THE WORLD OVER.

Over 11,000,000 fans are exported in one year from Canton, China.

The sea coast line of the globe is computed to be about 136,000 miles.

The Empire of Japan comprises today about four thousand rocky islands.

Boston claims to have the longest paved street in the world—Washington street—which is seventeen and a half miles in length.

In the town of Chile most shops are open till midnight, and during the hot afternoons, when everybody takes a siesta, they are locked up.

In a recent book on China the author says the Chinese burglars are difficult to catch, as they often carry their bodies all over and twist their pitails into bunches stuck full of needles.

The only soap which the Hindoos of the orthodox type employ is made entirely of vegetable products. But soap is little used in India, being almost an unknown luxury with the natives.

THE WOMAN'S DICTIONARY.

Man—An unknown quantity at an afternoon tea. At seaside places obsolete.

Photography—A process only successful when it makes one out better looking than one is.

Clothes—The opportunity vouchsafed us by Mother Eve to try to outshine other women.

Shopping—That which makes life worth living.

Cosmetics—See "Conversation."

Birthday—Obsolete.

Hat—Something to be kept on straight.

Equal Suffrage—An excuse for making one's self conspicuous. See "Woman's Sphere." Also, "The Down-Trodden sex."

Naming the Chicken.

"Madam, what was the name of this spring chicken?"

Mr. Golightly stared hard at the landlady as he spoke. The bird in question, skilfully eluding the fork with which he supposed he had impaled it, had leaped from under the carving knife and struck him squarely in the shirt front.

"Name," Mr. Golightly, said the landlady; "I don't think it had a name."

"You should have called it Hope, ma'am," said the unhappy carver.

"And why Hope?"

"Because," he bitterly answered, as he scraped the gravy from his necktie, "because the poet says that 'Hope springs eternal in the human breast.'"

On one's feet absorbers. They would not be left out for any length of time and then set.

CHAPTER I.

Darwin, the ape, was cleaning up the bank floor with a broom borrowed from Rose Hill. He did honor to his name, having developed many human qualities since the time that the Brownie had captured him on his African travels, for the Brownie, you know, had travelled all around the world in charge of Palmer Cox.

The Brownie had a great affection for Darwin and also for the cat and kittens for they were all made of the same material; that is, they were made of printed cotton cloth, stuffed with cotton wool. The Brownie, since his arrival in our town, had settled down to the banking business and amused himself with the news of the neighborhood, which was but a reflection of the news of the great world in which he once lived.

Scotch Mellemman came in to deposit some money, for Scotch sold goods in a window on Main street and if he hadn't drunk so much he would have been richer than the Brownie.

"Any news?" said the Brownie as he deposited the money.

"News!" said Mellemman, "I should say so. Old Miss Isabel Witherow is going to remove to Green Castle; says she wants to see some more of the world before she dies."

Fol de rol, the fiddler, strolled in. "Give me a cent I'll play you a tune," said he. "Times are getting awful hard on us poor fellows."

"Here's a cent if you'll tell us all you know about Miss Isabel's going over to Green Castle," said the Brownie.

"I think Miss Isabel has an idea there's a castle in a green park over there, and she wants to see a castle before she dies."

"Castles are mighty big things, I saw lots of them on my travels," said the Brownie.

"I guess," said Mellemman, "it's a castle in Spain that Miss Isabel will be after seeing."

"Please don't say anything about the recent war," said Darwin, "I had a Moorish cousin in Spain and I'm afraid he's murdered."

"Well, then, castles-in-the-air which are one and the same thing," said Mellemman.

"Green Castles—in-the-air! You'll have to blow Miss Isabel up in a soap bubble to get to it."

"Do you really believe she's a hundred years old?" asked the Brownie.

"Well," said Fol-de-rol, "I don't exactly say she's a hundred but just look at her gowms and the way she wears her hair and tell me if she's less than seventy-five."

"That's so," said the others. Just at this point Lisbeth, Miss Horner's maid, came in to have a check cashed. She was a genuine Scotch lassie and wore a highland costume when she first came into the family, but afterward changed it for a commoner dress. Her hair was of a most unruly nature.

