

GENERAL BUTLER DEAD.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—General Butler's death was a surprise. It was not known to more than a dozen persons that he was in the city, and he had not been sick at all up to an hour before his death.

Up to the hour of going to bed General Butler was apparently in perfect health. On Tuesday he appeared in the district court to press a motion to advance a case he had there, known as the Strong case.

Getting through with these consultations about 3 o'clock he went to the war department to take up the Moore grant.

He sat up until 11 o'clock, chatting with the family. They were speaking of Mr. Blaine's illness. General Butler said that he thought it was a dreadful thing to hang between life and death.

On his way here from New York on Friday General Butler was taken sick on the train, but recovered. On Tuesday he caught a very heavy cold, which produced pneumonia, and that in turn caused failure of the heart, which was the immediate cause of death.

General Butler's son Paul arrived from Lowell, Mass., at 10 o'clock last night, accompanied by Governor Ames, the general's son-in-law.

The interment will take place at Lowell, in the family lot, where lay the remains of his wife and son Benjamin, who died in 1876.

The body of General Butler was removed from the residence of his relatives, where he died, to the station at 3 o'clock this afternoon, whence they will be taken to Lowell.

LOWELL, Jan. 12.—Upon receiving notice of General Butler's death, Mayor Peckham ordered all flags on public buildings to be placed at half-mast.

Benjamin Franklin Butler figured in more characters than any other public man of this age. There have been several other generals, many of them prominent statesmen, as many more eloquent orators, though very few as successful and perhaps a few as adroit politicians.

The Butlers came to New England among the first, and Ben's grandfather, Captain Zephaniah Butler, fought under Wolfe at Quebec and gained fame in the revolution, while his father, John, was a captain in 1812-15.

He was born at Deerfield, N. H., Nov. 1, 1818; was graduated from the Baptist college at Waterville, Me., in 1838, and was in no long time admitted to practice at the bar in Maine.

March 23, 1862, he so called "Butler expedition" raised and took possession of Ship Island. April 17 it started up the Mississippi, and May 1 took formal possession of New Orleans.

Des. 10, 1862, he was recalled, and he always believed it was at the instigation of Louis Napoleon. Late in 1863 he was placed in command of the coast division of Virginia and North Carolina.

in the "failure of Torb Fisher," of which so much has recently been said, and soon after was removed from command by General Grant.

Of course no prominent American of the era since 1830 has been quite consistent—even in the matter of territory. But there is a higher kind of consistency—that of always aiming at the best results—which many can claim; and General Butler always claimed for himself that in each new situation that developed he took that side which was thought best for the laboring millions.

In 1868 he was elected to congress by the Republicans, but though he struggled long and bravely for it they would never give him the glory which he so richly deserved. In 1872 he was elected to congress by a hard and successful fight till the Hayes administration came in then the issues on which he had fought seemed to become obsolete all at once, and on the new issues he which were thought best for the laboring millions.

In 1882 there was a gleam of success; by a combination of Democrats and Greenbackers he became governor of Massachusetts. His term as governor was picturesque throughout. It is best remembered, perhaps, by reason of the exposure of the abuses in the management of the Tewksbury almshouse.

His early practice as a lawyer was largely for the poor, but since the war he has earned in some years as much as $150,000, his fee for one case being $100,000.

Finally he secured an introduction to the charming singer, who was Miss Hildreth, daughter of the late distinguished Episcopal clergyman. His wooing progressed rapidly to a favorable conclusion, and Mrs. Butler remained a devoted wife as long as she lived.

He was in an adjoining room, heard some one knocking about 11 o'clock, and he went to see what the matter was. He found the general there. He was vomiting, and threw up a considerable amount of blood.

SENATOR KENNA'S DEATH.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Senator John E. Kenna, of West Virginia, died about 3 o'clock yesterday of heart disease, from which he had been, for some years, an acute sufferer, so much so that for long intervals he had been compelled to abandon his duties as senator and to forego all mental exertion.

Two summers ago, with a view of diverting his mind from his physical ailments, he established a local amateur boat builder's shop and busied himself in the mechanical operation of constructing a launch.

He was born in 1848, and was consequently only 45 years of age—the youngest man in the senate. His birthplace was Valenciennes, Va., since incorporated into West Virginia.

He was elected to the senate as a Democrat to succeed Henry G. Davis, the father-in-law of Secretary Stephen B. Dickins, and the business associate of James M. Blaine. His term of service would have expired in 1895.

His death at this time will add a new feature to the senatorial contest now in progress between the supporters of his colleagues, Senator Faulkner and Senator Camden, who are contending for the senatorship now held by Mr. Faulkner, which will expire on March 4 next.

