CRISIS IN SAMOA.

The killing of two American naval officers and two sailors of the cruiser Philadelphia and an English officer and two English sailors by Mataafa's savages, who caught them and two hundred other American and British sailors in ambush on a German plantation near Apia, Samoa, on April 1, has increased the tension between Germany and Great Britain and the United States over the Samoan trouble.

The manager of the German plantation on which the fighting occurred was arrested and taken aboard the British warship. This action is regarded in government circles at Washington as a dangerous feature of the controversy.

The British cruiser Wallaroo and the British gunboat Goldfinch have been ordered from Sydney, N. S. W., to Samoa.

Secretary Long says no other American warships will be sent to Samoa until further information concerning the situation has been received.

An official authorized to speak for Baron Von Buelow, German minister of foreign affairs, while expressing regret over the collision at Apia, says such encounters must be expected when the Anglo-American action in crowning Tann has made nine-tenths of the Samoans their enemies. The same official urges the necessity for the immediate departure of the commission for Samoa, and charges that England is causing delay.

A breach is opening between Great Britain and Germany concerning the date of the departure of the joint high commission. Lord Salisbury refuses to permit the commissioners to sail next week. An umpire may be appointed to settle this difference.—American.

A BRIDE HAS HYDROPHOBIA.

A bride of ten days and a victim of hydrophobia is Mrs. William Hoffman, of Birdsboro', Pa. She barks like a dog and snaps at everybody who approaches her. She bit her two brothers, Reuben and Philip Doaty, yesterday while they were trying to bind her in bed. The doctors have given her morphine continually to quiet her and she must be tied hand and foot to be kept quiet.

As Margaret Doaty, Mrs. Hoffman was married to a prosperous young mechanic just before Easter. They went to housekeeping at once in a cosy house on Water street. The bride was apparently in perfect health. Last Sunday the couple went walking. Mrs. Hoffman began acting strangely. Her husband took her home and she grew violent. Presently she began to bark, scorch and foam at the mouth. A doctor was called and declared that she was suffering with hydrophobia.

Eight years ago Mrs. Hoffman was bitten by a Newfoundland dog with which she was playing. This is the sequel. An effort will be made to take Mrs. Hoffman to an institution for the treatment of hydrophobia.—San.

A DECLARATION for a flexible currency based upon the gold standard has been adopted by the executive committee of the Indianapolis monetary convention.

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. HELD UP FOR $50,000.

EL PASO, TEX., April 11.—A bold hold-up occurred last night at the office of the Alamo Gordo Lumber Company, at Alamo Gordo, New Mexico, 70 miles north of El Paso. Yesterday was pay day at the lumber camp.

Many thousands of dollars were on hand to pay the employees, and the money was given to them a short time before the arrival of the outlaws. All the workmen had dispersed except about 50, and these lingered in the office.

Suddenly the door was thrown open by two cowboys armed with Winchester. They walked up to Cashier Davidson's desk and demanded all the money in his possession. He was compelled to open the safe. It contained a bundle of script amounting to $50,000.

The robbers took this and departed on their horses, which were awaiting them at the door, where they had been held by a third cowboy. A posse was quickly organized, and is now in pursuit of the robbers, but as the country is rough there is small chance of their capture.

CRUSHED BY AN ELEPHANT.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 9.—"Rajah," a big elephant owned by Lemen Brothers' Circus Company, which has been wintering in Argentine, Kan., near here, today killed its keeper, Frank Fisher.

Fisher had returned to the tent intoxicated and tried to make the different animals perform. Coming to the elephant he hugged the beast's trunk and ordered it to open its mouth. Becoming enraged "Rajah" crushed Fisher's arm and, throwing him to the ground, made repeated efforts to pierce the prostrate trainer's body with its tusks. "Rajah" finally kaelt upon Fisher, crushing his life out before assistance could arrive.

Fisher was twenty-eight years old and his home was in Montreal, Canada. He is said to be "Rajah's" ninth victim.

