Thrilling Tales of Shipwrecks.

How the Gallant Crew of the Birkenhead Went Down. The sight of a battered and seaworn piece of wreck washed ashore by the sea fills one with pathetic thoughts that words cannot fully describe.

But there was not the least excitement on board; every man quietly went to his place of duty with a determination to die at his post if it was necessary. The boats were lowered. Hastily the sick women and children were transferred from the sinking ship.

had seen him dive from the ship. Anxious hearts on ship and shore were fervently praying that he might be granted strength to be successful. The moments went into hours. It sometimes seemed that he had failed, but a tug would come on the line, a head would appear above the crest of the waves, which made it known that the hero was still battling for their lives.

All had progressed well during the voyage until the vessel reached the Irish Channel. A terrific storm then came up. The captain ran the ship into the nearest shelter, which was a little cove opposite Moelfra.

"Oh, come off," groaned the crowd; "you'll give us all the blues." "Yes, go on with the pretty polly story."

These stirring words recall the sad loss of the English man-of-war Royal George, August 29, 1782. She was anchored off Spithead, with a crew of officers and men numbering 800.

The American ship Ocean Monarch was burned within a few hours after leaving Liverpool, with a large number of emigrants on board. "My love and devotion must prove my sincerity," I resumed, casting a murderous glance at Polly, who instantly responded:

Tourist—Why didn't you keep that invalid gentleman through the summer that was here when I was up here last spring? He seemed to be improving.

THE ELECTION.

Next Tuesday being the day on which a President and Vice-President of the United States will be elected, and into whose hands will be placed, to a certain extent, the destiny of this nation for four years to come, every voter who has the love and prosperity of his country at heart, should not fail under any circumstances to appear at his voting place and cast his ballot for the principles which he considers will be for the best interest of the entire people of this country.

The present political campaign which is drawing to a close so rapidly, has been one of the most hotly contested political battles that this country has witnessed for many long years. Party ties have been torn asunder; men who have heretofore always stood firmly upon the party principles taught them from their youth, have laid aside their old political faith, and are today working under different colors. This on the one hand may be for the betterment of the condition of the people, whilst on the other it may not, and time alone can tell.

The questions in the present campaign, which every person is more or less familiar with, are of the most vital importance to every person, and no man should record by ballot his verdict on those questions without first giving them the most thoughtful and intelligent consideration without party bias, and when you have done this, you will have done your duty to your country, to yourself and to your family.

No man should barter away his elective franchise, and if for no other reason, than the fact that the people of this country are given the use of a free and untrammelled ballot, by which they have it in their power to settle the greatest complicated questions that may arise, and this is something that the people of very few other nations have the power to do. In other words, the free use of the ballot might without impropriety be termed a sacred privilege. Therefore, do not in any way allow yourselves to be deceived by politicians, for if you do, then you are not voting your own sentiments.

What will be the result of next Tuesday's election we will not endeavor to predict, for as things now stand, both the Republicans and Democrats are claiming everything that is in sight.

ARMAMENT OF WARSHIPS.

The annual report of Captain Sampson, chief of the Naval Ordnance Bureau, Washington, shows that a great deal of work has been done during the past fiscal year towards the armament of the ships of the navy. Up to date the bureau has built 450 guns of large caliber, has 89 partly completed and has condemned only two. All of the six-inch guns on hand are to be converted into rapid-fire guns as soon as funds are available. The appropriation of $250,000 for reserve guns is being utilized to construct two eight-inch, to twelve-inch and two thirteen-inch guns, and these, with those previously authorized, will supply the needs of the naval service for some time, leaving the only appropriation needed that for guns to arm the auxiliary cruisers. Much difficulty has been experienced with brown powder in the large caliber guns, and an escape from this by the introduction of smokeless powder is much desired. Very satisfactory powder of this type for the use of the smaller calibers is now being made, and it will be issued soon for all calibers up to six-inch. A large number of five and six-inch projectiles is still needed, and the bureau strongly urges that it be authorized to acquire a reserve store, as the projectiles improve by the lapse of time.

During the past year 2,262 tons of armor have been delivered, of which 684 tons were reformed plates. The deliveries under the old contracts have been completed, and the makers are showing great activity in taking up the work on the new plates, so that it is predicted the construction of the new ships will not be delayed for want of armor. The two armor companies now claim a total annual capacity of 3,400 tons of armor. The department has inspected and classified as auxiliary cruisers nineteen American steamers on the Atlantic coast and nine on the Pacific coast. These will require 46 six-inch guns, 27 five-inch, 104 of the four-inch, 54 of the six-pounders, 8 of the one-pounders and 112 machine guns. Congress at its last session appropriated $400,000 for this purpose, and it is earnestly recommended that a similar appropriation be made for the next fiscal year, so that the work already begun may not cease until all of the guns are provided.

