DOCTORS OF ALL KINDS.

BY M. F. WINTER.

CHAPTER III.

Written For The Chronicle.

Ever in America the title of Doctor of Medicine entitles its owner to respect, surpassed only by that of the minister. The Doctors of our own community! How we trace them back in our memory through long years of service and self sacrifice. Year in and year out they have travelled through summer's heat and winter's cold, at first through forest roads on horse back, and then in open carriages, over long drawn roads of mud or dust, by day or night.

It is with reverence we inscribe the word "Doctor" on their tomb stones. And yet, these old doctors, how they cupped and bled and wrenched out teeth with pulleys! How they dosed us with blue mass and all kinds of vile stuff at the beginning of the century, and when we rebelled openly they sugar coated our pills for us and ceased to cup and bleed. Now we have arrived at much niceness in medicine. Some of it comes in the form of little tablets that are not so very nauseous and our liquid forms are colored like the bottles in the apothecary show windows.

And then if we still resist the massive dose there is the Homoeopathic doctor with his pin-head remedies. There have been several in our community within the past twenty years, but in spite of their gentle treatments they did not take root.

Perhaps this was because they were not native born. Our doctors count back three or four generations in our own community, beside which they are connected with medical professors in several cities, some of whom are of world-wide renown. Added to this they trace generations back in Great Britain. "Medicine" flows in their blood. Their hands were formed for surgical steel and healing touches.

And yet in spite of love and reverence and belief in their skill, the people will sometimes go back on them. All through the community (as in other communities) there are thousands of other kinds of doctors. We count from Uncle Alfred Brown in Lincoln Alley whose sign spells "A. Brown Herb Doctor" to the tiny urchin who tries a cure for warts "all by himself."

The Herb Doctors, with the exception of Uncle Alfred, have nearly died out.

There was a time when every housewife had her bed of herbs.

There were rue and tansy for bitters, sage for colds, thyme and lavender and dill and anise and sweet marjoram for perfumes and flavors, which are, in a degree, medicinal, too. Just outside in the pleasant lanes and meadows grew catnip for colic, various mints for various complaints, dittany for disease, hops for pains, boneset for malaria and so on.

Barks were used, too. Slippery elm and sassafras and spice wood! Who can still remember the pots of sassafras tea that stood on the supper table every spring to "thin the blood?"

The children liked it, because it was made sweet, and the coffee was guiltless of either sugar or molasses.

All this has passed away. Since our teeth are so carefully cared for we no longer need the bag of hops made hot at the kitchen fire on which we used to scorch our aching cheeks.

But lately, dame Fashion has stepped in and announced to us that though we may not have a hop bag we may have a hop pillow, for this is a pillow age, and many things are used for the filling. The covers may be silk or silkoline or any one of the fancy linens and cottons. Some of these pretty affairs have a legend embroidered on them to denote their contents. The very first ones were filled with strawberry fir needles from the North. Across a linen surface a sprig of fir was embroidered and also the legend from Longfellow: "Give me of thy balm, oh fir tree." Here are some later suggestions: "A bed of flowers," "Rosy colored be thy dreams," "Down by the violets," &c.

As for the Pow-wow Doctors, strange unearthly creatures that they are, they belong more properly to negro-lore and witch stories. Many people, however, have obtained possession of one or more pow-wow cures and have practised them more or less secretly. There is a rule among these that a man may tell a woman or a woman may tell a man the secret, but that if one tells the charm to one of the same sex the power is lost for both.

That there is faith attached to these cures cannot be denied. When faith in the Medical Doctor begins to waver, then comes the temptation to try a pow-wow. They call him in "behind the doctors back," as it were, and then "laugh in their sleeves," when the Doctor pronounces the cure highly satisfactory, supposing he did it "all by himself."

On one occasion a doctor near Harney met his antagonist at the front door of the patient's house. "Ha, ha, been having a pow-wow?" he said to the house wife. The lady answered: "Well, now, looky here, doctor, I didn't intend you to know anything about this, but since you caught us I'll have to say we have." "Well," said the doctor, "as it can't do any harm I'll go in and see him myself, as I mean to cure him if I can."

The following are some of the forms resorted to by these strange people who affect a cure by means of words.

"The blowing of fire" was a well known and often practised remedy fifty years ago. When any one became burned or scalded some one who knew the charm was sent for. His performance was a mystery to the beholder, because the words were recited silently or in German (when the beholders did not understand the language.) There may have been several methods but the only one I was able to obtain was the one in which the performer placed himself with his back to the east and blew over the burn three times "from sunrise to sunset." After each time that he blew he repeated the formula:

"Fire burn not;
Water stop not;
God's word doth not lie."

This was said to ease the pain immediately. There was another formula which the person asked would not reveal. She said she used the highest words in the Bible.

To stop the running of blood repeat the 6th verse of the 16th chapter of Ezekiel. After the word "blood" say the name of the person or animal that is bleeding. The word "blood" will occur three times. This failed to bring relief once because some children who were watching their mother charm a bleeding cow laughed at the performance.

There are at least four cures for erysipelas or "wild fire." I could only succeed in getting one complete.

Take a red silk string and rub with it away from the heart. That is if the disease is above the heart rub the string upward three times over the place, but if it is below the heart rub downward three times over the place. Say each time:

"This wild fire must go away.
This red string must take it all away."

Another way to cure erysipelas by using seven red silk threads, one for each of seven fires.

Still another was to use a long preamble of words with some now unknown ceremony.

Perhaps the most popular method was that of carrying a shovel of coals around the patient. That has been tried more than once during the last decade. The charmer walks three times around the patient before sunrise and three times after sunset for three days. Bible words are used.

Liver growth was once a very prevalent disease among children, and many were the cures for it. Here is one that I have complete: Let the performer place his two hands so that the fingers and thumbs touch in regular order. Place the thumbs on the child's back, draw down the backbone, separate hands and draw the thumbs simultaneously under the child's lower ribs (one on either side) saying:

"You go away from this child's ribs."

Do this three times for nine mornings.

Another cure is to rub the child all over, make a sign of a cross on the child's hands, feet, forehead and breast, then say, "In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost."

Another cure was to shake a child at sun rise three times for three days. Words were said to this effect:

Liver growth may be induced by holding a child above a grown person's head. A very simple cure is to turn the baby three times around the leg of the table. Still another cure that is very simple is to push baby through a horse collar.

