A Continent of Seaweed.

Plant and Animal Life of a Strange Part of the Globe.

The currents of the sea, its winds and tides, its islands and ice floes, animal and vegetable life, and unexplored regions of both north and south, have from time immemorial furnished subjects of never-ending interest to the scientific and those filled with the love of adventure. Among the mysterious forms of nature concerning which knowledge has been sparingly diffused is the Sargasso Sea. It will be found on the maps of the world, marked on the Atlantic Ocean and located due east of the southern portion of the United States, about midway between the eastern boundaries of the American continent and the Azores. It is a sea floating upon a sea. From the meagre book knowledge upon the subject it is ascertained that it has not changed its relative position since the time it was first discovered by Columbus on his first westward voyage of discovery.

The Sargasso Sea is a great mass of seaweed, miles and miles in extent, and of such density that navigators report that the progress of vessels through it has been greatly retarded. The fact that it has held its present position for such an incalculable length of time, and the fact that vegetable life in the form of gulfweed, together with all manner of driftwood, is always found there, calm and undisturbed, are unaccounted for by those who have theorized upon the subject as resulting from the set of the ocean currents which sweep around it, leaving it, as it were, the centre of a vast circle.

M. F. Maury, a lieutenant in the United States navy, writing on the subject of physical geography back in 1855, touches upon the Sargasso Sea and speaks of it in this manner: "Midway in the Atlantic, in the triangular space occupied between the Azores, Canary and the Cape Verde Islands, is the Sargasso Sea, covering an area equal in extent to the Mississippi Valley. It is thickly matted over with gulfweed (Fucus natans). To the eye at a distance it seems substantial enough to walk on."

Of the botanical and animal life existing in and about this mysterious body comparatively little is known. Gulfweed predominates. It lives upon air and water, having no connection with the soil. In fact, from the great depth of the ocean at this point, any other form of vegetable life but water plants would be out of the question. Of this species there are only a few varieties. Fucus natans and Fucus nodosus are botanical names applied to gulfweed of the Sargasso Sea. The course of the Challenger in 1873, from the Bermudas eastward, skirting the edge of the Sargasso Sea, passed through the Azores and thence to Madeira. Observations were made daily by the British scientists on board. The winds, currents, surface appearance of the water, animal and vegetable life, were all subjected to scrutiny and observation. Sir Wyville Thompson, one of the party, wrote an account of the voyage, which was published under the title "Voyage of the Challenger." In this work is found a brief description of the results of their examination of the peculiarities of the Sargasso Sea. He says: "Some gulfweed was passed from time to time of the species fucus, either Fucus nodosus or a very nearly allied form, evidently living and growing and participating in the wandering and pelagic habits of sargassum. The floating islands of gulfweed with which we had now become very familiar, as we had now nearly made the circuit of the Sargasso Sea, are usually found from a couple of feet to two or three yards in diameter, sometimes much larger. We have seen on one or two occasions fields, acres in extent, and such expanses are probably more frequent near the centre of its area of distribution. They consist of a single layer of feathery bunches of the weed (Sargassum bacciferum) not matted, but floating free of one another, only sufficiently entangled for the mass to keep together. Each tuft has a central brown, thread-like branching stem studded around with air vesicles on short stalks, most of these near the centre dead and coated with a beautiful netted, white polyzoan. After a while vesicles so incrustated break off, and where there is much gulfweed the sea is studded with these separate little white balls. A short way from the centre, toward the end of the branches, the serrated, willow-like leaves of the plant begin, at first brown and rigid, but becoming further on in the branch paler, more delicate and more active in their vitality. The young fresh leaves and the air vesicles are usually ornamented with stocked vases of a campanularia. The general color of the mass of weeds is thus olive in all its shades, but the golden olive of the young and growing branches greatly predominates. This color, however, is greatly broken up by the delicate branching of the weed, blotched with the vivid white of the incrustated polyzoan and riddled with reflections from the bright-blue water gleaming through the spaces in the network."

