A SPRING SONG.

Meadows—dreamy meadows, stretching far away!
Tinklin' o' the dew drops on the daisies every day;
An' the clouds are lookin' whiter, an' the sap is in the sod;
An' the sun is beamin' brighter an' is colorin' the cloud.

Fifty million roses in a perfect storm o' snow!
An' all the groves rejoicin', an' all the greenin' hills
A-lookin' glad and giddy with the rattle o' the rills!

And the hummin' bird is huntin' for the mornin'-glory vines;

Oh, the country's growin' brighter, an' the world in glory rolls;
The sunshine's streamin' whiter through the windows of our souls;
The Lord's unlocked His storehouse, with all He's got to give,
An' if life would last forever we'd just live, an' live, an' live!

A Fresh-Air Girl.

She was plainly clad, respectful in her manners and quick in her movements, but in no wise boastful. The week at the farm had been a great treat to her. There was so marked a contrast between the sweet, quiet, almost limitless country and the hot, noisy, dusty, overcrowded city. The click of the mower, the rippling of the brook, the rustling of the corn, the cawing of the crows and the lowing of the cows were noises to be sure, but they were lulling, instead of loud, clanging, reverberating.

The patches of mosses in the woods, the stretches of green clover, the fields of yellow grain, the berries in the hedges and the flowers in the glen, the early mornings and the cool evening twilight, the big-eyed robins, the brown thrushes and the fearless catbirds, the rich cream, the appetizing food, the breezy porches and the generous hospitality, were sights, sounds and incidents that made her feel doubly grateful to the society that had arranged the outing and to the farmer's wife who was so kind and thoughtful, and who allowed her such absolute freedom.

The wife was astonished to find the little girl so practical and so well informed, not in book-learning, but in experiences and in matters that she had learned by observation. On the first morning after her arrival Mrs. Collins set in to scold her husband, or rather, to scold about him, for he did not happen to be present. A little rustic arbor had just been erected, and she discovered, to her dismay, that he had painted it a dingy white.

"Oh, how stupid in him!" she exclaimed. "What a want of taste! Why didn't he paint it a straw color or a light green?"

"Done with it!" cried Mrs. Collins. "I wish he hadn't touched it!"

Maggie walked closer to the arbor, and then returned and said: "He has simply primed it."

"Primed it! What's that?" asked Mrs. Collins.

"First-coated it explained Maggie. "They give out-door work from three to four coats. It doesn't matter much what the first color is, especially if the next one is to be darker. Wait until he is done with it."

Mrs. Collins stared at the little visitor, but made no reply. When finished, the arbor was done up in a bright, serviceable color, the trimmings shaded in excellent harmony.

"That's a good job, Amos," his wife said. "Almost as good as if a regular painter had done it. At first I thought it horrid."

"I got a pointer or two from our little friend yonder," replied the farmer. "Maybe her father is a painter."

"Yes, and it was entirely Maggie's suggestion," replied the

I AM AN AMERICAN.

A dinner was arranged in a Southern city in honor of a visitor from a Northern State, and the host when the cigars were lighted, began to rally his guest by repeating some of the usual sectional jokes.

"We now have a Northern Yankee at our mercy," he remarked, jocosely, "and hope that he may not be intimidated by the presence of so many Southerners. We can assure him that revolvers and bowie-knives have been left in the ante-room and that he is safe, at least until we get our hats and arms."

Everybody laughed and expected that the visitor would respond to this badinage by making full use of his privilege of ridiculing Southern peculiarities. He surprised the company speaking in another vein.

"Our host," he began, "travelled with me in Europe and I observed that wherever we went he registered himself as an American and never as a Southerner."

"I thought it was a good example to follow and invariably put myself down, not as a Northerner, but simply and proudly as an American. What seems to me singular is the fact that two men, who were content to travel all over Europe as Americans, should fancy that they see anything else in their own country. I do not know why I should be anything at home that I am not when I have crossed the sea and gone among foreigners."

By this time the company perceived that they were to have something better than old time Yankee talk and sectional quips. They encouraged the visitor to continue by applauding him heartily.

He ended by making a common-sense appeal for a more general use of the good old word "American."