"I hate to have you cook my food with your tangled hair streaming down your back," said Miss Horner.

"That's all right," said Lisbeth. "My hair is put in that tight it won't pull out, let alone fall out."

She was quite up to the times, having joined every club that was gotten up for dolls, particularly the cooking school. For this reason she called herself "Maid of all work." She could even handle money as was proved by the way she ordered the Brownie around the bank.

"Good morning, tangle head," said Scotch Mellemman.

"Good morning, bottle nose," said Lisbeth as she hurried away with the cash.

"Stop," cried the Brownie, "I have a piece of news; tell Miss Horner, Miss Witherow is going over to Castle Green."

"Castle Green," said Lisbeth to herself, "that must mean a castle in the auld country, for I never saw a castle in America."

Miss Horner was in her bed room brushing her long silken hair. "Guess who's going to the auld country?" said Lisbeth bursting in on her with the cash.

"How should I know," said Miss Horner, as she counted out ten cents.

"Old Miss Isabel Witherow," said Lisbeth impressively. "She's going over to live in her own castle."

"Lisbeth," said Miss Horner, "do my hair up in a Psyche knot. I am going to make some formal calls." Miss Horner is what is known as a tailor-made woman. Her calling costume was of the nicest green camels hair made severely plain and finished with a fur tippet. Her hat was of green beaver trimmed in red and a dotted veil was carried around her face and pinned securely over her Psyche knot. "Bad for the eyes," said Doctor Annie who lived around the corner. This secretly delighted Miss Horner. "If somebody could only invent me a pair of gold eye glasses," she sighed.

A pretty phaeton stood before the door waiting for Miss Horner. All the friends on whom she called were much interested in Miss Witherow's European tour.

"She must be of nobility if she owns a castle, I suppose she's a Duchess," said Helen Josephine Rowe.

"She told Helen Josephine she was a Duchess," said some body else. So they called her the Duchess Isabel.

Black Tom, who lived with Miss Witherow, and was once her slave, fairly pranced when he heard it. "She's not as Dutch as some of the rest of you. She never went up the Dutch lane to Church."

Finally Miss Horner called on the old lady herself to congratulate her on her good luck.

But, my dear, I'm not a Duchess, I never said I was. I only said I was going to remove to Green-castle."

"Well, well, and I've been telling it all around, and we have all decided to give you a grand send off. Every body was to contribute her finest dishes and furniture and we were all to meet at my house. But you really are going away, you know, and we'll have our party any how. I'll send a carriage after you, if you'll come."

"If I don't get the grip between this and then I'll surely come," said Miss Witherow.

CHAPTER II.

Miss Horner sent her invitations on paper from a little Dresden finished box shaped like a book. Darwin took them around, riding on his hobby horse from door to door. Ever since the Philippine Islands had been conquered by the Americans some people thought it would be nice to eat and act like people of the East.

"Miss Witherow has a Chinese cook," said Miss Horner to Lisbeth, "I'm going to hire him for cook at the party."

"Just as if I couldn't cook!" said Lisbeth. "I'm sure I went to cooking school, and I expected to have cock-a-leeky and bannocks."

"But I don't want cock-a-leeky and bannocks, and I'm going to send for Snive Lee," insisted Miss Horner, so in due time Snive Lee came.

He brought his cook stove with him and Ida Adeline sent down a tin kitchen set.

"Bean-ees, bean-ees!" said Snive to Lisbeth.

Lisbeth found some beans in the seed bag.

"Honee, Honee," he said to Darwin.

Darwin brought some bees from Mr. Sheets's hives and got some honey.

Then Snive Lee, got some gold paint from the store across the street, and made some butter from pea nuts, and broke up and battered some pigeon eggs. He ground the beans in a little tin coffee mill and mixed them all together and baked them in tin pans, and when they came out there were both bean-ee cakes and bean-ee bonbons. Then he sent Darwin to snip off bits of palm from the pot plants and he made a savory green stew. A raw turnip was cut up into very small cats, and fish, and dogs and rats. They looked like carved ivory. Even Lisbeth said it was all bonnie and she was going to keep the cats off the table.

