Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves.'

Rudeness as Wit.

Boston has a citizen quite promiment in society whose "breaks" are quite as funny as any of those we read. He is a clever man, too, and a good hearted one, but he indulges in a kind of humor which is funny only to him and those who overhear it, never to the one at whom it is directed.

I remember seeing him at a reception one day when he approached a charming young lady who was pouring tea. Blithely and gayly he accosted her by saying: "How is it that you are pouring tea? I thought they only had pretty girls to do that."

At another reception the facetious gentleman was presented to the two daughters of a distinguished social literary woman, both of them exceptionally bright girls. On being presented to the younger sister he remarked, with charming insouciance: "I've just been introduced to your sister. Found her very interesting. They say there's always one fool in a family; so, judging by your sister, I suppose you must be the one.

But the other day he made a break at a lady who is noted for the sharpness of her wit and the quickness of her repartee. "Ah, how de do?" said he. "You here? What strange people we meet at receptions!"

"Yes. I saw you come in," w the reply.-Boston Home Journal.