"Let us not be proud of our common country," he said, "when we are abroad among strangers and ashamed of it when we are at home. I am from the North and you are in the South, but there is no source of patriotic pride open to you that is not mine as well by virtue of my birthright as an American. Nor can I glory in anything that is not yours also. If there be anything to be ashamed of it is a reproach to us all."

The company rose when the visitor at dawn and joined in singing "Hail Columbia" and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." They voted it one of the best after-dinner speeches that they had ever heard and congratulated him heartily upon his success in substituting wholesome and stimulating patriotism in place of the light diet of acrid sectional jokes.—Youth's Companion.

His Pride Touched.

"Same old story, I suppose," said the woman of the house. "You've been thrown out of work by the strike?"

"I was about to ask you for the loan of some cold victuals, ma'am," replied Rusty Rufus, placing his hand within the breast of his coat and turning left away, "but you have seen fit to insult me. I have not degraded my hands with work, ma'am, for twenty-seven years six months and thirteen days. I have the honor to wish you a very good morning, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

The Meanest Man.

The meanest man on record lives in Centre county, Pa. He sold his son-in-law one-half interest in a cow and then refused to divide the milk, maintaining he only sold the front half. The buyer was also required to provide the feed the cow consumed and to carry water to her three times a day. Recently the cow hooked the old man, and he is suing the son-in-law for damages.—Exchange.

This Is the Season.

This is the season of the year when the young man who is going to graduate from college this summer begins to wonder how many $5,000 positions will be offered to him the first month after he acquires his degree. He will know all about it before August 1.—Somerville Journal.

What is Legal Tender.

Two men came into one of the banks the other day and waited near the window of the paying teller until that person seemed to be at leisure. Then they moved up to the window and said:

"We want you to settle a bit for us."

"What is it?"

"Well, I bet that you couldn't compel a man to take more than $25 in silver dollars, and my friend here said that the man wouldn't have to take more than five silver dollars—that he could demand all the rest of it in paper."

"Gentlemen, you're both wrong," said the teller.

"How many silver dollars could you compel me to take?"

"A million if I wanted to. A silver dollar is just as much legal tender in all cases as a $5 note. It's surprising how many people believe they are not compelled to take silver in large payments. Of course fractional currency is different. You can't compel a man to take more than $5 in halves, quarters and dimes. That's the restriction you were thinking of when you made the bet."

As the two men went away they were trying to decide which had won the bet.—Chicago Record.

A Bad Conscience.

A New York bank cashier, who was making preparations to go to Canada, having occasion to return to the bank after night, found that a burglar had opened the safe and was extracting the contents.

"Now I've got you. Throw up your hands," exclaimed the cashier, drawing his pistol.

"You had a mighty narrow escape from catching a burglar," continued the knight of the jimmy. "Next time I come if there ain't more cash in the safe I'll land you in Sing Sing," and, after obtaining a contribution from the cashier, the burglar withdrew, smiling.—Townsend Times.

The vicinity of Chillum, a small village located near the District of Columbia line, on the western boundary of Prince George's county, has been in a state of intense excitement during the past three or four days. This excitement and fear is caused by the fact that a crazy man is running at large in the woods near that village, and at times makes his appearance in the town and after frightening the young ladies of the place speedily beats a retreat and is lost in the darkness of the woods. Several evenings ago while a young lady of Chillum was returning from a visit to friends in the neighborhood, and when in a lonely spot on the Riggs road, the man suddenly jumped into the road and a lively chase ensued, the young lady out-distancing her pursuer and screaming at the top of her voice for assistance. In an exhausted condition she reached the home of a farmer near Chillum, and the individual escaped again into the woods. Rev. Frank Shipley, of Brightwood, D. C., was the first person who heard the story of the young lady, and he immediately notified Constable Stephen Miller, who, with the assistance of several farm hands, made a vigorous search for the maniac, but after tracking him for some distance through the woods lost the trail.

Distribution of Fish.