Mr. Kenna's Washington residence was at Capital Hill, at 130 B street, northeast, and it was there he died.

Funeral services were held at the senate at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and the remains will be taken to West Virginia for interment. The senator was a Catholic, and Cardinal Gibbons officiated at the funeral services.

He was elected to the senate as a Democrat to succeed Henry G. Davis, the father-in-law of Secretary Stephen B. Dickins, and the business associate of James M. Blaine.

DR. C. D. EICHENBERGER, the druggist, gives ten reasons why Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best:

- 1. It will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment.
2. It does not suppress a cough or cold; but loosens and relieves it.
3. It relieves the lungs, which is of great importance in treating a cold.
4. It is the only remedy that will cause the expulsion of mucous from the air cells of the lungs.
5. It renders the mucous less tenacious and easier to expectorate.
6. If freely used as soon as the first symptoms appear, it will cure a severe cold in a single day.
7. It will prevent croup and avert all danger and anxiety arising from that dreadful disease.
8. It has cured thousands of cases of croup, and careful inquiry fails to discover a single case in which it has ever failed.
9. It does not contain opium, chloroform, or any other injurious substance. There is not the least danger in giving it to children.
10. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, and freeing the system of morbid matter, accumulated by cause of the cold. 50 cents per bottle.

Another Swindle.

A new swindling scheme now in process of operation is liable to catch a good many. A stranger goes around the country representing an insurance company, insures property, particularly farm property, and presents you with a handsome policy. If no fire occurs the farmer is never aware of the swindle, but if there is a fire he then finds to his sorrow that the whole affair is a hoax. There is not, nor never was, such a company. The pretended agent pockets the money and that is the last you ever hear of him or his company. —News.

Struck Oil: Hancock.

The result of the explorations have been so encouraging that the well will be forced to a greater depth. The capital stock of the company is $5,000. Mr. Mellott hopes to enlist some Hagerstown capital in the enterprise. —Herald and Torch Light.

Died, Aged 102 Years.

"Uncle" David Holmes, probably one of the oldest residents of Washington county, died Tuesday morning between the hours of three and four o'clock, at his home near Brownsville. His exact age could never be accurately ascertained, but it is certain that he was over a hundred, probably one hundred and two. He suffered greatly from a cancer in his face and this trouble doubtless hastened his end, as he complained of no other trouble, and was otherwise apparently robust and healthy. He has a large number of great-grand children living. He was widely known in that community and was always kind, generous and good natured. He was buried Thursday morning at ten o'clock in the graveyard at Brownsville. —Hagerstown Herald and Torch Light.

The Weather of '92.

The year 1892 was notable for hot, cold and dry periods, portions of the country having experienced one of the hottest, coldest and driest winters since the weather station was established in 1871. The hot wave in the United States occurred July 24-31, when for eight successive days the thermometer stood 90° and higher, and even at night did not fall below 72°. Many persons were prostrated by sunstroke and the sick succumbed to the excessive heat and passed away. October of 1892 goes upon record as a very dry month, rain only falling on three days. There were twenty-six storms during the year, the first on April 5th, and nine during the month of June. Several times the Aurora Borealis was seen in great brilliancy. The heaviest snow falls occurred Jan. 19 and March 20. —News.

LETTER FROM GREECE.

From Rev. Daniel Quinn, formerly Professor of Greek at Mt. St. Mary's, now pursuing Linguistic and archeological studies at the American College, Athens, Greece.

ATHENS, GREECE, Dec. 12, '92.

DEAR FATHER * * * The last letter we received from you was dated from the Mammoth Cave Hotel. On re-reading it this evening, I feel that your curious adventures in Kentucky are almost as interesting as one would experience even over here in the land of the middle ages. Have been in Athens since September. We hade alien to Berlin on the feast of the Assumption a la Romana, and twelve days later on the same feast in La Greca we stepped on Greek soil in Corfu. Surely a sweet coincidence. The Panaghia loves these eastern races yet, because they love the Panaghia.

I made myself quite famous amongst the Greeks by visiting the island of Salamis on the anniversary of the naval battle between the modern Greeks' forefathers and the Persians, four hundred and eighty years before Christ. They looked upon it as a compliment to their nation; the newspapers, even those of Constantinople and Romania noticed the fact. I ran the risk of winning the title of "philhellene" from them in the way in which Fr. * * * won his doctorate from the college boys—by popular consent.

We have meetings twice a week in the American School, once a week we go to the Akropolis with Doerffler, perhaps the best archeological architect living, to hear his two-hour long lectures on the various classical monuments that still stand there. We spend the remainder of our time as we wish; I spend a good portion of mine at the University. The French are now engaged in excavating Delphi, which we Americans failed to get. Probably no great finds will be made before next summer, because the old city (if it be allowed to call Delphi a city) is buried very deep down. The inhabitants of the modern village Kastri which stands on the site of the ancient town have all been removed to another locality.