MASON AND DIXON LINE.
The restoration of the old Mason and Dixon's line between the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania will be the purpose of a bill to be introduced in the Maryland State Senate early in the session by Senator Jacob M. Moses, of Baltimore city.

The Mason and Dixon line runs from the Delaware boundary of Maryland to the corner where Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania join. It is about 200 miles in length and was run between the years 1763 and 1768 by the two English engineers, Mason and Dixon. The Maryland counties bordering on the line are Cecil, Harford, Baltimore, Carroll, Frederick, Washington, Allegheny and Garrett. When the line was originally made stone monuments were placed at intervals of five miles as far as the Blue Ridge mountains. Beyond this the line was marked simply by heaps of stone. The original intention was to place the monuments throughout the length of the line, and many of the monuments were carried into the country, but never set up. Dr. Clark, Maryland State Geologist, states that in Washington county two of them ornament the front steps of a farmer's house in that section. Some years ago the States of West Virginia and Pennsylvania re-ran and marked the old line, so that the Maryland portion is the only part remaining only partially marked.

Many of the monuments, Dr. Clark says, have become dilapidated during the century and a quarter they have stood, and large parts of them have been carried away by relic hunters and others. The appropriation of $5,000 by the Pennsylvania Legislature was obtained through the efforts of Dr. Clark, who says that the bill went through without delay of any sort, the members appearing to catch on to the spirit of the bill as well as to its usefulness. Dr. Clark adds that it is important in running the line that intermediate marks should be placed at what surveyors call inter-visible points so that it is possible to see from point to point. This will make the location of the line an easy matter for the county surveyors with their ordinary apparatus.

The restoring of the Mason and Dixon line, should the bill pass the Maryland Legislature, will still further identify the Maryland Geological Survey with the boundary lines of the State. It is already identified with the west boundary line, and last year successfully ran the Allegheny-Garret line, which for 25 years had been in doubt. The economy of the present bill may be realized when it is stated that Pennsylvania's share of the expense in running the line originally was about $171,000.

"I AM indebted to One Minute Cough cure for my health and life. It cured me of lung trouble following grippe." Thousands owe their lives to the prompt action of this never failing remedy. It cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, pneumonia, grippe and throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. T. E. BATTLE EPIGRAMS.

Famous Phrases Used by Commanders of Many Countries.

The origin of a considerable number of vivid phrases and memorable utterances can be attributed to the rush of battle. Some are apocryphal, and may have been manufactured after the event; others are only correct in substance, and have undergone revision. But if the process of sub-editing, as it were, has resulted in improving the phraseology, without altering the sense or obscuring the essential point, it would savor of hypercriticism to object to it as a blemish.

An illustration of this is to be found in the case of the famous signal at Trafalgar. Its popular form is "England expects that every man this day will do his duty." There is still some controversy upon the point, but it is certain that these are not the precise words used. They have in fact, been expanded to meet the metrical exigencies of Brahmin's song. No matter; it is enough for us to know that the kernel is there. This was a spontaneous epigram, but it has achieved immortality. It has grown into a national watchword, not merely because of its association with a great and a splendid victory, but also because it embodies a sermon on conduct and patriotism in terms so pithy and so pointed that no professional rhetorician could have bettered them.

There is a proud ring of triumph in Commodore Perry's despatch to his government after the capture of the British flotilla on Lake Erie: "We have met the enemy, and they are ours." Intensely pathetic, on the other hand, are the dying words of Captain Lawrence, on board the Chesapeake, spoken at the very moment when his flag was being hauled down to the Shannon. Yet "Don't give up the ship!" would make a noble motto for the navy of the United States. Perry's message reads almost like an echo of the "Veni, Vidi, Vici!" of Julius Caesar, but both are eclipsed by the single punning word, "Pecavi," in which Sir Charles Napier announced the conquest of Scinde. Among those sayings of more than doubtful authenticity which it seems impossible to dislodge from popular favor one stands prominent on either side in the traditions of Waterloo.

Cambrenne's mythical reply: "The Old Guard dies, but never surrenders," stands balanced by the equally imaginary order attributed to Wellington of "Up, Guards and at 'em." Yet both are so good and so nationally characteristic as to make it a pity that they are not true. General Grant's reply to the remonstrances respecting the prolonged campaign before Richmond, "I mean to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," has been adopted by his countrymen and embedded in their speech as the typical expression of dogged, uncompromising persistence.

But battle epigrams, even when genuine, are not invariably unpremeditated. There is a suspicion of self-consciousness about Francis's letter after Pavia, "All is lost except honor." Yet perhaps it were more charitable to regard it as a real impromptu bearing the educated Frenchman's happy turn of expression. There is, however, an unmistakable odor of the lamp in the address of Napoleon to his army before the battle with the Mamelukes: "From the summits of yonder pyramids twenty centuries look down upon you." Still the words deserve to be remembered as a striking summary of a highly dramatic situation. Usually the rallying cry in battle has been the name of some single leader or patron saint, but sometimes it took a more special and defined significance. Eminently effective and appropriate was that of the charging Huguenots at Ivry, when "Remember St. Bartholomew" was passed from man to man—a politico-religious harrange in three words. Sir John Astley's prayer in front of his troops at Naseby is, in its way, inimitable: "Oh, Lord, Thou knowest how busy I must be this day. If I forget Thee, yet do not Thou forget me. March on, boys." In remarkable contrast and typical, it may be, not less on the age than on the man, are the dare-devil words of the leader of the Light Brigade at Balaklava: "Here goes the last of the Cardigans."

The observation recorded of Nelson at the commencement of the battle of the Nile, "A peacocks or Westminster Abbey," has become historical, like everything else of his. It is characteristic that he never contemplated even the possibility of defeat. Victory was to be inevitable, and the only alternative was whether his own recompense should be a coronet or a tomb. William III.'s words to the French Protestant refugees at the Boyne still live in the lines of an Orange song:

"God will be your King today,
And I'll be general under."

The last epigram, given in an article in the Evening Standard, and perhaps one of the best is contained in the message of the American Commodore Tatnall to the English admiral during the Bombardment of the Peiho forts. It was made on the spur of the moment. It breathes of the earnestness of excitement and the hearty comradeship of one sea dog offering his aid to another. But it is so pregnant with sound political philosophy that it has taken rank as an aphorism of Anglo-Saxondom, and among the most effective instruments in maintaining the good relations of England and America, an important place must be claimed for the epigrammatic definition of the fact of international kinship in the phrase now familiarized in the two continents: "Blood is thicker than water."—London Naval and Military Record.