The Fish Commission is getting its work well in hand for this season, and hopes this year to increase by three or four hundred million the distribution of last year, the entire number distributed then being 400,000,000. About 200,000,000 pike perch eggs will be distributed in the Great Lakes from the put-in Bay station. The work of distributing lobster and flat fish will also be continued. Last year the Commission handled over 80,000,000 lobster. This year this number, it is thought, will be doubled. Work on the Potomac has just begun, and the Commission will, in a short time, begin taking the hatched fish from the station at Bergen Point. Fully 2,000,000 have been taken from here already. The work will be continued at Havre-de-Grace this week, and next week the Fishhawk will begin work on the Delaware. Shad is now one of the most important food fish, and it is expected that the number distributed will be increased from the 50,000,000 of last year to over 80,000,000. They are being planted along the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to Florida. No more shad will be planted in the Pacific, as those planted there some time ago have so increased in number that the fishermen of that section have been forced to form a combine in order to hold prices. Shad are becoming very plentiful in this section, where they are esteemed above all other fish at this time of the year. The Commission is now experimenting with a shad that peculiarly adapts itself to the planktoning process.—American.

USE IT IN TIME.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucous discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles.

A Match Factory Burned.

The new Spring Grove Match Factory, comprising three buildings, supposed to have been fire proof, was destroyed by fire at noon Friday while the employees were at dinner. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss is total and is between five and ten thousand dollars. The owners are Edward Glatfelter and Ticket Agent Kraft.

ONE white person, a young lady, has contracted small pox or varioloid in Charles county. Otherwise the disease has been restricted to the Newburg colored families, where it first appeared, and the sick there are recovering. Strict quarantine is maintained.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

A number of those who are interested in the big iron plants of the country are trying to persuade Secretary Herbert to make contracts for the armor of two battle ships in advance of the contracts for their hulls. The argument of these gentlemen is that if this is not done the branches of the firms now making armor under contracts nearly completed, will have to shut down for the lack of work. The matter has not been decided.

No one was surprised to hear that the receipts from the income tax, based upon returns already made, will be less than one-half of the $30,000,000 estimated previous to the exemption of rents and interest on municipal and State bonds; it was exactly the effect those exemptions were expected to have.

Prominent Republicans are talking up Senator Dubois, of Idaho, as the candidate for vice president on the republican ticket next year. Of course the object is the most active friends of silver in the Senate besides being a man of great personal popularity. It is said by those who favor his nomination that the three most prominent republican candidates for nomination as president—Harrison, McKinley and Reed—are such pronounced opponents of silver that it will be absolutely necessary, if either of them is nominated, to put a pronounced friend of silver on the ticket with him in order to hold the party together in the silver States.

Secretary Morton has had himself interviewed on the financial question, and he out-Cleavelands Mr. Cleveland in his advocacy of the single gold standard. He said: "The time for straddlers has passed. Those who are for a sound currency on a gold basis ought to have courage to say so, and abide by the result of their declaration," and a lot more of the same sort, including this bit of financial wisdom: "I do not believe that an international conference can establish permanently a commercial ratio between gold and silver any more than it can establish a permanent commercial ratio between rye and wheat." Mr. Morton does not rank as the most influential member of the Cabinet, and had this interview been published before President Cleveland's "sound money" letter it would have attracted little attention, but coming afterwards and assuming to define what the president meant by sound money, it is regarded as a sequel to the President's letter, prepared and issued with his consent, perhaps by his request. The silver men are pleased with it, and say they can make it very useful inasmuch as it comes out flat footed for the single gold standard, instead of doing so indirectly, as the President's letter did.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

DEADLY DUEL ON HORSEBACK.

At a cattle round-up near Nogales, Ariz., Juan Marietta was shot and killed by R. W. Randolph. The men were on horseback pursuing a steer claimed by both. While they were racing side by side the quarrel continued. Suddenly Marietta leaned from his saddle and aimed a desperate blow at Randolph with a huge knife, severely wounding him. Randolph drew his revolver and fired four shots at his antagonist, and the Mexican tumbled from his horse dead. Randolph surrendered to the authorities.

TAILORS ON A STRIKE.

In New York, two thousand tailors on ready-made work went on strike Tuesday in obedience to an order of the tailors' Progressive Union. The strike is for an increase of 10 to 12 per cent. in the rate of wages over that paid last year. It is possible if the contractors do not agree to the new terms that the entire tailoring trade of the city, numbering in all some 8,000 men, may be called out.

Hypnotism and Crime.