The American school may make some excavations at Sparta sometime during the year. The second director is Dr. Tarbell who was second or "annual" director four years ago, when I was here.

Archbishop Marago who was in Athens when I was here before went to his reward about a year ago. His successor is Mgr. Zaphinos, formerly of Samos, I think. Fr. Rivelli has been made Vicar Apostolic of Zante. He would have preferred to have remained in Athens. From what rumor says, I conclude that his presence in Athens was in some way unacceptable to the French legation, and accordingly he was "promoted."

I hope that you may receive this letter at Christmas time, so that you may know that we do not forget you over here. Wishing you a merry Christmas and happy New Year, and many returns and the same to all the Reverend Professors, Professors and Students, I remain your pupil in Xie. D. QUINN.

John T. Brown Shot by his Son.

On Wednesday night, Mr. John T. Brown, who lives a few miles west of this place, on the mountain, was accidentally shot, and seriously wounded by his son, Lewis Brown. It appears that young Brown attended services at the Friends' Church in the evening, and had with him a 32 calibre revolver, and whilst returning home after the services he amused himself by occasionally shooting off the revolver, which he emptied of its contents with the exception of one cartridge which held fire, and was considered defective by the boy. Shortly after arriving at home and whilst sitting in the room in company with his father and other members of the family, he took the revolver from his pocket and was examining it, when the once considered defective cartridge was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Mr. Brown's breast, between the collar bone and the first rib, immediately to the left of the breast bone. Dr. J. Kay Wrigley, of this place, was summoned to perform the surgical operation, but was unable to take the bullet from the wounded man. Mr. Brown is lying in a critical condition and the accident may cause his death, although hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Rev. S. Evanson's Note.

Of the Cincinnati M. E. Conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family of five, and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. Some people are prejudiced against patent medicines, but how the patent can hurt a medicine and not a machine is a mystery of mysteries to me."

Lunaway Accident. Yesterday morning, Charles, son of Mr. Wm. Pfeiffer, of the firm of Pfeiffer & Co., brickmakers, on the Emmitsburg road just beyond town, after hitching up the two-horse team met with a serious accident. While in charge of the team, the horses started, and in his efforts to check them, he was thrown, one of the horses striking him and the wagon passing over his body. His injuries consist of an ugly scalp wound, a broken nose, several teeth knocked out, two ribs broken and a severe contusion on the left leg. Dr. J. B. Scott was called and has the case in charge. —Gettysburg Compiler.

"THE BATTLE IN THE SNOW."

Col. Cavalry Reunion and Banquet at Gettysburg.

As the members of Col's Cavalry were assembling last Tuesday night for their Annual Reunion, at Gettysburg, Pa., they were strikingly reminded by the extremely cold weather of Jan. 10, 1863, just 29 years ago, when they were aroused from their slumbers at midnight by an attack upon their camp by Mosby, at London Heights, Virginia, where one of the most desperate hand-to-hand fights took place during the late war. On that bitter cold night, the men only having time to get up in their night clothing and bare feet, where they successfully repulsed the enemy with heavy loss. There was just about the same quantity of snow upon the ground and the temperature about zero. It seemed to be a typical night.

The Association met at Grand Army Hall in Gettysburg, at 8 p. m., last Tuesday night, and was called to order by Colonel Vernon. After the usual routine the following officers were elected for 1893: C. G. W. F. Vernon, President; Major O. A. Horner, Vice President; A. M. Briscoe, Recording, and J. E. Wilde, Corresponding Secretaries; J. J. Kahler, Treasurer. Appropriate resolutions were passed upon the death of Comrade Gilson and others who had died during the past year. They then marched to the Eagle Hotel where the banquet was held. A bonfire of supper being prepared by Col. Yungling. In the absence of the Chaplain, Major Horner was called upon to act in that capacity and offered a prayer. The occasion proved to be one of the most pleasant meetings yet held, but many were prevented from attending on account of the extremely cold night. The following toasts were responded to: "The President of the United States," Col. Vernon, of Co. A; "Our Dead Comrades," drunk in silence; "The night we celebrate," Theodore McAllister, (Old Ironside), of Co. C; "The Cavalry," Rev. John B. Hall, of Co. A; "The ladies, Major O. A. Horner, of Co. C; "The Infantry and Artillery," Lieut. McIlhenny, of Co. C; "The Forger," Capt. Greenwood, of Co. M. After which "File firing" all along the line and reminiscences of camp life, interspersed by the old familiar war songs and also the "Heroes of Gettysburg," a song composed by J. A. Scott and M. J. Cable of Co. C, the latter falling a victim to Andersonville Prison. J. A. Scott also contributed some very interesting reminiscences of the war which were read by the Secretary. The services closed at 3 a. m. by singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Among those present were: Col. Vernon, Lieut. Briscoe and Mrs. Briscoe and Serg. J. J. Kahler, of Baltimore; Maj. O. A. Horner, Geo. L. Gillelan, Jno. H. Metzler and Jno. J. Hunter, of Emmitsburg; Capt. Greenwood and Jno. W. Test, of York; Rev. Jno. B. Hall, of Hempstead, Md.; Thomas Donaldson, Hagerstown; N. A. Jacques, Finlay, Ohio; J. C. MT. ST. MARY'S COLLEGE NEWS.

