JUSTICE JACKSON DEAD.

Associate Justice Howell E. Jackson, of the Supreme Court of the United States, died Aug. 8, at his home at West Meale, near Nashville, Tenn. Since his return from Washington, where Justice Jackson went last spring to participate in the hearing of the income tax case, his health has slowly declined, though at times it seemed there was a chance of prolonging his life.

Howell Edmunds Jackson was born in Paris, Tenn., April 8, 1832, so that he was in his sixty-third year at the time of his death. Justice Jackson was a classical scholar, graduating from the West Tennessee College in 1848. He studied law two years at the University of Virginia and in Jackson, under his kinsmen, Judges A. W. O. Totten and Milton Brown; graduated from the Lebanon Law School in 1856, in which year he located in Jackson and engaged in the practice of this profession; removed to Memphis in 1859, where he continued the practice of law; served on the Supreme Bench by appointment on two occasions, and was once a prominent candidate for supreme judge before the nominating convention; relocated in Jackson in 1870; was elected to the State House of Representatives in 1880 on the State credit platform; was elected to the United States Senate as a democrat in 1881, and served till April 12, 1886; was appointed United States Circuit Judge by President Cleveland and nominated for associate justice by President Harrison; was confirmed by the Senate February 18, 1893, and entered upon the duties of the office March 4, 1893.

The last time Judge Jackson was in Washington was on the occasion of the rehearing in the income tax cases last May. He had been absent from the city and from the bench since the preceding fall, when soon after the convening of the October term of the court he had been compelled to go South on account of his rapidly declining health. During his absence there had been contradictory reports as to his physical condition, but the prevailing opinion among his colleagues on the bench was that he would never again be able to resume his seat.

Largest Man in the United States. Albert Whetstone, said to be the largest man in the United States, if not in the world, died recently at Eureka, Cal. He was born at Atlanta, Ind., and came of a family noted for large size. The Wichita (Kan.) Eagle says his mother, who is still living, weighs 315 pounds, and she has two brothers, weighing 324 pounds apiece. She also has two sons, each of whom is over six feet in height and each of whom also weighs over 300 pounds. At the time of his death Albert weighed 494 pounds, and was of such enormous proportions that it was necessary to cut a hole in the side of the house in order to remove the body. The coffin consumed 101 feet of lumber and weighed 100 pounds. It was 6 feet 8 inches long, 22 inches wide and 20 inches deep.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, AUGUST 12.—The increasing probability of an early war between Russia and Japan has revived interest in an episode of the late war between China and Japan, which would have brought about a state of affairs which might have proven very unpleasant to Japan had that war lasted just a little longer. That would have been a war with the United States; and if Japan continues to be of the same mind she is bound to have trouble with the United States if she has a war with Russia or any other country. Overlooking the fact that the United States fought a war with a much more powerful nation about that same thing, Japan claimed and still claims the right in time of war to search America's vessels and to take therefrom any enemy found. This claim came dangerously near to the shooting point just before the treaty of peace was signed between China and Japan. In fact, if that document had been delayed 48 hours there would have been a fight, although that was not known at the time. Admiral Carpenter had signified his intention to escort an American merchant steamer to prevent her detention at a Japanese port, and the Japanese authorities had issued orders directing the commandants of the forts at the mouth of their harbor to fire upon the American vessels if that intention was carried out. Those who know Admiral Carpenter need not be told what would have happened had he been fired upon. He would have given those Japs something they failed to get during their scrap with China—a taste of real fighting; and the result would have been another war. If Japan doesn't recede from her ridiculous claim, that war is merely postponed for a time. It will be bound to come, as the right of search is one that Uncle Sam will never concede to any nation as long as he has a man to resist it.

A bright newspaper man who has just returned from a trip through Minnesota says: "Senator Davis will have his state delegation to start with, but unless he develops unexpected strength in the convention he can't hold the votes long. On leaving him the delegation will probably divide between Reed and McKinley. The Congressional delegation is committed to Reed, but McKinley has, I think a majority among the republicans of the state. The people are too busy with their crops just now to encourage or take part in political agitation of any sort. I was surprised to find among the democrats of the state a considerable sentiment in favor of a third term for Mr. Cleveland."

