

OUR COUNTRY'S REAL ENEMIES.

Ex-President Harrison contributes his prefatory article of a series on "This Country of Ours" he is writing for The Ladies' Home Journal, in the December issue of that magazine. In discussing the country's real enemies in his paper General Harrison says: "The impulse of patriotism needs to be instructed, guided—brought to the wheel—if it is to do the every-day work of American politics. Sentiment?—Yes, never too much; but with it, and out of it a faithful discharge of the prosy routine of a citizen's duty. A readiness to go to the field? Yes, and equally to the primaries and to the polls. The real enemies of our country—the dangerous ones—are not the armed men nor armored ships of the great powers. If there is too much exuberance in the thought that we can whip the world it is a safe saying that we can defend our land and coasts against any part of the world that will ever be in arms against us. We are alert as to foreign foes—the drum tap rouses the heaviest sleepers. But we are a dull people as to internal assaults upon the integrity and purity of public administration. Salvation Army methods seem to be needed in politico-moral reforms. It has seemed to me that a fuller knowledge of our civil institutions and a deeper love of them would make us more watchful for their purity; that we would think less of the levy necessary to restore stolen public funds, and more of the bestial and shame of the thing. A good argument might be made for the wave theory as applied to patriotism, for it seems to have its ups and downs. There are eras when it rises to the combing point and others when greed and selfishness rise above it on either side."

TORTURED BY ROBBERS.

James Richmond and John Clark two tramps, were arrested Sunday for highway robbery at Wilmington. The story of the robbery is a horrifying one. Late Saturday night Henry Rose was walking along the railroad tracks when a party of tramps stopped him. They demanded his money, and when Rose refused, the tramps said: "Roast the nigger," and proceeded to do so. They bound Rose to a rail and then held him over a fire. When his clothes began to burn Rose begged to be released, but the tramps still held him over the flames. Finally the heat became too much to bear, and Rose offered the men all he had. They released him, after which he was stripped of his trousers, coat and shoes and he was then allowed to go and he informed the police.

SACRILEGIOUS ROBBERS.

It was discovered Sunday morning by the janitor that Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Chambersburg, had been robbed of everything valuable that could be carried off. Among the articles stolen was an expensive silver chalice, a jeweled altar cross given by Dr. Morris, of Philadelphia, and candle-sticks, and the altar desk, the gift of Mrs. Breese, wife of Capt. S. L. Breese, United States Navy.

Recently Corpus Christi Catholic Church was similarly looted and a few days ago a Carlisle church was robbed. It is thought the same gang of robbers has been operating among all these churches.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—There will be more presidential politics in the present session of Congress than in any single session for a long time past. According to those who usually know what is going on, Ex-President Harrison has met the combination which the friends of Mr. Reed and Gov. McKinley formed against him some time ago, by making an alliance, offensive and defensive, with Senator Allison, of Iowa. This divides what has been known as the republican "big four" into two pairs, and before Congress adjourns it will probably be apparent which is the strongest pair. Both of these combinations have shrewd friends in House and Senate who will lose no opportunity to forward their interests. Mr. Reed, as Speaker of the House will give his side the advantage in that body, while Senator Allison is expected to hold the advantage for his side in the Senate, but both will have sturdy opponents in their respective camps.

There will also be presidential politics on the democratic side, notwithstanding the present dubious outlook for that party, in the Senate, Gorman and Hill, although not especially friendly towards each other, will join hands in sticking pins in the third-term balloon every time it gets within their reach, and in the House, Ex-Speaker Crisp is depended upon to stand up for the silver democrats and also to thump the third-term idea if it should grow big enough to need it. The populists are most interested in the democratic game, because they believe it certain that President Cleveland will succeed in getting that party to adopt a gold platform and nominate a gold candidate, and that the silver democrats will then join them in supporting a silver candidate for president.

Senator Thurston of Nebraska, who only the other day resigned as Chief Counsel of one of the Pacific Railroads, has a bill providing for a settlement of the indebtedness of those roads to the government. It would have been more likely to have found favor with Congress had he allowed somebody else to father it. People can not forget his long salaried relations with the company for which his bill would legislate.

If Congress follows the recommendations in the annual report of Commissioner Stump of the Immigration Bureau it will adopt some radical legislation. For instance, Mr. Stump wants a bill passed forbidding persons or corporations engaging in the business of procuring employment for alien immigrants until they have procured a license from and agreed to the terms fixed by the Immigration Bureau as to what shall be charged the immigrants for the service; also, providing that all persons contracting for the labor of any immigrant within one year of his arrival shall pay wages directly to the immigrant, under penalty of being liable for the wages again if paid to others. This would, if enacted into a law knock the bottom out of the notorious Italian padrone system, and others equally nefarious but not so notorious, under which certain parties become wealthy at the expense of the intelligent American laborers who are supplanted by the ignorant contract immigrant laborers because they can be hired cheap from the piratical dealers in human sweat.

When Secretary Carlisle was in New York several days ago he was approached by a Gotham millionaire with the proposition that the government could raise all the money it needs or is likely to need by establishing and selling patents of nobility. The man wasn't joking either. He was in dead earnest. He told Mr. Carlisle that he believed there were more than one hundred men besides himself who would gladly pay $1,000,000 or more for a title similar to that of Duke in England and the privilege of a lifetime seat without pay in an American House of Lords, which it is a part of his scheme to establish. That man isn't crazy. He is simply a victim of the millionaire fever—he, like all his kind, want to buy something to distinguish him from ordinary men who possess only a few thousand or hundreds of dollars.