The vacation has come to an end and all the students have returned. Now let each and every one take up his work with renewed energies and demonstrate to all that the Christmas vacation stimulates and invigorates the student to greater application in study. Indeed now is the time when we must apply ourselves, the examinations are almost upon us, let no one fail.

This session promises to be successful. Quite a number of new students have thus early registered, and many more are expected, so that we will in all probability have a greater number of students this year than ever. Improvements are being made as fast as possible; each year sees some marked change and Mt. St. Mary's is bound to forge to the front.

A Deserved Honor.

Mt. St. Mary's College long known as "the cradle of bishops," may some day add to its above honorable title, "and of statesmen." The Hon. Donald Caffry, of Louisiana, an alumnus of Mt. St. Mary's, has been appointed by Gov. Foster, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Gibson, of Louisiana. The Catholic Review for Jan. 8, 1893, commenting upon the appointment says: "And this honor may be only the beginning of a long term of public service in Washington. So may it be!" We do not doubt but that Senator Caffry will soact in his present appointment as to merit a return to the Senate at the expiration of this term. The best wishes of all "Mountaineers" are his.

Dr. Harry P. Gallagher, class of '76, died in Baltimore, Jan. 1, after a few days illness. Dr. Gallagher was the son of Col. Philip Gallagher, of Texas, and grandson of Joseph Bingham, of Frederick, who was one of the early graduates of the College. His granduncle, James Bangher, likewise finished his course and took his degree from Mt. St. Mary's and was for many years President of the Pennsylvania College, at Gettysburg.

Dr. Harry Gallagher spent four years in Mt. St. Mary's College, graduating in 1876 with Rev. Thomas F. Doran, of Providence, R. I.; Hon. Elward F. Doherty, Member of Congress from New York City; Rev. William Deegan, D. D., of New York; Joseph J. Greaves, Editor of the Catholic Knight; Bannen M. Coleman, of Louisville, Ky., and James Hearsons, of Erie, Pa. Among all the students of his day there could not be found a more kind hearted, or sympathetic disposition than his. He was a universal favorite with students and professors.

After leaving the Mount Dr. Gallagher entered the Baltimore Medical School and took his degree in medicine. After the death of his grandmother, Mrs. Julia Bangher, he traveled extensively in Europe. Dr. Gallagher leaves a wife and one child to mourn his loss.

Notes.

Rev. Father Bradley returned Monday, having been detained a few days by illness.

Prof. Lagarde is confined to his home, suffering with neuralgia.

Many of the students enjoy the skating on the pond during the afternoon recreation.

The choir composed of members of Mt. St. Mary's congregation, which rendered Dr. Dielman's mass on Christmas Day and New Year's also, sang the mass Sunday.

The students are getting the sleds in condition for coasting. The new "hobs" for the Seniors and the Juniors are taking shape in the carpenter shop and will be ready when needed.

The course of lectures will not be renewed until after the examinations.

Death of Dr. Harry P. Gallagher.

Communicated.

Harry P. Gallagher, of the class of 1876, died upon January 2nd, 1893, at his home, 1539 Druid Hill Avenue, Baltimore. His death was occasioned by blood poisoning, after an illness of only a few days. As soon as practicable, after the discovery of blood poisoning, a surgical operation was determined upon and was performed on New Year's Day in the hope that it might save his life, but the operation resulted in little practical good.

Dr. Gallagher was a native of Baltimore and received his education in that city, and afterwards in Frederick, after which he was sent to Mt. St. Mary's College, where he was graduated in 1876. After leaving the "Mountain," he determined upon the study of medicine and attended the University of Maryland, where he was graduated in 1879. He was married about four years ago and leaves a widow and one child to mourn his loss.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP. We have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in our family for years and find it to be the best remedy for croup and cough. We have used it for our children who are all subject to throat trouble, with excellent results. We prize it very highly. Mrs. FRANK H. YORK, Oneonta, N. Y.