Meanwhile Miss Horner arranged the furniture with the help of Darwin and Brownie. Miss Witherow's black Tom went around town gathering up the finest and newest he could collect and brought them down in a wagon that had been stored in a garret thirty-five years, drawn by a rocking horse that had served as a coat rack for twenty-five years. Doctor Annie sent in a large Turkey rug that served as a parlor carpet. Cross wise in one corner Miss Horner arranged her sky blue enameled piano and a little green table from Miss Gillen served to hold a Baby Cleveland lamp, a Tom Thumb lamp, and a Baby Harrison lamp. Of course these were lit, for it is only in the dead of night that dolls dare act out their true natures. Around the lamps in circles were arranged all kinds of chairs sent in by the guests for the occasion. If any body failed she might have to stand the whole evening.

The dining service was arranged in the South-east bay window. Darwin had set a semi-circle of palms and ferns around the wall and in the centre he put a mighty India rubber tree and behind it a cocoanut as a seat for himself when not otherwise occupied. By mean of moss and little pressed ferns he covered the crocks and made the whole look like a tropical out-door scene. Then Snive-Lee set a red table on the soil and cut tiny little paper doilies to decorate it. He also cut Chinese paper lanterns to hang on the palms. Then the Brownie arranged all the red white and blue flags back of the palms and crossed some tiny ones on the table. All the red and the blue chairs were put around the table. Miss Hunter brought on her own blue and white china ware. Miss Helen Josephine Rowe sent down the silver plated cutlery and fine little napkins in rings. Miss Azalia Patterson sent a filled caster. The glassware came from all directions. At the main entrance of the dining apartment on either side was an antique colored oak buffet with a dessert service of fine china set by Doctor Annie and Miss Alfonso Harvie. Among these were set green and red birthday candles in little cakes.

They bore the inscription Sadie Shriver and Susie Shriver. Miss Helen Josephine Rowe sent the white enameled bed set for the dressing room. The bed with all its dainty coverings of snowy white was intended for those dolls whose eyes go shut sometimes. On a strip of hall carpet outside the dressing room were five or six more bureaus with mirrors for the dolls to see themselves in. It certainly did look beautiful but when it was all over Miss Hunter sat down in her bamboo rocker and fainted from exhaustion. Lisbeth ran over for Doctor Annie. That interesting young lady came in with a tiny homopathic pill in a ring box. She directed Lisbeth to bathe her head with a little handkerchief and water and to let her smell from a tiny bottle of cologne. So Lisbeth poured some water from a pitcher into a bowl belonging to Miss H. J. Rowe and then she pulled off her brown shoes and stockings and bathed her feet in a bathtub also belonging to Miss Rowe. After a little while Miss Horner revived and asked the Doctor if she was coming over to help receive. "No indeed," said that young lady. "I have some amputated arms and legs and cracked heads to look after. I'd like to come but business before pleasure. Good by."

LA Grippe is again epidemic. Every precaution should be taken to avoid it. Its specific cure is One Minute Cough Cure. A. J. GOLDEN-TIP TEA.

It Cost $340 a Pound at Auction, and Ruined the Grower's Eyesight.

"Tea at $340 a pound is a luxury not many families could afford as a steady beverage," said Harold Weddell, of London, at the Southern Hotel, to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter. "Fabulous as the statement may seem, this enormous price was paid for tea in the London market a comparatively short time ago. But, then, it was wonderful tea, the like of which had never before been seen. It was tea whose price represented the sacrifice of the best part of a human life. To produce it the light of a pair of human eyes was extinguished. To understand the nature of this wonderful tea it is necessary to know some of the peculiarities of the tea leaf in its native state. The tip of each leaf is differently constituted from the remainder of the leaf. When the leaf is dried out it becomes black all but the very tip, which changes from green to a beautiful golden color. The golden tip is almost infinitesimal in size, and usually loses its identity in the black mixture that results from the final process of tea mixing."