Some of the forms of life existing in the Sargasso Sea were observed by the party on board the Challenger. These observations were restricted to the surface inhabitants and disclose some peculiar and interesting facts. On this point Sir Wyville Thomson says: "These islands have inhabitants peculiar to them, and I know of no more perfect example of protective resemblance than that which is shown in the gulfweed fauna. Animals drifting about on the surface of the sea with such a scanty cover as the single broken layer of seaweed must be exposed to exceptional danger from the sharp-eyed seabirds hovering over them and the hungry fishes searching for prey beneath, but one and all of these creatures, imitates in such a wonderful way, both in form and color, their floating habitat, and, consequently, one another, that we can, well imagine their deceiving both birds and fishes.

Among the most curious of the gulfweed animals is the grotesque little fish, antennarius marmoratus, which finds its nearest ally in the fishing frog (Lophius piscatorius) often thrown up on the coast of Britain and conspicuous for the disproportionate size of its head and jaws and for its general ugliness and rapacity. None of the gulfweed antennarii which we have found have been more than fifty millimetres in length, and we are still doubtful whether such individuals have reached their full growth and size. It is this singular little fish which constructs the singular nests of gulfweed, bound in a bundle with cords of viscid secretion, which we have mentioned as abundant in the path of the Gulf Stream. Scilloc pelagicus, one of the shell-less mollusca, is also a frequent inhabitant of the gulfweed. A little short-tailed crab (Nautilarius minutus) swarms on the weed and every floating object, and it is odd to see how the little creature corresponds in color with whatever it may happen to inhabit.

"The gulfweed animals, fishes, mollusks, and crabs do not simply imitate colors of the weed; to do so would be to produce suspicious patches of continuous olive. They are all blotched over with opaque white, the blotches sometimes irregular, but at a little distance absolutely indistinguishable from the patches of membranipora on the weed. Mr. Murray, who superintended our surface work, brings in curious stories of the little crabs.

He observes that while everything floating on the surface is covered with them, they are rarely met swimming free, and that whenever they are dislodged and removed a little way from their resting place they immediately make vigorous efforts to regain it. The other day he amused himself teasing a crab which had established itself on the crest of physalia. Again and again he had picked it off and put it on the surface at some distance away, but it always turned at once to the physalia, struck out, and never rested until it had climbed up into its former quarters."

It is probable that the Sargasso Sea will remain in its present locality for all time to come, or at least until the winds and ocean currents shall have changed their course. That a more thorough investigation into its botany and zoology has not been made is somewhat strange in view of the many peculiarities existing there. Some day a special expedition may be made and a more exact and scientific knowledge be obtained.—San Francisco Bulletin.

There would be little doubt of a tariff legislation at the coming session of Congress which would furnish the Government the needed increase in revenue and would at the same time make an extra session of Congress unnecessary; but as the aforesaid schemers have never failed to play their part at any session of Congress, in which the tariff was either acted upon or talked about, nobody expects them to fail to put in their appearance at the coming session, and nobody expects, although many hope against their judgment, that anything sufficiently satisfactory in the way of increasing revenue to make the holding of an extra session of Congress unnecessary, will be accomplished. For reasons of their own—mostly selfish,—all of the schemers want an extra session of Congress.

The more Congressional experience a man has, the less likely he is to go off half-cooked in making predictions about what Congress will or will not do. Senator Morrill, of Vt., who leads the Senate in continuous service, has arrived in Washington to remain during the session of Congress. He has been besieged by the newspaper men for his opinion of what Congress will do. He received them all with characteristic courtesy, but firmly declined to be interviewed.

Representative Bingham, of Penn., doesn't expect any tariff legislation at the coming session of Congress, and he says he has no doubt that an extra session will meet within a month of McKinley's inauguration. He is one of the numerous republicans who oppose passing the Dingley or an other temporary tariff bill at this session of Congress, because by waiting a few months the party can pass a general tariff bill with the certainty that it will become a law. But right here arises the question, will it be certain to pass the Senate, even if an extra session be called? Unless the republican Silver Senators vote for a protection tariff bill, or the republicans get the Senators from all the states now in doubt, it is by no means certain that a protection tariff bill can get a majority vote of the Senate after the 4th of March.