The prediction of a short session, which always makes its appearance just before the meeting of a new Congress was on schedule time this year. But just bear in mind that this is not going to be a short session.

ALTOONA'S POSTMASTER DEAD. A. P. McDonald, postmaster of Altoona, Pa., died Friday afternoon after a month's illness, aged forty-seven years. He was appointed by President Harrison, and his term would have expired December 18. Mr. McDonald served two terms in the legislature. He was also engaged in the general insurance business.

RED squirrels are said to be the worst enemies that quail and pheasants have. One squirrel will devour a nest of eggs at a meal.

Four firemen were crushed to death, several young women fatally hurt, and six other girls more or less injured at the burning of a large building in Chicago occupied by manufacturing firms.

WOMAN A—?

Woman is a conundrum most decidedly. Still we do not propose to give her up. Let a woman have her health and spirits and she is the sunshine of the home. But suppose she is sick, what then? Why, then there is a shadow over all the home. Happily in thousands of homes, such shadows have been removed. Thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the diseases and weaknesses incident to their sex have been removed, and with health restored, their bright spirits have come back, and the household has passed from the winter of its discontent to a glad summer of comfort. O, suffering woman, for your own sakes, and for the sakes of those about you, use these simple means and be healed. The only remedy so effective in nervous and general prostration, "Female Weakness," periodical pains irregularities and kindred ailments, that it increases in sale every year.

A Comet's Tail Ten Million Miles Long. The comet discovered by Prof. Brooks, of New York, on Friday, was observed at Lick observatory, San Jose, Cal., on Saturday. It is in the constellation Hydra, but is not visible to the naked eye.

Ferrin's comet has been observed by Prof. Aitken every morning except Monday since the discovery. The tail at the present time is increasing in length at the rate of about one million miles per day. With the aid of a photograph taken by Mr. Colton Saturday morning, the computed length of the visible tail was found to be at least 10,000,000 miles.

THE Excelsior Building, at Canal and Jackson streets, Chicago, and an eight story brick structure immediately adjoining it, at 171 to 173 South Canal street, both owned by Warran Springer, were completely destroyed by fire last Friday afternoon. Not less than thirteen manufacturing plants in the two buildings were burned out, including the Shober-Carqueville Lithographing Company, the Charles Emmerich Feather Company and the large establishment of Strauss, Eisendrath & Drom. Total loss is not less than $620,000.

THE market is full of cough mixtures, but one trouble with most of them is that when they do a little good the patient has to take so much that he gets to loathe the taste. The Pineola Balsam is superior to other cough remedies because it is agreeable to the palate and its good effects are immediate. In a few days an ordinary cough is gone altogether. Bronchitis and asthma are more stubborn, but they too are cured by Ely's Pineola Balsam. A remedy worth trying. Twenty-five cents is all it costs.

THOMAS MADE and his two sons were burned fatally by a fire, which destroyed their brandy distillery, near Danbury, in Stokes county, N. C. The fire originated from singlings and backings boiling over and catching fire. The burning fluid ran on the two sons, who were asleep on the floor. The house was locked up, and the father and sons were unable to get out.

THE Milford Counter Company, of Milford, Mass., employing nearly 200 hands, have assigned with liabilities of about $60,000 and assets $20,000. The firm removed their business from Lynn, Mass., and Rochester, N. Y., to Milford about a year ago, the town paying them a bonus to locate there.

FIRE destroyed the interior of the main building of the St. Louis Shovel Company's extensive plant, in St. Louis. The loss is estimated to be between $80,000 and $100,000, and is barely covered by insurance.

It has been decided to remove the body of Major-General Winfield S. Hancock to Arlington Cemetery, Washington, from Norristown, Pa., where it has rested since 1886. None of the projects to erect a monument at Norristown have succeeded, and a committee of the second army corps has succeeded in securing the consent of members of the family to the removal. It is planned to have the burial in Arlington take place next spring, when a monument to General Hancock on one of the public squares of Washington will be dedicated.

leather carp in the Potomac, at Avis's Mill, that weighed 3 1/2 pounds and another that weighed 1 1/2 pounds. The 3 1/2-pounder is probably the largest carp ever caught in the waters of Washington county.

A BRIDGE over a mill race near Taneytown broke down under the weight of a load of lime which was being hauled result of the accident was the destruction of fish for three or four miles down the stream.

BURGLARS on Saturday night entered the house of Mr. William Shoop, on the Wolfsville road, near Smithsburg, and ransacked the house. The contents of two trunks were rifled and $12 carried off. Eight hundred dollars hidden under the carpet was missed by the robbers.

Mrs. Helen White, of Landing Neck, Talbot county, was accidentally shot and killed by her son, J. Hall White.

Mr. Thomas Molesworth, a well-known farmer of Frederick county, died Friday at Monrovia, of dropsy, aged eighty years.

Through the kindness of Mr. E. S.
Waddles we have received a copy of the Los Angeles Sunday Times containing thirty-six pages.

On last Sunday evening, Rev. Wm.
Simonton, D. D., preached a temperance sermon in the Presbyterian Church, before a large audience.

The board of public works has declined all the bids for the State's interest in the Chesapeake and Ohio canal and has asked for further proposals.

A horse belonging to Mr. J. M. Kerrigan died on Wednesday. Its death was caused by a disease which affects the head and mouth of the animal.