MINERS DISCHARGED WHOLESALE.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., January 12.—One hundred and thirty additional miners employed in the collieries of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company were discharged today for failing to report for work on Wednesday. One hundred were discharged yesterday for the same reason. All of the discharged miners attended the funeral of a miner who was killed in one of the collieries, and who was a member of two beneficial societies to which the discharged men belonged. The miners had asked permission to lay off from work in order to attend the funeral, but their request was refused by the officials, and the men were told that if any of them failed to report for work the offending men would be discharged. The nine officials state that they have no objection to the men going to funerals of employees killed at the mine where they are employed, but will not allow workmen from four collieries to cease work, and thus cripple the operations of all of them. The discharged men will hold a mass-meeting to consider a course to induce the company to re-employ them. Many of these men are members of the United Mine Workers of America.

THEY ARE FREE AT LAST.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 12.—Jacob Henze and Henry Kasser, who were convicted of the murder of Edwin E. Brown, a wealthy stockman, in this city, in March, 1893, and sentenced to the Jefferson City penitentiary for life, have been released. Harry B. Hawes, president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, was at the state capital for several days in consultation with Governor Stephens relative to the cases of the prisoners, and it was at his earnest solicitation that the executive signed their pardons yesterday. The case of Henze and Kasser is probably unparalleled in the criminal annals of the world. They were eight times thrust within the shadow of the gallows, and as many times reprieved, once within three hours of their impending doom, ultimately being consigned to life imprisonment at hard labor.

The men were convicted on purely circumstantial evidence. The real murderers, as revealed by investigation by the police department, were three notorious criminals, all of whom have died since the conviction of Henze and Kasser.

J. I. BEVRY, Loganton, Pa., writes, "I am willing to take my oath that I was cured of pneumonia entirely by the use of One Minute Cough Cure after doctors failed. It also cured my children of whooping cough." Quickly relieves and cures coughs, colds, croup, grippe and throat and lung troubles. Children all like it. Mothers endorse it. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

GENERAL WHEELER'S ORDERS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—It was admitted at the War Department today that General Wheeler had been relieved from duty in the Philippines and ordered to proceed home via Guam, with instructions to report his arrival at San Francisco to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

He may then proceed to Washington for further orders, but it is not likely he will be given further active service, and if he does not resign will be placed on waiting orders.

General Wheeler's health is said to have been impaired by the climate, and it is suggested he was not in physical condition for the arduous and trying duties of an officer in the Philippine campaign. Reports say he has suffered from fever and is not so strong as when he left for Manila.

If General Wheeler has forwarded his resignation to the President, as is intimated, it has not yet been received in Washington. The War Department officials have not received even an intimation that General Wheeler would resign, and it was not expected he would, in view of the President's desire to retrieve him with the rank of brigadier-general of the regular army.

LACEY WANTS MORE BIRDS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A bill was introduced in the House today by Representative Lacey, of Iowa, adding to the Department of Agriculture the duty of propagating game and other wild birds in the United States. The authority is given to the department to maintain a division in the department for this purpose, and it is provided that the Secretary of Agriculture is to import such foreign birds and animals as he pleases, but that no private party can import them without a permit from the Secretary of Agriculture. The importation of the mongoose, "flying foxes," English sparrow, starling and several other birds, or any others which the Secretary may decide to be destructive to the interests of horticulture or agriculture, is strictly prohibited. The transportation of game killed in one State during the closed season into another State is prohibited, and a fine of not more than $200 is provided for each offense.

If you have catarrh, rheumatism, or dyspepsia, take Hood's Sarsaparilla and be cured as thousands of others have been.

TO EXPEL ROBERTS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The special committee of the House of Representatives to investigate the case of Brigham H. Roberts of Utah today reached a final conclusion. On the polygamous status of Mr. Roberts the committee was unanimous, and agreed upon a formal statement of facts. On the question of procedure to be adopted the committee was divided. The majority, consisting of all the members except Littlefield of Maine and DeArmond of Missouri, favored exclusion at the outset. Messrs. Littlefield and DeArmond will make a minority report favorable to seating Roberts on his prima facie rights and then expelling him.

KILLED THEIR JAILER.

At West Plains, Mo., on Wednesday, County jailer Alfred Henry, while feeding the prisoners in the Howell county jail was overpowered and killed by two prisoners, B. Richardson and Edward Crady.

Richardson was under sentence to the penitentiary for burglary and is an escaped convict from the Tennessee penitentiary.

Henry had gone to the jail to feed the prisoners, and, not returning to his home at the accustomed time, his wife became anxious and sent a neighbor in search of him. His body was found in a pool of blood on the jail floor. The prisoners had escaped and locked the door after them. A posse was immediately organized.

A reward of $1,000 is offered for their capture. A report by telephone announced their appearance 10 miles south of West Plains headed for Arkansas.

The Latest X-ray Invention
Is the Endoscope, which is for the purpose of examining the interior of the stomach. It is claimed that with this instrument, the treatment of stomach troubles will be revolutionized, as it locates the cause of disease. With due respect to science, however, would state that the causes of stomach troubles have been known for the past fifty years, and likewise their cure, which is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that has many imitators, but no equals. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, nervousness, insomnia. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague, and keeps the bowels regular. When not feeling right, take a dose. It is the standard medicine of the American people. Look for Private Revenue Stamp over neck of bottle.

The bill to provide three magistrates for Hagerstown, who are also to serve as city police justices, at a salary of $1,000 per year, has aroused some opposition. Ex-City Attorney William J. Wittenbach states that the bill will not be a saving to the town compared with the present system, under which one police justice serves for $200 a year and the fines he imposes, amounting to nearly $200 a year. He says the new bill will raise the city tax rate 2 cents and that the yearly loss will be sufficient to pay interest at 4 per cent. on $20,000, which could be spent in building a city hall.

BOY'S HEAD CUT OFF.

About 6:30 o'clock last Thursday evening, Horton Bean, the eight-year old son of Mr. Henry Bean, who resides on the outskirts of Rockville, was run over by a construction engine, which had been engaged in hauling cars upon the Washington and Rockville Electric Railway, and his head was severed from the body. The residence of Mr. Bean fronts upon the railway, and the boy is thought to have been playing outside and to have been caught by the engine, which was being backed by a watchman, William Autobash, for the purpose of getting oil.

A CHARRIED BODY FOUND.