Others have found health, vigor and vitality in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it surely has power to help you also. Why not try it?

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA.

The University of California is to be made richer by $4,000,000 in gifts from various persons, chief among whom is Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, widow of the millionaire Senator from California.

This amount is not to be given all at one time, but will be paid as the State is prepared to make proper use of the money. The State must spend $500,000 on buildings and when this is done the gifts will be paid.

These facts became known at the meeting of the board of regents of the university when Mrs. Hearst sent a note to the board giving $15,000 to be used in securing plans for new buildings. The architects of all countries are invited to compete and submit plans for a group of buildings of similar design which are intended to surpass anything of the kind in the world.

Mrs. Hearst stated that she would erect two buildings at her own expense, one of which would be a memorial to her husband. The names of others who will give funds are not announced.

The Onward March

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't waited beyond reason, there's complete recovery and cure. Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter) great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Why

Do people buy Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference to any other—in fact almost to the exclusion of all others?

Because

They know from actual use that Hood's is the best, i. e., it cures when others fail. Hood's Sarsaparilla is still made under the personal supervision of the educated pharmacist who originated it. The question of best is just as positively decided in favor of Hood's as the question of comparative sales.

Another thing: Every advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla is true, is honest.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

No. 6612 EQUITY.

In the Circuit Court for Frederick County, sitting as a Court of Equity.

SEPTEMBER TERM, 1896.

Maria M. Gorley and John C. Gorley, her husband, vs. Mary Sies, widow of Joseph Sies, and unknown heirs of Joseph Sies, deceased, George Sies and Mary Sies his wife, Ellen L. Linebach and Shepard Linebach her husband, unknown heirs of Samuel Sies, deceased, Emma J. Lonsbury, daughter of Benjamin Sies, deceased, and Lonsbury, her husband.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain tract of land of which Eliza J. Claybaugh and Arnold R. Sies were seized and possessed as tenants in common and to distribute the proceeds among those entitled thereto according to their respective rights and interests. 1st. The Bill states that Eliza J. Claybaugh and Arnold R. Sies acquired a certain tract of land situated in Frederick county, State of Maryland, as tenants in common from Daniel Sies, executor of Samuel Sies, by deed dated the 22d day of April, and duly recorded in Liber T. No. 8, folio 655, one of the Land Records of Frederick county, a certified copy of which is filed with the Bill.

2nd. That said Eliza J. Claybaugh conveyed all her right, title and interest in the said tract of land to Maria M. Sies, since intermarried with John C. Gorley, by deed dated the 28th day of Oct., 1879, duly recorded in Liber A. F. No. 1, folio 164, one of the Land Records of Frederick county, a certified copy of which is filed with the Bill.

3. That the said Arnold R. Sies in his life time executed a Mortgage on his interest in the said tract of land to his brother, Joseph L. Sies, and the said Joseph L. Sies, by deed dated the 15th day of Sept., 1884, duly recorded in Liber W. L. P. No. 1, folio 18, one of the Land Records of Frederick county, a certified copy of which is filed with the Bill.

4. That the said Joseph L. Sies is now dead and left a widow and several children whose names are unknown to your orator and whether said Joseph L. Sies died testate or intestate is not positively known to your orators, although your orators believe and charge that he died intestate and the said widow Mary is his Administratrix and is settling up his estate.

5. That the said Arnold R. Sies died intestate and unmarried about the year 1890, leaving no children but the following heirs at law as far as your orators are able to ascertain:

1. The children of the above named Joseph L. Sies, a deceased brother, whose names are unknown to your orators and whether adults or infants is also unknown, who reside in the State of Missouri and are non-residents of the State of Maryland. 2. Ellen L. Sies, a sister who intermarried with Shepard Linebach, both of whom are adults and reside in the State of Indiana and are non-residents of the State of Maryland.

3. John A. Sies, a brother, who your orators are informed is dead, but whether he left children or not is unknown, and for a long time he was a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and the said children, if any, are also non-residents of the State of Maryland.

4. Mary Sies, a deceased sister, who resided at the time of her death in the State of Ohio, and the names of her children, if she had any, are unknown to your orators, and if any, are non-residents of the State of Maryland.

5. Emma J. Lonsbury, a daughter of Benjamin Sies a deceased brother, who intermarried with Lonsbury, both of whom are adults and reside in the State of Illinois and are non-residents of the State of Maryland.

6. George J. Sies whose wife's name is Mary, both of whom are adults and reside in Frederick county, State of Maryland.

7. Samuel Sies, a brother, who your orators are informed is dead, but whether he left any children or not, is unknown to your orators, and for years he resided in the West and was a non-resident of this State, and his children, if he left any, are also non-residents of the State of Maryland.

