In the Rockies when a to the foreign bondholders, and the man strikes a bear track he makes a careful examination. If it's a grizzly's track, and the man has had experience, he is likely to decide that he "hain't lost no grizzlies" and go on about his business. Probably the most uncommon way of bear catching which is pursued regularly is that which is in vogue among the Chuckchee Indians in the Kamchatkan peninsula. The captain of a whaler who had gone ashore at Olutarsk to trade, and had investigated the Chuckchee method of bear killing, told this story about it, when he got back to civilization, recently: "The Kamchatkan bear is a huge brown fellow, often weighing over 1,000 pounds, and he is very ferocious and hard to kill. Such an animal is invulnerable to the small darts which are the Chuckchee's missile weapons, and it is necessary to cripple him before closing in with spears. These bears inhabit ground which is covered with dense thickets, through which they have paths and runways. The runways are impenetrable to man except he crawl on hands and knees. To circumvent the bear the Chuckehee takes two pieces of board about 6 inches long and 3 inches wide, through which he bores numerous holes. Through the holes in each piece he puts long iron nails with their points sharpened. Then, placing the backs of the pieces of the wood together, he lashes them with thongs, thus leaving the sharp ends of the nails projecting on each side. This curious implement of hunting he lays in the runway where the bear tracks are thickest, lightly covering it from view.

"Presently the bear comes along, fore paw upon the nails which penethat has hurt him, he strikes at it with his other paw to knock it cff, paws are now so sore that he cannot i leaves a trail of blood behind him. Discovering this, the Indians follow him up, and with their spears dispatch him."-New York Sun.

A STUDY OF FUNERAL DIRECTORS.

Dignity, Euphemisms, Avocations and Hopes of Up to Date Undertakers. Although the word "undertaker" is a manifest euphemism meant to hide the nature of the trade for which it stands, the undertakers long ago sought further to disguise their profession by elegant phraseology. Nobody but a pauper is now buried in a coffin by an undertaker, The wealthier dead are laid away in burial caskets by funeral directors, The undertakers of this town as a class are an interesting, if somewhat grisly, subject of study. Nobody who has really known an undertaker can doubt the truth and realism of the gravediggers' talk in "Hamlet." The modern funeral director of this town is not a gravedigger, but he is a man of small reticence touching subjects that most men prefer to avoid. He has become calloused by use of such things, and he has an unpleasant way of dwelling upon certain details of his profession, as had Shakespeare's gravediggers. Outwardly the New York undertaker is an almost offensively respectable person. There is a tradition of the trade that imposes reatness upon the premises. Undertakers are divided as to the exact proprieties of decoration. Most affect ebony trimmings to their offices, but a few substitute white paint for black with startling effect. Undertakers in New York commonly join with their main business one or more of three or four avocations. Many keep livery stables, so that the coach that carries a sable company to a cemetery by day whisks off a bride in white silk and orange blossoms by night. Some undertakers are also manufacturers of funeral offerings, wreaths and emblematic devices. Some show little signs which read, "Pinking Done Here." Some deal in cut flowers. A few are in the real estate business, and the announcement "Lodgings For Single Gentlemen" beside a gaping coffin serves to recall Lamb's pleasantry on this subject in one of his droll letters to Manning in the far east.

Undertakers in New York are of all nations, and it is usual for a foreign family to employ in the case of death an undertaker of their own race. There are a few negro undertakers. "Entrepreneur des pompes funchres" is the occasional announcement in the French quarters, with some popular prejudice The New York undertakers, al-

The fascinating story of Bluebeard has a mythical rather than a mytho-Emmitsburg, Md. logical origin. No one has found his prototype in the Vedas or in the old Greek or Roman authors. The story is supposed to be of French origin, and it has even been suggested that Bluebeard was no other than our own much married Henry VIII. There is, however, better reason for believing that the original was Giles de Laval, lord of Riaz, who was marshal of France early in the fifteenth century. He was a brave soldier whose exploits in the wars between England and France are recorded in history. According to Mizeray, he murdered his wives as soon as he tired of them, and was himself even-not many points of resemblance, for there is no mention of a key, and Giles de Laval, moreover, used to entice persons of both sexes to his castle for the sake of their blood, which he wanted for certain incantations he indulged in. Nor, indeed, was strangled and burned for the murder of his seven wives. Dr. C. Taylor, it may be added, regarded the story simply as fiction, a satire

The March Ladies' Home Journal.

