctors recommend it as the best for medicinal purposes. Have high and low prices. Give me a call before buying elsewhere and be convinced.

THE GIRLS OF NINETY-ONE.

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

They tell me 'twas the fashion, Oh, long and long ago, For girls to look like lilies white, And sit at home and sew. Forth strode their sturdy brothers, On many a gallant quest; But the maids behind the lattice Their weary souls possessed.

To-day the times have altered, And pretty Kate and Nell Are playing merry tennis— In sooth, they do it well. They ride across the country, They climb the mountain-side, And with oars that feather lightly Along the rivers glide.

If they've not yet been to college, They are going by and by, To shake the tree of knowledge, Though its branches touch the sky. For all their Greek and Latin, And poring over books, With faces smooth as satin, They'll keep their dainty looks.

Do you want a happy comrade, In study or in fun? Be sure you'll find her quickly 'Mid the girls of Ninety-one. She'll keep that bright head steady, Unharm'd in any whirl, And not a lad will love her less Because she is a girl.

LONDON TO NEW YORK

The Joke Played on an American Photographer in England.

From The Detroit Free Press.

This is a story of the Camera club. The Camera club in London, as everybody may not know, has now fine new premises near Charing Cross, ever so many stories high, of red brick outside and filled with dark rooms and all sorts of luxuries inside. Among other things which the new building has which the old had not, is a telephone, which stands in the lower hall for the use of the members.

When a London club attains the luxury of a telephone it at once takes rank among the leading institutions of the kind in the metropolis.

This story is of the narrative of the fraudulent use of that telephone by one of the members, Mr. Pyrogellic H. Kinone, and as I have brought the matter to the attention of the committee, and as they have done nothing to punish Mr. Kinone, I think it only right to make the whole thing public. I do not think that a telephone is put in a club hall for deceiving an innocent New Yorker.

Pyro, as we call him for short, is a very popular member of the Camera club. Perhaps that is why they do not deal with him as he deserves. He was over in America a year or so ago and the Camera club of New York treated him very nicely indeed. It seemed, however, that Mr. Hiram Waddell, of New York, played some sort of a joke on Kinone, a sell of some kind, and so Kinone swore to be even with him.

Not long ago he met Waddell on the Strand and took him up to the club, where they had a long talk over New York matters in general, and he invited Waddell to lunch with him at the club the next day at a certain hour. Mr. Kinone asked about all the photographic boys in New York, and among others of John L. Vain. Pyro had liked Vain very much and he asked Waddell if there was any chance of his being over this summer.

Waddell said there wasn't the slightest. John V. was interested in some big thing out west; he had seen him just before sailing and Vain had said he wished he could get over to London this summer, but couldn't.

Shortly after this conversation Pyro was down at the Hotel Metropole, when who should he run against but John L. Vain.

"Bless my soul!" he said; "London is full of Americans. I was just talking about you yesterday. I met Waddell on the Strand and took him up to the club, and I was asking if there was any chance of your coming over, and he said there wasn't; that you were going out west."

"Oh," said Vain jauntily, "I fixed that out west business all right and I've come over to syndicate it if I can. Just got in to-day. Where's Waddell staying, do you know?"

"He is staying down at the Royal," answered Pyro. "Well, I must call in and see him. I saw him just before he sailed."

"So he said. Look here, Vain, I want to fix up a sell on Waddell. You remember the one he got off on me in New York. We are going to have a lunch at the Camera club to-morrow. Couldn't you join us?"

"I will be most happy," said Vain. "Well, then, I'll get him up there about one o'clock. Can you be at the telephone here at the Metropole at one o'clock to-morrow?"

"Certainly." "Well, I'll call you up and turn you on to Waddell, and make him believe we have got a telephone line from here to New York. Do you understand? You think over it and fill him up. It will be a good story to tell the boys when you get back."

"I'll do it," said Vain, heartily, and he did. Kinone was to meet Waddell at Low's exchange, and they walked together to the club.

"I've just been over telephoning to Paris," said Kinone. "Have you seen about the Paris telephone?"

"Oh, yes, I read about it. Still, we do longer distance telephoning than that in America, you know."