8. Maria M. Gorley, who intermarried with John C. Gorley, a deceased sister, who died intestate, both adults and reside in Frederick county, State of Maryland.

9. The real estate of the said Arnold R. Sies in the said tract of land descended to and vested in the said heirs at law, who are seized and possessed of the same as tenants in common subject to the mortgage lien above mentioned.

10. That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein and that it would be to the best interest and advantage of all the said parties interested to have the same sold and the proceeds divided among them according to their respective interests therein.

It is thereupon this 16th day of October, 1896, ordered by the Circuit Court for Frederick county, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the complainants, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Frederick county once a week in each of four successive weeks before the 21st day of November, 1896, give notice to the said Mary Sies, widow of Joseph L. Sies, and the unknown heirs of Joseph L. Sies, and the unknown heirs of Samuel Sies, if any, non-residents of the State of Maryland, the unknown heirs of Mary Sies, if any, non-residents of the State of Maryland, Emma J. Lonsbury and Lonsbury, her husband, residents of the State of Illinois, and Samuel Sies and the unknown heirs of Samuel Sies, if any, non-residents of the State of Maryland, to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor, on the 7th day of December, 1896, to answer said Bill of Complaint and show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

(Filed October 16th, 1896.) JOHN L. JORDAN, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Frederick County. TRUE COPY— Oct 29-31

WANTED TO BUY FOR CASH.—A small farm in a good location with dwelling and outbuildings, near Emmitsburg. Address, B. J. TYSON, oct.30

THE Frederick News recently entered upon its twentieth volume. The News is a welcome visitor to this office, and the older it gets, the more instructive and interesting it becomes. Success to the News.

JUSTICE J. A. Young sentenced John Carrel to the House of Correction for five months for stealing an overcoat from a dummy in front of the New York Clothing Company's store Hagerstown. This is the second time this overcoat was stolen, the first time a few days ago, when the thief got a similar sentence.

BURGARS broke into the house of Frank Hade, of near Middleburg, while the family were attending the Hagerstown fair, and stole $100 in cash and a $150 gold watch. The burglary occurred about the same time the house of Mrs. Kate Gordon, in the vicinity, was robbed of $43 in cash and valuable jewelry.

We have received a communication giving an account of a surprise party at the home of Mr. Edward Hoffman, but owing to the writer neglecting to send his name with the article, it is withheld from publication. This is in accordance with an established custom of this office, and many communications are assigned to the waste basket for want of a signature. It is not necessary that the name of the writer should be attached to the article when it appears in print, except in exceptional cases. The name of the author is required as an evidence of good faith. If the writer of the above article will send his name, the communication will appear in next week's issue.

The Tyranny of the Desk. We will suppose that your occupation is sedentary—that you are chained, so to speak to the desk in some counting house, or perhaps to the loom in some mill where you are compelled to labor from morning till night. Sunday is your only day of relaxation. You return home every evening, wearied mentally and bodily. Your health and strength begin to fail. What will most effectively recuperate your vital energy? The weight of evidence points to no other conclusion than that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is your safest, most reliable, and surest remedy. It is persistent, and your system will soon realize its pristine vigor. Every function will receive a beautiful impulse. There is no remedy to equal the Bitters for nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness. It cures and remedies all forms of malarial diseases, and is a preventive of rheumatism and neuralgia.

Verdict in Favor of Annan, Horner & Co.

The ejectment suit of Annan, Horner & Co., against D. H. Reiman, his wife, and others, was tried last Monday in the United States Circuit Court at Philadelphia, before Judge Butler, who directed the jury to render a verdict in favor of Annan, Horner & Co. The defendants counsel interposed two defenses, one that Chas. M. Hunter had in January, 1896, leased the Reiman farm for one year from April 1st, 1896; the other that Mrs. Reiman had a resulting trust in the land for $42,500.00. The court reserved its decision as to Hunter's right to the possession of the farm till April 1st, 1897, but excluded evidence as to the resulting trust claimed by Mrs. Reiman. The history of the case is substantially as follows:

On February 1st, 1896, Reiman gave his wife a judgment for $4,200.00, under which the farm was sold at Sheriff's sale on April 7th, 1896, to the plaintiffs, who brought the ejectment suit in the United States Court to recover possession of the premises, the title to which was traced back to a survey dated November 14, 1770, by Archibald McClellan, on which a patent bearing date October 2, 1778, was issued to Samuel Scott, called "Scottsburg," then situated in Hamilton Bann Township, York County, Pa., and now in Liberty Township, Adams County, Pa.

