UNTIL YOU CAME. I was lonesome, dear, until you came; But no one was to blame— They were as kind as they could be; They did their best to do good unto me.

I could not understand what Spring-time meant, Nor yet the language of the trilling bird, I wondered at the flowers' sweet perfume, And when the sound of babbling brook I heard.

I was so lonesome, dear, until you came, Until you called my name, And when you stood beside me, I knew That you were mine, that I belonged to you.

Oh! the sweet music that to me you brought! With what fast step the flower's breath I sought! No longer were the bird-songs void to me— My quickened eye in all did beauty see.

And when you went, my dear, as when you came, Who was to blame? And who could understand my darkened sight Or know that my life's day had turned to night?

I walk my path, not knowing where you are; Whether on earth or on some distant star— But this I know, wherever your soul shall be, I'll go to you when death shall set me free.

WE MAY HAVE NO MORE BEEF. Are we about to abandon a certain food supply and substitute something else in its place?

Has the nation reached that point where beef must disappear from our tables, and the nutrition it supplied be extracted from some other product?

Very probably. But what will take the place of beef as a food supply? Well, that is another question.

Hopeful men have looked to Mexico and have heralded the passage of Mexican cattle across the Rio Grande.

Other hopeful men have thought of the plains of Argentina and Brazil and have promised relief from our approaching beef famine.

Throughout all that section of country from Middle Pennsylvania to the Missouri river the situation is the same.

But there is a limit even to the powers of the packers. They cannot stay the extinction of the free cattle range, and when that goes the price of beef will rise beyond the reach of common purses.

Where, then, shall we get our food? England asked herself the same question thirty years ago, and the answer came, as it must come here.

The great packing houses which have made fortunes handling beef will fall into decay or turn their attention to patent products, as they are already beginning to do.

The great herds of cattle will disappear from the plains, and even the plains, in that capacity, will disappear with them.

That is the foundation reason for the whole change. The plains are vanishing. Cheap beef never could have been provided but for limitless and free pasture land.

But the range country is being cut up into farms. Prairies over which a man might ride in a right line for a week ten years ago are now laced with fences and blighted with plough land.

And rapidly as this change has come, the enlarging of cities has been even more rapid. The proportion between producers and consumers has shifted.

sumption of "the roast beef of old England." The problem is more insistent here, because the condition is different.

Simmonds says the Germans were once a meat eating nation, but that they gradually acquired a vegetarian taste and now eat less meat in proportion to the bulk of their food supply than does any other nation on the Continent.

Scotland abandoned meat when it became too scarce and too dear, and adopted the oatmeal, which is still distinctively its own.

Still, there are other resources. The seas swarm with fishes, the small farms may raise sheep, still smaller tracts will produce poultry, and there is no limit to the fruit and the grain and the root crops.

West are going, and when they are gone beef will vanish from our tables.

"Strange, ain't it, the new kinds of ailments folks has?" remarked Mr. Simir Smith, after reading his newspaper.

"Now I've been a reading an advertisement in here of a new medicine, and it says its dreadful good for a sluggish liver."

"Liver trouble ain't no new disease, pa," responded Mrs. Smith. "I remember grandfather having liver trouble when I wasn't more'n 10 year old."

"I was a saying that this medicine was good for sluggish liver, Martha Ann, and what beats me is how them slugs gets inside the liver, anyhow."

Patent Office Clerk—"Your machine is so complicated that some part or other will be sure to infringe on some other invention, and make trouble, with no end of court costs."

Patent Office Clerk—"Hadn't you better try something simpler at first. What is that in your other hand?"

Patent Office Clerk—"Well, we'll give you patent on that." New York Weekly.

He had just provided himself with one of the latest things in bicycles and was showing it to a friend.

"It's a daisy," remarked the friend, "how much does it weigh?"

"Only twenty pounds."

"What did it cost?"

"One hundred dollars."

"Whew!" exclaimed the friend, "that's five dollars a pound, isn't it? Strikes me that bicycle ought to become a fair substitute for silver as a circulating medium, unless the white metal braces up a bit."