Workmen engaged clearing away the debris of the barn of Mrs. S. A. McDanel, near Northeast, which was burned last week, came across the charred remains of a man. Beside the bones was a revolver, a pocket knife and part of a pipe. The supposition is that the man was in the second story of the barn and in lighting his pipe set fire to the barn, which was totally destroyed, together with the contents, involving a loss of about $1,000. No one is missing around Northeast, and it is supposed the man was a tramp.

CLAIMS $500,000,000.

Jesse Eldridge Bailey, of Hagerstown, says he is one of the heirs to the Bailey fortune, said to amount to $90,000,000 and waiting to be claimed in England. Mr. Bailey is the son of Mr. George W. Bailey, now 77 years old, a resident of Martinsburg, W. Va. Mr. Bailey's mother died in 1875 and he is the only child.

Mr. Bailey says his father's share of the estate amounted to $15,000,000 before his father's brothers and sisters died and since their death the entire fortune will go to his father and in turn, descend to him.

Mr. Bailey stated that his father has spent considerable money with Frederick City lawyers in having the claim investigated, but for want of funds the investigation has stopped. Mr. Bailey is a native of southeastern Frederick county. His grandfather, whose estate represents the fortune, was an Englishman and his grandmother was a German.

THE MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

The Maryland Legislature is now in working order and at Tuesday's session the legislative machinery began running regularly. In the Senate an order was adopted reducing the amount of stamps to be supplied to members and officers from $25 to $10. The Republican members of the senate presented a formal protest against the failure to assign them to important committees.

Among the bills introduced in the Senate were bills to compel employers to allow their employees two hours in which to cast their ballots on election days; to establish a State normal and industrial school for colored youths; to protect citizens from unjust discriminations upon the part of electric railway companies.

Among the bills introduced in the House were bills concerning the employment of minors in breweries; to regulate the profession of public accountants; to incorporate a State bank in Baltimore; to restrict the use of patent tongs in oyster fishing in the Patuxent; and to increase the cost of honorary membership of militia regiments.

SABILLASVILLE CHURCH CLOSED.

SABILLASVILLE, Md., Jan. 15, 1900. Mr. Editor of the Emmitsburg Chronicle. Sir:—Please allow me space in your valuable paper, to say that after forty-five years regular service in the Reformed Church at this place, quite an intense feeling arose after a part of the consistory closed the church immediately after service in the face of the Sunday school when they were preparing their work for their usual Christmas Celebration, and also inadvertently voted the pastor a two months unwanted vacation. Though he is preaching for the other two congregations belonging to the Sabillasville charge, St. Jacob's and Highfield.

The little ones were so anxious to celebrate the birth of our Saviour as they had been taught, and notwithstanding their church being closed, they got permission to hold their Celebration in the U. B. Church.

The promoters and builders of this Church in 1855 did not anticipate that the Church would ever be closed when they said: "This Church shall always be open to Church and Sunday School work." The Church was closed the third of last December.

INSANE MAN'S DEED.

On Thursday of last week while in a fit of insanity, George W. Seiss, living near Motter's Station, this District, carried his sick wife out of the house into the yard, and then hit her on the head with an axe, inflicting a serious wound. One of his little children ran to the home of Mr. W. H. Weaver, a near neighbor, who went to the scene, and prevented the insane man from doing further harm to his wife.

Constable W. H. Ashbaugh was notified and in the afternoon brought Seiss before Justice Stokes, who committed him to the Frederick jail.

On Friday afternoon a jury was summoned in Frederick to inquire into his mental condition, and after hearing the testimony of several witnesses declared Seiss to be of unsound mind and not responsible for any acts he may have committed, and was committed to Montevue Hospital by Judge Motter.

Until the present unfortunate act, Mr. Seiss had always been known to be kind and gentle to his family.

Mrs. Seiss's condition is somewhat improved, and it is thought that she may possibly recover.

NOT LIKELY TO BE BUILT.

A prominent officer of the proposed Frederick, Thurmont and Northern Electric Railroad, for which a franchise had been obtained to use the principal streets of Frederick, says it is more probable that the project will be abandoned, as they have not met with the proper encouragement. The contemplated line was to run from Frederick, Thurmont and Emmitsburg and ultimately to terminate at Gettysburg.

The New York people who were interested, and who, it was stated, were to furnish three-fourths of the capital, have withdrawn and invested their capital in a trolley system near Boston.

The understanding was that Frederick county people and those along the proposed route of the road were to furnish $50,000 and the remainder to be furnished by the New York capitalists.

It is said that the lack of interest manifested and the opposition to the granting of the franchise in Frederick discouraged the New York people.—Sun.

Having a Great Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Martin, of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of that medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. In these days of la grippe there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heal up the sore throat and lungs and give relief within a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Calumet. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., Druggists.

OWEN ROBINSON 110 YEARS OLD.

Owen Robinson, popularly known as "Daddy or Uncle Owen," claims to have passed his 110th milestone Monday. He says he was born in Baltimore county, Md., Jan. 15, 1790, and for a number of years was a slave, obtaining his freedom when his master, Richard Gorsuch, died in 1817. In his time he has been a great hunter and walker, having walked to Pittsburgh from this place on several occasions. When shown a photograph of himself taken from the Philadelphia Times on Friday he seemed much pleased, and asked to be given the picture to send to some of his friends in Westminster, where he has spent some years of his life. "Daddy" is the oldest citizen of Gettysburg and one of the oldest of the State.—Gettysburg Compiler.

FAIRFIELD ITEMS.

FAIRFIELD, Jan. 16.—Mr. Peter S. Harbaugh's Pension has been increased from $6 to $8 per month.

The G. A. R. bean soup held on last Saturday night, was a success, having the fullest house that we ever had, there being as many ladies as men present, and they set a first class table. Those who attend can testify to this fact.

Mr. Jacob Shoemaker, who bought the hotel property in Fairfield, is making some changes, by enlarging the bar room and making other improvements. By the way, Mr. Shoemaker is a good fellow and may do a good business.

Mrs. S. K. Hostetter, of Fontaindale, is spending a few days with the family of F. Shulley, near Fairfield.

Mr. Jacob Gallagher, of near Fairfield, is building a house in Hanover for Mr. C. A. Spangler, of Fairfield, Mr. Spangler having an interest in a butchering establishment in Hanover.

Mr. George Sell, an old Soldier of the War of the Rebellion, died and was buried on last Saturday. Interment at Union Cemetery.

Mr. Conrad Walter, of near McKnightstown, is a visitor at this place, being the guest of Mr. Samuel Walter.