It is estimated that more than 250,000 muskrat hides have been sold, which, with the meat, would make the muskrat catch of Dorchester worth over $50,000 to the people of that county. Jesse B. Wall, of Bestfield Ferry, received $6,800 for the hides sold by him.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.
Fourteen sticks of dynamite, placed around a fire to thaw, on the farm of Joseph Krep, near Wilson's store, Washington county exploded Monday and broke thirty window panes in Mr. Krep's house. Dallas Bowers, who was working about the dynamite, had just walked away from the fire. He was prostrated by the concussion, but not hurt. The explosion was felt for three miles around.

AN IMPOSTOR.

A young man claiming to be a representative of Jeweler C. A. Blocher, sold a number of spectacles to people in the neighborhood of Fairfield last week. He sold them with the understanding that if the glasses did not suit they could be exchanged at Mr. Blocher's store, in this place. He was a medium size young man, with dark, short, curly hair. He is evidently a fraud as Mr. Blocher has no agents travelling for him.—Gettysburg Star and Sentinel.

FUTURE OF THE BICYCLE.

It is agreed by all bicycle manufacturers that the 1899 models represent the perfect wheel. Improvement seems to be impossible. Precisely the same thing is true of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It represents the limits of science in overcoming disease, and it is impossible to make a better medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. A few doses of the Bitters will start weak, nervous and bloodless people on the road to strength. A regular course of treatment will bring back the pink to the cheeks and sparkle to the eye. Sleep will come naturally, and it will be refreshing and healthful. Dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation will be completely banished, and the blessings of true health bestowed. Never take a substitute for this perfect remedy.

FREDERICK WATERWORKS

Mr. John Pownell, civil engineer, who surveyed the route for the new line of pipe for increasing the water supply of Frederick by tapping Fishing creek, has been engaged by the board of aldermen to superintend the work. He expects to begin the work in a few weeks, and says it will be completed by the middle of July. The present water supply of the city is about thirty gallons per capita, and the additional supply is estimated to be fully sixty gallons per capita per day, based on a population of 10,000.

About 18,400 feet of twelve-inch pipe will be used in making the connection, and $35,000 has been authorized for the new supply, but it is not thought the entire sum will be needed.

BOLD DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

A bold burglary was perpetrated in the heart of Hagerstown Sunday afternoon in broad daylight. While Mr. Howard Ulrich was at St. John's Lutheran Sunday-School and no one was home robbers entered his house from the rear by breaking the lock with a hatchet. They ransacked the house, rumaged bureau drawers, scattered the contents on the floor and stole a purse of money belonging to Miss Alice Ulrich. Then they entered Mr. Ulrich's stationery store through a door leading from the dwelling house. They robbed the money-drawer of its contents and escaped through the rear door in the store without detection.

TRUST AT WAYNESBORO.

It is given out that all of the twenty-eight thrasher and engine concerns have given their assent to the sale of their plants to a syndicate. The Geiser and Erick companies, of Waynesboro, are among the number.

The Geiser Co., and a few others have been given the privilege of subscribing to the consolidation stock on a basis of one share of preferred stock at par value of $100, and 75 per cent. of common stock as bonus.

At the office of the company in Waynesboro last week $300,000 was subscribed in a short time, and as the company only has the privilege of taking $500,000 of the syndicate stock the Zepher says the remainder will be taken long before the ten-day limit is out.

Secretary Middewer says the works will not only be continued in Waynesboro but their capacity will be largely increased.—Compler.

WASHINGTON AND GETTYSBURG R. R.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Organization has been effected by the stockholders of the Washington and Gettysburg Railroad Company, which at the last session of Congress was authorized to build a railroad through the District as part of a line between the battlefield and this city. The directors chosen were Messrs. S. W. Woodward, Crosby S. Noyes, E. S. Parker, J. E. Eos Ray, Albert Gleason, Allan Farquhar and George H. Harris.

These gentlemen held their first meeting today and chose the following officers: President and general manager, George H. Harris; vice-president, S. W. Woodward; secretary and treasurer, Brainerd W. Parker; general counsel, John B. Larner. Stock to the amount of $100,000 has been subscribed and President Harris was directed to begin the work of construction.