It is believed that recent happenings in China and the demands made by this government had something to do with the Chinese minister and his entire legation returning to Washington from their summer outing in the midst of one of the warmest spells we have had, although that wily diplomat denies it, and says he intended when he went away to return just when he did. At any rate he is back, but in the absence of both the President and Secretary of State his presence in Washington will not be worth much to his government.

Not a little talk has been heard, and it has not been confined to Texas, either, concerning the long stay Senator Mills has made at his Washington home. He has been here nearly all the time since Congress adjourned. Repeated attempts have been made by newspaper men to interview him on the financial question, but none of them have succeeded, and, if Senator Mills, who was once a strong silver man, has changed his views, as some claim, he has not taken the public into his confidence. That's why there is so much talk.

His enemies say that he is dodging the question, but it is only fair to Senator Mills to say that his record is not that of a dodger. He has more than once gone out of his way to express decided opinions which he knew would be a disadvantage to him. Some say that he is busy writing a book dealing with economic subjects. At any rate he isn't talking for publication this summer.

The guessers are now all at work trying to fill the vacancy in the Supreme Court made by the death of Justice Jackson, but as "everybody is anybody" is now away from Washington they have nothing but imagination upon which to base guesses. Your correspondent will not guess on such a basis.

The Bowler seance, which lasted through four sweltering days, is over and, although not yet officially announced, the chances of the sugar men handling any of that bounty money are regarded as pretty near zero mark.

Impure blood is the cause of boils, pimples and other eruptions. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and cures these troubles.

It has just been learned that the relations between Japan and the United States were greatly strained just as the Chinese war was ended. Japan claimed the right to search American ships and take off any Chinese found thereon, and had instructed the shore batteries at Nagasaki to fire upon an American warship if it attempted to escort a vessel out of port.

THE COLORADO DESERT.

San Francisco.—A number of capitalists are in at work on a scheme to reclaim the Colorado desert by turning the waters of the Colorado river over the territory. The company also has a grant of $1,500,000 acres in Mexico that it will irrigate. As outlined the plan comprehends the development of the greatest irrigating systems in the Western hemisphere. As an indication of good faith of the promoters they are said to have handed the Southern Pacific a check for $1,500,000 in return for its title to the alternate sections of land in the Salton Basin. The land turned over amounted to about 600,000 acres. Principally Eastern capitalists are behind the scheme. John C. Beatty is general manager of the company.

The importance of the project lies in the fact that the irrigation of so vast a tract of land will revolutionize the fruit industry of the country. Work will be begun soon, it is said, and water will be running through the trenches before the end of next year. The company expect to have 300,000 farms on its lands within a few years.

TRIED TO POISON THE FAMILY.

In revenge for being whipped by her mother, Maud Carbon, Franklin, Pa., a fourteen-year-old girl, made an attempt to poison the entire family by putting fishberries, a deadly poison, in the tea and coffee. Her father, who drank some of the coffee, noticed it had a bitter and peculiar taste, and ordered it thrown out. While throwing the coffee out, Mrs. Carbon, the girl's mother, noticed some brown yellow berries among the grounds, which, on investigation, were found to be fishberries, which she had been using for medicinal purposes. An examination was made of the tea, and a lot of the berries were found in it. The girl, when accused of doing the act, did not deny it, but started to cry and ran from the house, and she has not yet returned.—Phila. Record.

GEORGETOWN NO MORE.

The old city of Georgetown, established by the General Assembly of Maryland in 1761, was Saturday officially blotted out by the record upon the books of the surveyor of the District of the new map of that section, which delineates what was once Georgetown as a nameless portion of the city of Washington. Georgetown has had no autonomy since the establishment in 1871, and has been only a "geographical expression." Now, however, no mention of the name of Georgetown or of its old street names appears upon the official map. This has been done under the act of Congress of February 11, 1895.