Philadelphia Record Says: In the case of Marshall Price, under indictment in Denton, Md., for the murder of a school girl, the authorities, it is said have been unable to discover a motive for the crime, and the prisoner's counsel, taking advantage of this fact, purposes to base upon it a contention that the crime was the result of hypnotic suggestion. To thoughtful minds which have inclined to view the whole business of hypnotism with mistrust, or at least as a ready vehicle for charlatancy, the idea of investing it with legal status will seem very ridiculous. But the attempt will be seriously made wherever cases of a sufficiently mysterious nature shall afford a plausible occasion for resort to it. Hypnotism is fast presenting a condition in criminal jurisprudence of which courts and Legislatures will be bound to take cognizance.

BROKE THE RAILROAD RECORD.

The fastest time ever made between Philadelphia and Atlantic City and the fastest time ever made by a railroad train in this country for such a great distance was that accomplished by the special newspaper train on the Pennsylvania railroad Sunday. The train pulled out of the Camden Depot at 5:36 in the morning and 45 minutes later came to a stop in Atlantic City. The distance by this route is 58 1/2 miles and the average speed was 76 1/2 miles an hour.

FIVE PERSONS LYNCHED.

There was a wholesale lynching in Alabama several days ago. Five colored persons, three men and two women, were found hanging Sunday on the Buckalow plantation, three miles from Greenville, Ala. It is supposed they were lynched for the murder of Watts Murphy, a prominent young farmer, who was killed and his body burned in a brush heap. Three colored men were arrested. One of them confessed, implicating those who were lynched.

Geological Survey of the Pot mac.

It is stated that a geological survey of the Potomac river will shortly be made by the government, and incidentally to ascertain the volume of its current with a view of increasing the water supply of Washington. Stations will be established at Harper's Ferry, near Hancock, and at Cumberland. The tests and soundings will be made at intervals, and will continue along with other geological work until July.

SIXTY business houses, comprising the main business portion of Ardmore, Indian Territory, were destroyed by fire early Friday morning. The loss will aggregate $600,000. The United States courthouse and jail and Masonic Temple were also destroyed. The vault and safe in the courthouse were cracked and the court records partly destroyed.

Spring Medicine

Is a necessity because the tonic of winter air is gone, and milder weather, increased moisture, accumulated impurities in the blood and debilitated condition of the body, open the way for that tired feeling, nervous troubles, and other ills. The skin, mucous membrane and the various organs strive in vain to relieve the impure current of life. They all welcome to assist Nature at this time when she most needs help, to purify the blood, tone and strengthen the laboring organs and build up the nerves. "Last spring my little girl's face broke out with sores. Having used Hood's Sarsaparilla and at first her face seemed to get worse, but in two weeks it was well. We continued giving her the medicine and now her face is as smooth as anyone could wish. My husband was all run down. He

Four Released! The prospect of relief from drastic cathartics for persons troubled with constipation is possible. True they act upon the bowels, but they do so with violence, and their operation tends to weaken the intestines, and is prejudicial to the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitter is an effective laxative, but it neither grips nor enfeebles. Furthermore, it promotes digestion and a regular action of the liver and the kidneys. It is an efficient barrier against and remedy for malarial complaints and rheumatism, and is of great benefit to the weak, nervous and aged. As a medicinal stimulant it cannot be surpassed. Physicians cordially recommend it, and its professional endorsement is fully borne out by popular experience. Appetite and sleep are both improved by this agreeable invigorant and alterative.

Suicide With a Pistol. Elias A. Neikirk shortly after home last Saturday killed himself at the home of his brother-in-law, Andrew Shiffer, near Boonsboro, Washington county, by shooting himself in the head with a pistol. He had eaten a hearty dinner and was apparently good spirits when he got a double-barreled gun and a revolver and told the family he was going out to shoot a dog. A few minutes later Mr. Shiffer's family heard a pistol shot, and going out near the dwelling-house found Mr. Neikirk lying across a chicken coop with a bullet hole in his forehead from which the blood gushed freely. He was dead. The gun lay by not discharged, the pistol having been used. He was aged about forty-five years and leaves a wife and four children. He was proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Boonsboro, for a number of years, removing to Hagerstown April 1. He was a member of the Knights of Honor and was well and favorably known.

An Emmitsburg Boy Making His Mark.