Mr. David McCreary, of Gettysburg, died on last Friday. Mr. McCreary was well known in the county, having kept the Battlefield Hotel at one time. His father having lived at Fairfield at one time and kept store in town. He also taught school at this place.

There is scarcely a family in this community but either had the measles or are having the measles at this time. However, the schools are being kept open, as yet.

Mr. G. E. Brown, of Fairfield, is having a wagon shed put up. Mr. Jacob Hare is doing the work.

Dr. Glenn, of Fairfield, who had diphtheria some time ago is now able to attend to his practice. He rides out unless the weather is very bad. We are glad to see the doctor go around.

The commonest thing in this community at this time is a very bad cold. Ask a man how he is, and the reply will be, "I am well, except a bad cold," or how is your family, and the reply invariably will be, "they have the measles and a bad cold."

Mr. F. Shulley and Mr. Samuel Hostetter made a business trip to Gettysburg on last Saturday.

The Republicans of Hamilton township will hold their primary election on Monday, January 29, between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock, to nominate a township ticket.

FREE MAIL DELIVERY.

Upon the request of citizens of this county who get their mail at Harney, Md., and others, a free delivery mail route has been arranged, to begin at Gettysburg, thence to Yost's store, Mountjoy township, thence to Harney, and back to Gettysburg, a distance of 19 miles.

M. E. Smith, Acting Superintendent of the Rural Mail Delivery Department, of Washington, was here on Wednesday and in company with Postmaster Geo. F. Young went over the route and made the arrangements.

The carrier is to be Charles F. Pfeiffer, of this place. He will make a trip each day, delivering and receiving mail at each of the houses along the line. He will leave here at 11 o'clock a. m., and is given until 5:30 p. m., for his return.

One of the reasons why the Government so quickly granted the request for a route from Gettysburg to Harney is in the fact that a large majority of the patrons of the Harney office are citizens of Adams county, who have been inconvenienced by the new postal system introduced in Carroll county, Md., in which Harney is situated.

None of the postoffices along the route are to be discontinued. We are informed by Postmaster Young that the Government will grant free delivery upon petition of two-thirds of the patrons of the office in the community where the system is sought.

The new route, it is expected, will be begun in a few days.—Gettysburg Compiler.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every state in the Union and in many of the foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M. V. Fisher of Liberty, W. Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for several years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This remedy for sale by T. E. MONTH'S MIND FOR REV. FATHER KAVANAUGH.

A Requiem Mass (Month's Mind) for the lately deceased pastor of St. Joseph's Church, was sung at the church on Tuesday, 16th inst. at 9 a. m. Rev. Father O'Donoghue was celebrant; Very Rev. Father Lennon, C. M., Deacon; Rev. Father McNeil, Subdeacon; and Rev. Father Lennon, of Taneytown, Master of Ceremonies. A catafalque draped with black and surrounded by burning candles stood in the centre aisle, the altars likewise were hung with mourning.

The choir under Miss Tyson's direction sang the requiem music with much taste and devotion.

In the sanctuary, besides the officiating priests, were Very Rev. W. L. O'Hara, A. M., President of Mt. St. Mary's College; Rev. Drs. Tierney and McSweeney, Bradley and Flynn, professors at the same; Rev. Father Maloney, of Mt. Hope, Father Maaley, pastor of St. Anthony's Church and Very Rev. T. J. Crotty, of Gettysburg.

A large number of people and school children assisted at the Mass, with a delegation of Sisters from St. Joseph's Convent.

Rev. Dr. McSweeney preached on the occasion. He spoke of the satisfaction it afforded the College clergy to be able to testify by their presence at this funeral service, the esteem and affection in which they hold the departed clergyman, as well as the noble society of Mission-Priests to which he belonged. One of the early presidents of the College, Father McGerry, had joined the Order of St. Vincent de Paul; and ever since they took charge of the Emmitsburg Congregation and became chaplains of the convent, the most friendly, even brotherly relations continued to exist between them and us. They came and sorrowed with us when one of our members was called away; it is a pleasure for us, though a sad one, to come and help them bear their load of grief.

The speaker knew and loved the honest generous Father Landry, and visited him at St. Agnes' Hospital, a visit which the venerable invalid welcomed and which the speaker therefore takes comfort in recalling. He knew and loved the manly, open-hearted Father Lefevre, and wrote to him from Palestine last spring, encouraging him to celebrate again in '99 as he had done in '98, the martial glories of our country, and regretted that he himself would not reach home in time to help him.

"I visited Father Kavanaugh," he continued, "at St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia, a short time before his death, and was edified by the quiet fortitude of the sick priest, and the easy unaffected courtesy in receiving his visitor."

"Father Kavanaugh was one of the eight boys, who forty-two years ago, started in a farm house on the banks of the Niagara, the school that afterwards developed into the Niagara University. And it was under his presidency that the great transformation took place and the Faculties of Law and Medicine were established in the city of Buffalo, N. Y. For he had early joined the Lazarist Society, and became one of its most prominent and useful members. St. Vincent had founded his Order to preach the Gospel to the poor, and to promote the becoming education of the priesthood," and to Father Kavanaugh it fell to carry out these two objects. For thirty years he was connected with the training of ecclesiastical and other students in his Alma Mater, and towards the close of his life was sent to this village, to exercise the other functions of his ministry in such a mountain-district as the Saint and his earliest companions had chosen for their labors. Of his achievements on the banks of the 'rushing river' where near his boyhood's home his remains now rest, bishops and priests assembled from the whole United States at his funerals in Buffalo and Niagara, have duly testified; of his pastoral work amongst yourselves it is needless that I speak, for you know it better than I. Let me but say this for an example to us all: St. Vincent de Paul, true follower of Jesus Christ, loved the poor and lowly, and it was in serving them that Father Kavanaugh spent himself at last, for his fatal illness began when he had overtaken him at the Pic-nic he had gotten up for the Colored Children of St. Euphemia's Parochial School. I say not: 'May God remember it for him!' For we all know the words of Christ: 'Whoever you have done to the least of my brethren, the same you have done unto me.' (Matt. xxv, 40)

"Happy, therefore, was our deceased brother in his double ministry. His pupils of Niagara have accompanied the departed spirit to the Great White Throne with their gratitude and their prayers. Let us with his parochial children join with his brethren of the clergy in offering up the Divine Sacrifice for his soul, and praying Almighty God to shorten the punishment of his sins, and to admit him speedily to everlasting refreshment, light and peace."

MEMORIES OF PRISON LIFE.