"Ah, yes! but this Paris line, you understand, goes under the channel."

"Well, I don't see that that matters much, does it? I believe that we telephone from New York to Chicago sometimes."

"Yes, I presume you do. Still, of course, that's all nothing to the Atlantic telephone from here to New York."

"Telephone? Cable, you mean?" "No, I mean telephone."

"Thunder! I never heard of a telephone under the ocean."

"Oh, you're behind the age. You've been out of America for a week. You are not up to the latest snap in electricity. Didn't you hear anything of Edison's new telephone before you left America?"

"Oh! Edison's new telephone is an old thing, but I never heard of any attempt to telephone across the Atlantic."

"Attempt! Great heavens! You are not so far behind the lighthouse as all that, are you, Waddell? Why, bless me, you can ring up New York from any telephone in the city!"

"Oh, you can't expect me to believe that," said Waddell. "Believe it or not, as you like. I suppose if seeing is believing, hearing is believing as well. Here we are at the club. I will ring up New York and you can tell me the names of any of your friends you want to communicate with."

"Oh, this is ridiculous," said Waddell. Pyro made no answer but he rung up the telephone. "Give me No. 15768." That was given him.

"Hello; switch me on to New York, will you? Using the line? Well, I'll wait a moment—Yes—yes—all right—give me New York—New York City. Is that New York?—I say, is that New York? All right."

"Now, then, whom shall I call up?" he said, turning to Waddell. Waddell was speechless.

"Tell me any of your friends; where's—who's your partner, by the way?"

Waddell gave the name of his partner. And then he shouted: "Give me Waddell & Co., Waddell & Co. Is Martin there? * * * Oh, not come down yet; all right." "Not come down, nonsense," said Waddell. "This is after one o'clock."

"Ah, but you must remember it is a great deal earlier in New York. Say, what is Vain's address? Where's his place of business?"

"On Broadway. Harrison & Vain, you know."

"Say, give me Harrison & Vain—* * * Harrison & Vain, Broadway—I don't know the number—Yes, is that Harrison & Vain? * * * This is London. * * *

Yes. * * * England, of course. * * * Is Mr. Vain there?—Well, would you just ask him to step to the telephone for a moment? * * * Well, tell him Mr. Waddell, in London, wants to speak with him. * * * Tell him he'll only keep him a moment. * * * At his letters? Well, never mind that. You tell him that we can't hold the line here all day. Ask him to come to the phone. * * * Oh, is that you, Mr. Vain? * * * This is Pyro Kinone, of London. * * * Yes, Waddell's here. * * * Will you speak to him? * * * Certainly.

"Here you are, Mr. Waddell," and the astonished Waddell put the receiver to his ear.

"Hello, Waddell, is that you?" said the voice over the wire. "How did you get over? Have a nice passage?"

"Great heavens, Vain!" he said, "You don't mean to tell me that that's you!"

"Yes, can't you recognize the voice?" "Yes, by Jove I do. Say, I wouldn't believe this was possible."

"Oh, we've had this going for a week. Just started it after you left. Didn't you hear about it?"

"No, I heard nothing about it. How did that western speculation of yours turn out?"

"Oh, all right. I was out west just after you left and fixed things up most satisfactorily. Going to make some money out of that."

"Why I can hear you as plainly as if I were talking from your office on Wall street."

"Yes, it seems to work first-rate—that invention of Edison's is a great thing. I met Edison this morning, he was in town early, and he tells me that he believes he is going to knock out telegraphing altogether."

"Well, I believe he will, if it's as successful as all this comes to."

Then Vain pumped him full to his horror about a great number of failures in New York, of men that he knew and men that he was in intimate association with. His jaw dropped as he listened.

"By gosh," he said to Pyro, "New York's going to smash. I'll have to get back."

"Well, not before lunch, anyhow. Ring 'em off and we'll come up and have lunch."

"Well, I can't get over that," said Waddell, "that beats the old Harry."

"Oh, American invention is a wonderful thing, you know," answered Pyro.

Just at that moment the waiter said: "There is a gentleman here asking for Mr. Kinone."

"Oh, yes, ask him to come in," said Pyro—and in walked John L. Vain.