R. C. Dale, Esq., of Philadelphia, and E. L. Rowe, Esq., of Emmitsburg, were the counsel in the case for the plaintiffs; Hon. W. S. Stenger, of Philadelphia, and Senator W. R. Brewer, of Chambersburg, counsel for the defendants. The costs will fall on the defendants.

Dressed as a Woman.

Tuesday Rev. L. L. Lloyd, of Gaithersburg, while walking on the road near that place met a person dressed as a woman, whom he supposed to be George Neal, the negro who was arrested as an accessory to the murder of the Buxton family. The person wore a heavy black crepe veil. He has since also been seen, so it is believed, in one of the town stores. This fact has caused considerable uneasiness in the minds of the citizens of both Rockville and Gaithersburg, as Neal was sent away from Gaithersburg and positively forbidden to ever let his face be seen in that neighborhood again.—Sun.

Flock of Hawks Two Miles Wide.

Farmers from the lower section of Allegany county report the passage, in a southerly direction, of a flock of hawks that was two miles wide and was fully three hours in crossing the valley. The sun was obscured for a time by the moving black cloud. One farmer not satisfied as to the species of the bird, fired into the flock and brought down six. They were found to belong to the bird and not chicken hawk species.

A Dandy Windmill, Make It Yourself.

I have a neighbor that made one of these windmills, and I have been watching it closely. It is the best mill I have ever seen and you can make one for less than $10. I am going to make two immediately and don't see why your farmer can't have a windmill when he can make it himself for so little money. The mill is durable, powerful and runs easily. Any person can get diagrams and complete directions by sending two-cent stamps to E. D. WILSON & CO., Allegany, Pa., and any one who has a windmill can make money anywhere putting these mills up for others, and I see no use of paying $50 or $60 for a mill when you can make one just as good for $10.

Annual Field-Day Games at Mt. St. Mary's College.

J. Rodger Flannery '99, of Pittsburg, Pa., won the gold medal for excellence in sports. He scored 27 points; John Hurley, '98, Boston, was second with 15 points; Frank Behen, 1900, Pittsburg, was third with 7 points; Frank Smith, '98, Pittsburg, and Diebold, 1900, Pittsburg, were tie with 6 points each. The remaining 20 points were divided among five contestants. Twenty two students entered the contest. The records were a disappointment as they were much smaller than in former years, principally because Flannery had a walk over.

The events were: 100 yds. dash: Flannery, first; Ahem 1901, Boston, second; Lawrence Levert, '99, New Orleans, third; time, 11 1/2 seconds.

Putting shot—standing: Flannery, first; Behen, second; Hurley, third; distance, 35 feet 4 inches.

Putting shot—running: Flannery, first; Behen, second; Behen, third; distance, 45 feet 1 inch.

Broad jump—standing: Flannery, first; John McCarthy, 1901, Waterbury, Ct., second; Behen, third; distance, 9 feet 3 inches.

Broad jump—running: Frank Smith, '98, Pittsburg, first; Hurley, second; McCarthy, third; distance, 16 feet 7 inches.

Hop, step and jump—standing: Flannery, first; McCarthy, second; Behen, third; distance, 27 feet 9 inches.

Hop, step and jump—running: Hurley, first; Smith, second; Flannery, third; distance, 37 feet.

High jump—standing: Flannery, first; Behen, second; Smith, third; distance, 4 feet 3 inches.

High jump—running: Lee Horsey, '99, Petersburg, Md., first; Flannery, second; Hurley, third; distance, 4 feet 10 inches.

Pole-vault: Levert, first; Hurley, second; Diebold, third; distance, 7 feet 11 inches.

Kick—standing: Flannery, first; Diebold, second; Hurley, third; distance, 7 feet 5 inches.

Kick—running: Flannery, first; Diebold, second; Hurley, third; distance, 7 feet 8 inches.

Throwing ball: Peter Ferrand, 1901, Central America, first; Hurley, second; Diebold, third; distance, 81 yards.

The annual retreat for the students, which was given by Rev. Father Halpin S. J., of New York city, ended Sunday morning.

In Our Great Grandfather's Time.

Big bulky pills were in general use, like the "blunderbus" of that decade they were big and clumsy, but ineffective. In this century of enlightenment, we have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver stomach and bowel derangements in the most effective way.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, by the use of these little "Pellets" they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

The "Pellets" sick and bilious headache, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks and kindred derangements of liver, stomach and bowels.

Birthday Party.

