NEWSPAPER MAKERS

THE PROFESSION.

Why Crusoe Didn't Print a Paper-Edwin of Reporters.

I like to Brag about newspaper men who have done good work; because the men themselves don't like it. For one newspaper man to chant the praises of others of his craft is considered "taboo," and the very fact of its being tabooed makes it exceptionally tempting at times, so frail are we all. The proper professional attitude for a newspaper man-according to convention-is that of being always slightly bored and of hating above all things to see his own or another newspaper man's name in print. As to being in love with his profession-well, that's all right for a new hand just from college, but now-rats!

Don't you believe a word about news-paper work making genuine newspaper men tired. They couldn't keep away from it if they tried. If Robinson Crusoe had been a newspaper man, he would have printed a daily edition of the Juan Fernandez Castaway in blunt stick type on the sand in front of his hut every morning and got out an extra when he captured Friday.

And it must be that age and rank and station don't serve to benumb this feeling. When Sir Edwin Arnold happened to be in St. Louis a few years ago, a sudden crisis in India-Russians and Englishmen glaring at each other across the newspaper world by stress of cir- wear a uniform-a white linen tunic the rugged crests of the Pamirs, the view with him of especially timely value. PATENT APPLICATIONS.

The Vast Majority of Those Sent to Washington Are Rejected.

The applications for patents filed average about 125 a day. There are 35 principal examiners, with perhaps 200 assistants. Every examiner and every assistant examiner has his own specialty. Let us take the case, say, of a poor inventor living in Oregon. He makes a of im valuable invention and desires to obtain a patent. He sends his application with $15 to the commissioner of patents. It is referred to the examiner having charge of that peculiar class of inventions. It is his duty to reject it if anything can be found on which to base a rejection. Nearly 600,000 patents have been granted in the United States, and probably more than 1,000,000 in the rest of the world. If any of these anticipate the invention, the examiner must reject the application. It is not necessary that exactly the same thing should have existed before, for if anything substantially similar can be found the applicant must go to the wall. But, more than this, if anything similar has been described in any printed publication, in any language, anywhere in the world, or if without being patented or described in print it has been used anywhere in the United States, the examiner should reject.

The rub comes all the time upon the degree of similarity which will constitute an anticipation of the invention. A tremendous responsibility, it will be seen, is thus thrown upon the examiner. He wants to be safe. It is both his pride and his duty not to allow a patent to go out that ought to have been rejected. The consequence is that a great many examiners reject almost everyter how broadly new the invention may be, something can always be found that is akin to it. The nearest thing that can be found is used as a basis for rejection. -Washington Star.