A noticeable feature of the situation is a disinclination on the part of the silver men, either in the House or in the Senate, to commit themselves in advance of the assembling of Congress. They want to get together and talk matters over before deciding upon any line of action, and a movement is on foot among them to hold a silver caucus and decide upon a policy to be supported by them all. If this should be successful, it would not affect the House, but the silver men have a stiff majority in the Senate and if they act as a unit will be masters of the situation, just as they were at the last session.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—War between the United States and Spain is no longer merely a far away possibility; it is a strong probability—many think a certainty—of the near future. Such is the opinion of the most conservative men who are posted on the situation in Spain, for it is the situation in that country, and not in either the United States or Cuba, that will bring war, if war really comes. Officials of this government who will talk at all on the subject say that they do not expect war, but they will acknowledge that the administration is taking every precaution to be prepared for war if it does come. The situation in Spain which may compel the Spanish Government to provoke war with this country is well known to our officials, and may be summarized in a few words. There are three political parties in Spain, the one to which the regents of the Boy King belong being the weakest in numbers, and the two others are already discussing the advisability of combining and doing a little blood-letting at home, making a few funerals in the family of the boy king and in those of his advisers, and giving Spain a new deal. The loss of Cuba would greatly aggravate the Spanish people who are almost unanimous in blaming the United States for the Cuban revolution. That is why Gen. Weyler is making a strong personal effort to crush the Cuban rebellion. If he fails, as he is almost certain to do, members of the Spanish Government may regard a declaration of war against the United States as the only way to save their necks and to give their subjects an excuse for the loss of Cuba. Spaniards as a rule know little of the power of this country and imagine that not only that the war could be confined to American waters, but that they could bring us to terms by capturing or destroying our sea-coast cities; or at the worse, if they fail, they would only lose Cuba, and that they would rather lose it to the United States than to the insurgents. It is said that it is his knowledge of the situation in Spain that has caused President Cleveland to continue his policy of absolute neutrality, against the sentiment of Congress, a majority of our people and a majority of his own Cabinet. He is said to be determined that if there is war, Spain shall be responsible for it.

If the schemers in politics as well as in business could be eliminated,

A certain family whose home is in the suburbs of London have in their employ a cook whose ways are invariably so methodical and her cooking so near perfection that were she to leave her present home one-half of the mistakes in the district would be eager to secure her services. Never by any chance has dinner been late at Myrtle Villa, or the joint under or over done, neither has any policeman crossed its threshold. But, treasure that she is, she came near to making a change of residence at the close of her very first month's stay.

On the morning of the day upon which her wages became due her mistress requested her to step into the study where her master was waiting to pay her. In a few moments she rushed from the study to the kitchen, where she had left her mistress, and in less than time it takes to narrate had given that astonished lady notice.

"But whatever is the matter, Mary?" inquired her mistress. "What has your master said or done to annoy you?"

"He hasn't said nuthin'," replied Mary as she flourished a check in her mistress's face. "Just here on'y given me this for a month's slavery. Not no, I ain't no ortygraph collector, I ain't."

WORLD'S RAW SUGAR SUPPLY.

This year's raw sugar supply of the world surpasses that of '95, notwithstanding the enormous Cuban deficit, according to official statistics received at the Department of State from Consul-General Karel at St. Petersburg.

The committee of Russian ministers officially determines for each period of production the quantity of sugar to be turned out by the sugar factories for the home market, which this year was fixed at over 500,000 tons, an excess over last year at 50,000 tons and the ministry of finance has concluded to lower the prices on account of the cheapening of manufacture, the improvement of beet cultivation and this year's excellent harvest, the new price being $2.33 per poond of 36, 112 pounds, against $2.44 last year.