A very pleasant birthday surprise party was given to Mrs. Joseph M. Rosensteel, in honor of her 64th birthday, on Thursday evening, Oct. 22. She received some very useful and handsome presents. The evening was very pleasantly spent in playing all kinds of games, and at the hour of 11 o'clock they were invited to the dining room, where an ample supply of cakes, fruit, etc., were served. Among those present were: Mrs. Joseph Knott and Mrs. Motter, of Motter's Station; Mrs. Peter Shorb, Mr. J. C. Rosensteel and wife, Mr. John Rosensteel and wife, Mr. James Rosensteel, Mr. John Hoke and wife, Mr. John Shorb, Mrs. John Tervin and son, Joseph, of Baltimore; Mr. Wm. Myers and wife, Mr. S. R. Grinder and wife, Misses Jennie, Louise, Agnes, Mary, Ella and Maggie Rosensteel, Messrs. George, Harry and John Rosensteel, Willie and Charles Myers, Albert Adelsberger and Michael Peddicord.

There was a very interesting game played, the prize being won by Mrs. J. C. Rosensteel. The guests departed for their homes after bidding the host and hostess good night.

Surprise.

On last Monday night, Mr. and Mrs. N. Baker, of this place, were tendered a most delightful surprise party, by a host of their relatives and friends, at their hospitable home, on Rail Road avenue.

The principle features of the evening were dancing, vocal and instrumental music, also games of various kinds. After which the guests were invited to the dining-room, where a sumptuous repast was served consisting of all the delicacies of the season. At a late hour the party returned to their homes much pleased with the cordial welcome they received from the family. Excellent music for the dancing was kindly furnished by Messrs. Lawrence Dellman and John Little, of Mt. St. Mary's.

That Wonderful Churn.

I want to say a few words in praise of this wonderful churn. It is so simple and so easy to use that even a child can churn with it. It churns more butter than any other churn of the same size. It is so light and so easy to handle that it can be used in any part of the house. It is so durable that it will last for years. It is so cheap that every farmer can afford to have one. It is so good that it will churn the best butter. It is so simple that it can be made at home. It is so easy to use that it can be used by any one. It is so light that it can be carried anywhere. Dynamite Explosion.

James Malone, aged about sixty-five years, was killed and perhaps mortally injured, in Hagerstown, Tuesday morning by the explosion of dynamite which he was warning preparatory to firing off a blast. He was engaged by the town on the force which is now building the north end dam in North Jonathan street. Malone had four and a-half sticks of dynamite, each stick weighing half a pound, which he was warming at a small fire he had built on a pile of rocks in the street. One stick he held with his hand over the fire. The other lay about the fire nearby. A tremendous explosion followed, which was heard all over the town, jarring houses three blocks away. Malone was thrown ten feet away from the fire entirely off. Both arms are supposed to have been blown off, though Dr. C. R. Scheller, who examined him, stated that he was unable to present, without cutting away some of the flesh, to ascertain if his eyes were blown out or in. A stab wound several ounces was embedded in his neck. His face was fearfully cut and his head was almost reduced to a pulp. Despite his terrible injuries Malone, lying prostrate, waved to his fellow workmen with his uninjured hand to come to his help. He was partly conscious all the time the doctor was dressing his wounds, and he complained that he was freezing. The explosion also severely burnt William Coxen's face and knocked down or Amos Evers, workmen, who were about ten feet away. Every pane of glass in John Boward's house, across the street, were knocked out, and in some instances the window sash was carried with the glass. Pictures on the wall inside were knocked out, and the glass was blown out of the window sash. Pieces of Malone's hand were blown across the street, where they stuck on a fence. His hat was blown into shreds and his watch was blown out of his pocket, the gears, May 1901, falling to the ground. An operation was performed on Malone's mutilated arm. Malone has a wife, but no children. Malone has since died.

Its Cornerstone Laid.

A great throng of citizens of Westminster and the surrounding country, with many persons from a distance interested in Western Maryland College, gathered around the foundation of the new building, at about half past ten o'clock on Tuesday afternoon to witness the laying of the cornerstone of the projected structure, which was done with formal Masonic ceremonies by Door to virtue Lodge of the respective order, assisted by the Masonic proceedings were other exercises of an interesting character, consisting of an opening prayer by Rev. Dr. J. T. Ward, ex-president of the College and president of the Westminster Theological Seminary; remarks by Rev. Joseph W. Smith, himself an alumnus of the college of the class of '80, representing the city of Westminster; Senator J. W. Hering, of the board of trustees of the college, and County Clerk Benj. F. Crouse, class of '79, representing the department.

President D. C. Gilman, of Johns Hopkins University, was on the program for an address, but was unable to be present, and Dr. Griffin, dean of the university, spoke in his stead. Rev. James W. Reake, Th. D., professor of ancient languages at Westminster College, acted as worshipful master of the lodge, and conducted the laying of the stone, giving great impressiveness to the beautiful ceremony. The exercises were concluded with remarks by President Gilman, and the laying of the stone was witnessed by a large number of the alumni association, members of the literary societies of the college and an auditorium, with a seating capacity of thirteen to fifteen hundred.