Through the kindness of our friend, Mr. C. F. Rowe, we were handed a copy of the Boot and Shoe Recorder, of April 10, published at Boston, Mass., in the interest of the boot and shoe industry. Among the articles in this number of the Recorder is one descriptive of the Chesapeake Shoe Company, of Baltimore, of which concern our former townsman, Mr. Charles M. Troxell, is general manager. At the beginning of the article appears a portrait of Mr. Troxell, which is an excellent likeness of that gentleman. The Chesapeake Shoe Co. figures prominently among the largest shoe manufacturing companies in Baltimore, and its high standing and the immense yearly sales, is due, in no small degree, to the efficient management and business ability of Mr. Troxell. We reproduce the following from the Recorder:

Mr. Troxell was born in Emmitsburg, Maryland, in 1850. All his ancestors were shoemakers, so it is but natural that he, after securing his education, should seek a livelihood in the same industry. In 1869 he began as a clerk in a general shoe store. After a short service there he went to Baltimore city and engaged in the wholesale boot and shoe business. In 1885 he accepted a position as salesman with Everett Lane & Co., Boston, Mass., leaving to enter the employ of Thompson Bros. & Co., who founded the Manhattan Shoe Co., Feb. 25, 1889, he came to Baltimore and started the Chesapeake Shoe Co., the success of which has been due to his efforts. When we consider that in six years' time they have been able to attain a position among the jobbing fraternity second to none in their vicinity, and that, too, without handling any ladies' lines or rubber goods, it speaks well for the energy and ability of the man at the helm.

The business that Mr. Troxell has developed here is, evidently, very gratifying to his employers, and the prospect for a steady increase in the future very encouraging.

A Wedding at Gettysburg.

At noon Wednesday Mary L. McKnight, daughter of the Rev. Dr. H. W. McKnight, president of the Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, and Rev. Luther Scott, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, at Gettysburg, were married in Christ Church in the presence of a large audience. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by the Rev. Luther De Yoe, of Harrisburg. Miss Louise Miller, of Pine Grove, was maid of honor, and Dr. Ross Black, of Hanover, brother of the groom, was best man. The bridesmaids were Misses Margaret McClean, Margaret Valentine and Annie D. McPherson, of Gettysburg, and Sophie Sadtler, Edith Howell and Rose Hoffman, of Baltimore. The ushers were: Rev. Herbert Alleman, of Chambersburg; Edward Koppelman, of Baltimore; William Reitzel, Clear Spring; Wm. B. Keeler, Cressona, and H. C. Pink and Charles H. Huber, of Gettysburg. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the wedding party and immediate friends.

Quiet Wedding.

Miss Fannie Fraley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Fraley, of West Main Street, this place, and Mr. George T. Eyster, the well known jeweler, and also captain of the Vigilant Hose Company, of this place, were married at the home of the bride's mother, on Wednesday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry Mann, pastor the M. E. church. The marriage was very quiet, only the members of the immediate families of the contracting parties being present. The bride wore a travelling gown of blue cloth and velvet, with hat to match. After the ceremony the happy couple took the 7.50 a. m. train for Baltimore, Philadelphia and other points, expecting to return to this place on May 2, when a reception will be held at the home of the bride's mother.

Thrown Out of a Buggy.

Mr. James M. Kerrigan, wife and little son, Ward, were out pleasure riding last Sunday evening, and when in front of Mr. Howard Rowe's house in Liberty township, a short distance north of town, the horse became frightened, and making a sudden turn, threw Mrs. Kerrigan and her son out of the buggy. Mrs. Kerrigan was taken into Mr. John Gearhart's house, where she remained in an unconscious condition for nearly an hour. Dr. James W. Eichelberger was summoned and rendered the necessary medical aid. Mrs. Kerrigan was somewhat bruised about the body, but not seriously injured. Mr. Kerrigan and his little son, Ward, escaped injury.

The Evolution.

Of medicinal agents is gradually relegating the old-time herbs, pills, draughts and vegetable extracts to the rear and bringing into general use the pleasant and effective liquid laxative, Syrup of Figs. To get the true remedy see that it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only. For sale by all leading druggists.

Sheriff's Sales.

The Gettysburg Star and Sentinel of Tuesday, says: On Saturday sheriff McElhenny sold the following properties at the prices named:

A lot in Fairfield fronting 60 feet on Main street and extending back 200 feet, improved with a two-story frame dwelling and other outbuildings, the property of S. W. Clark, to Annan, Horner & Co., of Emmitsburg, for $670.