Mrs. Sallie Rowe made the printers smile this morning by presenting to them a lot of nice cakes. Mrs. Rowe will please accept our thanks for the same.

Rachel Reed, colored, perhaps the oldest woman in Washington county, died in Hagerstown Tuesday night of old age, in her one hundred and fourth year.

Mr. Wm. J. Valentine moved from Westminster to this place, and has opened a grocery and confectionery store in Mrs. M. E. Adelsberger's storeroom.

The Douglas Guards of Hagerstown decided to attend the Atlanta Exposition on Maryland Day. Many of the young men of the company desire to see the exposition and advocated this method of making the trip.

It is now contemplated to have a park with various amusements along the Antietam at Funkstown, as a part of the electric railway project. Williamsport was formerly spoken of for a park location.

When the Chill Mists of the Morning hang like a pall over the surface of the earth, it will be well for you before venturing into the raw vaporous air, charged, perhaps, with the seeds of malaria or provocative of rheumatic twinges, to take a winged shaft of Fletcher's Stomach Bitters, and thus shield yourself from atmospheric influences threatening to health. If you happen to get snowed, sleeted or rained upon, use the same preventive, and avoid the rheumatism or a dangerous cold.

The agreeable warmth infused into the circulation by this gentle stimulant, its invigorating and regulating properties commend it to all appreciative of the fact that prevention is better than cure. Use the Bitters for dyspepsia, biliousness, nervousness and kidney trouble, sick headache and debility.

Family Reunion.
There was happiness at the home of Mrs. Sallie Rowe, in this place yesterday. The occasion being a reunion of all her children and grandchildren.
A sumptuous dinner was served, which was most heartily enjoyed by all, and every body seemed to enjoy themselves highly. Those present were: Mr. E.
H. Rowe and family, consisting of Edward, Mary G., Carrie B., J. Wm., Eva M., Chas. J. Anna M. and Sarah E.; Mr.
W. W. White and family, consisting of Walter W., Fannie B., Luella, James, Joanna, Francis, and Estlin C.; Mr. H.
M. Rowe and family, consisting of Howard M., Mary A. and Nellie D.; Mr. M. Frank Rowe, Mr. Quincy E.
Shoemaker and wife were also guests.

Mrs. CATHERINE L. GORSUCH, wife of Nathan L. Gorsuch, died at her home, in Westminster, last Thursday night.
She had been ill for about six weeks.
She was in her seventy-fourth year, and extreme nervous prostration was the cause of her death. Mrs. Gorsuch was a native of Warfieldburg, Carroll county, but resided the greater part of her life in Westminster. She was a sister of the late E. F. Crout. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with which she had been connected for the past fifty-five years. Her husband survives her, also one son, Mr. Charles C. Gorsuch, a leading merchant of Westminster.

Hagerstown Electric Railway.
The Hagerstown and Potomac Electric Railway Company has awarded the contract to build an electrical street railway in Hagerstown and extensions to Williamsport and Funkstown to the Harrisburg Construction Company.
S. Ritter Ickes and J. E. Knepp, of the construction company, are now in Hagerstown making preliminary surveys and arrangements for the work. It is estimated that the cost of the railway company, amounting to $100,000, will be sold. Gen. H. K. Douglas, attorney for the old National Turnpike Company, received a letter from the president, Col. Allen B. Dorsey, of Baltimore, directing him to enter suit against the railway company if they attempted to cross or use any portion of the turnpike in building the Funkstown extension.

Narrow Escape From Death.
Florence Donovan, son of Baltimore and Ohio Engineer J. William Donovan, and a young man by the name of Singa-foose, Wednesday night of last week, had a narrow escape from drowning and freezing to death in the Potomac river, near Weverton. They got into a boat and started to visit a fishpot owned by Singafoose's father. When in the middle of the stream the boat capsized and the boys were thrown into the water. Singafoose could not swim and Donovan went to his rescue. The water was deep and they could not touch bottom. The day was bitterly cold and the boys were nearly frozen. They finally landed on a small island in the river, where they became unconscious from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight. Singafoose's father saw the empty boat floating down stream, and fearing danger, set out to hunt the boys. He found them both on the island unconscious and clinging tightly to each other. They both were finally restored to consciousness. Their clothes had frozen upon them.

Charges of Election Bribery to be Investigated.
The November term of court for Washington county, began Monday, with Judge Edward Stake on the bench. The certificate of Judge D. W.
Sloan was received and recorded.
Alfred S. Wilhide was appointed grand jury bailiff in place of Frederick Schock, retired, who is ninety-four years old and too infirm to serve longer.
He is the oldest man in Hagerstown.
Sheriff-elect Charles E. Smith was sworn in and gave bond for $25,000.
Judge Stake charged the grand jury to investigate the charges of bribery at the late election. It was reported to him that several persons had voted a band of floaters en masse by hauling them to the polls in four-horse wagons and in cauldrons. He said he wanted the grand jury to thoroughly investigate the matter, though he hoped the fair name of Washington county would be spared by finding the charge groundless, yet if it was true he wanted every one of these and like offenders indicted.
Judge Stake caused a sensation by refusing to allow C. K. Remsburg, of Hagerstown, who was drawn on the jury, to serve. Judge Stake accused him of distributing whisky on election day.
Mr. Remsburg was ballot clerk at the polls. The court wrote him a letter asking about the truth of the matter, but Mr. Remsburg ignored the letter. Judge Stake said a man who would give whisky away on election day was not fit to serve as a juror, and therefore publicly discharged him with that reprimand.