FANNY KEMBLE.

The Famous Actress Was a Troublesome Woman on the Stage.

Charles Halle once said to me: "Fanny Kemble was the most difficult person I ever had to deal with. I remember one day at Manchester she was to read 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' with Mendelssohn's music...

How deep was the impression she made upon me as a boy. I heard her read that same "Midsummer Night's Dream," with Mendelssohn's lovely music played by a full orchestra, only a year or two after Mendelssohn's death. The famous orchestra player, Mr. Willy (now forgotten) led the first violins. Fanny's versatility, her rapid changes as she sat with the book open before her on a crimson velvet cushion...

CORDOVA AT MIDNIGHT.

Gayety in the Spanish City is Then at its Greatest Height.

In the evening, after dinner, about 8 o'clock, we drew chairs out upon our little balcony above the Pasco. Listless groups had gathered about its cafe. Two gypsy children, as black as negroes, in their scant white shirts, with persistent hands and voices were carrying on Spain's one flourishing business, but it was not a stimulating sight, and tired out with the day's journey, we went at once to bed. It must have been two or three hours later when we were awakened by a loud crash of cymbals and blast of trumpets. Our first thought was that soldiers were marching through the town, and we hurried to the window to see. Below a great mass of people were seated under the palms. Open carriages were passing up and down on each side, and men on horseback. Very smart nurses, with great bows of ribbon on their heads, had brought wide awake babies out for an airing. Great trucks and vans of merchandise rumbled by. Workmen were about. Half way down the Pasco a band had just begun to play. The cafes were ablaze with light, their tables crowded to overflowing. Cordova at midnight had come to life.

The air was hot and close, used up by that vast multitude, and the dust, stirred by their ceaseless march, choked us where we stood. It was hopeless to try to sleep again, and we waited by the window. Of a sudden a bell sounded loud above the voices of the crowd. At once the band was hushed, carriages were stopped, the people on the chairs under the palms were on their feet, and not a man but stood, hat in hand. We looked to the end of the Pasco, for everybody was looking that way. From out the doors of the Moorish minaret crowned church came a procession of men in tall surplices, with flickering candles and tall lanterns, and a priest carrying the sacrament, under its golden veil, to the dying. Men who a moment before had been drinking felt upon their knees, and we heard their murmur of a low chant, as the priest walked slowly on between the rows of kneeling people, praying there in the starlight under the palms. And so in Spain today, as yesterday, does life in a moment change from fooling to prayer, as the shadow of death passes by, only to return to its folly as readily when the shadow has passed. Once the priest had gone back to the church, and the doors were shut, the music, leader than ever, went on where it had left off, carriages rolled on, and horsemen pranced after them.

There was no sleeping any more. We dressed and packed our bags, and when in the first dawn the band went away and the last few stragglers were going home and a few peasants were coming in with their donkeys and calves were being shut to take our places in the hotel coach and drove off to the station in time to catch the express from Madrid to Seville.—Elizabeth R. NEW HAND UNDERSTOOD.

A Woman's Testimony as to the Value of Knowledge of German.

It was just a little informal gathering of friends, and as they sipped tea with their hats on and gossiped about church societies and of the preponderance of girls among the babies that had recently arrived, one of them let fall a German expression. "Oh, dear me! Do you speak German?" asked the tall woman from down east, who plumes herself upon having married a German broker and thinks she speaks German herself. "How delightful!"

"Certainly," said the stout woman who was addressed. "I should think I ought to. I lived in Germany for ten years before I was married. It is a very useful language, and my husband does not speak German, but I remember one instance when the knowledge of just one little German word was of great help to me. You see, I always made it a practice to begin teaching German to my children when they were babies, and just teaching them one word at a time and saying that one word whenever it was appropriate until it was indelibly fixed in their memory. Now, when my last baby was beginning to walk, I wanted to teach her that the fire was hot, and so whenever she went near it I would pull her away and point to the stove and say, 'Heiss!' I said it a great many times, and by and by she learned that 'heiss' meant hot. Now, one day my husband was breaking in a new man at his factory, and he wanted to warn him about some dangerous place. The man was a German, and my husband was at a loss as to how to make him understand until, all of a sudden, he remembered having heard me instructing the baby. So he pointed to the place and called to the man, 'Heiss!' 'Heiss!' The man's face lit up, and he turned to my husband and exclaimed: "I understand you perfectly."—New York Sun.

Beresford's Brevity.

