BILINGUAL TELEPHONES.

A Story at the Expense of a Milwaukee Millionaire Brewer.

J. G. Nolen, who is an old timer in the electrical construction business, tells a story on "Val" Blatz, the millionaire brewer of Milwaukee.

"Our company had had some correspondence with Mr. Blatz regarding the putting in of a telephone plant in his big brewery establishment, and I was sent up to try to close a deal.

"I took a couple of phones with me in order to make a practical demonstration should one be required, and I went with the intention of making a sale.

"I got to talking with Mr. Blatz and showed him the advantage of putting in our intercommunicative system throughout his establishment. He listened attentively, and finally said:

"Yes, that is all so very true. But, and he spoke with the conviction of one who was putting a poser, 'but my men down in the malt-house and the warehouses and cold storage are all Dutchmen.

"I, myself, though a German and a graduate of Leipzig and Heidelberg, can speak English, but what would your telephones be to my Dutch workmen, who cannot speak English at all?"

"Well, I saw how the land lay. Old Val could not get it through his head that the telephone would transmit anything but the language of America. I was bound to make the deal, as I said before. So I remarked to Mr. Blatz:

"I can put on some German receivers if you so desire. I have some with me."

"I connected up the phones, made a show of changing the receivers, and in half an hour Mr. Blatz was talking to one of his Dutchmen down in the malt-house. He was delighted.

"You may put them in," he said, "and I shall want one German one in each warehouse, one German one in my office and the business office and a German one in the cold storage house."

"We closed the deal and Mr. Blatz was glad to pay $2 extra for each German receiver we put in. When the phones were shipped from the factory, I had them labeled German and English respectively, and the big brewer was perfectly satisfied.

"It was five years before I saw Blatz again," concluded Mr. Nolen. "He recognized me at once and said with hearty German laugh: 'You are the accommodating gentleman who put in the German and English telephones for me. Well, you are a good one.'—Milwaukee Telephone.

THE CRYSTAL HOUR.

Amethyst, crimson and beryl, A splendor of infinite sea, In fathomless floods of light and pearl From the depths of eternity.

With stately reverent motion And the music of which and din, The ceaseless anthem of turbulent ocean, The surt comes rolling in.

While dim in the distance hover The sea birds, a white winged fleet, And exhausted waves, their costly over, Make ripple marks at our feet.

Soother is the flush and the fever Of earthly passion and power, And the rested heart shall treasure forever The touch of this crystal hour.

FALSE TEETH TRADE.

A REGULAR BUSINESS IN BUYING AND SELLING THEM.

Sometimes the Discarded Sets Are Cleaned, Brightened Up and Resold, and Sometimes They Are Broken Up For the Old Gold in Them.

"Old False Teeth Bought."

This is the sign which attracts the attention of visitors to the office of a certain dealer in dental and optical supplies who does business in Chicago.

"It's queer how people are attracted by that sign," said the owner of the establishment. "I never intended it to be prominent, because there are other lines in my business I am more interested in pushing, but it seems to fairly force itself into the minds of everybody who comes here, no matter what his mission may be, and 'old false teeth bought' is the only thing they can think or talk about.

"There's nothing unadvisable in dealing in secondhand false teeth, although I will admit the sign is an unusual one. It is a legitimate branch of our trade. With ordinary usage false teeth don't wear out and are just as good at the end of a few years as they were when new. The teeth themselves are valuable, and the gold work used in binding even the commonplace kind together is costly. People are forever getting new ideas about their teeth and keep the dentists busy changing or building over their artificial molars. Then you remember that a whole lot of people who wear false teeth are dying every day.

"Ten years ago there was no way of utilizing this old material. It was all dead waste, so to speak. But now it is different, and people are more economical. False teeth, especially if heavily set with gold plates, are worth too much money to be cast aside when new ones are ordered or to be buried in a grave. Thus it comes that a trade of considerable proportions has sprung up in this line, and old false teeth are a staple in this market."

"Who brings them here to sell and what class of customers buy them?"

"Small dentists who are hard up financially and lack the inclination or facilities to clean up and build over the discarded sets, which they are sharp enough to retain from their patrons, are the main source of supply. Sometimes they make their patrons a little allowance for the old sets of teeth, but they get out of this whenever possible on the plea that they are worthless. Then we have poor folk who cannot afford to wear false teeth any longer come in here occasionally and offer them for sale. Undertakers? Well, that is a feature of the trade I don't care to talk about. I might be misunderstood, and some people are so squeamish, and you know.

"Why, one woman came in here yesterday to buy an opera glass. She looked like a good customer and was inspecting some high priced glasses when I stopped to wait upon a man who frequently brings in some fine teeth. She saw me take a set from him and pay for them, and then, noticing probably for the first time, she saw the set which she had been looking at. She came over to me and said, 'I have a pair of false teeth at small cost. Where the sets are not good enough to be used entire they are broken up, the gold either melted down or saved to be remodeled, and the teeth themselves remounted as they are needed for patients. It's a good thing for poor people, for many of them are thus enabled to get passably fair false teeth at a nominal price, when otherwise they would have to go without, owing to the great expense. Excuse me while I wait upon this woman.'

