TO CONTINUE QUARANTINES. WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.-The rapid decline of yellow fever in the South is shown by the few reports now reaching the marine hospital service, not a single new case being reported and but a few dispatches relating to the fever having been sent here in the past forty-eight hours. The cold weather is accomplishing all that was expected.

The officials, however, are adopting all necessary precautionary measures and Acting Surgeon-General Bailhache said today:

"Owing to the intimate communication between Cuba and the United States it was deemed best to order, by direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, that the regulations governing the active marine hospital quarantine stations be amended to continue all such stations until November 15.

"The necessity of this action is obvious as the transport are still carrying troops betweeen Cuba and our ports at home, with the liability of infection being brought into our own ports. By the middle of next month, however, the disease will have practically disappearin Cuba.

STRANGE FREAKS OF WOMEN

Femiulne Eccentricity in Connection With Wearing Apparel.

The story is told of a lady of respectable position who ordered her apparel in such a way that it never could be said of her that she wore a pair of anything. She wore stockings of different hues, and in the same way introduced strong contrasts into other portions of Ler daily attire. When asked to give a reason for her eccentricity, she could only say that it made her uncomfortable to do otherwise.

Many other freaks of feminine eccentricity in connection with dress might be cited, but it would be difficult to instance anything more absurd than the craze in France some quarter of a century ago for using snakes and insects as toilet adornments.

The Princesse de la Tour d'Auvergne used to keep a little live snake in her pocket, and in spite of the entreaties of her husband and her friends would insist upon having it for a companion at public functions.

Mme, Musand wore a small viper on her neck amid her splendid diamonds, and when she appeared in the box at the opera every glass in the house was levelled at her as she sat scintillating with diamonds and with the dark coil of the reptile's body setting off the whiteness of her neck.

Later on the Comtesse de Villeneuve for several months wore on her neck a beautiful scarabee leetle. It was tethered to a ring by a very slender gold chain, which allowed the insect to run about on the lady's shoulder.

White Is the Favorite. Notwithstanding the fact that much bright color is seen, white is prime favorite both for separate skirts and for waists. The former are for the most part of pique and the favorite modes are the circular flounce and some tailor style, but bodices are infinite in their variety. It is said that there is no place in the world where the existence of civilization is recognized that the maidens of the land enjoy so much innoceut freedom as do the girls of Sweden. On the other hand, the wives are neculiarly devoted and sedate and it is often a source of wonder to travelers how the young woman, who is brimming full of mischief and teasing while unmarried, settles down to the duties of "Jove!" he cried. WAITERS WERE FOOLED.

Mirth-Provoking Incident in a Restaurant With Santiago Attachment.

In a downtown restaurant, whose numerous regular lanch customers are made up in a great part of newspaper men and women, foreign merchants, and city men treating their wives and daughters to lunch on the occasion of an unusual visit to the south end of the island, the lunchers on the second floor were all much interested in a party of three that entered as the waning rush hours had left a number of tables vacant.

There was a man with his arm in a sling and rather roughly-certainly queerly-dressed, no two articles of whose clothing bore the slightest relation to each other. He was strikingly in need of a shave, and altogether there was much about him suggesting a Weary Walker.

Therefore he walked past several vacant tables without being invited to a seat by the attendants, whose cordiality is regulated wholly by the prospects of a tip.

Some of the waiters should have been wiser, for the young fellow-he was young, straight and suggested good looks under favorable circumstances-was accompanied by two women richly dressed and plainly from the luxurious class. The man was soon tired of waiting to be bowed into a seat, and selecting a table, seated the women with him, then himself, and demanded the bill of fare in a peremptory manner.

The waiter in charge of the table looked sad: the other waiters grinned at him as waiters will grin at a fellow who has caught what promises to be a non-tipping party.

There were several groups of lunchers who occupied tables at the street windows who regarded the new party with peculiar interest, aroused by the fact that they had seen the group alight from a very smart private carriage, with two men in livery on the

This, alas! the waiters had not seen. One of the women, everyone in sight of them soon knew, was the man's mother. That was evident before he was overheard to address her as such, for her eyes were fastened upon him with a look of pride and devotion man is not fortunate enough to inspire in any other woman on earth save his mother.

The other-well, she may have been his sister, but it is not observed that brother and sister usually, or even upon rare occasions, seek and find each other's hands under the table and look unutterably happy when they do so. Well, the waiter poked the big red and yellow bill of fare under the young man's nose and indulged in a weary, complaining tone, "Will you order, sir?' He took the card and began considering its temptations, but suddenly locked up and said, "Oh, before I give the lunch order, bring a quart of cham-

The effect on the waiter was electrical. He spread fresh linen in front of each of his customers, arranged and rearranged the knives and forks, brought a fresh supply of yard-long bread, and in a hundred other ways showed that deep and superior regard a waiter has for a "wine-customer." Then he started to fill the order.