Lord Charles Beresford is a man of few words and those very much to the point. Speaking in the house of commons one day in reference to the Arab slave dealers, he said, with great emphasis: "Mr. Speaker, we ought to catch these men, give 'em a fair trial and then hang 'em." Receiving an invitation to dinner at Marlborough House one evening, he replied by wire: "Sorry can't come. Lie follows by post."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Mosquito Eggs.

The eggs of the mosquito are fastened together by a viscid secretion from the insect's body. From 250 to 300 eggs are laid at a time, and the little boat-shaped mass of so constructed that it will not overset. It cannot be sunk nor is it injured by wind, rain or water. It is abandoned by the insect, and the eggs are hatched by the heat of the sun or atmosphere. A temperature below freezing is said not to destroy the vitality of the mosquito's eggs.

In 1841 Smyrna was visited by a conflagration which destroyed 12,000 houses. The buildings destroyed were light wooden structures, and a fire once kindled in a town of frame buildings closely crowded together is almost impossible to subdue.

TAME OCEAN FISHES.

WHALES AND PORPOISES ARE SOMETIMES PAINFULLY SOCIABLE.

Good Natured Bob, an Acquaintance on the Florida Coast—Some Interesting Experiences With Whales in the Pacific Ocean.

Travelers up and down the coast of Florida will remember a certain porpoise that for years, and up to 1881 in the remembrance of the writer, paraded up and down a quarter section of the Florida peninsula. He was known as Bob, and though he rarely answered to his name he was well known to all sailors in those parts. Bob was recognized by a peculiar cut in his dorsal fin, giving it the appearance of having a window in it. Some thoughtless passenger, wishing to practice on all animate travel with his revolver, had inflicted this injury, and the porpoise apparently was very proud of it. In any event, it was exhibited at every opportunity to the occupants of passing vessels. It would come near the vessel, follow it at times after a gambol about the bow or stern, but its chief position was about 100 yards away, within good rifle shot, where it would swim along parallel with the course of the vessel, a tempting target to marksmen. So in the course of time Bob's back became seared and scarred, and if current report was valued at anything he carried in his blubber not a few ounces of lead—forcible reminders that porpoises as well as alligators have no rights that are respected on the Florida coast.

In the Pacific some whales are very friendly, especially off the coast of Los Angeles county, Cal., where on more than one occasion they have astonished if not alarmed sailing parties who have been becalmed. These whales, it should be said, are perfectly harmless, and their attentions are merely from curiosity, but to have several of these huge creatures from 40 to 60 feet long floating about in close proximity is not altogether pleasant. What is supposed to be the same whale has earned a reputation for friendliness, and during the summer months it frequently seems to meet a large steamer that plies off shore, and either follows it along or plays about, entertaining the passengers by spouting. On one trip the whale placed itself about the steamer and swam with it deliberately, and the captain was obliged to slow down and finally stop, fearing to run into the huge creature.

Perhaps the most remarkable instance of friendliness on the part of whales was experienced by the owner of a yacht that sailed from one of the southern California ports. She became becalmed the second day out, and suddenly four or five large whales came alongside and for several hours amused themselves at the expense of the crew, who were a good deal frightened. They rubbed their backs against the bottom of the yacht and blew and spouted so that the drops fell on the decks. If the yachtmen had thrown overboard some oil or other disagreeable fluid, they would soon have gotten rid of these companions, which only left them when a breeze sprang up and they got under way.

Fishermen at the Atlantic coast are occasionally troubled with inquisitive whales. One boat or dory was followed for miles, the whale once getting lifting and rising beneath it, terrorizing the fishermen, who pulled for the shore as fast as he could, the whale following until the water began to show.

Why whales should follow vessels might seem a mystery, but the solution is that in all probability they consider the vessel a companion, either whole or in part. This was well illustrated in the California coast by a whale which evidently took the ship Plymouth for one of its kind. This whale was a sulphur bottom, about 90 feet in length, and it joined the ship off the Golden Gate as it left San Francisco and remained by it through the entire voyage to Realejo, South America. The big fish soon became a nuisance. It swam alongside in such close proximity that its breath discolored the paint of the ship. Then it would rise gently beneath the keel, which would cut and tear it. At other times it would swim along directly in front and keep the crew in constant fear of a collision that might under certain circumstances dismast the ship. The men tried almost every device they could think of to drive the whale away. They shot at it with rifles and pistols, struck it with pieces of wood and bombarded it with bottles and hot coals as it came up, but all to no purpose. It went on "keeping company" until the ship finally entered such shoal water that it was obliged to sheer off.

The sociability of dolphins and porpoises is well known, their graceful gambols about the prow of vessels being a very common sight. No matter how rapid the pace, these attractive creatures so time their motions that they pass and re-pass the flying cutwater with the greatest ease.