Georgetown was established "above the mouth of Rock creek, in Frederick county, Md.," at the tobacco warehouse there by an act of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed the 8th of June, 1761, upon land belonging to George Gordon and George Bell, and was named Georgetown for those gentlemen. Several additions were afterward made by Beall, Deakins, Hawkins and others. On Christmas Day, 1789, the General Assembly made Georgetown a city, with mayor, recorder, aldermen and common council. This municipality continued until 1871, when the District government succeeded all the municipalities.

For a while the Georgetown ordinances were enforced by the District government in Georgetown, but later the old Washington ordinance were declared to supersede the Georgetown laws, the Washington street plan was extended so as to abolish the Georgetown street names, and now every name of Georgetown is taken out of the District map.—Sun.

Small Beginnings. Make great endings sometimes. Aliments that we are apt to consider trivial often grow through neglect, into atrocious maladies, dangerous in themselves and productive of others. It is the disregard of the earlier indications of ill health which leads to the establishment of all sorts of maladies on a chronic basis. Moreover, there are certain disorders incident to the season, such as catarrh and rheumatism, which if not always curable, are at least very difficult to cure. Hester's Stomach Bitters directly affected should be avoided. Fish, Eels and Frogs.

A number of our fishermen spent Wednesday night fishing in Tom's Creek, and they were quite successful, although they reported that the night was not very good for fishing. The party was composed of Messrs. E. H. Rowe, Wm. Bushman, Howard Rowe, Joseph D. Caldwell, Charles R. Hoke, Thaddeus Zimmerman, Samuel L. Rowe, George and E. E. Zimmerman, Harry Manning and Vincent Sobold, V. E. Rowe and E. R. Zimmerman. They caught about 80 fish, 17 eels, 14 frogs and one "snapper."

A Necrotic Cut From an Infant's Side.

A one year old child of Mr. Geo. Dutton, residing west of Middletown, cried when handled in a certain way, as it is in pain. An examination of the child was made and a small ridge was found on its side, which it was seen contained some foreign substance. Dr. E. L. Beckley, of that place, found a sewing needle firmly embedded in the flesh. How the needle got there is a mystery, but it is supposed that some one was handling the child that had a needle sticking in her dress, and that it was forced into the child's side in that way.

A Laborer Murdered.

A laborer on the farm of Oliver Everhart, near Manchester, Carroll county, was murdered on Wednesday night of last week by unknown parties. His body was found in a thicket of underbrush on the farm of Theodore Tracey, near Melrose, about three miles north of Manchester, late Thursday afternoon. His face was considerably cut and bruised, and his body contained two large stab wounds in the region of the heart. Miller was in Manchester Wednesday night in company with two strange tramps, and all were intoxicated and quarreling. He was about forty years old and unmarried. It is reported that two strange men called at Hoff's Hotel, at Melrose, Thursday morning, and reported that they found the body of a dead man in the woods near there. They are supposed to be the parties who committed the deed. Justice J. R. Strozic summoned a jury of inquest, which, after viewing the body, rendered a verdict that Miller came to his death at the hands of unknown parties.

The report of G. W. McCordell, collector for the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, at Williamsport, show the amount of business done during July to have been in excess of past months during the present season. The number of boats discharging cargoes of coal at the wharves was 107, and 115 boats cleared for Cumberland.

The Merry Trio.

Misses Bernadette Faller, Gertrude Kreis and Annie Rae, of Baltimore, arrived in this place on Monday. The ladies were received by a host of friends. The trip from Baltimore was of a very pleasant nature, especially from Rocky Ridge to Emmitsburg, when they took the baggage car, owing to the repainting of the passenger coach, they had the most jolliest of time. Hoping their sojourn here may be very pleasant in every particular.

2,000 Wives for the Squire.

It appears that sometime ago a farmer living in Adams county, Pa., advertised for a wife. In the advertisement he stated that he lived on the best farm in that county, and requested correspondence from some young lady with matrimonial inclinations, who was possessed with the sum of $2,000. The Squire has already received a large number of applications from ladies who are willing to spend the remainder of their lives "with the Squire on the best farm in Adams county," as will be seen from the following clipping from the Gettysburg Compiler:

Charged With Bigamy.