"The high priced tea I told you of was made by a Ceylon planter, who cherished an ambition to place upon the market a tea whose beauty of appearance and richness of flavor would make him famous. His name I cannot remember, and probably if I did I could not pronounce it. His idea was to separate the golden tips from the leaves and pack them separately. He would trust no one else with his precious secret and undertook the task himself. It was a tremendous undertaking, for it must be remembered that the tip had to be separated from each leaf by hand, and it required great care to prevent some of the black tea from finding its way into the precious golden mixture. The planter worked day and night until he had fifty pounds of the golden tips, and was blind as a bat. He sacrificed his eyesight to his ambition. The news of the fifty pounds of the wonderful golden tea got to London, as news of commercial import always does, and there was hot rivalry among the tea brokers to get possession of the new mixture. In London tea can be sold to brokers only at auction, and the general public is excluded from the sales, only brokers being admitted. This insures a proper valuation, as the competition between the brokers is very close. When this particular tea was put up it seemed as if the bidding would never cease, and it did not until the wonderful product was sold at $340 a pound or $17,000 for the fifty-pound lot. Considering that the like of it would probably never again be obtainable, I do not think the price was extravagant, as was shown when the tea was retailed. It was sold to connoisseurs in all parts of the world, and in each instance at a handsome profit. The Indian planter received a handsome sum from his brokers, though millions would have been scant consolation to him in his sightless condition."

"I do not think any of the tea came to America. The highest price paid for tea in this country, so far as I remember, was $80 a pound. This tea was the product of a Ceylon plantation, and was peculiar in that it had been so cultivated that a considerable portion of each leaf had the golden color, so much so that the mixture resulting was a beautiful black and gold. It was undoubtedly of fine flavor, as I can attest, for I was so fortunate as to taste some of it. Americans are becoming greater tea drinkers every year, but the Irish are still the heaviest tea consumers in the world."

PAUL PERRY, of Columbus, Ga., suffered agony for thirty years, and then cured his Piles by using Dr. Williams' Which Hazel Salve. It heals injuries and skin diseases like magic. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

SUFFERING AMONG THE POOR.

The intense cold weather of the past several days has caused much suffering in different parts of the country. Men have been caught in the snow drifts, and being unable to release themselves, perished in the snow.

The suffering among the poor people, and those of moderate means, who were unprepared for the great blizzard, was terrible, notwithstanding the fact that the charitable organizations did much to alleviate the distress existing among that class of people, and much greater would have been the agencies of the poor had it not been for the excellent work performed by these charitable disposed organizations, and the people who gave them every assistance in order that they might be able to do the greatest amount of good where it was most needed.

The suffering among the poor is not alone confined to the larger cities, but the same conditions are to be found in the rural districts, and often where least expected. It is often that those who are most in need of assistance are only discovered after an investigation has been made, for some people are so peculiarly constituted, and there are many, for divers reasons—who would rather suffer the agonies of hunger and cold, and in some cases, even death, than to ask for aid.

For all we know there may be some people in our community who, to-day, stand in great need of bodily comforts. So far, we have not heard of any who are directly in need, but still there may be some who would welcome assistance. And no doubt, it would be well for those of our people, who have plenty, to make inquiry, and if any be found suffering for the want of food, or clothing, or fuel, extend to them the hand of charity, and make them as comfortable as possible.

AN HONEST MEDICINE FOR LA GRIFFE

George W. Waitt of South Gardine, Me., says: "I have had the worst cough, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done any good whatever. I have used one 50-cent bottle and the chills, cold and grip have all left me. I congratulate the manufacturers of an honest medicine." For sale by C. D. Eichelberger.

SEVERE IN THE SOUTH.

The cold wave has covered the entire South, except southern Florida. Along the Gulf coast the thermometer ranged from 8 to 18 degrees below the freezing point. All previous records for the second decade of February have been broken from the Lower Missouri and Middle Mississippi Valleys south to the Gulf. Zero temperature prevails in Southern Texas, Southern Mississippi and Northern Alabama.

The storm was central in Florida, and as a result there were heavy snows from Georgia to Southern New England.