"This is a mighty fine place, I don't think," contemptuously observed the tattered vagrant.

"Please give me something, sir. I am much to be pitted."

"Why, what's the matter?" asked a benevolent old gentleman.

One of the most beautiful birds known to tropical America is the jacana, a sort of snipe found along the streams all the way from Mexico to the River Plate.

As the steamer goes up the Rio San Juan they may be seen in pairs frequently, either feeding along shore or flying, and they are always very attractive.

Some stand with wings held straight up in the air and perfectly motionless. Others half open the wings and then flutter them rapidly, and still others wave the wings slowly up and down as butterflies do when gathered in groups.

The strange antics of one of our loving tyrant bird have given it a name; it is called the scissor tail. It is gray and white, with black head and tail, and a yellowish crest.

At sunset these birds gather in small flocks, shouting in great glee, and then away up in the air they go until almost out of sight.

Down in Southern Brazil is a little bird that comes as near to holding a darkey "hoedown," a minstrel song and dance, as it is possible for birds to do.

It is called "the dancing bird" by the natives, but what the scientific name may be is unknown to the writer.

It is a tiny blue bird with a red crest. Mornings and evenings the little fellows gather in a group of a score or so on a smooth, sandy or gravelly spot, or at least a spot that is free of grass or any obstruction.

Then one of the males flies to a twig somewhere overhead and begins singing in the jolliest jig voice imaginable, and immediately the birds begin to step in perfect time with the song, and twitter an accompaniment, and more than that, move their wings in time with the music as they step about.

Akin to this dance is one where there is but a single dancer on the floor at a time.

The bird is known as the rupicola, or cock of the rock, also a Brazil bird. It is beautifully dressed in orange and scarlet plumage.

Like the little blue bird, it selects a smooth, hard floor as its dancing place, and there must be an abundance of bushes around for it does not seem to like spectators.

About this kind of a platform the birds gather, some on the ground and some on the bush. Then all sing, except one, which gets into the centre of the floor and there teases and gyrates in a most comical fashion until exhausted.

Then he staggers off, but another instantly takes his place and repeats his performance, and so they go on, if undisturbed, till every one of them has had his fling.

A Bad Case. "Please give me something, sir. I am much to be pitted."

"Why, what's the matter?" asked a benevolent old gentleman.

"I had a blind child—he was my only means of subsistence—and the poor boy has recovered his sight."

BIG DEALS IN COPPER.

A deal in which several Baltimoreans are largely concerned has been closed in New York by the sale of a controlling interest in the Old Dominion copper mine to Bostonians.

The mine is at Globe, Pinal county, Arizona. It has been in operation about fifteen years and was purchased by Mr. William Keysey, of Baltimore and others in 1885. They have worked the property since that time.

It is understood that the new owners of the mine will make extensive improvements, which will largely increase its capacity. The Lewison and Bigelow syndicate already owns the Butte and Boston, Boston and Montana and Tamarack mines, which annually produce between eighty and ninety million pounds of copper.

Take a Steve.
The chief function of the kidneys is to separate from the blood, in its passage through them, of certain impurities and watery particles which make their final exit through the bladder. The retention of these, in consequence of inactivity of the kidneys, is productive of Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, albumuria and other ailments, which, if not treated with a timely and judicious use of a powerful, health-giving, and non-toxic, diuretic and blood-purifier, will lead to a fatal termination. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the best remedy for these ailments, as it acts upon the kidneys, and restores their normal action, and thus restores to the blood its purity, and gives it the power to carry off the waste products of the body. Catarrh of the bladder, gravel and retention of the urine are also cured by its use, and it is the best remedy for these ailments, as it acts upon the kidneys, and restores their normal action, and thus restores to the blood its purity, and gives it the power to carry off the waste products of the body. Catarrh of the bladder, gravel and retention of the urine are also cured by its use, and it is the best remedy for these ailments, as it acts upon the kidneys, and restores their normal action, and thus restores to the blood its purity, and gives it the power to carry off the waste products of the body.