In Cumberland, on Monday afternoon Joseph Manderson, who was arrested on Saturday last, charged with bigamy, was given a hearing before Justice Thompson. The accused is a tailor by trade and a Russian by birth. He has been in Cumberland for about two years. Some weeks ago he went to Atlantic City, N. J., with Miss Jane Kerr, of Frostburg, Md., and there married her July 21. On Friday last a middle-aged Russian woman, accompanied by two children, arrived in Cumberland from Baltimore and stated she was Manderson's wife, but his right name is Wyonoski. He was committed to jail Saturday, and when brought before the justice of the peace Monday was confronted by another charge. A third woman named Robinette swore out a warrant charging the gay tailor with adultery. The magistrate found him guilty of adultery and imposed a fine of $10, in default of which the accused was committed to jail. State's Attorney Sloan decided that, inasmuch as the marriage had taken place in New Jersey, Manderson could not be tried for bigamy in Maryland. He advised the justice, however, to hold the accused as a fugitive from justice until the New Jersey authorities could be heard from.

Trolley Notes.

Taneytown is making an effort to secure the extension to that place of the proposed electric road from Gettysburg to Washington. Last week a public meeting was held and committees were appointed. Dr. C. Birnie was elected chairman, and A. H. Zollikofer, Secretary. George H. Birnie stated the object of the meeting. The proposed route of the road, which will take in Taneytown, is, from Gettysburg along the pike to Littlestown, then to Taneytown, Travancian and Unfontown, to Westminster, then to Washington. The company request that the right of way along the public roads, be secured, free of charge, and that a satisfactory amount be subscribed, which will be guaranteed by first mortgage, gold bearing bonds at 6 per cent interest, with the additional security of a lien on the power house and the portion of the line now in operation. The bonded debt of the road is not expected to exceed $15,000 to the mile.

The Summer Boarders.

The warm weather of the past several weeks has caused the city people to seek shelter from their sweltering city domiciles, to a climate more enjoyable. Whilst the seashores and mountain resorts are having their usual quota of visitors, Emmitsburg, which is also a mountain resort, is enjoying an unusually large number of boarders from the different cities. There are now more strangers in town enjoying the pleasant and invigorating mountain breezes, than has been for a number of years. The Emmitt House has been crowded to its utmost capacity ever since the summer season opened, with people from nearly every section of the country, and nearly every in-coming train adds new arrivals to those already here reaping the pleasures and benefits so requisite to comfort and good health at this season of the year—midsummer. As a summer resort, Emmitsburg, has few equals, and there is no plausible reason why all the hotels and boarding houses in town are not filled with pleasure seekers and those people in search of a healthy climate, if the right kind of efforts were put forth by the proprietors of these houses. Emmitsburg is possessed with those indescribable fascinations which linger in the minds of all who once visit our beautiful town, and causing an anxiety to again visit it.

Blaze in Hagerstown.

The Moller Organ Works, in Hagerstown, was destroyed by fire late Friday night, and is with contents, including several large pipe organs, a total loss. The fire probably caught from the boiler. The building was in a section poorly provided with fire plugs and little could be done by firemen until the arrival of an engine. Surrounding property was saved. The Moller Organ Works are owned by Mr. W. P. Moller, who is at present either in Washington or Richmond. The loss is from $30,000 to $40,000; insurance only about $3,000 or $5,000. The factory employed about forty or forty-five hands. The reason Mr. Moller carried so little insurance on property is found in the high rate of insurance he paid. The rate was forty cents on the $100, this figure being partly due to the neglect of the town to supply fireplug facilities for the locality and partly to the risky location of the boiler-room and inflammable nature of the building's contents.

Capture of a Jail-Breaker.

Richard Potts, colored, who, with several others, escaped from jail at Hagerstown last Wednesday night, was arrested in Frederick on the fair grounds Thursday and committed to jail for the action of the Washington county authorities. Potts is from Frederick City, but was confined in the Hagerstown jail on account of being implicated in a shooting affair, which recently occurred at Harper's Ferry. Being asked by State's Attorney Eichelberger why he returned to Frederick, he replied: "I couldn't withstand the temptation of missing an emancipation celebration. He was known in Hagerstown as Richard E. Walden.

A Bottle Combine.