A tract in Freedom township, containing 40 acres, improved with 14 story log weatherboarded house and other buildings, property of Albert J. Dillman, to Eugene L. Rowe, of Emmitsburg, for $300.

Cannot Contain the Gettysburg Trolley.

In Philadelphia, on Monday, Judge Dallas filed a petition in the United States Circuit Court in favor of the Gettysburg Electric Railway Company in the dispute over the taking of land by the government to preserve the battle-field. Judge Butler filed a dissenting opinion. Judge Dallas, in his opinion, says that the right of the United States to take private property for public use, upon making just compensation, is fully recognized, but that this right cannot be exercised within the limit of several States for any purpose which is not in the public interest, and that the power delegated to the general government and necessary or at least adapted to its execution.

A BRUTAL ASSAULT.

A brutal assault was made at 9 o'clock last Sunday morning upon Mrs. Thomas Butts, a respectable white woman, by a negro man, near Petersville, this county, while returning home from St. Mary's Catholic Church, where she had been attending mass.

Mrs. Peter S. Hemp, who was also returning from mass at the same church, was just about to enter her house when she noticed a woman running toward her, who seemed distressed. She waited, upon being called to, and found the lady to be Mrs. Thomas Butts, of Broad Run, Frederick county. Mrs. Butts was crying, and told Mrs. Hemp she had been assaulted by a negro man soon after leaving the church. She said the negro had thrown her down three times, tearing her clothes. Mrs. Butts' face and neck were covered with blood, which she said was caused by the negro running his fingers into her nostrils and mouth. The bosom of her dress had been torn open and her breast was also covered with blood.

Mr. Hemp and Mr. David Magaha, who were in the house, were at once called to the scene, and after obtaining a description of the negro from Mrs. Butts immediately went in pursuit of him. It was but a short time before they caught sight of a negro man cutting across the fields and gave chase. Mr. Magaha drove around a road endeavoring to head the thief, and Mr. Hemp running across the fields to catch him. They describe the chase as a most exciting one.

When within a hundred yards of the negro Mr. Hemp fired a shot from his revolver, and the negro, getting a little closer he fired again. Then the man stopped, threw up his hands and said: "I am the man, but I will not do it again."

The negro was secured after a chase of at least five and as quickly as possible taken to Frederick and committed to jail by Justice Turner. The negro said his name was Frank Winterchief, a laborer for Henry Dennis.

Ten Years in Penitentiary.

The Grand Jury having been summoned for Wednesday, to hear testimony in the case of Winterchief, the court convened at 10 o'clock that morning. The only witnesses examined were Messrs. Magaha and Hemp, the gentlemen who captured the negro. In half an hour the grand jury returned with an indictment against the accused. At 12:30 o'clock, Winterchief, who had been sequestered in the country to prevent lynching, was taken into the court room. His attorney, Mr. P. The Pampel, advised him to plead guilty to the charge, which he did.

Upon being asked by the court if he had any reason why sentence should not be passed upon him, he made no reply. The court then sentenced him to ten years in the penitentiary, stating "that the enormity of the crime merited the full sentence of the law." He was quickly hustled out of the courtroom, taken to the Baltimore Jail, and committed to the custody of Deputy John Goff was taken on the 1:15 train for Baltimore. It was thought there might be some trouble at Frederick Junction, where a change of cars would have to be made, but outside of small crowds and a few angry threats of some persons, who stated they would gladly help to lynch him, nothing of moment happened.

End of the World.

A young man, about twenty-one years of age appeared in Frederick last Thursday afternoon and taking a stand at the corner of Market and Patrick streets, began talking to a crowd of people assembled around him. He said his name was Morgan Watkins; that he was from Brownsville, Montgomery county, and that the Lord had inspired him to preach to the people and tell them to prepare to die, as the world would certainly come to an end in three months' time from today. County Constable Moberly took the young man before Police Justice Eckstein on the charge of disturbing the peace. The justice told Watkins if he did not leave town he would commit him to Montevue Hospital for the Insane. The young man left the town.

Rheumatism Cured.