Owing to the inclement weather last Thursday evening there was a small audience in the P. O. S. of A. hall, says the Gettysburg Star and Sentinel, to hear Hon. Theodore McAllister's lecture on "My Travels Across the Plains," and it was accordingly decided to postpone the lecture until a more favorable evening. Mr. McAllister however gave a very interesting talk on his army experiences and especially that part of it that he spent in the Confederate prisons.

"Prison life," said he, "comes back to me only in my dreams, for I would fain forget it. It is the most unpleasant part of my life and I have tried to forget all about it. I have heard men say that they thought it was cowardly to be captured and that they would never have been captured, but some of the bravest men I know have been captured in battle. They were captured too in the front of the battle where they were needed and where they had been placed because they could be trusted with responsible positions.

"When we were captured we didn't expect to be treated finely. We made allowances but we never expected to receive the treatment that was meted out to us in the Rebel prison pens."

Mr. McAllister then told how near he came to being shot soon after he entered his first prison. He did not notice the dead line which was marked by sticks in the sand and had just started to cross it when he was pulled back by one of the other prisoners. As he looked up he noticed that two of the guards had their guns leveled at him. He also told of the shooting of an aged prisoner who simply fell over the line as he was reaching out to get a drink of water. After night he said that the guards without any pretext whatever would shoot into the stockade and seemed to enjoy the cruel sport. He told of one young man who was a particularly sweet singer and who was accustomed to cheer the other prisoners with his singing, who was shot through the head one evening while he was singing old familiar tunes with his comrades gathered around him. As an instance of the patriotic devotion of the prisoners he told an instance of the Florence prison. The manufacturers of Macon, Ga., came to the prison and endeavored to get the prisoners to work in their mills and factories. So strong was the spirit of patriotism that only about one per cent. of the prisoners availed themselves of the offer, which was a good one and carried with it good food, shelter and clothing and pay for the work done. They preferred the miserable fare and scarcely any shelter to working for their country's enemies with good food and shelter.

Mr. McAllister closed by showing the revolver he carried as a member of the 1st Battalion Maryland Cavalry and also a French Navy revolver that he captured from a Confederate officer after that officer had shot at him twice. Both of these Mr. McAllister prizes highly. His talk was much enjoyed by those who were present.

OAK GROVE NEWS.

For The Chronicle.
Liberty Literary Society met at Oak Grove last Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing a Literary Society.

The teacher and scholars had prepared a very interesting programme which was well rendered. It consisted of dialogues, recitations, vocal and instrumental music, with Mrs. A. L. Mondorff as organist.

Debate, "Resolved, that Washington deserves more honor than Lincoln." The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

The Virginia Jubilee singers gave an entertainment at Oak Grove which was enjoyed by all present.

Liberty Hall School has been closed this week on account of the teacher, Mr. F. Topper, being sick. We hope he will soon be about again.

A very pleasant surprise was tendered Mrs. A. L. Mondorff one evening last week, by a number of her friends calling on her. The evening was spent in various games, social conversation, vocal and instrumental music were the amusements indulged in. It is needless to say that the hospitality of Mrs. Mondorff can scarcely be surpassed. Refreshments in abundance were served after which all left for their respective homes, well pleased with the evening's enjoyment.

TRUE VALUE OF FOOD

IT IS NOT WELL KNOWN BY ALL HOUSEKEEPERS.

Price is No Guide to the Amount of Nourishment—One Half Our Income Spent Blindly—Useless Expenses That Friction Away Money.

The current number of What to Eat contains an article by Laura Clark Rockwood on the "Pecuniary Value of Food," which is worthy of consideration. The latest purchases of the earnings of the wage-workers of the country is spent for food but, unfortunately, the money is spent more or less blindly, she declares. That is, the man or woman who does the buying determines the purchases largely by taste or by chance, as the case may be, without regard to the nutritive values.

And this mistake is through no special fault of theirs, but because there is a great lack of general knowledge upon the subject of the nutritive economy and nutritive value of foods. The average income of the people of this country is small, not over $500 per annum, and statistics show that of this amount over one-half is spent for food. In the case of the poor, it is found that less money might have been expended with better results; that is, the different members of the family might have been better nourished through a different selection of cheaper food. The most economical food is that which is best adapted to the requirements of the user, which will best nourish the body, which will "agree" with him, and which is the least costly.

It is all very well for those who can afford porthouse steak to use it, but the rank and file cannot afford it, and what they need to know is a palatable way to prepare the cheaper cuts. A butcher in New York said that he had great difficulty in trying to convince a poor seamstress that she should buy tenderloin steaks at 60 cents a pound, that she might get just as much nourishment from the cheaper cuts. She was rather insulted at the idea, and said with some dignity that she always bought the best. The result is certainly a case where the best is not always the cheapest.

For instance, bearing in mind that neck meat is richer in protein than tenderloin steak, let us consider the purchase of each. With our lower prices here in the West, we can purchase two pounds of steak for 30 cents, and this amount will make a meal for four people, there being, of course, considerable waste in the way of fat and trimmings.

This same 20 cents will buy four pounds of neck meat. In our household we cook it by thoroughly browning all sides of it in hot butter in which there is a slice of onion. This searing over the outside serves to render the juice. Then boiling water enough to keep the meat from burning is added and the meat allowed to simmer for three hours. Add salt and pepper a short time before it is done. A half hour before dinner dumplings are made and added to the contents of the pot. The result is a savory and nutritious dish as one could wish. A second serving of the same meat appears as croquettes into which the gravy left from the first day is incorporated, and a third serving takes the form of a hash. The meat on toast or meat soule, and thus the meat for three meals has been provided at a cost of only 25 cents.

Do not despise hash. It is a tempting dish when properly prepared. Chop the meat fine and put in the skillet with a little boiling water, butter, pepper and salt. Spread the chopped potato on top. Cover closely and let the potato steam through, but do not stir it into the meat until just before taking it from the stove. The nutritive value of the hash is not appreciated as it should be, for the food value of a pound of hash is much greater than that of a pound of meat, while its cost is very much less.

It is safe to say that many people spend much more for their food than is necessary. In a recent article in one of the leading magazines a percentage of over three-fourths of the income was given for necessities, and to what the income varied from $1,500 to $2,000. That ratio for a family of four was not too large, for in the West, where food is comparatively cheap, a family of four can live very well on $400 a year, judiciously expended for food. This sum, of course, does not include the cost of preparing the food, that is servants' wages.