There is a movement on foot among the proprietors of several of the bottling establishments of Frederick to form a combine for the purpose of protecting themselves against the loss of bottles which they suffer from year to year. The project is as yet in an undeveloped state, but it is being talked about and very generally indorsed by all who are engaged in that business.

Fire near Westminster.

The large double barn on the farm of August Gesel, three miles southeast of Westminster was destroyed by fire about 9 o'clock on Monday night. The building contained 1,800 bushels of wheat, 90 tons of hay, and a lot of farming implements, all were destroyed. The fire it is supposed, was caused by spontaneous combustion. The loss is upward of $3,000. Mr. Gesel's loss is partially covered by insurance in the Bug Hill Company. The reflection from the fire was plainly seen from this place.

EMMITSBURG'S OLDEST CITIZEN DEAD

The Venerable Dr. J. W. Eichelberger Died Suddenly at His Home, in this Place—His Active Career.

The venerable Dr. James W. Eichelberger, Sr., one of the most widely known and highly respected citizens of Emmitsburg, died quite suddenly at his home on the square in this place, on Monday morning, aged 91 years, 1 month and 25 days. His sudden and unexpected demise was a great shock to his family, as there was nothing in his condition to indicate that death was so near at hand. Apparently, he was not sick. His condition on the morning that death claimed him as its victim, was the same as it has been for several months past. His son, Dr. Charles D. Eichelberger, had helped him out of bed and dressed him, preparatory to taking him down stairs to spend the day as usual. After being dressed he complained of feeling exhausted. His son removed his clothes and laid him gently on the bed to rest. After being laid on the bed he began to sink rapidly, and it was only a matter of a few minutes until all signs of life were extinct. Thus it can be seen that the Doctor's long and useful career was brought to an end without pain or suffering of any kind.

Big Storm and Fire in Baltimore.

A furious storm visited Baltimore on last Sunday afternoon. Great damage was done, including the destruction of a large factory, and blowing down of roofs, chimneys, awnings, trees and other property. Boats were upset in the river and many persons barely escaped from drowning.

In the midst of the storm lightning struck the fertilizer factory of Joshua Horner, Jr., & Co., in South Baltimore. The fire which resulted almost destroyed the entire works, causing a loss which is estimated at $100,000. The only portion of the building which was saved contained 35,000 gallons of benzine. Had the flames spread to the benzine a great deal of further damage and also, probably, loss of life would have resulted. It was due to the efforts of the firemen, and a fortunate change in the direction of the wind, that the fire was kept from spreading to the combustible and explosive material.

The plant was erected on its present site in 1878. The machinery was all exceptionally valuable. While fertilizer is not combustible Mr. Horner thought that it would all be rendered unfit for the market on account of the water. It is impossible, he said, to get water out of fertilizer. The damage to the stock is estimated at $50,000.

Insurance has been carried on the plant several years. Mr. Horner had recently dropped a number of policies which he feared would be canceled on these policies had brought the insurance much below the losses.

Another unfortunate thing about the fire was that it came in the busiest season. The plant was running full-banded on full time and was busy supplying orders, which are always numerous in August and September. An order for forty tons of fertilizer was to have been shipped Monday and many other large ones in the near future.

The business was started in 1846 by Mr. Joshua Horner, Sr., the first plant being erected on the old Philadelphia road. The plant established by Mr. Horner, Jr., on his succession to the business, has a capacity of about 20,000 tons of fertilizer a year. It employs twenty-five men. The greater portion of the firm's business is in Maryland and Virginia, although a large sale is had in many other Southern States. Besides bone phosphates the establishment has manufactured large quantities of grease, most of which is sold in Europe and the Western States.

A Barn Destroyed.

Tuesday morning a large bank barn, wagon shed, cowhouse and a number of other outbuildings were destroyed by fire on the farm of Dr. Joseph A. Williamson, at Catoctin, tenanted by Daniel Shulley. About forty tons of hay were in the barn, which, together with the entire wheat and barley crops and a number of farming implements, were consumed. It was with great difficulty that the dwelling which stood in close proximity was saved. Mr. Shulley had intended threshing and selling his wheat crop last week, but it was unfortunately deferred. The total loss is considered very heavy, there being an insurance of only $1,500 on the barn, crop, farming implements and outbuildings. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

A Pharaoh's Plague.

