THE OLD CLERK. A Pathetic Picture Too Frequently Pre-

Sometimes we meet him in the early morning going down to office or store, walking the same route he has trod for 20 or 30 years with a regularity so perfect that the very policeman on the beat might set his watch by his movements. I tremble as a child that finds a door Often, late at night, when we are going home from the theater we see him through the iron grated window, still bending over his ledger, for he works slowly nowadays and must work overtime to make up his accounts. His eyes are growing dim and he fumbles with his shocks, Spiders' Web Silk.

It would appear from all accounts that M. Chacot's enterprise of the manufacture of spiders' web silk is to be pursued on a large scale, a factory in Paris having been taken for the purpose. Here the spiders will be kept and worked at regular hours, and when one of them is used up he will be fed and helped back to condition again, while another will take his place on the bobbin. An expert, fully acquainted with the habits of the insect, will be in control of the spider department of the factory, the care of them, feeding, housing, etc.

In obtaining the requisite supply, if the latter exceeds what is necessary for the industry, experiments will be made with a view to ascertaining which of the different varieties produces the finest Before buying your Car- quality of silk, and in this way those not favored with a fine web will be weeded out. Trials will likewise be made with different diets in order to determine whether or not it is possible to train the spider to give forth a web that is an improvement on the ordinary product, the expectation being that perseverance in this respect will result in securing a quality of silk hitherto unsurpassed.

Dangers From Violent Exercise. opinion as to the safety with which women may indulge in violent exercise in view of possible injury. As regard the heart, there appears to be but one opinion-namely, that that organ, accustomed to a quiet life, may be danger ously and permanently crippled by the excessive strain in athletic sports. Experience in medical practice, says an eminent authority, teaches that the patient with a weak heart must be extremely cautious in his exercises, and the demonstration of a dilatation of the healthy heart under sudden, violent, exhausting effort which has been made was of a surprising nature. Many clinical observers in Germany and in this country have detected by percussion and ground. observation of the changes in the heart beats that there is under strain and exertion considerable dilatation, which continues for a shorter or longer time after the exertion is over. Ocular proof of this has been afforded by the Roentgen rays. This shows not only the need of caution by those in good health, but more particularly so in the case of those who suffer from any weakness, constitutional or otherwise, in this organ. -New York Ledger.

A "Daisy."

"You are a daisy," is used by Dickens in "David Copperfield" in the sense of calling a person a daisy in the way to express admiration and at the same time to laugh at one's credulity. Steerforth says to young Copperfield: "David, my daisy, you are so innocent of the world. Let me call you my daisy, as it is so refreshing to find one in these corrupt days so innocent and unsophisticated. My dear Copperfield, the daisies of the field are not fresher than you."

THE BLACK DEATH.

THAT FEARFUL PLAGUE THAT FOL-LOWS IN THE WAKE OF WAR.

In the Fourteenth Century It Swept the Whole of Europe, Killing Twenty-five Millions of People In Three Years-The Pestilence In London.

The plague, or pestilence, that mysterious and fearful visitation which has moved its hosts in the wake of armies to slay more than war itself, is supposed in the great cities of Asia and Egypt, or house.' who formed the encampment of Xerxes, Cyrus and Tamerlane the Tartar. It probably sprang from the impurity which must have existed in the midst of such vast gatherings and in part also from leaving the unburied dead upon the field of battle. At any rate the germs of this fearful human poison have always been most active where conditions similar to those have prevailed. It has always been war and the march of armies that has spread it broadcast over the world from time to time, and as war became less frequent and less worldwide the frequency and extent of these ravages have lessened also.

The first recorded outbreak of the plague in Europe occurred in the sixteenth century. It came from lower Egypt. This was the first lapping of the wave that reached into the east again, there to stay its movement so far as the west was concerned until 544 A. D.. when the returning legions of the Emperor Justinian brought it again into the western world from the battlefields of Persia. Constantinople was the first place it attacked. It killed in three years some 25,000,000 of people. Such figures stagger the comprehension, but the records of the time cannot be doubted. The entire population of Eu-100,000,000-kept down as it was by the constant warfare-and of these 100, 000,000 at least a fourth perished.