From Gettysburg the road will run to Frederick, Md., thence to Sandy Spring and down Eligo Valley to the terminus of the City and Suburban Railroad in Washington.—Sun.

CLOTHING STORE ROBBED.

During Monday night thieves entered the clothing store of Rowe Bros., in this place, and got away with a large amount of clothing and gent's furnishings goods.

The thieves effected an entrance by digging a large hole through a 14-inch brick wall. On Tuesday morning the window shutters were found open and the window hoisted in the rear end of the store, which goes to show that they expected to enter the store through the window, but as the inside of the window was burglar proof their efforts in this direction failed, and it was then that they went to work to dig a hole through the brick wall. The implements used in taking out the bricks were an iron chisel, two hoes and a large post, which was evidently used to break loose the bricks and mortar. The implements were found outside the store. There was evidence about the building which leads to the conclusion that there were sentinels on guard while the work was being done, for at one place the ground was tramped down in a circle, as though a man had been standing there, stepping up and down in order to keep warm. It is thought that the thieves had a wagon in which they hauled away the goods.

From the fact that a lot of coats, pants and vests were found hanging on the fence outside of the store in the morning it is evident that the thieves were either scared away or the morning light was approaching too rapidly for them to get away with the goods they had on the outside of the building. They also left several phosphate sacks. They took between forty and fifty pairs of pants, besides coats, vests, silk handkerchiefs and other goods. Rowe Bros. place the loss at between $150 and $200. There is no clue to the thieves. This is the fifth attempt to rob this store, three of which have been successful.

CALVERT FOSSIL REMAINS.

Philip H. Jones, president of the board of the Calvert county commissioners, took to Prince Frederick parts of the vertebra of a whale, which he secured from an excavation on the line of the Chesapeake Beach Railroad through his farm, in the third district of Calvert county. It is a section of a complete vertebra eight feet long of a monster of the deep taken from the earth forty feet below the surface. The joint is three inches in length and two and a half in diameter and is in an excellent state of preservation. Geological students could doubtless find much of interest along the entire line of the railroad through Calvert county. The excavations have brought to view extensive vertebra molluscan fossils, whale's bones, sharks' teeth and bivalves, splendidly preserved in many instances. Much of the remains has, however, developed into marl, which is used as fertilizer, proving an excellent renovator of worn-out soil.

DEATH OF FATHER LEFEVRE.

He Died Suddenly at St. Joseph's Parsonage, of Apoplexy.—Funeral this Morning.

On Tuesday, the 11th inst., the whole community was shocked at the sudden death of Rev. E. J. Lefevre, C. M. He had been complaining of sore throat on Saturday and consulted Dr. J. B. Brawner who relieved him almost immediately, and on Monday he felt quite well, complaining only of feeling tired. On Monday evening he retired in fair spirits and seemed to be quite well.

Failing, however, to come down stairs on the following morning he was called. Finding no response, however, someone climbed over the transom and found him dead in his bed, life having been extinct for some time.

Father Lefevre was a native of this place, and spent his youth here. Being the only son of Eli and Eliza Lefevre (nee Eliza Radford), he was naturally a loving and devoted son. Reared under the shadow of St. Joseph's church, he was pious, devout, and from childhood gave evidence of a vocation to the priesthood. He entered Niagara College at the age of sixteen, and entered the Congregation of the Missions at the completion of his classical course. In the Novitiate he was a model of regularity, and in his studies very proficient.

He was distinguished for his zeal for the salvation of souls and gave up his life to preaching on the missions, according to the spirit of St. Vincent de Paul, whose devoted son he endeavored to be.

Those who knew him must have remarked that, besides his love for God and his neighbor, he was an enthusiastic lover of country. Many of our citizens can remember the ardor with which he addressed patriotic assemblies. But above all did he entertain an ardent affection for his native place and everything connected with it. "Dear little Emmitsburg" was his favorite expression on beholding his native place from a distance. He once remarked that our Lord shed bitter tears over Jerusalem, but "I think He would have shed tears of joy and satisfaction were He to behold thee, oh most lovely of the villages of Maryland, my Maryland."

