MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed? Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle? Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher.

That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined? Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose? Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest? Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile hat H. Fletchir. is on every signature of hat H. Fletchir. wrapper.

ODDITIES OF DRESS.

National Characteristics of the Attire of European Women. It is strange that whereas in every country of Europe, among the higher classes as well as among the peasantry, a distinctive peculiarity of costume exists, there is absolutely nothing of the kind in North America. The newness of the country does not explain this, as in South American states, which are younger than our nation, a national costumo is the rule. The Russian "kakochnik" is oro of the most charming articles of adornment in Europe. It originated among the Muscovite peasant women, but has been adopted during this century by the ladies of the court, who have elaborated it into a red velvet cap embroidered in precious stones. It is worn with the red velvet court mantle and jeweled ston acher brought out on state occasion. and more than outrivals the plumes and veil worn at the English court.

The Spanish mantilla is well known and has been somewhat vulgarized on the comic stage. The national dress of Roumania has escaped that fate. Carmen Sylva always wears it when at home. It consists of a white linen sleeveless garment made with as few folds as possible and somewhat resembling the Egyptian "fellaheen." It is thickly embroidered in a cross stitch arabesque in bright red, sky blue, orange, yellow and black silk, intermingled with gold and silver threads, a band of similar embroidery encircling the waist, with streamers of colored ribbon falling therefrom in a shimmering cascade. The hair is braided in four plaits loosely tied with chains of sequins and the feet are incased in crimson kid slippers strewn with seed pearls. In Poland princesses and peasants wear around their throats several rows of huge coral beads, and so loath to part with these supposed bringers of good luck are they that when a grande dame is arrayed for a ball and is obliged to put on pearls and diamonds she carries her coral beads in her pocket. In Austria-Hungary is found the greatest divergence in the matter of costume. The garb of the Hungarian peasant is so fetching that the wealthy ladies copy it when on their estates. It consists of a short puffy skirt of crimson and yellow, a small sleeveless velvet bodice imprisoning a snowy shirt, stiffly starched and embroidered in contrasting colors, ural car for the harmonies of prose with burs, with bird in mouth. Where to Plant Watermelons. Several young farmers were dis cussing the raising of watermelons, says a correspondent of the New York Post. Many opinions were expressed as to the most desirable soil, the best seed, the best fertilizer and the like, and finally one of the group accosted an aged colored man who happened to pass. The question was stated, and the young man said: "Come now, Uncle Winter, what is your opinion about all this? You must have made many a fine crop

ALL CITIZENS ALIKE.

Editor of the Chronicle:-The saying whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad, may be applicable now. I do not wish to court controversy, nor will I argue the point with any of different opinion. Permit me to state through your paper, that the position taken by the advocates of saloons in our town condemns them in the eyes of all. The uncalled for utterances some have made has been unkind to say the least. The saloon exists as a licensed business, because a majority of voters here decided some years ago in favor of licenses. But one of the men engaged in its sale at that time is now in the business. Where are the others?

Did the defeated malign and call them hard names? No! The license them hard names? No! The license system had the sanction of the majority behind it. Now, that the question is agitated again, any man whose sympathies are enlisted in behalf of the oor women and children whose comforts are taken from them by this drink habit, is under the ban of every saloon All kinds of threats are used to intimidate, and hard things are said about men whose good standing in the community is not questioned, because they are interested in the passage of the "Local Veto Bill."

In this land where majorities rule, this, and this only is what we ask. If a majority is in favor of not granting license, it will be no worse for the advocates of license than the change from Democratic to Republican offic holders. It might be well for this license or no license to be put before the people to be voted on every five years. We know that the sentiment of the people does change, and this would give the majority the right to rule.

We are all citizens alike, engaged in the various callings, as legitimate competitors and have no right under the law to defame one another. But not so when we violate the law, for its violation brings the merited woes. If this "Local Veto Bill" passes and becomes a law, let the people consider what will be their duty. Let us give it a trial. If it is unworthy of continuance have it We try inventions of all kinds that brings no elevation to so-ciety. Let us try to lift the men who cannot lift themselves, and take away a temptation that is stronger than they can resist, and we thereby do them and their families a lasting good.

How small a portion of our life is it we enjoy. When young we look for things to come. In old age we look backward to the past, but what of the brief period between. As accountable beings we must act justly toward our fellowmen, and any vocation we follow that our conscience upbraids us in, we must call a halt, and any opportunity we have for doing good and we refuse to act, we condemn ourselves. With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentile efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the others. - Against the world I close my heart, And half in pride and half in fear I said to Love and Lust: Depart;
- None enters here. A gypsy witch has glided in; She takes her seat beside my fire; Her eyes are innocent of sin, Mine of desire.
- She holds me with an unknown spell; She folds me in her heart's embrace; If this le love, I cannot tell; I watch her face.
- Her somber eyes are happier Than any joy that e'er had voice; Since I am happiness to her, I, too, rejoice.
- And I have closed the door again; Against the world I close my heart;

Next they abstract a pinch of salt from a box near by, wrap it in a morsel of paper and bury it in the earth that covers the platform. This for luck. Having slapped their thighs violently, they squat on their haunches and glare at each other. Osaka, having apparently forgotten something, goes back to his corner and has another mouthful of water, after which he comes back and calm ly contemplates Kobe, who by this time discovers that he requires some liquid refreshment and accordingly goes and gets it. At last Kobe and Osaka are in a position irresistibly reminding the casual spectator of a couple of gamecocks. After a deal of slapping of thighs Kobe bounds up and makes a grab at Osaka, whom he misses by something less than a mile. Osaka returns the compliment and manages to get Kobe in a close embrace. They sway for a minute. There is a shock like a small earthquake, and the Lilliputian gentleman with the gauze wings, having received his cue from the umpire, points his fan at Osaka, who bows cumbrously and retires, as does Kobe, but less ostentatiously. It is not particularly exciting, except perhaps to those who can appreciate the nuances of Kiyobayashi's code, but it is very quaint and one of the few bits of old Japan that have not been hustled out of existence.-

Apropos of all this a writer in a London paper asks if there is anything that can be said in favor of a man's tall hat. And yet it has almost entirely superseded the folding bat for evening wear. Convenient as it was, the chapeau bras is quite out of date. The chimney pot has withstood the sharpest sarcasm of our best writers. It is hot in summer and neither warm nor protective in winter, neither a shelter from the sun nor rain, and singularly costly. Out of town men gladly cast it aside, but nothing has as yet been discovered to take its place in London. The ugly chimney pot is out of keeping with every line and form of the human figure and is only rivaled by the headgear of the Parsee fire worshiper. Did it come thence to us western Europeans? How has it emanated from the early hood?