At Peru, Indiana, where natural gas is relied on for fuel, a break in the gas mains has caused great suffering and apprehension. The mercury is 14 degrees below zero.

At Wilmington, Del., several criminals stood in the pillory with the temperature at zero. They were afterward whipped.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—A. V. Nolan, of Brooklyn, a tugboat fireman, was found frozen to death on a North river pier early today.

John Kearney, of Brooklyn, was found in West New Brighton, S. I., a few minutes after 12 o'clock this morning, frozen to the ground. His hands were frozen and he suffered severely from exposure.

Charles Sailor, a laborer, was found frozen to death at Coney Island.

At Jamestown, eight miles from Syracuse, John Hotaling was frozen to death.

Joseph McGeehan, a Brooklyn fireman, became unconscious from the cold while at work on a ladder at a fire in Williamsburg. He was found frozen to his ladder.

Residents of the borough of Bronx complained of the lack of heat in trolley cars, and one man exhibited a frozen ear, which, he said, he received while riding in a car.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 10.—John Wirth, aged thirty-seven years, a carpenter, was found last night frozen to death in his sleigh in the suburbs of the city.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Feb. 10.—At Hamilton an eight-year-old boy named Long was badly frozen while returning from school. He is in a critical condition. At Alliance Engineer Reed Ralston was taken from his locomotive almost dead from the cold.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 10.—While returning to his home in Archibald from his work in Jermyn Michael Roche, a miner, aged forty-eight years, was frozen to death.

CHRONIC NASAL CATARRH.

Poisons every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

EXPANSION OF THE DEFICIT.

The bills are beginning to come in and Congress, having gaily embraced the new military policy, is confronted with the problem of paying the band. Mr. Cannon, the chairman of the committee on appropriations, says the Philadelphia Times, has sounded a warning. The deficit for the current fiscal year, which the Secretary of the Treasury estimated at $112,000,000, Mr. Cannon now figures, on the basis of the actual receipts and expenses, at $150,000,000, without counting the $20,000,000 to be paid to Spain or anything for additions to the navy for the extra cost of our new possessions. For the following year Mr. Cannon expanded the Secretary's estimate deficiency still farther—or recognized expenses which the Secretary had not foreseen, with a less hopeful view of the revenues—and he warned the House that "we must plant our footsteps with care."

It may be inferred that Mr. Cannon is not enthusiastic on the subject of the Nicaragua Canal ($125,000,000 more), the subsidy bill and various other measures which he approves but does not clearly see the means of paying for. "We can support the navy and army," he said in summarizing the situation, "and perform our duties here and in our outlying possessions out of the present revenues this year and the next," the proceeds of recent loans being counted with the revenue, "but if we are to accomplish this we must see to it that no great appropriations go through in the immediate future."

This is not encouraging, but it is timely and sound. Under the general enthusiasm for expansion, Congress and the administration have been laying all kinds of gorgeous plans without any serious thought of where the money is to come from. It is beginning to be realized now that even glory must be paid for.

A representative of a large silk manufacturing syndicate is in Hagerstown with a view of establishing a silk mill there. He inquired into the shipping facilities, prices of fuel, and labor, etc., and said he was well pleased with Hagerstown and that it would make a good manufacturing town.

OUR BEST CUSTOMER.

Great Britain continues to be our best customer. In the year ended December 31, 1898, we sold to the United Kingdom $538,661,787 of exports, against $482,695,024 in 1897, while we bought of that country directly but $111,361,617 imports, against $159,000,280 worth in 1897. We sold our English goods four times as much as we bought from them. The balance was settled largely, of course, by our purchases from countries to which England exports more than we do. England takes of us mostly wheat, lard, cotton, corn, leather, hams, beef, copper and other unmanufactured articles. We bought from her chiefly worsted and woolen goods, tin, cotton goods, jute goods, linens, tin plates, earthenware, alkali, bleaching materials and hardware. While we do not buy of England as much as we sell her, still we buy of her more than we buy from any other country, and we take from her a large proportion of our imports than any other foreign country (not a colony) takes.—Sun.