Most of the friends of his boyhood days have been scattered by fate to the far away points of our country. On hearing of his sudden death they will think of his many good qualities and breathe a fervent prayer for the repose of his soul. The entire community will feel his loss, both as a priest and a citizen, and extends heartfelt sympathy to those who were united to him by bonds of relationship or other sacred ties.

The funeral services took place from St. Joseph's Catholic church at 10 o'clock this morning.

IS STILL MISSING.

Mr. John H. Cramer, of Walkersville, who left his home mysteriously on Thursday morning last, is still missing and though police and detectives are looking for him in Harrisburg, York and Lancaster, Pa., Baltimore and Washington, his relatives have as yet heard nothing concerning his whereabouts. When Mr. Cramer left home on Thursday morning he purchased a ticket for Bruceville. At Bruceville he purchased another ticket to Harrisburg. The conductor of the train to York, where passengers for Harrisburg change cars, remembers Mr. Cramer's reaching York but there all information as to his movements came to an end.

Mr. Cramer's son, H. M. Cramer, who went in search of his father, visited York, Harrisburg, Lancaster, Baltimore and Washington, enlisting the aid of the police at each place and engaging detectives at various places. The younger Mr. Cramer said that his father had a considerable sum of money when he left home and he is strongly of the opinion that he continued his trip beyond Harrisburg, going west.

Mr. H. M. Cramer has prepared a circular which he will send out to many towns along the Pennsylvania railroad and elsewhere. He thinks, it likely, however, that his father may have left the railroad at some point and wandered out into the country.

According to the description of the missing man given in the circular, when he left home he wore a black alpaca hat, brownish coat and vest and had a large patch on pants over left knee. He carried a straight cane, about 4 feet long and was lame with a tendency to drag his left foot. He had a dark beard and mustache, mixed with gray. He was about 5 feet 11 inches in height, of spare build and about 57 years of age.

EMMITSBURG TO NAPERVILLE.

Mr. R. K. Shriver Gives an Interesting Account of His Journey to Naperville, Ill. He Gives a Vivid Description of Towns and Scenery.

NAPERVILLE, ILL., April 10, 1899. EDITOR CHRONICLE.

Dear Sir:—At the earnest solicitation of many friends just prior to my departure from home to give an account of a visit to the West, and thinking that perhaps it might be of interest to many readers of the CHRONICLE, I take this opportunity to ask for space in your valuable columns. Not that I can do justice to the task they would impose do I court the public print but rather do I seek my pen (if) because of their manifest kindly interest in their fellow citizen. With the idea therefore of showing my appreciation of their good will, I will forget for the time being that I am an inexperienced writer and face the music of cold hard type. These notes of travel may not be written in regular newspaper style but they have at least the merit of being truthful.

It is pleasant to journey leisurely and take in the advantages of travel simply as a recreational pleasure, but, in this busy life those of us whose journeys must mean just so much information for future utilization find it indeed a labor, albeit a labor of love, for love—though there are many who question it—is a thing of reason. Born of high regard and fostered by intelligence of worth it rules in many a heart and shapes the destinies of many a mind. Unseen perhaps by those among whom its possessors move, the loadstone exerts its magical influence and humanity is exalted by being sprinkled with its essence. I had never before visited the West, I had read with ever-increasing interest everything accessible upon the same and thirsted for more, but my desires seemed destined to outrun my practical ambitions, but life is full of surprises of the unexpected, and however it came about, I suddenly decided to make the journey.