The official Russian estimate of the world's raw sugar product for this year is as follows: Production of beet sugar 4,960,000 tons, production of cane sugar 2,655,000 tons, stock on hand 1,150,000 tons; total 8,765,000 tons. Last year the corresponding total was 8,290,600 tons. The estimated consumption for the ensuing year is placed at 7,350,000 tons. The export from Cuba, the principal producer of cane sugar, is estimated in round figures at 400,000 tons; it is said, probably, will not reach that amount, in the season 1895-'96, Cuba furnished the world's market with 392,796 tons, in 1894-'95 with 754,402 tons, and in 1893 with 1,160,172 tons.

Why Attempted to Cure catarrh by the use of so-called blood remedies? That catarrh is not caused by blood troubles is self-evident when you reflect that attacks are always due to sudden climatic changes or exposure, and occur most frequently during the winter and spring, though the blood is as pure then as in summer or fall. A remedy which quickly relieves and cures the catarrhal attacks has been found in Ely's Cream Balm.

A CAR LOAD OF POWDER EXPLODES

A car load of gunpowder exploded early Saturday morning on the B. & O. Railroad, east of Avalon, between the Relay and Ellicott City, resulting in the total destruction of five freight cars and hundreds of dollars' worth of merchandise. The car which was consigned to a firm in Indiana, from the Dupont Powder Works, Wilmington, Del., was attached to the first section of a west bound freight train, in charge of Conductor Al Yeager, and drawn by engine No. 1252. It was thrown from the track by a broken rail, and it is supposed the sudden jar caused the powder to explode.

There was a terrible noise, followed by shooting flames. The blaze lit up the neighborhood for miles, and at day break the ground was covered with powder cans, which were found lodged in the limbs of the trees. The accident delayed traffic for several hours. No one was hurt.—Examiner.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A DEN OF THIEVES.

HASTINGS, NEB., Nov. 18.—Chief of Police Lepinsky has returned from Hanover, Kan., where he traced the Davenport National Bank robbers and succeeded in discovering the den of an organized gang of thieves who have been operating through this part of the State for the last six months.

Last Saturday the Bank of Davenport was robbed of everything in the safe, which amounted to several thousand dollars. The work was done by "professionals." Chief Lepinsky got on their track and followed them to Hanover, where he arrested three of them. The robbers' den was what is called a "hole in the wall," and was run by one of the gang, who disposed of the stolen goods.

In searching the cellar the officer dug up about $500 in gold, $30 in silver, plenty of gold watches and jewelry, a large roll of scrip and several dynamite bombs. Among the silverware found was that which was taken from the Davenport Bank. The robbers when searched were found to have $1,300 in currency, several large pistols and four stiletos.—Sun.

BIG CROP OF APPLES.

Throughout the States of chief commercial production, including New England and New York, the crop of winter apples is large. A special report places the aggregate yield at a shade under 59,000,000 barrels for all of the United States. This authority says that the crop in New England, New York, Michigan and parts of a few other States is phenomenal. New England and New York alone have over 16,000,000 barrels, against little more than 7,000,000 a year ago, while Michigan is harvesting the greatest crop of the fruit ever secured in that State. The report covering the Central West, however, shows that in many instances the crop is sufficient to supply home requirements. The Canada crop is among the largest on record. Exports from the Atlantic coast are already 1,000,000 barrels, or a third more than all of last season, and the foreign markets have a capacity for absorbing further vast quantities before spring.

CLAY ELECTED SENATOR.

Alexander Stephens Clay, of Cobb county, Georgia, chairman of the Democratic State executive committee and ex-president of the State Senate, was nominated for United States Senator to succeed John B. Gordon by the democratic legislative caucus Monday afternoon after a long and bitter contest. The selection was in the nature of a compromise after the withdrawal of Governor Atkinson.

The nomination was made on the thirty-first ballot. The vote was: Clay, 95; Howell, 40; Lewis, 18; Norwood, 5; Walsh, 3; Garard, 2.

As soon as the vote was announced pandemonium reigned. Mr. Clay was waiting in the Senate chamber and the cheering reached his ears. He knew he was elected. His friends escorted him to the House, where his presence created a scene of wild enthusiasm.

The friends of the successful candidate immediately began preparations for escorting him to his home, in Marietta, twenty miles from Atlanta, for which point he left at half-past 5 o'clock.