Work of the Town Commissioners.
The Commissioners of Emmitsburg have been experiencing some difficulties in appointing officers and awarding contracts for the ensuing year. They have met in session twice within the past several days, and the work, which was usually disposed of at one meeting, has not yet been fully completed. The greatest obstacle that has confronted them is the bids for furnishing coal oil, etc., and the contract for supplying the town with coal oil remains unawarded.
At the meeting held on May 31, several contracts were given out, among which were the following: Constable, Wm. H. Ashbaugh, salary, $50; Tax-Collector, Wm. D. Collier, salary, $17; furnishing stone for streets, Geo. M. Rider, at 62 cents a perch for broken stone, and 39 cents for unbroken stone. The bids for furnishing the corporation with coal oil, failed to meet the approval of the board and were rejected. The bids for lighting the street lamps were also rejected, and new bids were invited.
On Wednesday evening of this week, the commissioners held another meeting for the purpose of awarding contracts for furnishing oil and lighting the lamps. The bids for furnishing the oil were again of such a nature as to compel the board to reject them. The contract for lighting the lamps was given to John Glass, who will receive $50.50 for his services.
Another meeting of the commissioners will be held to-morrow night, when bids for oil will again be entertained, and should the bids received at this meeting be of an objectionable character, it is likely that the commissioners may decide to furnish the oil for the town themselves.

Last Friday night the store of A. J. McKenna and postoffice at Backers town were entered and robbed of money and postage stamps. The matter was kept quiet. A young colored man named Williams was suspected, and when several persons attempted to arrest him he made good his escape. Monday night Deputy Sheriff Crum and Groff went in pursuit and arrested him at Noland's Ferry after a lively chase across the field, not, however, until a number of shots were fired at him, which had the effect of bringing him to a halt. The deputies took their prisoner to Frederick, Tuesday, when he was committed to jail.

Death of Mrs. Mary Savely Motter.
In the death, on Saturday last, of Mrs. Mary Savely Motter, of Clovorton, near Williamsport, Md., not only her immediate family, but the church of which she was a valued member, and the entire neighborhood in which she resided, have met with a loss which can hardly be realized in the first shock of the sudden bereavement. The life and character of Mrs. Motter were of an extraordinary extent, an exemplification of the idea of a "mother in Israel." In the ruling of her household, management of her business affairs, ministering to the necessities of the poor, sympathizing with the afflicted, and in the performance of every duty, as mother, friend, neighbor and Christian, she stood pre-eminent, and her memory will long be cherished by those whose lives were brightened and strengthened through her influence. Mrs. Motter was the widow of the late Isaac Motter, of Williamsport, and had resided in that neighborhood continuously from the time of her marriage.

Fall of a Scaffold.
About 5 o'clock Friday evening a scaffold on the side of a frame house under construction for Mr. Wagoner, Chambersburg, gave way while Messrs. E. Stallsmith, gave way while Messrs. T. E. Welly and Leo Stallsmith were engaged at work on the roof. The second story windows. Both were at the center when the brace there broke and precipitated them to the ground.
Mr. Welly stuck on his left foot, sustaining a compound fracture and dislocation at the ankle joint. Mr. Stallsmith fell on his back and was struck by falling lumber, but was fortunate in not sustaining serious injury. Both were at once taken to their homes and medical aid summoned. Dr. J. E. Scott attending the former in consultation with Dr. Robert Horner, Dr. Henry Stewart having charge of the latter, who is improving rapidly.

In the case of Mr. Welly, whose mishap occurred on the thirty-third anniversary of the battle of Fair Oaks, in which he participated as a member of Capt. Christman's company, an injury is of a serious nature, though up to our latest information there were strong hopes of saving the foot.

THE BACHELOR.

As matters stand at present, the bachelor—as a householder at any rate—contributes nothing to the rates and taxes of his country, whereas the married man has to pay both for his own privileges and for those of the single man.