"Hello, Waddell," he said, "how about transatlantic telephoning? I guess I rather set you up on failures, didn't I?"

"You two villains," cried Waddell; "but hang it, I'm relieved to find that things are not so bad as I thought. I guess, Kinone, this is my treat. It's an English invention that is the wonderful thing this time."

CONSUMPTION CURED.
An old physician retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. mar 6-ly

An Expensive Shine.
A tailor would have sized his waist measure at forty-eight inches, and as he stepped out of a commission house on South Water Street there was a wild, hunted look on his face.

"Say," he observed to an acquaintance next door, "you've heard that 'economy is wealth'—that 'a penny saved is a penny earned'—and a whole lot of other rubbish haven't you?"

"Well, yes," and in the admission there was an inflection of the voice asking what of it.

"You have, hey? Well, it's all lies—every bit lies. Economy means bankruptcy if you aren't careful."

"What's the matter now?" "Matter!" and there was a whole volume of minion solid in the exclamation. "Why, just now to save a nickel I tried to black my boots. At the first brush my eye-glasses dropped off and broke on the floor. The next rip I made I broke a suspender and now I note that in stooping over I've burst three 15-cent cigars into smash. That shine cost me $3 at the least and it isn't half a shine, either."

Then the fat man kicked himself twice, went back into his office and fired the errand boy who owned the blacking kit.—Chicago Mail.

Not Luck, But Work.
Twenty clerks in a store, twenty hands in a printing office, twenty apprentices in a shipyard, twenty young men in a town, all want to get on in the world, and expect to do so, says an old merchant.

"One of the clerks will become a partner, and make a fortune; one of the compositors will own a newspaper, and become an influential citizen; one of the apprentices will become a master builder; one of the villagers will get a handsome farm, and live like a patriarch—but which one is the lucky individual? Lucky! There is no luck about it. The thing is almost as certain as the rule of three. The young fellow who will distance his competitors is he who masters his business, who preserves his integrity, who lives cleanly and purely, who devotes his leisure to the acquisition of knowledge, who gains friends by deserving them, and who saves his spare money. There are some ways to fortune shorter than this dusty old highway, but the staunch men all go this road.—Weekly Proof Sheet.

Desires a Change of Diet.
The editor of the Everet (Pa.) Press desires a change of diet. He says editorially: "The editor is still receiving specimens of big vegetables. The latest was a nine-pound cabbage, turnip or rutabaga from Michael Gillam, and two big vegetables of the turnip species from Mr. Mansberger. They fed his family and cow and pigs for the past week. We have got sort of tired of this kind of grub, and would appreciate a sample pheasant, turkey, goose or even a nice chicken or two. Rabbits will not be despised. Give us a change of diet, brethren."

Probably to Talk to Them.
The papers are all saying that a certain Chicago lady is the best woman collector in the world, but, oddly enough, not one of them thinks to explain what in the world she is collecting women for.—Indianapolis Journal.

ARTIST—"Do you like my picture of an Italian with a hand organ?"

Critic—"Well, there's one thing I like about it: the organ does not go."

Life.
Every day is a little life, and our whole life is but a day repeated. Therefore, live as if it would be the last.

CLERGYMEN may not amount to much as carpenters, but they make the best joiners in the world.

A Rumored Railroad. A rumor to the effect that the Pennsylvania railroad will build a line to Gettysburg is again afloat. With what foundation we know not. It is stated the proposed line will leave the Frederick Division at Sell's Station, a short distance this side of Littlestown; that the road bed will be surveyed this week, for it is the intention of the company to have the road completed in time for next summer's excursions to the battlefield.—Star and Sentinel.

Almost An Accident. The evening train coming north on the Emmitsburg railroad was delayed a short time Tuesday evening by one of the brakes on the passenger car coming loose and dropping down on the track. The accident occurred just after the train had crossed the trestle at Tom's creek, which was exceedingly fortunate, for had the iron dropped between the ties on the trestle, a serious accident could only have been averted by Providential interference. As it was no damage whatever resulted.

