Expert opinion seems to be di vided. On the one hand Dr. K. Rulf, director of Gefierderte Welt, in a recent letter to the president of the Acclimation society, asserts that the transmission of any disease from a bill to a man and vice versa is absolutely impossible, Says Dr. Rulf: "For more than 30 years I have been occupied in keeping, observing and raising exotic birds of plumage; consequently I have had occasion to deal with them when ill. Every bird that has died has been examined, and I have thus dissected during about 80 years several hundred parakeets. I have always kept these birds during their illness, sometimes for a considerable period, in my apartment, which is somewhat restricted in size, being composed of only six rooms for four grown persons and four children. During all this period I have not had a single case of sickness in my family, although the birds have had all possible kinds of maladies. I am also confirmed in my belief by the fact that I have allowed no opportunity to pass of asking for information on the subject from the principal dealers in birds as Hamburg, Cologue, London, Liverpool, Autwerp, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Marseilles and Bordeaux whenever they had sick birds in considerable numbers. In no case was I informed that any one, either a member of the family or an employee, had been attacked in the bouse of one of these merchants, and I obtained the same information from the directors of the great zoological gardens at Paris and London. No contagion-and I cannot insist too strongly on this point-could ever be established.' These, however, are all negative facts and would fail to stand against even one authenticated case of the transmission of disease to or from pet birds. Such cases, it is believed, have been proved to exist by Dr. Laboulbene, who communicates an account of his investigations to the bulletin of the Acclimation seciety.

Putting a Stamp Upside Down.

Folk in general are not nowadays so careful as they were years ago in the matter of affixing postage stamps to letters and receipt stamps upon bills, and many never note whether the stamps are the right way up or upside down. It was very different, however, before the rush and roar of this balf of the century began, for it was next door to a crime, in the eyes of many, to affix a stamp with the queen's head the wrong way up. Many were not only under the impression that her majesty would "feel offended," but that if she took the matter up personally or told officials to act punishment could follow. There are still, bowever, many people who look with borror upon a postage stamp upside down. - Notes and

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. Aug. 17 .- Rail road officials in St. Joseph report that there is a danger of a car famine on Western roads, caused by the i amense grain crops.

All roads entering this city are rashed to their fullest capacity, and the switching force has been ingreased 25 per cent. The Burlington Company has issued orders that no more coal shall be loaded in lex cars. All tight box cars are needed for moving rain.

Parmers are disposed to hold their wheat for a dollar a bushel, tat railroad men say the upward tendency of the market will start the crop moving.

THE RIVER OF LIFE.

Tis a fleeting, changeful river,
Blent of calm and crusted wave,
Flowing in and out forever
'Tween the cradle and the grave,
Changeful river, ever flowing,
Narrower and broader growing,
Flowing, flowing, ever coing. Flowing, flowing, ever going Toward the still and solemn sea.

Forms of light and shapes of shadow On; the waters will not rest.

Here a bud, by churl hand wrested, Flung into the angry foam. There a flower with blooms invested Plucked and ravished from its home.

Youth and age, and strength and weakness, Beauty, innocence and sin, Pride and power, and love and meekness, All in turn are gathered in.

Time and Death, two grand old warders, Death, upon the still sea's borders, Bids the ice wind on it blow.

Changeful river fond hearts parting, In that still and solemn sea Joined to heal the grief and smarting Bud and flower with stem shall be.

God's strong angel—walks the waves, Claiming with his trump, Evangel, All that pass within the grave. Claiming for his Lord and Master,
By the flaming cross he wears,
All—though battered by disaster—
All the sullen river bears.

An the stiller river bears.

Changeful river, ever flowing,

Barrower and broader growing,

Flowing, flowing, ever going

Toward the still and solemn sea.

RACING IN MOSCOW.

The Herses Run Not Side by Side, but In Opposite Directions.

It is a racing day in Moscow. The course is swept free from snow and follows the wooded shores with red painted railings on each side. On one side is a stand, with seating room for several thousand people, and a special box, with tent hangings, for the governor general, surmounted by the imperial eagle in gold. In front of this box, lower down, you see the prizes, consisting of gold and silver cups, vases and ornamental pieces, all in Russian style and

A bell rings, the course is cleared by mounted gendarmes and the competitors in due order take their places in front the woman, 'that money is for someof the stand, but not side by side, as thing else. The usual race course hum and noise of the betting indignant and protested that she was out of business somebody else can have committee on membership. She went men are heard and increase in volume as the bell rings the second time. They are off! And the fascination of rapid motion, open air and strenuous exertion before."-Dr. George F. Shrady in throws its spell over the assembly, high and low, for trotting is certainly the most fashionable and beloved sport in Russia. You cannot recognize people just yet—the great fur collars are raised and reach over the fur caps, leaving only red tipped noses, beneath which appear never missing cigarettes. The ladies' heads are almost entirely covered by woolen wraps, so here again you can only guess who is who. To a stranger not investing his money in backing his opinion as to winners, the game might seem monotonous enough, as the horses do not finish side by side, but in the way they started. Yet the Russians think differently, and, besides, are there not plenty of vodka and caviare to be had between the races? Single horses are pitted against each other, drawing light little sleighs, in which the driver is seated very low down and far away from the borse, owing to the long shafts intended to give the horse perfect freedom of action. A whip is not used, but on the reins are metal buckles over the quarters, which are employed instead, and almost all horses run without blinkers.