Just a few suggestions of the approach of spring and the coming of Easter give a refreshingly poetic and timely interest to the March Ladies' Home Journal, which in its literary, artistic and more practical features, is exceptionally strong and unusually attractive. The number opens with a fascinating story by the late Eugene Field—"The Were-type of the state of the wolf." It is explained by the editor that "The Werewolf" is the only manuscript by the lamented poet and story writer that has not been published, it was written and re-written eight times by the author before it exactly met his approval. Howard Pyle has illustrated approval. Howard Tyle has indicated the story admirably. General A. W. Greely, U. S. A., presents his first paper on "The Personal Side of Washington." Never before have the duties of a President, and their attendant annoyances and vexations, been so clearly revealed as they are in the March Journal by ex-President Harrison. Edward W. Bok talks interestingly of "Mary Anderson as She is To-day."
A well-written article on "Paderewski in His Daily Life" tells of the famous pianist's early sorrows, his triumphs, his work and his diversions. Emma Nevada, the prima donna, emphasizes the "Importance of Singing in Tune," and Charles R. Adams the venerable and famous vocal instructor, has another practical paper—"Finish in Singing" and famous vocal instructor, has another practical paper—"Finish in Singing"— in the same number. Kate Greenaway's delightful little folks, occupy a page, set daintly in a poem by Laura E. Richards. Edward W. Bok editorially considers New York and Boston from a literary standpoint. "Woman and Tipping" he also discusses, Dr. Parkhurst considers "The Best Thing in The World," to be a sound body—healthy physical development—forcibly contending that it is the superstructure upon which mental advancement must be built. Spring hats, bonnets, wraps and coats, and feminine fancies for Eastertide, are described comprehensively, and illustrated. "A $3500 shingle House," "Home Games," the fourth of Mary E. Wilkins' "Neighborhood Types," and contributions by various department editors are also included in the unique March issue of cluded in the unique March issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. Robert N. T. Eyler vs. Daisie E. Eyler.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from Daisie E. Eyler by Robert N. T. Eyler, of Frederick county, State of Maryland.

The bill states that the said Robert N. T. Eyler was married to Daisie E. Eyler March 18th A. D., 1891, and lived together in Frederick county, Maryland, until Feb. 3d, 1896. That they had one child, a boy about 3 years old. That said Robert N. T. Eyler was always a faithful and chaste husband to said Daisie E. Eyler. That the said Daisie E. Eyler between the first day of Jan. 1895, and the filing of this bill committed the crime of adultery with one Elmer E. Eyler in Frederick county, Maryland, and said Daisie E. Eyler abandoned the home of said Robert N. T. Eyler leaving her said child and husband on Feb. 3d, last, and about the same time the said Elmer E. Eyler left the said neighborhood, both meeting in Hagerstown, from which said place they left together for Chicago and have not since been heard from. That the said Robert N. T. Eyler did not live or cohabit with the said Daisie E. Eyler since he discovered her adulteries.

It is thereupon this 25th day of February, 1896, Robert N. T. Eyler vs. Daisie E. Eyler.

pressions of this country contains some curious inaccuracies. He says, for instance, that in prohibition towns liquor is generally dispensed in teapots and tells about a guest in a hotel who, upon calling for something to drink, was told by the landlord, "You will find a little tap near your dressing table in your room which will put you in communication with the old rye, and you can take what you please for yourself and your friends, as there is a meter on the other side of the wall." It cannot be supposed that this was a personal experience of the good dean, and it looks, therefore, as if some wag had been "stuffing" him.

Pursued by a Demon.

How many suicides, think you, reader, have been committed by persons driven distraught chronic ill health? Countless. For instance, we know, do we not, that hypochondriasis is a monomania—a sort of minor madness produced by chronic dyspepsia? Again, insomnia, or sleeplessness, often a result of the same cause, culminates in a derangement of the reasoning faculties. It is, therefore, of momentous consequence to prevent the arrival of disease at its chronic phase, when it daily and nightly scorrges the sufferer to a dangerously uncertain goal. No medicine known to science, as a means of arresting the maladies to which it is adapted, exists equal to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among these complaints are chronic indigestion and insomnia, kidney and rheumatic aliments, constipation and liver trouble. Appetite is improved by the Bitters, the blood fertilized, and bodily substance and vigor in greased by it.

Washington Honored at St. Euphemia's

On Friday last a very pleasing program was given at St. Euphemia's School, in honor of Washington's birthday. The 22nd falling on Saturday, the day was anticipated. The exercises occurred at 2 p. m. Rev. Fr. Maloney and a large number of the children's Krise to their relatives and friends in relatives and friends were present. The hall was tastely decorated with flags and red, white and blue bunting. Over the centre window hung a very fine portrait of Washington adorned with the national colors. After the acrostic given by ten Misses the letters composing Washington's name were hung on wire arranged for this purpose, at back of stage. The letters were covered with red, white and

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you pur-chase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, used and gives most general satisfaction