Every Young Man should be possessed of certain information without which millions contract pernicious and most destructive habits—habits which make young men permanently aged, pale, haggard, listless, devoid of ambition, easily tired, languid, forgetful and incapable; fill mad-houses and swell the lists of suicides; separate husbands and wives; bring untold suffering to millions, even unto the third and fourth generation.
Parents, guardians and philanthropists can do no better service to the rising generation, than to place in their hands the information and warnings contained in a little book carefully prepared by an association of medical men who have had vast experience in dealing with the grave maladies here hinted at, and who feel that they owe it to humanity to warn the young of the land against certain destructive habits, which are far more prevalent than any layman can imagine, and which if persisted in gradually undermine the constitution and health, and destroy the future happiness of the victim. Cut out this notice and enclose it with ten cents in stamps (to pay postage), to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and the book will be sent secure from observation, in a plain sealed envelope.

Harry Arthur Dorn of Double Pipe Creek, were joined in marriage at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Mary

Church.

Mr. Charles Ramsburg, of Lewistown, rendered the wedding march on the

The estimable bride was the recipient of numerous presents, both useful and ornamental. Mr. Harry Dorn is a highly esteemed gentleman. He is a resident of Double Pipe Creek.

sumptuous wedding dinner was served, which was most heartily appreciated by all.

At 3:30 p. m., the bride and groom

Republican Parade and Illumination.
The Republicans of Emmitsburg District, celebrated the recent Republican victory with a torch light parade and illumination, in this place, on last Saturday evening. The town was well filled with visitors, some of whom came a long distance to witness the parade and to hear the speeches. Some of the houses were decorated and illuminated on a grand scale and presented a pretty appearance. The parade was formed at the East end of town, and was composed of delegations from Emmitsburg District and neighboring towns. The parade was led by Chief Marshal, Mr. Albert M. Patterson, and the line of march was up Main street to the West end, and then down Main street to the square; thence up Gettysburg street to Green street, down Green to Federal, and to Main street and up Main street to the square, where the parade halted and the speaking took place. The music was furnished by the Emmitt Cornet Band.

After the parade the meeting was organized by Maj. O. A. Horner, Chairman of the Central Committee, with the following officers: President, Mr.
E. R. Zimmerman; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. G. L. Rowe, A. M. Patterson, D. S. Gillelan, H. G. Winter, Oscar D.
Frale, Marshall F. Saylor, John A.
Horner, Thomas C. Hays, A. A. Annan, John T. Gelwicks, Harry Maxwell, N. C.
Stansbury, Robert E. Hockensmith, George T. Gelwicks, Joseph W. Davidson; Secretaries, Messrs. John F.
Adelsberger and Samuel L. Rowe.

The meeting was addressed by State's Attorney-elect, Wm. H. Hinks, Esq., and Mr. T. M. Biser, of Frederick. After the speaking, the Emmitt Cornet Band rendered several selections of music on the square.

The parade, considering the late date on which it was held, was a large one.
A noticeable feature of the parade was the absence of the usual transparencies containing funny political sayings and personalities.

They Had A Good Time.
Miss Mary Slagle was agreeably surprised on Tuesday evening by a number of her young lady and gentlemen friends, calling at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Slagle, on Gettysburg street, for the purpose of spending the evening with their little friend and schoolmate. Miss Mary entertained her guests in a very agreeable and hospitable manner, and all had a good time. The ladies took with them all kinds of refreshments, which were greatly enjoyed. Among those present were: Misses Florence, Olive and Elen Riffe, Sallie and Fannie Hoke, Sallie and Gertrude Lawrence, May Kerrigan, Alice Baker, Fannie Boyce, Fannie Jackson, Gertrude Lingz, Gertrude Long, Nita Cook, Adelle Mullen, Messrs. James, John and Joseph Slagle, Charles Long, Gehr Sebourne, Joseph Keller and John Sebourne.

Mirror of a Town's Doings.
The newspapers of a town are its looking glasses. It is here you see yourself as others see you. You smile on them, and they smile back at you; you frown on them, and you are repaid in kind. They are the reflex of a town. If the town is doing a business the newspapers will show it in its advertising columns. If the merchants are spiritless, shiftless fellows, whose stores are jumbles and junk and jam, the newspapers will show it by the lack of space they take. If you want the world to know that you have a live town, you can only let it be known through its newspapers.—Ez

OUR LETTER FROM FREDERICK.
Mr. Jos. D. Doll Improving.—Foot Ball.
Pawnee Bill's Show.—Mr. C. P. Levy Admitted to the Bar.—Other Interesting Notes.

FREDERICK, Nov. 27.—Mr. Joseph G.
Doll, the dry goods merchant, who was stricken with paralysis, a few weeks ago, while in Virginia, on his way to the Atlanta Exposition, has been brought to his home in this city, and is improving.

The young men of the town have arranged a game of foot ball with the Rockville team, which is to be played at the Fair Grounds on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 28. This game is one of the principal athletic sports of the leading colleges and universities of the country, and many persons in Frederick will doubtless go out to the Fair Grounds to witness the contest there, just from having read detailed accounts of the great battles between Yale and Princeton, which are fought annually on Thanksgiving day. The nomenclature of the game has even gotten into literature and we read of "the flying wedge" is something with which everybody is supposed to be familiar.

Pawnee Bill whose aggregation of buffaloes, wild Texas Steers, Boomerang throwers, Indians, and cow boys, has been on the road all summer, has returned to the Hoke farm near Frederick, to winter.