Sometimes a horse is attached to the sleigh on one side of the trotter, who is between the shafts. He is the pacemaker and gallops the whole course, whereas, it need not be said, the trotter must not break. Then follow pair borses, harnessed, and lastly troikas with three horses, sometimes four abreast. Troikas are very barbarously gaudy and clumsy things to look at, but exceedingly comfortable all the same. -Badminton Magazine.

Our Neighbors. Our neighbors generally are the people who have houses near to cur own. that nearness varying according to the size of the district and the number of householders of the same social rank as purselves. In town they live in the same street; in apartments they are on the same corridor; in the country they are separated by a field only or a garden wall; in sparsely tenanted places they are at a distance of a mile or two miles, or it may be six. And the neighbor par excellence is the one who lives close alongside of ourselves-perhaps in the other half of the semidetached house where we have our home or just across the road and opposite, not to the side. This is the general idea of a neighbor, and when we use the term we rarely mean aught else.

But in point of fact we have neighbors wherever we turn-men and women to whom we are bound to render such service of kindness as comes into the possibilities of the time and place. It is not only domicile and the rates and taxes which make us neighbors. It is not only when we live divided by a party wall one from the other at the foot of the hill, or standing face to face across the road, when we can signal our goings out and our comings in and be helpful and neighborly in the matter of the garden roller and the preserving pan. It is not only when we know all the family history, and how our friends and neighbors are impeccable as to their grandfather and without the crooked lipes of a scandal across their family escutcheon. It is not necessary to be intimate, nor even to have been introduced, for the obligations of neighborlivess to be strict and strong. For wherever we can render a service, show a courtesy or do a kindness we have our work cut out for us in the way of duty to our neighbor, and he is our neighbor who stands in need, great or small, of such belp as we can offer .- Philadelthia Times.

Dispensaries of New York.

The least hope of any change in this pensaries that are bountifully endowed. New York city is located on the west side, and, in view of its defiant abuse of all kinds of medical charity, has earned for itself the unenviable sobriquet of the "diamond dispensary." It has such a high reputation for the number and pecuniary ability of its patients that it would appear to be rather a eredit than a disgrace to receive its outrageously misdirected charity. Such at least is the inevitable conclusion that may be based upon the large average of well to do people who claim daily the benefits of free medical treatment so lavishly and indiscriminately furnished to all who apply. Many of these visitors are from out of town districts and will pay several dollars for car fare, will ask for a written diagnosis of their disease and an extra prescription, and will then complain if they are kept waiting beyoud the time for their return train. The examining doctor is content to ride to the dispensary in a horse car; the patient comes and returns in a cab. It is no longer a joke to refer to the display of diamonds or the number of women clad in sealskins in the patients' waiting room, nor does it appear to be unlikely that, in the near future, conveniences will not be required for checking bicycles and distributing carriage numbers in the order of the different ar

"The reception room held about 200 at a time. Nobody was turned away. Fully 50 per cent of the applicants were well dressed, and 10 per cent of them were finely dressed. Three women wore fur coats that had not been handed down from somebody else. There was an attractive display of fine millinery, and the men, more than half of them, bore no evidences of poverty. But all obtained free treatment supposed to be given to paupers-'poor persons.' " Such instances as the following carry

It has been stated that three persons out of every five in this country who have attained the age of 40 years are more or less deaf in one or both ears. A large proportion of this deafness is caused by catarrh, and medical treatment for difficulty of hearing is usually directed to the catarrhal source. In Eu rope much of the deafness is hereditary. Dr. James Kerr Love of Glasgow re cently read a paper on deafness before the Royal society of Edinburgh, from ness may be either hereditary in the direct line or in collateral branches, and that it depends on not one, but many anatomical defects. Intermarriage of deaf persons perpetuates but does not accentuate the tendency of deafness. The bearing brothers and sisters of deaf mutes are as likely to have deaf mute offspring as if they had been deaf mutes themselves. Consanguinity of parents emphasizes family defects, and in this way many cases of congenital deafness occur One of the most singular points of Dr. Love's paper was the assertion that the state had the right to control the marriage of persons belonging to families badly tainted with deafness.