Can You Eat Healthily, with relish, and without distress afterward? If not, we recommend to you Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates a good appetite and so invigorates the stomach and bowels that the food is properly digested and all its nutriment assimilated.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, effective, but do not cause pain or gripe. Be sure and get Hood's.

About Correct. In commenting on our recent comparison of Water Stock values here and at Mechanicstown, the Clarion says: Is it not a fact, Brother Motter that for many years subsequent to the organization of the Water Company, that dividends were declared, and the net earnings applied to the payment of a debt exceeding 50 per cent of the capital stock and that that of financing accounts for present premium and dividends?

It is true that the earnings of the Emmitsburg Water Company for the first few years of its existence were devoted to paying for additional property purchased by it, hence the value of the Company's holdings is considerably above the amount of the capital stock.

To Delinquent Subscribers. We desire to call the attention of subscribers who neglect themselves to be in arrears, that their names will be dropped from the list as soon as the date from which their subscriptions start arrives. This conclusion is necessitated by the expense attached to producing a paper like the Chronicle, and will be indiscriminately adhered to. The margin of profit on subscriptions at one dollar a year is too small to admit of spending any money for postage in sending out bills, regardless of the fact, that even the bills receive no attention in many cases. A person who is unwilling to pay us one dollar can not owe us two, and shall continue to be our motto. We always recoil from alluding to this unpleasant subject through the columns of the paper, yet we feel that as it is a matter of such vital importance, our personal feelings must be sacrificed and our position clearly set forth. Hence we present the case in such plain unmistakable language, that none can fail to catch our meaning, and trust that we shall not find it necessary to write upon this unpleasant subject again.

Another Severe Storm. The storm which raged here for a few minutes about noon last Friday was general and did considerable damage throughout this and adjoining States. Although the rain descended in torrents here and a heavy gale prevailed, there was little damage done in our immediate vicinity. At Frederick a number of roofs were damaged, windows smashed and stables injured. Throughout the southern part of Middletown Valley, many buildings were damaged and fences blown down. The South Mountain Creamery building, a rather insecure structure, located on West Main street Middletown, was badly wrecked. The gable end of the public school house at Manchester was blown in. Considerable damage is also reported at Westminister. At Chambersburg the big smoke stack at Wilson College was toppled over, and buildings were unroofed at Waynesboro and Shippensburg. At Mechanicsburg the worst disasters seem to have occurred and the damage to buildings was very heavy, including the almost total destruction of the Methodist church. Throughout Adams county many buildings were injured.

When "the house" accepted his challenge the following team was selected to play the Philomathean; the "lovers" are there, also:

Home Position Philomathean
McNigh... Tackle... O'Reilly
Larkin... Guard... O'Reilly
Baker... Guard... O'Reilly
Monaghan... Right guard... Clark
Shorb... Tackle... Rahl
Horkacis... Quarter back... Echevarria
Campbell... Left half back... W. Cashman
Burchardt... Full back... Arata

Time, 2 halves, 30 minutes each. Score, House 36; Philomathean, 0.

FIRST HALF. The House lost the toss and Dallard took the ball. They opened with the V but didn't gain much. The ball was snapped back to Echevarria who sent it to Farrell, the latter gaining but little through the centre. Cashman got the ball and would have made a good run were it not that he slipped. The ball went to the House on four downs. The kick was lost here by some mislay and Cashman tried the left end. He dodged several pursuers but in a collision with Roken lost the ball and Brogan snatched it up and made the first touch-down. Goal missed. The House sent Burchardt and McDonald through the line and pushed each-for-all they (the House) were worth. The ball was brought within 5 yards of the touch-down line and Horkacis was pushed through for goal. McTighe kicked goal.

Brogan led the line and pushed down to within a few yards of the line. The Monaghan, the class of '94's big 240 lb. center, was pushed over for a touch-down. Goal kicked by McTighe. Score 22-0.

SECOND HALF. Farrell and Relyly now changed positions and Farrell's was to go for some hard tussles. The ball was passed to McDonald who "criss-crossed" with Campbell and the latter again made a brilliant run. Nobody could stop him and he scored a touch-down in the middle of the line. The Monaghan, the class of '94's big 240 lb. center, was pushed over for a touch-down. Goal kicked by McTighe. Score 22-0.