The small black beetle nuisance has been renewed in Westminster, probably in consequence of the hot weather. Tuesday morning enough of the insects were taken from the globes of the electric lights to fill two flour barrels. Some of the lights were rendered entirely useless. The nuisance of the bugs that fell into the globes. Dwellings near the lights had to be closed entirely, and the outer walls, steps, porches and sidewalks were black with the insects. They were a terror to pedestrians, getting down their necks and into their faces, and making things generally unpleasant, especially for the ladies. Their bites produced unpleasant, burning sensations.—American.

An Accursed Bridge. Standing in the center of an open field at Hoxne, near Eye, in Suffolk, is an obelisk erected to the memory of King Edmund, who met his death there at the hands of the Danes in 870.

A wedding party, however, passing over the bridge in the evening, observed the king's gold spur glittering in the moonlight, and in this way his retreat became known to his enemies.

On Goldbrook bridge is inscribed a record of the event. Local tradition has it that many years ago the existing inscription was followed by the words, "Cursed be the wedding party that passes this bridge."

THE LITERARY HACK.

Hack writers, who are also Bohemians, tell pretty yarns about the great sums of money that they earn. I fancy that the Bohemian hack usually computes his earnings in this way: When he conceives an idea for a $100 article, he counts that he has made $100.

As they rounded a slight bend a little farther on Brooks gave another searching glance to his crew. Not a face there but was set and resolved; not one that looked dispirited, though every man was pulling strongly, and the perspiration streamed from faces and shoulders.

Then, just as the stroke oar in the other boat came opposite to the bow of their boat, there came to each crew an order. "Let her go—all together, there!" sang out the coxswain of their rival, and his boat shot forward under the increased stroke.

Now they had entered upon the last 100 yards of the race, and the stroke had been raised to 40 to the minute, and the coxswain of the other boat was nearly on a level with Brooks. Wright's face was wreathed with smiles.

A COLLEGE BOAT RACE.

The Winning Crew Had One Man Out With a Broken Oar. Fifty feet below the long shells the referee's launch lay, and clinging to the rail as he leaned over the sharp cutwater the referee himself was giving orders in quick, exact tones.

At last he had finished, and the 18 men in the shells who had been straining their ears to catch every word straightened themselves in their seats and nervously gripped their oars afresh. Then, with the blood tingling curiously in their finger ends, they leaned their heads forward a trifle, and with eyes straight astern awaited the word.

Like a flash 16 pairs of shoulders squared, 16 seats shot back, and the water surged astern from the driven blades. A second later, and the river boiled under the wheels and propellers of the steam craft, and a mighty shout went up, punctuated by a dozen shrill blasts from the pipes of the steamers.

Then, just as the stroke oar in the other boat came opposite to the bow of their boat, there came to each crew an order. "Let her go—all together, there!" sang out the coxswain of their rival, and his boat shot forward under the increased stroke.

A One Way Rule.

"I would like to see some musicians," said the big, overbearing woman as she got the attention of a clerk in the dry goods store. The clerk looked at her critically for a minute and then said: "One dollar, please."

"You see, you pay the dollar for the privilege of finding out." "I'll do nothing of the kind," she said indignantly. "It's a most unbecoming proceeding."

"Not at all," he returned. "You run an intelligence office, don't you?" "Well, what if I do?" "Do you remember when I came to you to get a girl?" "No."

"Well, I do. And you charged me $1 for the privilege of finding out whether I could get one or not." "That is the established way of it." "Same thing here. One dollar, please."

"But the rule would not work both ways.—Chicago Post.

A Redeeming Quality.

They were solemn faced men. The rope was around his neck, and a minute might end his career. "Follow me," he said, "you are about to lynch me for stealing a horse. I admit I stole the horse. I admit nearly all crime, but there is one"

"The lynchers became eager. "There is one I have not committed. I never smoked a cigarette." The light on their faces told him he was saved.—Kansas Kicker.