Through the kindness of Mr. Asbury Fuss, that paragon of neighbors, I was driven to Taneytown on Wednesday morning, March 28, which dawned clear and cold, in time to catch the early 7:30 morning train which leaves that place at 10:02 a. m. In a very short time our train was out of sight of the station, speeding swiftly towards Mason and Dixon's line, and strange feelings came over me as I bade goodbye to my native State. Shortly after I boarded the train at Taneytown I recognized the face of Mr. James Stem, from above Emmitsburg, who was on his way to Philadelphia, with whom I pleasantly chatted until we reached York, where I changed cars for Harrisburg. My first impression through the car window between Taneytown and York was the grain fields. According to indications the grain crop will be excellent. I also noticed between Littlestown and York a number of barns, and a large one at that, where the driveway is at the gable end, instead of the side, as is customary around Emmitsburg. I also noticed quite a number of family graveyards wherein repose no doubt the remains for two or three generations. At 11:30 we arrived at York—the Pittsburg of the East and at one time the capital of the United States, from May 1777, to some time in the year 1778. Having a stop-over here of several hours gave me ample time to take in the town and to do justice to the inner man. This city is made up of 30,000 active, industrious citizens, many of whom are engaged in manufacturing enterprises. The Colonial hotel, which stands at the public square is quite a building to the city of York. York has many wholesale houses doing a flourishing business and has excellent streets. At 1:30 we left for Harrisburg—the capital of the great State of Pennsylvania. Having a stop-over here of several hours, much to my delight, it was my happy privilege to call upon Rev. Luther DeYoe, so well known in Emmitsburg, by whom I was hospitably entertained. Mr. DeYoe says he always has a warm place in his heart for Emmitsburg. I also spent quite a while at the Capitol, while the Legislature was in session. The Capitol stands picturesquely on a hill, close to the waters of the Susquehanna, and when completed will no doubt be among the finest state capitols in the Union. At 7:30 our train pulled out of the station for Pittsburg—the city of smoke and iron industry. The Pennsylvania Railroad from Harrisburg to Pittsburg passes through an almost unbroken stretch of mountain and valley scenery. As this portion of my trip was passed over during the night I am unable to tell your readers much about it. Some where above Huntingdon our train passed through a tunnel, probably 300 yards long, leaving us as it were, in impenetrable gloom. We soon, however, emerged out of darkness to light again, and our first stop was at Altoona. Here we had a rest of ten minutes. This city is made up of about 45,000 citizens. The distance from Altoona to Pittsburg is 117 miles. Our train at Altoona was changed from a single to a double-header, in order to successfully cope with the heavy grades encountered during our passage over the mountains. A run of 15 minutes brought us to the famous horse shoe curve. The enclosure of the bend I am told is utilized as a basin in which millions of gallons of pure, limpid water is stored to supply Altoona. By this time the moon was shining at intervals, which gave me an opportunity to view some of the mountain scenery. About midnight I was awakened from my slumbers by the cry of "Johnstown,"—the place that will go down in history to the end. Johnstown is its wanted self again, except the heartaches of the many who lost their all in the most memorable and appalling catastrophe of modern times. We were soon skipping by Latrobe with its coke furnaces—some idle, others in full blast, and finally at 1 o'clock, central time, we reached Pittsburg. Having a stop here of ten minutes I had the opportunity of mailing a letter. This little diversion was a relief I appreciated. Just as day began to dawn we passed Steubenville, Ohio. The land in Eastern Ohio is quite hilly and mountainous, with very poor buildings. Between Newark and Columbus I noticed several farmers had painted on their barns in large letters, "16 to 1," evidently they were free silver men advocating the cause of William J. Bryan. At 7:00 we reached Columbus, the capital of the great State of Ohio. Here is one of the finest stations along the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The population of Columbus is about 100,000. Looking out in any direction my vision would encounter tall brick smoke stacks emitting heavy volumes of dense black smoke—an index to the kind and magnitude of business carried on in the city. Having a stop here of 15 minutes gave me ample time to get a light breakfast, which I greatly relished. At 7:15 we resumed our journey over the plains to Union City and then through Indiana, where I noticed considerably corn being husked and lying on piles. The land through Indiana is quite level. The land slopes gradually from North and Northeast to the Southwest and the lowest point is found at the mouth of the Wabash. I noticed that nearly every farmer in Illinois has a wind mill by which they pump their water and saw their wood. As the scenery through that part of the country became monotonous I whiled the time away by reading the stories and speeches of Lincoln, and Harper's Weekly, and became much interested in "Trusts and Socialism," "This busy World" and "Where the Sleeper Woke," etc., in that well-known journal. At 1:20 Thursday afternoon I passed through Logansport, Indiana.