The ravages of the plague in Italy, where it came in the track of the war particularly disastrous to mankind. It raged with terrible fury in Naples, where 60,000 persons are said to have There is considerable diversity of died. It fell upon Pisa and seven out of every ten perished. It utterly and forever destroyed the prosperity of Siena. Florence also suffered severely, while 100,000 of the inhabitants of Venice were literally wiped off the face of the earth. From Italy it moved into France, where the mortality was almost as great; in Paris alone 50,000 people died from it. One of the worst features presented by the history of the black death was the cruel persecution it aroused against the Jews. They were supposed to have infected the air in some mysterious manner, and they were accused of having poisoned the wells and springs. In Strassburg 2,000 of them were buried alive in their own burial

The order of the Flagellanto arose at this time, coming from the belief that the sins of the world had at last brought down the wrath of heaven. It was the beginning of the so called Hundred Years' war that carried the black death into England, where in London its victims numbered 100,000. When at last the plague had worked its ravages, it doubled back over its course, to disappear in the east. In 1845 it appeared again in England, first among the soldiers of Richmond after the battle of Bosworth Field, and when the victorious army marched to London the plague went with them to work its havoc there. As long as it lasted the mortality was as great as that caused by the black death half a century before. Five thousand people died in five weeks, and then the plague left London as suddenly as it had appeared there, to sweep over the rest of England. In Scotland the plague of 1568 came immediatel; after the battle of Langside, when Queen Mary was dethroned, but no records of the mortality it occasioned seem to have been preserved. The plague visited London in 1675. This followed after the civil war which ended with the death of Charles II, but so many years intervened that it is impossible to trace any connection between the two events. In modern wars danger from the plague seems gradually to have lessened, perhaps as a result of better sanitary conditions maintained by the armies of today.—Philadelphia

THE FARMER WON.

But Schaefer Considers It the Shortest Game of His Life.

"Some years ago," said a sporting man, "when Schaefer kept a billiard room in this city, he was always ready to play all comers who desired a game. Many strangers and people unknown to Schaefer naturally strolled in; many, too, who probably did not know him. But it made no difference to Schaefer. Sometimes strangers would desire to play for money, but this Schaefer would never do. ber of the royal family of the nation died it was necessary that several others of the people should accompany him to the tomb by suffering death at the hands of executioners. When the "great sun," the hereditary chief of the whole nation, died, all his wives, in case he were provided with more than one, and also several of his subjects, were obliged to follow him into the vale of shadows. The "little suns," secondary chiefs, and also members of the royal family, likewise claimed, when dying, their tribute of death from the living. In addition to this, the inexorable law also condemned to death any man of the Natchez race who had married a girl of the royal line of the "suns." On the occasion of her death he was called upon to accompany her.

"I will narrate to you upon this subjeet," writes an old French chronicler of Louisiana, "the story of an Indian who was not in a humor to submit to this law. His name was Etteacteal. He had contracted an alliance with the 'suns.' The honor came near having a fatal result for him. A SELFISH SHAH.

The High Prices of Persian Lamb Capes

The shah of Persia may be only in the 2:30 class in matters of diplomacy and he does not dare exactly to slap Queen Victoria or Kaiser Wilhelm on the back when the potentates chance to meet, but, so far as matters in Persia are concerned, when the shah makes a law it is generally enforced to the letter. A case in point may be cited in the matter of Persian lambskin. Persian lambskins are and have long been an article of staple demand in the commercial world. They have commanded such good prices that the supply was hardly equal to the demand. Consequently, when the shah one day ordered spring lamb with mint sauce, the cook was obliged to confess that the dish was beyond the command of the Persian treasury. Of course the cook was promptly beheaded, but the shah could not find another cook who would agree to furnish spring lamb whenever his majesty desired to indulge in that deli-

This naturally irritated the shah. After consulting with three or four of his most trusted advisers, who could see no way out of the difficulty and who consequently disappeared from their homes and society in a mysterious manner, the shah finally decided that the commerce of Persia was threatened by the extinction of Persian sheep and Persian lambs. Consequently he made a decree that any person found with lambskins in his possession for purposes of trade or commerce would be fined heavily. Since then the export trade in Persian lambskins has stopped with a blunt and nauseating jar. - Boston Ad-

The Blue Hole of Kentucky. One of the places in our neighborhood which is shunned alike by saint and sinner is the old spring near our town, in Logan county, known as the Blue hole. Though legendary, the story I shall relate of this spring is true, for it has been corroborated by the former generation, by the older men of the present century. According to this story, when the Shaker village at South Union was first established by a few venturesome though hardy pioneers, a member of the sect was dispatched on horseback to put the money in a safe in the county capital. When the treasure bearer reached the spring, he rode his horse in to give it water, but rider and animal were swallowed up, never to rise again. It is said that the Shaker's friends used as muchas 500 feet of rope in an attempt to recover the body and coin, but never struck bottom. I myself have heard old men say they have tried to find the bottom of the spring by using hundreds of feet of cord and a lead sinker, but with-

A Wonderful Discovery.

The last quarter of a century records many wonderful discoveries in medicine, but none that have accomplished more for humanity than that sterling old household remedy, Browns' Iron Bitters. It seems to ontain the very elements of good health, and neither man, woman or child can take it without deriving the greatest benefit. Browns' from Bitters is sold by all dealers.

FIRE AT MONTEVUE.