4. That the said Joseph L. Seis is now dead and left a widow named Mary and several children whose names are unknown to your orator and whether said Joseph L. DO YOU Want to be a Martyr? Probably not! But if you do, try and get the dyspepsia by unwise feeding. Then you'll suffer martyrdom with a vengeance! Some people are martyrs to this complaint from childhood to the grave, suffering from all its attendant horrors of heartburn, wind and pain in the stomach, weary slumber and nightmare, capricious appetite, nausea, biliousness, leanness and sallowness. No necessity for all this. The complaint, obstinate as it is, when the ordinary remedies are brought to bear upon it, invariably yields to the great stomachic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which restores tranquility to the gastric region and verities, regulates the liver and bowels, both of which are disturbed by weakness of the stomach, and promotes appetite and an increase of flesh. This "tincture of the soul," the dinner bell, when it peals upon the ear, suggests to the promotion of life and health a comfortable meal if you have tried a course of the Bitters, which also banishes biliousness, rheumatism, nervousness, malaria and kidney trouble.

AN exchange tells of a practical joke they are playing on newspaper men. It is worked this way: "Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it carefully and enclose money sufficient to pay all arrears and one year in advance. Keep your eye on the editor, and if a smile adorns his face the trick works like a charm. Now is the time to play the joke."

An Important Difference. To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not afflicted with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, and sold by all druggists.

Tramps Give Trouble at Waynesboro. A colony of tramps is encamped near Waynesboro, Pa., and many have been running the streets in a semi-intoxicated condition, begging for money and clothing, and in some cases, when refused, they threatened to do bodily harm to those turning them away. Five were arrested and committed to the county jail Wednesday for a period of thirty days. This has had the effect of scaring others and few are now bold enough to go into town.

State Football Championship. The Baltimore Sun of Tuesday, says: "Students of the University of Maryland are raising a great discussion over Mount St. Mary's claims to the State football championship. The contention of the Baltimore boys is that the mountaineers do not play off their own grounds, and thus cannot compete for the honors with a team which travels, and which consequently appears before crowds that are in no wise in sympathy with the visitors. This claim may have weight in regard to final standing. The university complains that in its game of November 7, at Emmitsburg, the spectators seriously interfered with the playing and the score was affected thereby."

"The Maryland Agricultural College will play the University of Maryland on Saturday, and should the Baltimoreans win they will claim the Maryland collegiate championship unless Mt. St. Mary's will come to Baltimore."

The Geological Survey. Governor Lowndes says that the commissioners of the Maryland Geological Survey, including President D. C. Gilman and Professor Clark, of the Johns Hopkins University, will visit Cumberland in the early future and will give such citizens as are interested an opportunity of making suggestions as to the lands, building stone and mineral deposits in which they are concerned.

The commission will pay similar visits to Frederick, Hagerstown and other points. Governor Lowndes regards the work of the commission as very important and thinks it will be of great advantage to the State in directing attention to natural resources hitherto neglected.

Guilt of Manslaughter. At Annapolis, Md., the jury in the case of Richard King, charged with the murder of James Crook, after remaining out all night returned a verdict of manslaughter. King was recommended to the mercy of the court. The verdict, it was said, was a compromise between murder in the second degree and acquittal. King's aged mother, who has been in Annapolis during the trial, has never believed her son committed the crime willfully. The punishment is a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not less than two years in jail and from one to ten years in the penitentiary, in the discretion of the court.

A VALUABLE HORSE was stolen Sunday night from the stable of J. B. Hanway, a cannor, at Joppa, Harford county. The same night a buggy and harness were stolen from Woody Pyle, a clerk in the store of Budds & Chilcoat, at Joppa Station.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Lawrence Stouter, aged about nineteen years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Stouter, of near town, died very suddenly at his home on last Friday evening. The young man had been in town and when he went home he was asked to chop some wood, and after cutting some wood, went to the house and told his people that he felt tired, and intended to lay down for a little while, and that they should call him when supper was prepared. When they went to awaken him it was found that life was almost extinct. A physician was hastily summoned, but when he arrived the young man was dead. Heart trouble is supposed to have been the cause of his death.