Philippine Women.
The aristocratic Philippine matron and her daughters indulge in no greater bodily exercise, if they can help it, than that required for driving or shopping. But the peasant woman shares her husband's work, and her day is spent laboring at the plow behind an ungainly carabao or water buffalo in the paddy field, or helping to pole huge loads, or coconuts raft up or down the river, besides attending to her domestic duties. The Philippine girls are employed in the great cigar factories, and other in the convents labor to weave the far-famed pina lace of the Philippines, several at a time squatting on the floor around a single frame, picking and stitching with their fingers the infinitesimal delicate fibers. Sometimes they work for months to complete a single manilla or handkerchief. These native women are rarely employed by European residents as domestic servants, except in the case of the Manila and children's nurse, and even these positions are occupied by boys. They are very reliable, and the utter absence of sense of gratitude, so characteristic of the entire Philippine race, renders it a hopeless task to attempt to train them as servants.

Bound to Depart.
A youthful stockton man rushed to catch a river boat for San Francisco, but was about two minutes late. The steamer was six feet out as he reached the dock. He swung his grip aboard and, jumping, caught a rope and a post and held fast. Everybody imagined he had fallen in. The captain, peering over the side, saw his intrepid passenger. "Here, you," he shouted, "by jimmie's, don't you ever do that again!" The passenger had hauled himself aboard by this time, and, turning a look of scorn at the captain, said, "What do you think I'm going to do—jump back and try it over?"

What is that which increases the more you take from it?—A hole.

A DUMMY DECK.

Cards Run In On Four Poker Play ers in Camp.

"A rather amusing thing happened at a fishing camp at which I was summer," said R. R. Reynolds, of Hartford, at the Hotel Manhattan New York. One of our party, while observing a thorough good fellow was an interminable talker, and as such an awful bore. The description, once applied to a certain statesman, that he used to set his mouth going and go away and leave it talking, fitted him to a T. We stood it for a couple of days, and then we put up a game on him. After supper, when we started in on his regular conversation, we got up in a body and decamped. He saw the point and gracefully yielded to the inevitable, although he swore revenge. Above this time we found that we had no playing cards with us and telegraphed back to the club for 20 packs, which arrived in due time and that night we had a game. After we had played some time the conversationist dealt the cards. I held the ace, and when I picked up my hand I held four tens.

"The next man simply stayed, so did the next, but the other two whooped at her for the limit. The dealer, keeping up his bluff, said again and again we had one card left. This went on until we all got tired, and then came the draw. Some stood pat, and the balance drew one card each. After the draw we went it fast and furious. All the while the cards were going, and the falling of 10's and 10's looked like a snowstorm. It finally resulted in a show down, and every blessed man present laid down four tens. When we recovered from the trance we were at first thrown into we looked at the dealer. The cards arrived, and all the 20 packs happened to have the same backs suggested the idea to him, and he put up the dummy pack, which he held in his lap. The substitution was easy, and we did the rest."—New York Tribune.

It Comes To A Prodigal Turned Out Into the World Many Years Ago.

After more than twelve years of dire poverty Douglas Wilhelm is walking from New York to his home in eastern Tennessee to claim a fortune of $100,000, which his father left him. Wilhelm started from New York on Saturday morning, and intends to walk all the way to Memphis. He says that he has managed to live twelve years in want without asking charity and that he does not intend to ask for it now.

He has enough money to pay for his lodging and food on the trip, and does not intend to ask for transportation. Wilhelm was at the Twenty-fifth District Police Station, and was there seen by a reporter for the Times, to whom he told his story.

His father, Dr. Emil, owned a large cotton plantation about forty miles from Memphis, and he and his son lived together until twelve years ago, when the son fell in love with the plantation overseer's daughter. Several months later the father and son were married. The boy's father would not be reconciled to the marriage and turned the son out on the world. He and his wife wandered and he and his young wife wandered from place to place, living on what he best they could. They finally drifted to New York, where the wife died. Wilhelm made a living by selling papers, and continued to struggle on alone until a few weeks ago, when he saw in a Southern paper that his father had died leaving him his entire fortune.

Wilhelm wrote to the administrator of the estate, but received no answer, and is now on his way to his home claim the estate. He looks worn and haggard, but seems confident that he will be able to make the trip.—Philadelphia Times.

Fought Five Bulldogs.

A man by the name of Walker, who lives near here, has a pack of five bulldogs. While at supper with his family, a drunken man named Elliott came on his porch and pulled out his bottle of liquor and coat and had begun to jump from the porch continuously. The dogs pretty soon came tearing around the house spilling for a fight with a wild, but not dreaming of a fight so weak and woolly madman. He met them all four, and yelling like an Indian, jumped from the porch into the midst of the dogs, seizing some, kicking others, and such a whirlwind of arms and legs was never seen before. Elliott astonished them with his lion-like agility, and amid yells, curses and ravings, the man and dogs tumbled over each other in a mad rage and scramble, making the dogs ashamed of themselves, for as soon as the dogs had liberty to do so, they ran into the cellar. Elliott followed, and in the pitch dark the howls of the dogs and the screams and noise of the battle seemed a hell of terror and pandemonium in full blast until the dogs could get out. One of the dogs has never been found.—Haley (Conn.) Cor. St. Louis Dispatch.

Object in Poultry Keeping.
Poultry raising like everything else, must be conducted with an object in view, and the object is to produce. If one desires to keep hens that will produce the largest number of eggs in a year he must select the breed that is adapted to his conditions and climate, depending upon hardness rather than profitability. It may be profitable to keep the "best breed" unless it can endure the climate, where the winter season is very cold, for no breed will lay that is unable to brave the cold. If eggs are the main object the poultryman or farmer must feed his birds upon a rich, nutritious food, and very expensively, and attempt to train them as servants.

In the Heart of George Vanderbilt's estate, near Asheville, N. C., is a plot owned by an old negro, who lives there and refuses to sell. He says he has been bothered all his life by bad neighbors, and now that he has a good one, he will not move.

L. T. Travis, Agent Southern R. R., Savannah, Ga., writes: "I can not say too much in praise of One Minute Cough Cure. In my case it worked like a charm." HORSES IN WINTER.

How to Keep Them Warm When the Climate is Not Too Severe.

To keep hilly horses at young growing age over a winter in the stable during the winter season is not only very expensive in feed and labor, but is frequently of positive injury to the horses themselves. The horse requires a great deal of exercise, and when this exercise is not given in the way of work, they should be allowed to take it in the open fields. The cheapest and best way of caring for horses, whether idle or young, through the winter season, is to turn them out on a blue grass pasture which has not been pastured down closely in the fall. This, with a shed to run under during severe storms, a hay or straw stack, and access to salt and water, is all that this class of horses need, and they thrive much better under it than if kept up in a stable. Much of the winter damage of the range horses is due to their free life and abundant exercise.