This is quite a railroad center and has a population of about 25,000. Between here and Chicago we passed through some of the finest land, no doubt in the state, and finally, at 5 o'clock, we reached Chicago. The first to be noticed on approaching the great city of Chicago are the many hundreds of stationary oil tanks, on account of the disagreeable odor and the danger of fire are not allowed in the city limits. At first I saw but straggling dilapidated houses, with here and there a business place, then more business and finally all business, and by the time I reached Union Station I fully realized what has often been told—that Chicago is a large and busy city. The proud city of Chicago, the seat of the greatest of the world's expositions, is actually too large a subject for anything like an adequate description in these limited columns. In fact, anything more than a mere mention would be superfluous, as millions already are acquainted with the exhibition of characteristic American ingenuity displayed there on all sides. For financial worth and commercial standing it outruns every other city in the country with the exception of New York. It is a peculiar fact that "truth is stronger than fiction." In the present age nothing seems impossible that has for its stimulus inspiration, backbone and protection—money.

Great is the money King! His Kingdom vast extends o'er every land, And nations bow before his high command. The weakest tremble, and his power obey; He rules the rulers; even the mighty fear; Asks his permission ere he goes to war—Saxe.

Chicago, the leading city of Illinois, and the great metropolis of the West, is situated near the southern extremity of Lake Michigan. Its area is 23,000 acres; its growth unparalleled. In 1830 the population was 70; in 1850, 29,963; in 1880, 503,185; in 1890, 1,099,850. In spite of the great fires of 1871 and 1874, it is now a fine, regular laid out city. Among the prominent buildings is the Exposition, on the lake front, opened in the fall of 1873, with the first of series of annual exhibitions. It is 800 by 110 feet, with an average height of 110 feet, and the arched roof of glass and iron is allowed to cover the largest unsupported span in the world. Here Garfield and Hendricks were nominated in 1880, and Blaine and Logan, and Cleveland and Hendricks in 1884. In the heart of the city, and fronting on Clark and Le Salle Sts., stands the magnificent new Court House and City Hall. It has a frontage of 340 feet on the East and West side, and 280 feet on the North and South side, and is built in the modern French renaissance style. It was commenced in 1877 and completed in 1889, at a cost of $6,000,000. The Postoffice and Custom House is a substantial building in the Romanesque style, almost entirely constructed of stone and iron. Its three main floors are occupied respectively by the Postoffice, Custom House and United States Court. The interior is handsomely furnished and has two magnificent staircases. The entire building was completed in 1880 and with its surrounding ground cost about $6,000,000. Towering above its lofty surroundings is the substantial building of the Board of Trade—the finest structure of its kind in America. Behind the structure is a magnificent office building nine stories high. The total cost of the building which was opened with elaborate ceremonies April, 1885, was about $1,700,000. Chicago has many other noted public buildings and its gorgeous Palmer House and Grand Pacific Hotel are almost unsurpassed in the country, and is noted for its many fine churches, colleges, hospitals, clubs and theatres. On Saturday morning, April 1st, I left for Naperville, Du Page County, the most prosperous of enterprising towns. It is situated on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad twenty nine miles West of Chicago. Eight regular trains are maintained. There are Public Schools, the Northwestern College. The town has a fire department with two engines and is equipped with a complete electric light plant. All branches of business are represented. Many of the merchants carrying stocks that would be a credit to any other town. The citizens are fully awake to the interests of their town which has about 3,000 inhabitants. The surrounding country is of the best quality, making Naperville quite an extensive shipping point.

Now, kind editor, I know I shall not ask your pardon in vain for having written at length more than I first intended. You see I could not have condensed much, but hasten to close, for I am aware that space is valuable and limited. In conclusion, let me say my sincere wishes for the increased circulation and future prosperity of your paper, and am yours truly, heart, hand and pocket-book for Maryland, and especially the little village by the mountain side, which I am happy to call home—Home, sweet home.