When a proposal was made long ago to tax the bachelors of France as they were taxed in the days of the first republic, the fact was recalled that republics generally have been hard upon the celibates.

Aggra, in the time of Augustus, the married men, all other things being equal, were preferred to the single men for the public offices.

Every event of my life passed before me with vivid distinctness, but without creating any peculiar feeling. I saw them go by as if they were swift moving panorama.

There is an Illinois congressman who is a trifle absentminded. His friends tell a story about him which exasperates him so that he has threatened to kill the very next person who repeats it.

DUTCH CIGAR SHARPERS.

A queer sort of Roping In That is Practiced In Rotterdam. They Probably Came From Asia and Were Developed by Savage Nations.

"Americans are apt to think that they belong to the only enterprising nation in the world," said a New Yorker lately returned from Europe.

"I am always waiting at the door. A cat when it is mauling. For when at last the pig is 'o'er, She's mine—not 'understudy.'" —Donna Lucretia in 'Kato Field's' Washington.

ORIGIN OF PLAYING CARDS.

The people of every country on the globe have their peculiar superstitions and fancies in regard to saving or attempting to save drowning persons, and also concerning the recovery of the bodies of those who have met death in that manner.

"Hitherto we have known practically nothing of their history. No one realized how deeply they were rooted, and we have been content with stories that the Chinese invented cards in the twelfth century or that they were first made for the amusement of Charles VI of France.

"From much less striking similarities it has been argued that American culture is a direct importation from Asia, but finding the same things among the tribes of the Atlantic coast would make it appear that the importation had been a very wholesale one.

"In India the gungee—the beautiful painted circular cards—have eight suits, as in Korea, bearing the colors of the different quarters of the universe.

"We find the prototypes of all our familiar card games—such as whist, euchre and poker, not to speak of the more nearly identified card games—in Asia.

Whopper of a Story. Ampero, the famous mathematician, was noted for his absentmindedness. On one occasion he mistook the back of a cab for a blackboard.

Somebody once said something about a certain Irish member to Mr. Parnell. I will remember the reply attributed to Mr. Parnell. "Don't believe a word he says," were his words; "he's about the faintest little hound in my pack."

DROWNING SUPERSTITIONS.

As noted above, the superstitions people of all countries also have their different modes of recovering the bodies of those who have been drowned. Sir James Alexander, in a work on the Indians of Canada, says: "The Indians imagine that in the case of a drowned body its place may be discovered by floating a chip of cedar wood, which will stop and turn round over the exact spot."

The Mandan Indians use two different articles for this purpose—buffalo "chips" or some article of clothing belonging to the deceased. The half civilized tribes of the southwest nearly all use little wickerwork baskets called by a name signifying "wet pans," the idea in these last mentioned cases being that neither the buffalo "chips," garment nor basket will become sufficiently water soaked to sink until it arrives at the spot exactly over the body of the drowned.

In all European countries and in the United States the favorite talisman appears to be a loaf of bread. In England the loaf is weighted with quicksilver, and in France it is started on its journey in quest of the dead with a lighted taper affixed in the top crust.

Material's Conception of the Actor. "I regard originality as being the last quality to be applauded in an actor or an actress. The interpreters of the drama should be average and even mediocre men and women only intelligent enough to realize those characters they are attempting to make live. Perhaps I should add that I do not expect any of the kind of dramatic work which we are now discussing to ever appeal to the great playing public." —Skotch.

DEER PARK.

To those contemplating a trip to the mountains in search of health and pleasure, Deer Park, on the crest of the Allegheny mountains, 3,000 feet above the sea level offers such varied attractions as a delightful atmosphere during both day and night, pure water, smooth winding roads through the mountains and valleys, and the most picturesque scenery in the Allegheny range.

The surrounding grounds, as well as the hotel, is lighted with electricity. Six miles distant, on the same mountain summit, is Oakland, the twin resort of Deer Park, and equally as well equipped for the entertainment, pleasure and comforts of its guests.