WHOOPIING COUGH

One of the most distressing sights, is to see a child almost choking with the dreadful whooping-cough. Give the child Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the greatest pulmonary remedy, and relief will come at once, the coughing spells will re-occur less frequently, and, in a few days, the sufferer will be entirely cured. No other remedy can boast of so many cures.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup

Cures Whooping-Cough quickly. Doses are small and pleasant to take. Doctors recommend it. Price 25 cents. At all druggists.

CATTLE FROZEN.

Throughout the West and Northwest, and even in some parts of the South, cattle have frozen to death by the thousands. It is reported that the ears of hogs which were shipped to one of our large cities were so badly frozen that when their ears touched anything, they fell to the ground.

CARROLL COUNTY enjoys the honor of having contributed a greater sum, through her public schools, to the Lafayette monument fund, than any other county in Maryland.

If you have catarrh don't dally with local remedies, but purify and enrich your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Very Bad Case

Catarrh of the Throat Causes Much Suffering

Hood's Sarsaparilla Effects a Complete Cure—Better Every Way. "My disease was catarrh of the throat and it was a very bad case. I did everything for it that I was told but it grew worse. I suffered more than any one on earth can know. For 11 months there was not a day or night that my throat was not sore. I could not eat anything but soft boiled eggs or something of that kind that I could easily swallow. My brother's wife persuaded me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had helped her. I felt the effects of the medicine after taking three doses. I kept on taking it and in a short time the soreness disappeared and I could eat anything I wished. I am now feeling very much better and people remark how much better I look." Mrs. E. S. HEARN, Parsonsburg, Maryland.

SUNLIGHT

Automatic Gas Machine. [IMPROVED.]

NO LIMIT TO SIZES.

We have added important improvements to our SUNLIGHT GAS MACHINE. Seeing that it was all important to condense and purify the gas before being delivered to gasometer, and to dispense with the opening and closing of valves, which after many experiments, we have succeeded beyond our expectations. All the parts are now automatic. No valves to open or close or be neglected. There is not the smallest part about the machine which requires adjustment. The only attention required is putting in carbide, and a sufficient quantity can be put in to run ten, fifteen, twenty or thirty days, as may be desired, and as simple as putting coal into a stove. The machine being automatic in all its working parts, requires no expert to put in carbide. The carbide is put into retorts and only so much generated as will supply the burners whilst lighted. The form of the retorts makes a very convenient means for carrying out the slack. They are attached or detached by simply turning a T handle screw and carried away without relaxing hold on T handle, and can be attached with one hand in a few seconds. A very important point to be considered, as it is not possible to run out slack through a spigot, as some claim to do. It must be hooked or scraped out of all machines that throw carbide into water. The slack will solidify under water, making it impossible to run out through gate or spigot. One retort or all may be charged with carbide, which shows the true working and safety of machine. We do not throw an uncertain quantity of carbide into water to make an uncertain quantity of gas to be blown out into the air when there is excess of gas. There is no complications about machine, no levers, chains or traps that may fail to work. No variation in pressure by attachments to bell of gasometer which will vary lights. As to the bright light produced from calcium Carbide, it is the most brilliant and beautiful light ever discovered. It gives fifteen times the light of ordinary illuminating gas per cubic foot. It is a pure white light. Its rays being almost identical with sunlight. Its cost is far less than any known illuminant. The lighting of burners starts the machine and when lights are put out the machine stops, and no gas is generated until burners are again lighted. The gas is not affected by heat or cold. As the new gas is far superior, and costs far less than coal gas, the gas companies, finding they have a strong competitor, are leaving nothing undone to warn the public of the danger of calcium carbide gas, which is less dangerous than coal gas or coal oil, with proper care. We have been testing the properties of calcium carbide, and we have been running machine for nine months, with gas jets burning directly over machine, which clearly proves the safety of machine. All the working parts are made of brass and aluminum, and material, workmanship, etc., are of the best.

We ask an examination of our machine, and will guarantee all as represented. We are now ready to furnish the Improved Machine. Carbide will be furnished at cost to users of Sunlight machines.