WORLD'S FAIR LETTER.

Special to the Emmitsburg Chronicle.

Director General Davis has selected the second commissioner to boom the World's Fair in Europe. The party that went last summer visited only the countries of Northern Europe. The present commission will go through the countries that lie along the Mediterranean, both in Europe and Africa. This second commission is quite as worthy, and possibly will be a trifle more industrious than the first. It consists of Vice-President Thomas B. Bryan, who was named as chairman some time ago. Thomas F. Bayard, who was Secretary of State in President Cleveland's cabinet; Harlow N. Higginbotham, a member of the local board, and James Hodges of Baltimore, one of the national commissioners for Maryland.

The members of this party or some of them at least, are sure to do good work for the exposition abroad. Vice-President Bryan is a polished gentleman, a linguist of considerable ability, something of a diplomat, and well acquainted with the ways of European countries. Mr. Bayard is a gentleman whose qualifications but few need to be told of. He has had long experience in public life and is deemed by those who appointed him to be just the man to carry on diplomatic negotiations with the kings and queens, the princes and sultans whom the commission will visit. Mr. Higginbotham is a nervous, energetic little millionaire, and one of the partners in the great house of Marshall Field & Co. About Commissioner Hodges but little is known in Chicago. He is a man who possesses a reputation for considerable ability, and is well thought of by people in Maryland. The two Chicagoans on this commission are Republicans; the other two Bayard and Hodges, are Democrats.

Mr. Bryan has gone already. He took his entire family with him and left New York for Havre on Nov. 28. He will await his colleagues in Paris. The other three members will sail early in December. While the director general was nominating the European commissioners he also handed in the name of George S. Wilson of Boston as secretary of the musical bureau. Mr. Wilson is the editor of the Musical Herald. There are three men in the musical bureau; Theodore Thomas who has charge of the orchestra and bands; Prof. Tomlins who has charge of the choral work, and Wilson the new man. These three ought to get up something worth while in the way of music for the fair as they are all men of ability in their respective branches of music.

The board of control submitted its annual report, the committee on awards has prepared its estimates of expense and is preparing a bill asking a special appropriation of about $500,000. The next Congress will probably want to make a record for economy. If the fair people get all they ask for there will be great reason for surprise.

An important contract has been issued to the contractor of the big Manufacturers Building. He was instructed to begin at once the erection of a section of the superstructure of that building and have it ready for the inspection of the Board of Architects when they meet next month. The section that is put up will be temporary. It is to be thirty-five feet long and sixty-six feet high to the roof line. It will include the cornice of the building, and show two of the big columns and one spandrel. This section is to be complete, even to the staff work. The object of this temporary work is to show the architects just how the building will look when completed. What will happen if the building does not present the appearance the architect expects is not known, but the fact that a trial section has been ordered is considered by many to be significant. Temporary sections of the Agriculture and Administration Buildings may also be ordered.

"Uncle John" Thorpe, the chief of the floricultural bureau, is down East looking up plants and flowers to be used for decoration and exhibition when the fair opens in May, '93. He is expected to induce the great flower growers of the East to donate their best plants for use at the exposition. He will pay especial attention to such owners of valuable private collections as G. W. Childs of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun and others. "Uncle John" knows every noteworthy florist, as he knows every flower in the land, and great results are expected from this trip down East.

Fifty additional acres of space are needed by the Horticultural Department. Chief Samuel declares that ten acres will be required for the floricultural exhibit alone and the remaining forty acres will be used for viticulture, nursery and general department work.

World's Fair people have just lifted a great load of anxiety from their own minds. They have secured a right of way into the grounds for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, this right of way to be leased by the B. & O. to such other Eastern trunk lines as desire to use it. This breaks the monopoly of the Illinois Central, which hitherto has had the only tracks into the grounds. Eastern lines will now be able to dump their passengers and excursions at the exposition grounds, and there will be no necessity of bringing them to the city at all. The branch line will probably be worked so that suburban traffic can be handled between the grounds and the city. This stroke of fortune is the source of great rejoicing to Chicagoans generally, for it is regarded as a hard crack at the Illinois Central for which corporation nearly every one in town has a most cordial hatred.