The case against Mohawk, the Indian who threw a brick at a crowd of boys in Baltimore, last summer, because they were teasing a little "fellow" belonging to the show, and killed one of the boys, has been non-prosecuted. The killing was considered an accident and as the father of the lad requested that the case be not prosecuted, the State's Attorney entered a non-pros.

Mohawk is a young man whose father is chief of his tribe and Pawnee Bill was greatly distressed at the accident, and paid all the expenses of the lad's illness and funeral. He said Mohawk's parents would never forgive him if he did not return their son to them at the end of the season, as he had promised to do, when they allowed the young man to go with him.

The circumstances of the case have become widely known and general satisfaction prevails at the dismissal of the indictment against Mohawk, who is said to be of the highest character in every respect.

Mr. Charles P. Levy, a son of Mr.
Charles V. Levy, of this city, has been admitted to the bar of this court, after passing a highly creditable examination before the Examiners. Mr. Levy is a young man of pleasant manners and address, and intelligent. He will doubtless succeed handsomely in his chosen profession.

The new Public School building, intended to accommodate the Male High School, as well as the lower grades of the Public Schools, which is being constructed on North Market Street, in this city, is progressing nicely.

The brick walls are finished and only the carpenter work and inside plastering remains to be done. When completed it will present a very handsome appearance. The teachers hope to get possession about January, 1896.

Mr. F. Marion Faubel, attorney of this place, has returned from Atlanta, where he took a party of eight persons to the Exposition of the Cotton States.
Mr. Faubel reports that the Exposition is very fine, though not comparable to the World's Fair at Chicago.

He saw on his trip, men gathering the last picking of cotton for the season.
Cotton picking being quite a novel sight to all the Marylanders.

Thanksgiving Day.
Yesterday was Thanksgiving Day and the occasion was generally observed in this place, a number of stores were closed and the town presented a regular Sunday appearance.

Union Services were held in the Presbyterian church, and the attendance was quite large. The sermon was preached by Rev. Wm. Simonton, D. D., pastor of the church. Rev. Chas.
Reinwald, pastor of the Lutheran church, was present and took part in the services.

A Thanksgiving dinner was served in Mr. J. Thos. Gelwicks' new store room, by the ladies of the Reformed church.

In the afternoon the Emmitt Cornet Band appeared on the street and enlivened the town with music.

A game of foot ball was played on the college grounds between the Washington University team and the Mt. St.
Mary's College team. The two teams were pretty evenly matched and the game was interesting from start to finish.
The game was won by the Mt. St.
Mary's College boys, the score being 12 to 4. The game was witnessed by a large number of spectators.

A "Thanksgiving Hop" was held at the Emmitt House, in the evening.
Dancing was kept up until the "wee" hours of the morning.

A Big Barn Burned.
A large and newly new barn a short distance east of Buckeystown, this county, on the Monocacy Mills road, and owned by Mr. William G. Baker, was burned to the ground Sunday night.
The flames being of unknown origin.
The barn was filled with hay and unthreshed grain, the entire loss being between $3,500 and $4,000, insured in the Frederick County Mutual Insurance Company. There was no stock in the barn at the time of the fire. In addition to the hay, straw and grain, a number of farming implements were burned. The wind carried sparks in showers a distance of half a mile, but the roofs they fell on were wet, and did not ignite. Neighbors gathered, and by strenuous efforts saved the buildings on the place.

Now is the time to get your Photographs taken for the Holidays. Don't put it off too late. Tipton will be here every Thursday. nov. 8-4ts.

JENNY KISSED ME. Jenny kissed me when we met, jumping from the chair she sat in. Time, you thief, who love to get sweets into your list, put that in. Say I'm weary, say I'm sad, say that health and wealth have missed me, say I'm growing old, but add— Jenny kissed me. —Lepth Hunt.

THE STING OF THE JELLYFISH.

A Jerseyman Who Studies the Sea Nettle Finds a Cure For Its Sting. The observant Jerseyman has discovered what he believes is a sure cure for the sting of that pest of many fine bathing waters, the sea nettle or jellyfish. During the earlier part of the summer in this neighborhood the waters are quite free from the jellyfish, but when the heats of August are upon us, and those who are fortunate enough to be living near good bathing ground would be in the water every day, the sea nettles make their appearance and often in such numbers as to positively drive people away from bathing. It is not often that they become such a nuisance as this at open sea resorts, but they do so occasionally even there. It is the enclosed waters, such as the Kills, the Shrewsbury river and the lower part of Long Island sound, that suffer most.

The pretty, clear, jellylike, umbrella shaped nettles, come floating in these quiet waters on every tide, increasing in size, in numbers and in virulence with every day of heat, until there is hardly a possibility of even the most careful bather remaining unstung. Even if there be not a single jellyfish in sight you cannot be sure that it is not at hand hidden just beneath where the eye can see into the waters and ready to come up when a victim is in sight, for these soft, curious creatures can swim at will, driving themselves along quite rapidly by the opening and closing of their umbrella shaped tops, and they can see and feel and smell, too, it is said. At any rate, if you try to catch one there is a good chance that it will suddenly sink out of sight as you approach it, and if you notice them drifting along with the tide you will see that they do not collide with objects in the water.

Scientific people who have studied them say that all along the edge of the umbrella top, between the streamers that hang from it like fringe, they have discovered bits of the characteristic nerves of special senses. Here they have found eye specks, auditory sacs and olfactory grooves. The mouth is at the lower end of the long central streamer. The stinging facilities of the animal lie principally in the long, slender streamers which form the fringe to the umbrella top.