"When the Inter Ocean man left the establishment, the merchant was dickering with an ample proportioned African 'nanny' for a double set of teeth with heavy gold plates, which she said she had found in a hotel where she worked as chambermaid.

"Der german 'don' go to 'at 'orspital,' said aunty. 'Es wuz so sick when dey tak' 'im way he don' 'erick forgot 'is teet,' an I doan' 'speak' he'll wan' 'em any more. Steal 'em? No, sah; no, sah! Boss, 'e say 'tak' ole truck' way. I doan' want 'em 'round 'ere.' Ole truck—umph, umph—why, dat's jes' like findin' five dollars.'—Chicago Inter Ocean.

DON'TS FOR EVERY DAY.

A Few Wise Remarks that Will Help Us in Our Daily Work.

Don't give elaborate dinners when you have to strain a point. One good rule is infallible for well-regulated homes. Let each meal, even if a simple one, have dishes of well-cooked food, good in quality, and rich in flavor—so for the guest who is invited late the extra plate need be the only addition.

Don't fail to give the caller who comes from afar a cup of good tea, with a cracker or a thin slice of bread and butter. True hospitality shows itself in a simple refutation.

Don't talk continually about your husband—what he likes and what he doesn't like; never discuss family matters. In fact, they are of no interest to anybody, and particularly to other women, who are engrossed with their own.

Don't, when writing a letter, cross and recross the pages; a dancing up and down of words which the reader tries in vain to decipher. Number your sheets of letter paper; that is, if the letter is a long one, clearly and distinctly, so that the message to be read proves a pleasure, instead of a worry.

Don't condemn anybody on somebody else's hearsay. Judge for yourself, and never pass judgment until you are fully certain of the case as it stands, and then take as good a view of the subject as possible. Charity is the backbone of good form.

Don't fail to acknowledge an invitation as soon as received. A tardy response is sometimes unpardonable. Like in the answering of personal letters, a few lines will often cover questions asked and desires expressed.

Don't fail to inclose a stamped envelope when an answer to a business letter is required. In all such matters it is necessary, but not in private correspondence.

Don't fail in your duties as a guest. They are many, and the visitor who wishes to be a success should follow rules which are easily recognized.

Don't when visiting, take the host's chair, monopolize his desk, usurp his morning paper, and keep up a continual chatter as soon as he makes his appearance. Busy men at the end of the day like quiet, and the polite visitor knows just when to speak and not to speak.

Don't object to pleasures given you during the visit.

Don't be late at meals or come down when the meal is nearly finished.

Don't correct the children of your hostess. Mothers resent this, and, besides, it is none of your business.

Don't give orders to servants in other people's houses or ask questions. Be deaf, dumb and blind to any happenings of an unpleasant character.

Don't leave umbrellas, overshoes, hats and coats everywhere. A visitor without order who neglects to keep her belongings in her own room is a trial of the worst sort.

Don't gossip, repeat scandals and tell anecdotes that disparage other women. Let no man or woman be a butt for your brilliancy, however interesting.

Don't entertain your friends with the clever doings of your family. It always becomes tiresome and dull. Every one, big and little, speaks for himself, and very often clever children are exceedingly disagreeable.

Don't fail in courtesies of any kind. There are maxims of good breeding and little rules which constitute the foundation of good manners.—Philadelphia Times.

A VICTORIOUS POET.

No Ordinance to Cover His Peculiar Offense.

Some time ago a police justice in Chicago remarked that if Raphael should ever be brought to his court, he would sentence the painter to thirty days. As he was unaware of Raphael's whereabouts, and could not issue a warrant for him, he sent up another man for the specified time.

But this vicarious triumph of the law over art was only temporary. Art has been vindicated, and by a poet. The poet's name is John Homan (supposed to be a corruption of Homer), and he is one of the few poets who make money out of their poetry. The average poet tries to sell his poetry, but Homan keeps his compositions and sells apples.

West Side residents objected to the poet's method of combining his art with his commercial avocation, and had him arrested.

The poet explained to the magistrate that he recited his poetry as he went along the streets, in order to call attention to his wares, and favored the court with the following selection:

Apples, apples.
They are good to eat,
They are good to fry,
Good to make apple pie.
And if you don't believe I,
You can come and try,
Then you will know as well as I,
One-half are rotten,
The other half specked;
They are out here for twenty cents a peck.

The magistrate could not find an ordinance to cover the case, and the poet was discharged.

The Amalgamated Association of Cook County Poets owes the justice at least a vote of thanks.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Negro Turning White.

A curiosity rarely witnessed in this country was seen at the office of the pension examiners in this city today. It was a negro man turning white. The man's name is Sam Smith. He is 67 years old and came here today from Georgetown to stand an examination for a pension. He having served in the Union army. More than three-fourths of the man's entire body is white, the skin fairer by far than that of the ordinary white man. The dark skin remaining on the body is only in small spots. Smith says that his skin began turning white in 1867, and the dark skin has been disappearing from the body ever since. The physicians who examined him today think that should the old man live a few years longer he will be entirely white save perhaps the face. A peculiar feature of the case is that the face has not been turning white along with the rest of the body, the white only showing at a few places beneath the hair on the forehead, and not on the face at all.—Lexington (Ky.) Letter in Cincinnati Enquirer.