The close proximity of such large animals to vessels might suggest a possible danger, yet fatalities are rare and few are known where the whale has not been attacked. The terrible incident of the Essex is perhaps the only one. Here the whale was run down by the ship, the shock from the contact being so severe as to throw the crew to the deck and almost dismast the vessel. The whale swam off and a few moments later the lookout cried out that it was coming for them on the surface. The animal was inspired by revenge, and at full speed struck the ship in the bow so powerful a blow that the bow was crushed in, and the vessel went to the bottom ten minutes later, leaving the men in boats 700 miles from the coast of South America. A survivor of the accident still lives in the little town of Santa Monica, Cal.—Cor. New York Post.

THE BATTLE OF THE NILE.

Nelson Said It Was a Conquest, Not a Mere Victory.

Eleven out of 13 French ships of the line had been taken or destroyed and two of the four frigates. It was not a victory; it was a conquest. So wrote Nelson regarding it. It is unnecessary here to speak of the titles and rewards which were showered on the victor. It is of more real interest to consider the true significance of the victory, the sense in which it could be said to be a conquest. In England we have too much accustomed ourselves to look on it merely as the most brilliant of sea fights, and in France it has been spoken of as a reverse indeed, but one which cannot cloud the splendor of the battle of the Pyramids. None the less, it was the conquest of Egypt; it was the isolation and virtual imprisonment of the French army.

Bonaparte understood this from the first, and after a vain and hopeless campaign in Syria—hopeless against the power which commanded the communications by sea—he made an ignominious flight, leaving Kleber to get the army out of the mess in which he had put it. Nelson, too, understood it and wrote on Aug. 11: "The French army is in a scrape. They are up the Nile without supplies. The inhabitants will allow nothing to pass by land, nor H. N. by water. Their army is vasting with the flux, and not 1,000 men will ever reach Europe." And some months later, March 22, 1798, he wrote: "The ambassador of Bonaparte has been intercepted by Tronchereux on his way to Constantinople, and among other articles of his instructions is an offer to enter on terms for his quitting Egypt with his army. This offer is what I have long expected the glorious battle of the Nile would produce, but it was my determination from the moment before, if I could help it, to permit a single Frenchman to quit Egypt. To Egypt they went with their own consent, and there they shall remain while Nelson commands the detached squadron."

A letter from Kleber to the directory, written only a month after Bonaparte had deserted his post, reveals the hopelessness which was felt. "I know," he wrote, "all the importance of the possession of Egypt. I used to say in Europe that this country was for France the fulcrum by means of which she might move at will the commercial system of every quarter of the globe. But to do this effectively a powerful lever is required, and that lever is a navy. Ours has ceased to exist. Since that period everything has changed, and peace with the ports is, in my opinion, the only expedient."—Cornhill Magazine.

A NOBLE SURGEON.

He Saved a Patient's Life at the Peril of His Own.

A certain London hospital has on its staff of physicians one man at least whose heroism has been demonstrated, and his corpulence pallid, and faltering gait, although he is in his prime, bear daily witness to this fact. "It happened ten years ago," said one of the hospital clerks in telling the story, "just after the doctor became a visiting surgeon here. A woman was brought in suffering from a cancerous growth that must in the end prove fatal. The house surgeon in charge, a young man, advised an immediate operation, and he and his assistants were in the midst of it when the visiting surgeon arrived.

"A student was handling the knife and had laid bare the life destroying cause. "Careful, careful," exclaimed the visiting surgeon as the student dexterously cut the flesh. "If you sever that artery, she may die under the knife."

"The warning came late, the knife had slit the artery, and the blood leaped into the wound. "The visiting surgeon had a small cut on his forehead. To seize the artery so as to stop the flow of blood would necessarily bring the cut in contact with the bacilli of cancer. A moment's delay, on the other hand, meant, perhaps, the woman's death. "Without an instant's hesitation the surgeon's trained fingers had gripped the artery, which he held firmly until it could be ligatured. It prolonged the woman's life a few months," continued the narrator, "but the poison got into the doctor's system, and he lay at the point of death for weeks."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

It Was True.

Late in the evening a report spread through the train that we had a fellow passenger, a man worth $20,000,000, who had gotten on at Buffalo. I made inquiry of the porter of my car, and he replied: "Dat's what dey say, sah, but yo' can't allus tell. He's in de next car, but I can't dun say if he's rich till maunin."

Next morning the porter beckoned me into the smoking compartment and said: "Dat story was all true, sah. "Then he is worth $20,000,000, eh?" "All of dat, sah, an' obbes mo'." "How did you find out?" "From de odder po'tah, sah. Degenam has jus' got him 10 cents, while everybody else has cum down wid a quarter."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