Rheumatism is caused by lactacid in the blood attacking the fibrous tissues of the joints. Keep your blood pure and healthy and you will not have rheumatism. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives the blood vitality and richness and tones the whole body, neutralizes the acidity of the blood and thus cures rheumatism.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache.

Exciting Runaway.

About 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon Baltimore street was the scene of a runaway which caused considerable excitement. Mr. Samuel Hartzell, of Cumberland township, with his wife and another lady, were spending some time in the Cemeteries, their horse being hitched along the pike. The horse slipped his bit, tore the hitching strap and started for home at a rapid gait, narrowly escaping several teams on the way. In front of Wm. Ruff's store, the animal undertook to pass the jagger wagon of Mr. Wm. Steinhour, who was accompanied by his wife, mother and two small children. The hind wheel of their vehicle was crushed and all thrown out, though no one was hurt. Mrs. Morgan Mickle and two other ladies in a buggy were then in the line of the runaway, and had a narrow escape. The horse kept on the run to Centre Square where he was checked by the brick and lumber piled piled in front of the McClellan House.—Gettysburg Compiler.

Electric Railway Opening.

"Dear Sir:—You and your people are hereby cordially invited to the opening of the Battlefield Electric Railway and the Gettysburg Season of 1895, on 'May Day' (May first next) on which occasion only a nominal fare of 10 cents per person will be charged, and everybody is expected to make it a holiday and come and have a good time."

The pupils of the public school under the direction of Mr. Thoman, gave an appreciative audience, Tuesday evening.

An Attempt to Burn a Barn.

An attempt was made Saturday afternoon to burn the large barn owned by Mrs. Susan Newcomer, Beaver Creek, Washington county. The ladies at the farmhouse saw an unknown man pass behind the barn, and across a field, and 15 minutes later smoke was seen issuing from around the barn. The farm bell was rung summoning the men at work in a distant field and about 50 neighbors. A large straw stack about 15 feet from the barn was blazing furiously. Water was obtained from a nearby cistern and applied to the roof, which was on fire in several places. Two large holes were burned, but the structure was saved.

A Mother Rescues Her Child.

A two-year-old child of Mrs. Jesse Coster, of near Hellens Creek, First district, Calvert county, fell into a well seventeen feet, containing four feet of water, a few days ago. Hearing the noise caused by the child's fall, Mrs. Coster ran to the well and plunged in to save her child. Both remained in the well nearly two hours before being rescued. The child's condition was for a time extremely precarious. Mrs. Coster was not seriously injured.

WHAT ARE TEARS?

Tears have their functional duty to accomplish, like every other fluid of the body, and the lachrymal gland is not placed behind the eye simply to fill space or to give expression to emotion.

The effect of tears on the skin about the eyes, however, is intensely irritating and inflaming. They keep the epidermis in a dark, puffy condition, and in legends only do weeping women preserve the beauty of their great white lids.

BREAKFAST IN NOVELS.

Confusing Information Volunteered by English Writers of Romance.
"The English breakfast," writes a pleasant correspondent, "is to me one of the most perplexing of meals. I am studying it as given in the English novel and am told, on the other hand, that it is a far lighter meal than the American one, being, for highly developed souls, merely tea and very dry toast.

The effect of tears on the skin about the eyes, however, is intensely irritating and inflaming. They keep the epidermis in a dark, puffy condition, and in legends only do weeping women preserve the beauty of their great white lids.

HIS HOME A HOLLOW TREE.

The business of herding stock in this wild region was usually intrusted to the young men and boys, who enjoyed the adventure of camping out and hunting the big game which then abounded in the White river country.

The hermit was clothed in deer-skin from head to foot and subsisted entirely on game and wild honey, the latter delicacy being then very abundant in the White river forests.

Gold Mines in Cometeries.

A Frenchman who recently made a tour of the United States has been writing some of his impressions in Le Temps. In one of his articles he says that what struck him particularly in this country was the American habit of filling the teeth with gold.

The writer then goes on and figures on the average amount of gold in the teeth of each dead person. He has evidently been consulting the record of vital statistics, for he says 875,000 people died in the United States in 1893.

THE CANYON WILDCATS.

"Hunting the wildcat is one of the favorite sports in southern California," said Major Sam Garner. "These savage, short tailed prowlers find just the sort of homes they like in the deep canyons of the Sierra Madre."