You may take the whole creature up in the palm of your hand, and you will not feel a single bit of a sting. Even on the back of a tough hand it will not be felt, but get tangled up in those streamers as you swim and then feel what happens! As each fine tentacle draws about the tender parts of your body you will feel at each place of contact a sharp, burning sensation, and presently the skin there will become fiery red. Try what you may of the usual remedies for stings, and none will succeed in driving away either the pain or the redness. It is not a very severe pain, but it is annoying.

The scientific people say that the poison cells consist of a little capsule filled with an irritating liquid and containing a spirally coiled filament which has a lot of hooks upon it. When the cell is touched, they say, the filament flies out like a spring and tears the skin, and at the same time carries out the poison with it. What one notices is that every pore of the afflicted skin swells up until the part looks like goose flesh, and from each pore is exuded a copious supply of clear water. This often continues for many hours after leaving the water.

What the observant Jerseyman first noticed that led to his final experiments was the curious effect which fresh water has upon these salt water jellyfishes. He gathered a lot of them up one day, one by one, in a shrimp net and gently deposited them in the cold fresh water of one of his ornamental ponds. The jellyfishes went into the fresh water without being broken or injured in any way, but before they could even float out into their proper form they were dead and had turned white, as if they were of albinism and had been boiled.

"Charles Henderson was smart." "How?" "Why, just before his rich uncle died he called the young fellow to him and told him he had decided to leave him nothing but his autobiography." "Yes?" "And Charlie said, 'All right,' and then drew up a check for $100,000 and told the old man to put the autograph on it. It pleased the old man so much that he made it $200,000." —Boston Traveller.

A Cure For "Out of Sorts." This is what the mother of the bishop of Huntington did to cure herself of being "out of sorts," when she was 59 years old, as shown by an extract from her diary. "Took physio and consulted the family physician, all to no purpose, suspected the disorder to be nervous; tacked about, put on great resolution and made mince pies, and found myself no worse than before." —New York Sun.

ARTEMUS WARD'S YOUTH.

The Part He Took In Discussions at the Norway Lyceum.

Some yarns come down from Oxford county concerning the gentle and whimsical showman, Artemus Ward, whose life was an exemplification of his pet motto: "P. S.—U skratoh mi back & ilo scratch uros." Dr. O. N. Bradbury of Norway, in hunting among his papers, recently discovered the manuscript of an article that was contributed to The Cartharian Hill, a Norway Lyceum paper, by Charles Farrar Browne (Artemus Ward). He was at that time a student at the Norway Liberal Institute, eking out his scanty means by working in The Advertiser office.

The skotch in Dr. Bradbury's possession is a mock advertisement, and it is undoubtedly Artemus Ward's first humorous contribution to any publication. The young student had two small rooms back of the large room used by The Advertiser. These rooms were poorly furnished and poorly furnished, being quite guileless of paint and without carpets. The windows were covered with old newspapers for curtains, and upright boards matched together took the place of lathing and plastering.

A small secondhand cook stove, a rude affair of an uncertain age, was used for warming purposes and also for cooking in a modest way, a part of the time at least. He saved expenses, as many other country boys did at that time, by boarding himself. One leg of the stove had been broken, but was carefully supplemented by pieces of brick. This arrangement of surroundings appeared to satisfy the young student quite well. It made little difference to him, as his old schoolmates will remember, whether the legs of his trousers were wide outside and every passenger in that end of the car was following the little drama with undivided attention.

"My dear, I don't intend to just yet, but"—after a pause—"come now. We can easily do it." "Indeed I won't. It will have to go a great deal slower than this before I'll jump," declared his wife energetically, "and don't you do it on any account. What should I do if you get off and left me behind?" This pathetic appeal brought an unfeeling smile to the passengers' faces and was followed by a remark from the father, who stood in the doorway, to the effect that there wouldn't be the least danger in trying it now.

With the desperation of a martyr the timid one picked up her skirts, went carefully down the steps and was lifted off without mishap by her husband. Everybody smiled, believing this to be the end, but they were mistaken. The next instant the husband came dashing through the car again, pounced ferociously upon his overcoat, which he had forgotten, and threw himself off for the second time with a disgusted and reckless air.

In less than a minute after that the train came to a dead stop. The passengers looked at one another. Simultaneously the idea of all that wasted excitement and anxiety seemed to strike in, and the general laugh could be only half smothered in deference to the father, who, with a very red face, had dropped into his seat and obscured himself behind his morning paper.—New York Tribune.

A Valuable Sunday School Belle. Mrs. John J. Atkins of Philadelphia is the proud owner of the pen which Robert Raikes, the English founder of the Sunday school system, used in enrolling his first class of Sabbath school workers. The names inscribed by Raikes with this famous pen were 39 in number—men, women and children of Gloucester, England. The pen is made of a goosequill and is said to have been a Christmas present to the founder of the Sunday school. It is a cumbersome writing implement, about nine inches long, wrapped in yellow silk and covered with beads and tassels from one end to the other. Mr. Raikes gave it to Mrs. Atkins' great-grandmother, and it came to its present owner by inheritance.—St. Louis Republic.

Profitable Wit. "Charles Henderson was smart." "How?" "Why, just before his rich uncle died he called the young fellow to him and told him he had decided to leave him nothing but his autobiography." "Yes?" "And Charlie said, 'All right,' and then drew up a check for $100,000 and told the old man to put the autograph on it. It pleased the old man so much that he made it $200,000." —Boston Traveller.