A large stone barn at Montevue Hospital, about thre miles west of Frederick, was destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock last Sunday morning. With the barn were destroyed 328 bushels of wheat, 40 tons of hay and 30 barrels of corn. Four farm horses, said to be the finest team in the county, and one cart horse were also consumed in the flames.

Harry Snook, night watchman, said he had passed through the barn into the hospital and on going to the fourth floor, and looking out a window, saw a small blaze in the horse stalls. He hurried down and observing the fire in the second stall opened the door to release the horses when the draught instantly carried the flames to the hay and enveloped the interior with fire. One horse had already fallen from suffocation and as he released the second one, instead of the animal Mr. Isaiah Mealey, Frederick's oldest backing out, it pressed up against Mr.

LOOKING AFTER DAIRIES. The State live stock sanitary board is after owners of dairies who do not keep their premises up to the standard required by law. Recently Mr. C. W. Melville, secretary of the board, made a tour of inspection, and as a result notice have been sent to a number of proprietors in different parts of the State that the ventilation, flooring and drainage of their establishments are faulty, and that proper care is not exercised in the handling of milk. The delinquents are given until July 30 to reform these conditions, and if this is not done the board will prohibit the sale of milk from such dairies. It is the purpose of the board to exercise its fullest authority in maintaining a high standard for the dairies of the State, and those who violate the law will be handled in a way to furnish an object-lesson for the future.

THINK NOT AGAIN OF ME.

- Dark sorrow's wings brood o'er my soul, And 'neath their baneful power My hopes have withered like the dews Upon a blooming flower. No more I roam the realms of bliss,
- From pangs of anguish free.
 Thy love must ne'er, ne'er be mine.
 Think not again of me. When in the halls of revelry, Of music and of mirth, Oh, I would have thee to forget - That e'er we meet on earth! I would not wreck thy bark of life Upon an unknown sea.
 Go share thy love with some fond heart
 And waste it not on me.
- The shell that is by ocean cast Upon the sandy shore
 Still in its secret, deep recess
 Keeps echoing its roar.
 So in my heart, which fate has thrown
 Upon love's hidden reef,
 Still echoes my lost loved one's tones
- Amid my tears of grief. -New York Ledger.

PRIMITIVE ANCHORS.

STONES AND WOODEN TUBES FILLED WITH LEAD FIRST USED.

The Earliest Anchors Made on the Hook Principle Had Only One Fluke-Crude Devices That Are Still Used In Different Parts of the World. guage, business people, authors, artists,

There appear to be two ideas which have led up to the invention of the modern anchor: (1) the idea of attaching the vessel by means of a rope or chain to a weight sufficiently heavy to keep the vessel from moving when the weight has sunk to the bottom of the sea, and (2) the idea of using a hook instead of (or in addition to) the weight, so as to catch in the bottom. The English word anchor is practically the same as the Latin ancora and the Greek angkura, meaning "that which has an angle," from the root ank, bent.

The earliest anchors made on the hook principle probably only had one fluke instead of two. In the "Sussex Archæil. Coll." there is an illustration of what has been surmised to be an anchor made out of the natural forked branch of a tree. It was found with an ancient British canoe at Burpham, Sussex. There is in the British museum an interesting leaden anchor with two flukes bearing a Greek inscription. Its date is about 50 B. C. and it was found off the coast of Cyrene.

The invention of the anchor with two Mail. flukes is attributed by Pausanius to Midas, by Pliny to Eupalamas, and by Strape to Anacharsis. Diodorus Siculus states that the first anchors were wooden tubes filled with lead, while another classical writer says that before the introduction of metal anchors lumps of stone with a hole through the middle for the attachment of the cable were used. The form of the anchors used by the Greeks and Romans is well known from representations on Trajan's column and in the catacombs at Rome as an early Christian symbol. This form does not seem to have changed materially for quite a thousand years, as is shown by the Bayeux tapestry.

An anchor which came from Japan consists of a natural forked branch of a tree, slightly improved artificially, so as to make a hook. Two round bars are fixed at right angles to the shank, and to these two ordinary beach pebbles are tied. The length of the anchor is 2 feet 3 inches, the width across the hook 8 inches, and across the transverse bars 1 merce. foot 5 inches. The stones are from 5 to 6 inches in diameter and 2 inches thick.

Another anchor was in use quite recently in the Arran islands, off the west coast of Galway. It is constructed of a sloping bar at each side and three crossbars, forming a figure not unlike the isosceles triangle in Euclid's pons asinorum. The lowest of the three crossbars is of square section and is fixed by iron spikes at each side to the sloping pieces so as to prevent them spreading outward. The stone, which acts as a weight, is clipped by means of the two side pieces, being held tightly by two spliced rings of rope passing under the