Mr. Stouter was possessed with considerable mechanical ingenuity and was the head man in the bicycle shop, known as "Stouter's Bicycle Works," near town. The deceased and his brothers began by repairing bicycles several years ago, and finally undertook to build an entire new wheel. Their efforts were crowned with so much success that they continued to manufacture new bicycles on a moderate scale and turned out a number of wheels the past summer.

The funeral services were held at Mt. St. Mary's church, on last Sunday morning. Rev. J. B. Manley, conducted the services.

Three Graves For John.

John Constance, colored, a well known character of this place, is dead. He died at his home on Lincoln Street at an early hour Monday morning, after a short illness. He was a veteran of the late war. The deceased leaves a widow and three children. Arrangements had been made to bury John on Tuesday afternoon, but as it required sometime for the bereaved widow to decide where the grave should be dug, the funeral was postponed until Wednesday morning. At first the interment was to be made in the Methodist cemetery, and a grave was dug at that place. But as it was dug at the place where John's aged mother is to rest when called to the other world, the grave had to be filled up, and another one was started at another place in the cemetery, but before this one was finished, the widow changed her mind and the work was stopped. She then had a grave dug in the cemetery at Mt. St. Mary's College, where John's remains were laid to rest. The funeral services were held in St. Joseph's Catholic Church Wednesday morning. After the services his remains were taken to the above place and buried.

Catarah Means Danger.

Because if unchecked it may lead directly to consumption. Catarah is caused by impure blood. This fact is fully established. Therefore, it is useless to try to cure catarah by outward applications or inhalants. The true way to cure catarah is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, cures catarah by its power to drive out all impurities from the blood. Thousands of people testify that they have been perfectly and permanently cured of catarah by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Suit Against the Northern Central Railroad Company.

A case is on trial in the Carroll County Circuit Court that is exciting considerable interest. It is a suit by W. J. Tracy, by his next friend, Thomas Tracy, against the Northern Central Railway Company for $25,000 damages for the loss of a leg. The plaintiff alleges that he was on a freight train on March 8, 1895; that he was discovered by a trainman and ordered to get off while the train was running at high speed; that he refused to get off while the train was going so rapidly; that the trainman hit him with a club and knocked him off. He fell beneath the train and had his right leg cut off. The defense contends that the plaintiff had no right on their train; that he was intoxicated and fell off the car, and was not knocked off by a trainman. There are thirty witnesses in the case. Busey, Mitchell and Stockdale represent the plaintiff and Carter and Bond the defendant. The case was removed there from Baltimore county.—Sun.

Joseph Unglebower Killed by a Revolving Saw.

Mr. Joseph Unglebower, of Feagaville, this county, met with a horrible and fatal accident in Zimmerman's woods, on the Manor, about ten o'clock Tuesday morning.

The unfortunate man was engaged in operating a circular saw when he stumbled and fell forward across the rapidly revolving blade, which cut through the shoulder blade, almost severing the right arm from the body. The saw also came in contact with his right side, cutting through a rib to the lungs.

The accident happened a short distance from Adamstown, this county, where word was immediately sent for medical assistance. Dr. Thomas Johnson at once responded to the call, but the terrible injury terminated fatally some minutes before the physician arrived.

Mr. Unglebower was a married man and leaves a wife and family at Feagaville. He was a brother of Mrs. Charles Feagaville, and was well known and much thought of in the locality where he lived. At the time of the accident he was engaged in carrying timber to the saw, and it is supposed that he stumbled over something on the ground.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription imparts strength to the whole system and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," "run-down" debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

Charles Kling Found Dead.

Charles Kling, a young man aged about thirty years, son of John Kling, a farmer of near Liberty, Frederick county, was found dead on the public road last Thursday morning between Liberty and Johnsville.

Charles Brown, a white man who was on his way to Johnsville at an early hour Thursday morning, found the lifeless body of the young man lying in the muddy road, drenched with water, as it had been raining hard all night. He hurried to Johnsville and gave the alarm.