A Cure For "Out of Sorts." This is what the mother of the bishop of Huntington did to cure herself of being "out of sorts," when she was 59 years old, as shown by an extract from her diary. "Took physio and consulted the family physician, all to no purpose, suspected the disorder to be nervous; tacked about, put on great resolution and made mince pies, and found myself no worse than before." —New York Sun.

A COMMOTION FOR NOTHING.

The Train Stopped After This Couple Had Created a Scene.

It was on the New Haven and Hartford railroad just above Mott Haven, and the Boston express with an unusually crowded train was slowing down a bit, as many trains are obliged to do, to wait for the Harlem drawbridge to be closed. This occurrence is frequently taken advantage of by those who wish to go to some point in Harlem or the annexed district to enable them to jump off. Occasionally the train stops, but more often it merely slackens its speed and makes the work of alighting a matter of pleasant excitement, to say the least.

A man and his wife, accompanied by an older man, who, the inquisitive passengers decided, must be the woman's father, began to show considerable anxiety as the train neared the critical point. When the brakes were applied and the speed gradually decreased, their faces assumed a look of relief, though now the trying question arose as to whether it would let up sufficiently to allow them to get off. The lady was evidently timid, but after much strong urging on the part of her husband she gathered up her belongings, and they started for the door, closely followed by the father, who, however, as was learned from his conversation, did not intend to alight with them. They reached the platform, and the husband descended to the lowest step, but the train was still rolling along at a pretty fair rate, and his wife was panic stricken in an instant.

"Now, don't you jump! Oh, please don't jump!" she commanded and implored in the same breath. "You'll be killed; I know you will." Meanwhile the front door stood wide open, and every passenger in that end of the car was following the little drama with undivided attention.

"My dear, I don't intend to just yet, but"—after a pause—"come now. We can easily do it." "Indeed I won't. It will have to go a great deal slower than this before I'll jump," declared his wife energetically, "and don't you do it on any account. What should I do if you get off and left me behind?" This pathetic appeal brought an unfeeling smile to the passengers' faces and was followed by a remark from the father, who stood in the doorway, to the effect that there wouldn't be the least danger in trying it now.

Indian Walkers. All travelers in South America are impressed by the wonderful endurance of the Indian couriers of Peru and Bolivia. A Frenchman declares that they filled him with admiration. The manner in which they journey over the cordilleras on foot he pronounced astonishing.

They climb and descend at the same pace. They speak rarely, scarcely ever complain and never stop. If the traveler halts for a moment to light a cigar, they are at once some hundreds of feet in advance.

The gait is slow, but without relaxation. That is what makes them such incomparable couriers. Often when a man has a journey of several days to make he takes his wife along. She bears her baby upon her back, and the dog follows. The husband carries the provisions. And this is how they travel.

The Indian chews coca and spins cotton. The wife spins to the baby and spins also. They eat without halting and make but the shortest stop to drink. Toward night, "to comfort themselves," they chew some "roasted beans." I was escorted by an Indian and his family who traveled after this fashion.

The Six Richest Men. Where are the six richest men in the world? It is doubtful whether one person in 100 could answer this question offhand. Certainly few would put at the top the name of Li Hung Chang, the great chancellor of the Chinese empire, yet that is where he belongs. After careful search and investigation the New York World has arrived at the following list, which may be accepted as authentic:

Li Hung Chang, $500,000,000 John D. Rockefeller, 180,000,000
The Duke of Westminster, 100,000,000 Carnegie North, 100,000,000 Carnegie South, 100,000,000 Woh Qua, 100,000,000
Total, $1,880,000,000
Think of it! Over a billion dollars!—Sandusky Journal.

Found Them Useful. Watts—Do you think it does any good to belong to so many lodges? Potts—Well, when I went over to Europe, I used to add the initials of all of them to my name when I registered at a hotel and got all sorts of deference from the clerks and waiters.—Indianapolis Journal.

WANTED TO FIX THE ADDRESS.

She Would Have John's Letter If She Had Created a Scene.

"No, sir," said the clerk at the stamp window, "the life we lead is not what people nowadays term a soft thing. If you could spend a day here, you would not wonder why my hair is turning gray at 30." "What worries me?" and the smile with which he accompanied the words was bitterness itself. "I'll tell you what worries me. A thousand and one things. A thousand and one persons of every age, character and description dining questions into my ears every minute in the day. And they expect me to answer with imperturbed amiability.

"Why, only last Friday," he continued, "a sour faced old lady came in to interview me. It was about 8 o'clock in the evening, a time when I ordinarily have a little immunity from torture. But when I saw her approach, I scented trouble. 'Young man,' said she, 'I dropped a letter in that place an hour ago.' 'Indeed,' I replied politely. 'That is the proper place for it.' 'I know, but I want it again,' she retorted. 'It was not properly directed.' 'I am very sorry, madam,' I expostulated, 'but it is against the rules for me to return a letter to any one. If your letter is deficient in address, write a line to the postmaster of the place to which it is going, and he will see that it is properly delivered. Besides there are a thousand and two letters in the box, and I could not find yours, even if it were right I should do so.' 'Those rules you speak about are all nonsense. I must have that letter to John now so's I can fix the address.'