"A wildcat hunt in southern California is generally organized for a rain, for then the scent of the cat is fresher on the trail, and if one chooses to seek his game by the still hunt he can follow the trail easily by the paw marks of the animal in the soft ground."

"I remember one hunt I was on that brought out the qualities of the game in a way that satisfied me that the old hunters weren't far out of the way. The dogs had trailed a cat into a narrow defile in the canyon."

"The dogs were the first to go to the broncho's aid. As they dashed upon the savage cat she loosened her hold on the horse and dropped down among the hounds. Before she was killed she had stretched three of them dead at her feet."

"There are wildcat hunting clubs in some places in southern California, and women share in the exciting and often dangerous sport. Some of the best shots of these clubs are among the wives and sweethearts of its members."

Metallurgical Skill.

Mr. Otis T. Mason calls attention to a peculiar method employed by early native races in North and South America, which was the covering of objects made of wood with copper. Carrying metallurgical skill further than that, copper objects have been noted sheathed with silver and with gold.

"In the minds of most people," said a man with an expert knowledge of fish and fishing, "the sturgeon is doubtless associated with the idea of a big fish only. They think of him when he is well grown and has come to weigh 75 to 250 pounds, and I suppose that most people, when they think of sturgeon as a food, think only of smoked sturgeon, which is the form in which it is most commonly placed in the market."

"The flesh of the old sturgeon is coarse and rough. That of the young sturgeon is finer and much more palatable. If you take a sturgeon that weighs eight or ten pounds and cut out steaks five or six inches back from the head and broil them, you will find them very good. But the sturgeon is rather oily, and you can't eat very much of it."

The hemins or headresses worn by ladies of the fifteenth century were in shape of horns and so long that a woman's face appeared to be in the center of her figure. The clergy condemned them and threatened the wearers with perdition, but for all that they were worn higher than ever.

Baillie tells a story of a waiter in a London restaurant who on a wager committed to memory the entire contents of a daily newspaper of eight pages, advertisements and all, performing the feat in four hours.

Uncomfortable Resemblance.

An active member of the London detective force narrates an amusing adventure, which shows that the cleverest men are liable to err when nature sets herself to outwit them. I was instructed to arrest a certain man, with whose appearance I felt myself to be perfectly familiar, and I kept a keen lookout for my customer. The very next day I "spotted" him on an omnibus in the Strand, pursued the vehicle, and having satisfied myself by a closer look that it was indeed he, I called to him and he alighted at the station.

"I had. He turned out to be a respectable gentleman, with a most peculiar and unfortunate likeness to the wanted man. I was much disappointed. Not only had I missed the party I wanted, but I had bungled the job. I was yet in my detective novitiate, and I got pretty severely snubbed by my chief."

The very next day while walking down a street, in Islington this time, I stopped and rubbed my eyes. Here was my man coming, dressed totally unlike the stranger of yesterday. I tapped him on the arm. He turned round and exclaimed, "You, is it?" and I informed him of my business. Entering a cab, we went to the station, not another word passing between us.

To my astonishment and disgust he again turned out to be the wrong man, the one I had arrested the day before. "Why did you not explain?" I asked somewhat excitedly. "Sir," he thundered, "from my experience of you yesterday I came to the conclusion you were no gentleman," and darting a withering glance at me he disappeared.—Youth's Companion.

"Rule Britannia" is usually credited to James Thompson. It first appeared in a play entitled "Alfred" by Thompson and Mallet in 1740. The air was by Dr. Thomas Arno. While Richard I was on the throne common horses were sold for $10 each.

Food for the Traveler.

The tired wayfarer is not only sheltered from the sun by pleasant fruit trees along either side, but has the benefit of their fallen fruits in their season. Could our hedgerows not be utilized in this manner? Many a weary pedestrian would welcome not only the kindly branches, but also the fallen apple, plum, mellow pear or filbert. Surely it would not take anything from the produce of the fields along the sides of which they might grow, and if this method were adopted throughout the whole of England not only would many a poor wanderer find refreshment, but the harvest would furnish an appreciable gain to the country.—London News.

"Are we alone?" she filtered in apprehension. "I don't know," he answered. "You might sing a few selections and make sure." He rose and would have led her to the piano but for the cold stare she gave him.—Detroit Tribune.