A POSSIBLE SCRAP WITH TURKEY.

Are we to have trouble with Turkey before we have negotiated a treaty of peace with Spain? It is understood that the Sultan has recently sent an official communication to Washington advising our government that no compensation would be paid to American missionary societies for the destruction of their property during the Armenian agitation and massacres. Now it is announced, although intimations of the same kind have been made frequently in the past two years, that unless the Turkish government changes its mind and pays indemnity an American fleet will be sent to the Bosphorus to compel a settlement. Whether this threat will frighten the Sultan into compliance with our demands remains to be seen. He has heard such talk before, and as the fleet has never materialized he might possibly have doubted its existence. But Dewey's great work at Manila and the destruction of the Spanish squadron off Santiago cannot have escaped his attention, for the Sultan has a pretty fair idea of what is happening in the world. If he received an ultimatum from a European nation he might ignore it, for the Sultan understands the concert of Europe too well to be frightened by ultimatums from that quarter. But in the case of the United States he may well entertain a reasonable doubt as to whether he can safely continue to refuse compliance with our demands, for we are not embarrassed in our relations with the Porte by any of those political considerations which obstruct the European powers in their dealings with the Turkish government. If an American fleet were sent to the Bosphorus it would give the Sultan a vast amount of trouble. But if we are to coerce the Porte and make a naval demonstration off Constantinople would it not be better to wait until we have settled our difficulties with Spain? It is true that our appetite for fighting may have been whetted in the brief conflict with the Spaniards and we may yearn for more victories in fresh fields and against a different kind of foe. On the whole, however, it would appear to be the part of wisdom to be off with the old war before we are on with the new, and in the meantime the Sultan may reconsider his determination and pay the indemnity in order to save his own navy from the smashing with which it would be threatened. Not the least of the evils which would result from war with Turkey might be the annexation of the Sultan's domains in both Europe and Asia, for we have many expansionists who can prove to their satisfaction that we need Constantinople to "establish our commercial supremacy" in that part of the world. — Baltimore Sun.

AUSTRIA'S EMPRESS ASSASSINATED.

Empress Elizabeth, of Austria, who was temporarily sojourning at Geneva, incognito, was assassinated on Saturday last by Luigi Loechini, a native of Paris and an Italian anarchist and soldier. The foul crime was the outcome of an Anarchistic conspiracy, which comprehended the murder of other sovereigns, including the Emperor of Austria. The desperado wielded a stiletto or pointed file, and inflicted at one blow a mortal wound. The assassin is under arrest. The plans for the funeral of the late Empress Elizabeth, contemplate taking the remains to Vienna on Thursday, lying in State on Friday and the obsequies of interment on Saturday.

REFUSED THREE OFFERS TO MARRY.

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 14.—Miss Dona Kline, of the Baltimore Female House of Refuge, who was confined in the county jail awaiting action of the Baltimore authorities, will return to the institution tomorrow morning. Albert Ellsworth Ohr, of Cumberland, who is attending the republican congressional convention, and who is a director of the institution, was appealed to by Henry King, who has a license to marry her, through his counsel, to have her formally discharged from the institution. He did so, and, after all formalities had been complied with, King went to the jail with a light heart and prospects of a future happiness, to marry the girl. Lena met him cordially, but told him that, after mature consideration, she had decided to remain single and return to Baltimore. This is the third offer of marriage she has refused since Saturday.

—the ordinary, bulky pill. Too big to take, and too much disturbance for your poor system. The smallest, easiest to take, and best are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They leave out all the disturbance, but yet do you more good. Their help lasts. Constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, sick or bilious headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and permanently cured.

JUDGE Thomas M. Cooley, widely known as a jurist and constitutional lawyer, died at his home, in Ann Arbor, Mich., aged seventy-four years. He had been failing mentally and physically for several years.

We give no rewards, an offer of this kind is the meanness of deceptions. Our plan is to give every one a chance to try the merit of Ely's Cream Balm—the original Balm for the cure of Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the Head, by mailing for 10 cents a trial size to test its curative powers. We mail the 50 cent size also and the drug-gist keeps it. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

AUSTRIA'S EMPRESS ASSASSINATED.

Empress Elizabeth, of Austria, who was temporarily sojourning at Geneva, incognito, was assassinated on Saturday last by Luigi Loechini, a native of Paris and an Italian anarchist and soldier. The foul crime was the outcome of an Anarchistic conspiracy, which comprehended the murder of other sovereigns, including the Emperor of Austria. The desperado wielded a stiletto or pointed file, and inflicted at one blow a mortal wound. The assassin is under arrest. The plans for the funeral of the late Empress Elizabeth, contemplate taking the remains to Vienna on Thursday, lying in State on Friday and the obsequies of interment on Saturday.