"I was beginning to get a little warm about the collar, but I held out bravely. 'It is forbidden to return a letter for whatever purpose, and I cannot do it—this is gracious, as I could—and, as I said before, I have no time to run through 1,000 or more letters.' 'What!' she cried, shaking her parasol in the window uncomfortably near my face. 'Don't you s'pose I know what you're paid for? You're paid to do as the public demands. And I tell you I must have that letter. It's to John Wesley Dyer, Philadelphia, and I shan't leave till you hand it out if I have to stay till morning. D'you hear?'

"I tried another argument. I consented to search the receptacle for the letter and hand it to the postmaster, whom she could consult in the morning. But that would not do. She must have the letter. She had put it in there and would not stir a step until she had got it and fixed the address. 'Making the best of a bad matter, I went about the task of finding the precious missive with as good grace as I could command, but though I worked as rapidly as I could frequent interruptions retarded my efforts, and half an hour had elapsed before I finally unearthed it. I asked the woman if it was the letter in question, and she said it was, fairly snatching it from my hand. And what do you suppose was the alteration she deemed so imperative? Don't know? Well, when she returned the envelope to me, she had simply scrawled 'In haste' on the corner of it, and when I had recovered my senses I was conscious I had broken one of the commandments.—Washington Star.

Compassion. Among the stories which were told by certain aged physicians at a reunion of medical men of the times when surgical operations were conducted without anesthetics none was more touching than the following: A little girl not more than 8 years old was injured in such a way that it was necessary to amputate one of her legs. She proved to be of wonderful pluck, and instead of binding her, as was customary in such cases, she was given her most cherished doll to hold. Pressing it in her arms, she submitted to the amputation without a single cry.

When it was done, the physician in charge, seeking to brighten matters up with pleasantries, said, "And now, my dear, we will amputate your doll's leg." Then the little girl burst into tears. "No, no," she gasped between her sobs. "You shall not—it would hurt her too much."

BATHERS ABROAD.

The English Sea Dip Is a Sternly Businesslike Affair.

There are, though the dissatisfied Briton is often reluctant to admit it, drawbacks to the continental system of bathing. It is true they do not always have the offensive machines. The bather undresses in a neat little tent or properly equipped establishment and arranges himself, if a man, in a costume a good deal more ample than the exiguous vestment which is sufficient for the Briton bathing. As for the feminine bather abroad, she can and does bestow almost as much thought and care on her costume de mer as on her hall dress or her bicycling suit. She may be as coquetish and fashionable as she pleases, and very marvelous are the creations which one may sometimes see at Trouville or Deauville or Ostend, or to go farther, at Bar Harbor, where the millionaires of New York recover from the fatigue of spending their fathers' or their husbands' dollars. Only, the dresses are so very natty sometimes that it seems almost a pity to get them wet, and indeed that is what a good many of the fair wearers would appear to think.

To a casual visitor at some of the fashionable continental watering places it might seem as if the bathers were doing everything except bathing. They lounge and sit on comfortable chairs and eat and drink and smoke and flirt and read, but their bathing often consists in the mildest of mild paddles. It is perhaps a pleasant way of spending a few idle hours—this sitting about in the sun, with the ladies looking like exceptionally agreeable members of a corps de ballet and the gentlemen in the garb of those about to compete in a foot race. In the way of exercise there is not much to be said for it, and we are not sure whether this gentle coquetry with the sea breezes is really quite so good for the constitution as a few minutes' rough and tumble with the waves. But, then, something must be allowed for the difference of climate and habit. The Briton, even when holiday making, is more energetic than the Gaul, and it is pleasanter to loaf on the shore at Biarritz than at Whitby with the wind whistling across the North sea.

As to the question of propriety, the verdict of most of the commentators is decisively on the French side. But even here there may be two opinions. The spectacles to be witnessed at Margate or Yarmouth are undeniably; but, then, a fat French gentleman arrayed in a tight fitting striped football suit is not an ennobling object either, nor is our Mrs. Grundy quite absurd when she maintains that this conversation of scantily robed persons of both sexes is not altogether nice. After all, the English sea bath is a sternly businesslike affair. It is otherwise at the American and continental resorts, where the bathing often seems only an excuse for a good deal of promiscuous dalliance. The people who hastily assume that we can turn our beaches into an imitation of the lively places on the Norman coast should bear these points in mind, and, as we have said, they should also make allowance for such considerations as climate. A good many things will have to be changed before English people will be induced to change their rapid medicinal dip for an hour's lounge in bathing dress.—London Standard.

Completely Sold. Recently, at one of our large hotels, while a party were holding an argument on the subject of spiritualism, one young fellow expressed his belief that there was something in it, as he himself was sort of a "medium."

"How a medium?" inquired one of the speakers. "Why," replied the wag, "I can do a good many mysterious things; for instance, I can make a bell ring without touching it."

The other offered to wager that he couldn't. The wag persisted and said that he would lay him $5 he could make at least a dozen of the bells in the passage ring within two minutes without leaving his seat. "Done!" exclaimed the skeptic, and the money was staked.

The young fellow turned round on his seat, opened a closet door and turned off the gas from the upper part of the building. In less than one minute half the bells in the passage began to ring violently, the persons above having suddenly lost their lights.

And so, of course, the money was fairly won.—London Tit-Bits.

Idleness. It is an undoubted truth that the less one has to do the less one finds time to do it. One yawns, one procrastinates, one can do it when one will, and therefore one seldom does it at all, whereas those who have a great deal of business must buckle to it, and then they always find time enough to do it in.—New York Ledger.