One of the most interesting of the government exhibits at the World's Fair will be contributed by the coast and geodetic survey. It will include a representation of this country such as no one has ever seen hitherto. This will be a segment of a globe—in fact, a counterfeit presentment of that portion of the earth which is covered by the United States and Alaska. It will be about twenty-five feet across and will rise up like a good sized hill. Visitors who walk about it will be astonished to see what a great curve of the world's crust lies between New York and San Francisco, so that a straight line joining the two cities would be hundreds of miles underground at Omaha. To most people who have always mentally pictured the United States as flat this correct representation will appear most novel and interesting. The exterior of the globe segment will be a complete relief map, showing all the important geographical features of this part of the world. It will be painted—the seas, lakes and rivers in blue, and the land in other tints. Everything will be reproduced exactly on the scale of nature, and the observer will be surprised to find how smooth and round this planet is after all, even the Rockies and other ranges of mountains seeming hardly more than trifling roughness on this scale. The latter will be one foot to every million feet. Other great maps in relief will represent the bottoms of the oceans as they would look if all the water in them was taken away. For the purpose of exhibiting the apparatus and methods employed for exploring the ocean depths, the coast survey steamer Blake, which has been engaged for years past in such work, will be taken to Chicago by way of the St. Lawrence River, and will be anchored in the lake off the fair grounds.

Isabel M. Mitchell, M. D., of Wilmington, Del., has made a novel application for space. She asked room in the Woman's Building for a location to exhibit a method of embalming dead bodies, and she also wished to have "specimen subjects in coffins or boxes." She says the process was invented by a woman, and that all the work can be done by a woman quite as well as by a man.

THE CHILDREN'S health must not be neglected. Cold in the head causes catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm cures at once. It is perfectly safe and is easily applied into the nostrils. The worst cases yielding to it. Price 50c.

ONE of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Something Queer in the Numbers. Mr. John W. Kirk, the white-haired veteran who was with Morse when the first working telegraph line was stretched, and who stood beside the great inventor when the first message was transmitted from Annapolis Junction to Washington, has made, during his life, a great many interesting calculations in numbers. The two most remarkable numbers in the world are 3 and 7.

"The numeral 7," says Mr. Kirk, "the Arabians got from India, and all following have taken it from the Arabians. It is conspicuous in Biblical lore, being mentioned over 200 hundred times in the Scriptures, either alone or compounded with other words. It seems a favorite numeral of the divine mind, outside as well as inside the Bible, as nature demonstrates in many ways, and all the other numbers bow to it. There is also another divine favorite, the number 3—the Trinity. This is brought out by a combination of figures that is somewhat remarkable. It is the six figures 142,857.

"Multiply this by 2, the answer is 285,714.
"Multiply this by 3, the answer is 428,571.
"Multiply this by 4, the answer is 571,428.
"Multiply this by 5, the answer is 714,285.
"Multiply this by 6, the answer is 857,142.

"Each answer contains the same figures as the original sum and no others, and that three of the figures of the sum remain together in each answer, thus showing that figures preserve the Trinity.
"Thus 285 appears in the first and second numbers, 571 in the second and third, 428 in the third and fourth, and 142 in the fourth and fifth.

"It is also interesting to note that, taking out of any two of these sums the group of three common to both, the other three, read in the usual order from left to right, will also be in the same order in both sums.
"Take the first and second sums for example. The group 285 is common to both. Having read 285 out of the second sum, read right along and bring in the first figure of the thousands last. It will read 714. All the others will read in the same way.

"Again, note that the two groups of three in the first sum are the same as the two groups of threes in the fourth, reversed in order, and that the same thing is true of the second and third. The last multiplication has its groups of threes the same as those of the original number, reversed again.
"Examine these results again, and you will see that in these calculations all the numerals have appeared save the 9. Now multiply the original sum by the mighty 7—the divine favorite of the Bible and creation—and behold the answer! The last of the numerals, and that one only in groups of three—again the Trinity!

"No other combination of numbers will produce the same results. Does this not show the imperial multipotent numeral 7 and its divinity?"—N. Y. Sun.