When the young man called out, "Waiter, you'd better bring a couple Cure all liver ills, bilious of quarts at once, they can be getting of quarts at once, they can be getting cold. Anyway, I want to see them on ice. We can manage two quarts under the circumstances. Eh. mother?"

Mother was smiling through tears and repeated, "Under the circumstances."

She would have repeated, "Eeny, meeny, moony, my," if her son had given the cue.

Then their waiter cast glances of supreme triumph at the other waiters. who were all on the verge of collapse. But what a lunch that youth ordered. Melons, soup, birds, frogs' legs, cheeses, sweets-everything the rarest and most expensive-and as he ate he talked and the women never ate nor talked but just looked and listened and smiled and were happy.

At the end the youth said, "Mamma, I do not suppose the gentlemen who donated the various articles of my apparel left their purses in the pockets, so you must settle." Even this made "Mamma" happy. and when the waiter returned the change from a whacking big bill she gave him, she left the locse silver and a bill on the plate as a tip. Then the other waiters fainted. What we had not already guessed a newspaper man who was in our group explained to us.

"That," said he, "Is Charlle who was wounded at Santiago. He's just returned and his mother has met him at one of the ferries. I suppose he was too anxious for a decent meal to wait until they got home, so they stopped in here, though he'd have got a fairly good lunch at home, I fancy, for his mother hasn't got a thing but millions "

A Wonderful Discovery. The last quarter of a century records many wonderful discoveries in medicine, but none that have accomplished more for humanity than that sterling old household remedy, Browns' Iron Bitters. It seems to contain the very elements of good health, and neither man, woman or child can take it without deriving the greatest benefit. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers. A Practical Christian.

A newly married young Washington man took his wife to church. The sermon was just about well under way. when he noticed the little woman at his side suddenly start. Then she turned red, looked around nervously and hesitatingly for half a minute, rose hurriedly from her seat and left the church. The young husband, feeling certain that his wife was ill, wanted to follow her out, but he is a bashful man and the thought of the long centre aisle that he would have to traverse in the face of the whole congregation kept him rooted to his seat. He was pretty glad when the services were over, however, and he made his way almost at a lope for his little nenage. He found his wife cheerfully busying herself about the kitchen.

"Weren't you ill?" he inquired breathlessly.

"Why, dearie me, you know I am never ill," was her reply. "Well, why, then, did you leave the pew so suddenly?" "I suddenly recellected, Jack," said she, "that I forgot to put the chicken pot ple on the back of the range before we left the house. Would my listening to a good sermon have compensated you for a charred dinner?"

"Not much it wouldn't," said Jack, who is as human as they make them.

Keeping Prisoners. The disposition of the prisoners captured at Santiago recalls to mind an incident of the Gorman revolution of 1848. We were short of men and had a large number of prisoners to look after. That did not worry us as long as we were not moving, but one day we had to make a forced march. The country through which we were to pass was hostile, and extreme watchfulness was necessary. We had few enough men as it was, and we knew that those prisoners were ready to make a dead run at the first opening. Finally a young officer made a brilliant suggestion and it was promptly carried out. We ripped the suspender buttons from the prisoners' trousers, took away their belts and knew we had them. Their hands were busy after that, and fast running was out of the question. We made the march safely, and I do not believe that even Yanke ingenuity could have invented a simpler solution.

Metallie. "Did you know there was gold in sea water?" asked the man who likes to read collections of queer facts. "No," replied his busy friend. "But If Spain had a few more ships we'd make it taste pretty strongly of iron rust." Too Much Alarm.

Gobang-I believe that I will have burglar alarms put in the house. Mrs. Gobang-Gracious! What for? Don't the thought of burglars alarm you enough?

Why She Could Smile. "Your wife always wears such a happy expression, Mr. Willikins. She always seems to be smiling." "Yes, she didn't have to earn the $47 worth of gold that she wears in her front teeth."

Leader of Newspapers, like any other originator or pioneer, is never contented except in

The Foremost Position. When "The Philadelphia Record" untook infecten years ago to demonstrate that the best of morning newspapers could be made and sold for one cent, publishers were generally skeptical. But the world of readers was not asleep. Consequently "The Record" was not long in reaching a commanding position, and, improving upon this, its circulation and influence were finally recognized among the foremost of America's great journals. Hence the compliment of imitation which is now paid to it in every city of note from the Atlantic coast to the Mississippi Valley. Every city worth mentioning now has one or more good one-cent morning dalles, though so recently as only 19 years ago Philadelphia and "The Record" stood alone is this respect.