The first impression was that the young man had met with foul play, and this theory was further substantiated after the body had been closely examined by the finding of a bruise on the forehead and evidences that the back of his skull had been crushed. The place where the body was found was soft and muddy, and those who arrived on the spot at first came to the conclusion that such injuries as he bore could not have been produced by falling from his horse. He was a prosperous young farmer and had gone to Johnsville to make some purchases. There was no indication of robbery, as he had $4.20 on his person when found. However, two shirts which he had bought and which he had when he left for home on horseback are missing and cannot be found. The horse he was riding returned to the farm and was found in the stable. Elias Brown, acting coroner, summoned a jury of inquest in Johnsville, with Joseph Crum as foreman.

The remains were examined by Drs. Simms, of Liberty, and Sidwell, of Johnsville. The jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the young man met death in some manner unknown to the jury. The supposition is that the young man was thrown from his horse and was trampled upon, but, on the other hand, there are a large number of people who adhere to the belief that he was murdered.

The case has been placed in the hands of State's Attorney Wm. H. Hinks, who will make prompt efforts to unravel the young man's mysterious death. Kling leaves a wife and three small children.

John H. Williams Dead.

John H. Williams, one of Frederick's most prominent and venerable citizens, died at his home, on South Market street, in Frederick, Thursday night of last week. He had been in failing health for several years and on Saturday previous sustained a stroke of paralysis, which affected his speech and from which he grew worse daily until he passed away. Mr. Williams was eighty-two years old in April. He was born at the family home near Emmitsburg, in 1814, and went to Frederick in 1833, when he took up the course of law with the late Wm. Schley. In 1836 he married Miss Eleanor Shriver, daughter of the late Judge Abraham Shriver, and sister of the late Edward Shriver, for many years water registrar of Baltimore. He practiced law at the Frederick bar and for several years prior to 1849 was editor of the Frederick Examiner. In 1846 he became cashier of the Frederick County National Bank and in 1867 was elected its president, which position he retained until 1888, when he retired from active life. He maintained, however, an unflagging interest in public affairs until his declining health of two years ago. He was a man of excellent literary taste and has one of the largest and finest libraries in Frederick.

Mr. Williams leaves two children, Miss Margaret Jane and Henry Williams, cashier of the Central National Bank of Frederick.

The Question of Mileage for Witnesses.

A committee from the Washington county court, composed of State's Attorney Charles D. Wagoner and George B. Oswald, clerk of the Circuit Court, appeared before the county commissioners of that county, respecting an arrangement desired to be made by which it is hoped to pay mileage to court witnesses who are obliged to attend court from distant points in the county.

Prior to 1889 witnesses from distant points in the county were allowed mileage in accordance with a local law to that effect, but when the new code was adopted, in 1889, the local law which provided for the payment of mileage was left out.

Prior to 1889 court-witnesses were allowed ten cents a mile if they came over ten miles. The general law allows witnesses one dollar a day, and if they come other counties itinerary expenses are also allowed. Court witnesses from Hancock district especially protest against the present practice, as they are obliged to go a long distance from home and their travelling expenses amount to as much or more than their fees. The county commissioners say they have no power under the law to levy taxes for attendants' mileage.

Catarah in the Head.

Is a dangerous disease. It may be led directly to consumption. Catarah is caused by impure blood, and the true way to cure it is by purifying the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarah because it removes the cause of it by purifying the blood. Thousands testify that they have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and do not purge, pain or gripe. All druggists, 25c.

Death of Dr. Seibert.

News has reached Hagerstown of the death in Chicago on last Friday of Dr. John Seibert, a wealthy recluse, a native of Washington county. He left an estate valued at a quarter of a million dollars. He died at the age of about seventy. He was one of the early settlers of Illinois. His parents moved across the prairies and purchased a farm about 100 miles from Chicago. While the wounds are not dangerous, they are very painful. Putman went to Frederick, surrendered, and was held for the action of the next grand jury.