We do not believe in under-feeding. Growing horses, especially, should be well fed. If not, there cannot be sufficient growth, but blue grass pasture, such as we have mentioned, gives them about as good feed in winter as they have on grass in the summer, and if there is six inches of snow on the ground, all the better, for the reason that the blue grass keeps green under the snow and horses will have no difficulty in discovering it. They will grow a long coat of hair and look shaggy and rough, but we will take our chances for a good summer's work with horses kept in this way rather than with horses that have been kept in the stable and fed as they are almost certain to be, on corn.

Almost equal to that method is that of allowing them the run of a field of corn stalks and adjoining it a field of second crop clover. We have tried both ways and find less difference than might be expected. Whether on blue grass or on clover, horses running at large should have a little grain in March and April for the reason that the spring rains render the pasture less nutritious. We have tried these methods for about fifteen years and know whereof we speak.

We do not recommend this method for weanling colts. They should be fed a good ration of corn and oats and allowed free access during the daytime to open yearling fields. A colt stunted the first year, as many are by insufficient feed and shelter, is stunted for life, and will lose at least 100 pounds in mature weight, which is worth anywhere from ten to fifty cents. There is no more about stunted colts. The grain fed to stunted colts is the grain fed to colts the first winter. When you are laying the foundation, get it as large as you can, provided it is made of good material.—Wallace's Farmer.

Brown Swiss.

Developed as a dairy breed primarily, Brown Swiss cows yield a generous flow of milk and hold out well. Good specimens may be expected to give an average of ten quarts for every day in the year. Six thousand pounds a year is an ordinary record, and single instances are known of eight to ten thousand pounds. Breeds.

(Swiss Cow Breeds.)

zi 168 was imported from Switzerland into Connecticut and became the most noted cow of her breed in this country. More than this she produced the largest quantity of butter fat in a day ever recorded in America at a public test. At the Chicago show (1891) her average daily record for three days was 27.7 pounds of milk, containing 1.6 percent of butter fat. This was equivalent to more than 3 1/2 pounds of butter per day. She was then 11 years old and weighed 1,410 pounds.

FORAGE CROPS.

How They Can Be Used At A Decided Profit.

All farmers on small or moderately sized holdings who keep live stock should also grow forage crops, since they so much reduce the area required for the latter. As a rule, the necessity for growing these crops will increase with the less favorable conditions for growing grain pastures and vice versa. When farmers generally who live upon arable lands give that attention to the growing of this class of forage crops which they ought to, from the standpoint of self-interest, no farmer can be set to the possible increase in live stock and live stock products. More especially will this be true when they give that attention also to the growing of soiling and fodder which their importance demands. In those cases where the farmer is drawing near, the production in these lines that will be obtained from the small areas would astonish many of the farmers of today. And the increase will be no less apply to the quantity than to the quality of the product, because of the suitable character of the food furnished, because of its seasonableness and because of its abundance.

When nearly 100 sheep can be pastured from the closing days of April to the opening days of November on ten acres of such forage, as has been done at the Minnesota University experimental farm, the possibilities in live stock production light up with a peculiar brightness. When it is remembered that the soil was sandy, that the subsoil was coarse gravel, and that the nature of the two, that the land had been but feebly fertilized, the brightness grows more radiant. And when it is called to mind that ten tons of cured fodder and ten tons of soiling food were taken from the same ten acres during the growing period, and that much used forage was ploughed under as green manure, the firmament of possible production becomes all ablaze with promise. The first to look at those happy indications will probably be the first to begin growing forage crops.—New England Home-Steak.

WORKERS AMONG COTTONSEED.

New Machine Which is Designed to Monopolized Their Business.

An always interesting sight to New Orleans visitors has been the large gangs of darkies unloading cotton seed from the barges at the oil mills, piling the sacks of seed on the heavy trucks and trundling them down the wharf into the mill, singing lustily the while. The picturesque side of the old-time method of unloading seed by no means appeals to the owners of the mills, however. Such labor is very expensive, and sometimes impossible to obtain. Competition in the manufacture of cottonseed products is very keen, and unnecessary handling of the raw material must be done away with wherever practicable. The big grain elevators, built right up to the war, have long ago solved the problem, but with the oil mills at Gretna, built back of the levee, with their wharves stretching a considerable distance into the river, and with these wharves sinking and twisting all the time from the action of the water and the treacherous river bed, the question how to unload their barge and carry the seed back into the mills at a low cost has been until now a very difficult one to answer.

The Union Mill Company has recently installed at its large Crescent mill at Gretna a plant for rapidly and economically unloading seed from barges, which seems to meet all the conditions. The main part of the system is a belt conveyor, running on trestle work along the wharf, and thence under the roof of the mill. Along this conveyor the seed is carried from the end of the wharf, 250 feet to a point in the mill, where it is weighed and either stored or distributed direct to the crushers. From the trestle work the seed is carried into the mill by a finished product the seed is not touched by hand.

The present capacity of the plant is about 4,700 bushels (seventy tons) of cottonseed per hour, but this can be largely increased by extending the construction will pay for itself in wages saved in less than two seasons.

You Taste With Your Eyes.

The sense of taste is divided into three sections, each of which has under its charge the distinguishing of a special class of tastes. The fore part is chiefly sensitive to pungent and acid tastes, the middle portion to sweets and bitters, and the back part to the flavor of roast meat, of beer and rich and fatty substances. Recent experiments, however, go to show that the tongue has less to do with what we call taste than is generally supposed. Our notions as to flavor are greatly helped by the sense of sight, smell and touch. Blindfold your eyes and hold your nose, and you will find it very difficult to tell whether you are drinking tea or coffee. Of course we call things helplessly to the distinguishing between one substance and another if your nose does not do its part, which is about four-fifths of the work. Thus you really taste with your eyes and nose.—Ans.

New Champion Globe Trotter.

It is, of course, only to be expected that the new championship for globe trotting should belong to an Ohio man. John W. Bookwalter, a rich manufacturer of Springfield, Ohio, has traveled all over America, Europe, Africa and most of Asia. He is now on his way to Tibet, the unknown land to the capital of which a white man has never been permitted to penetrate. In the last two years he has traveled 25,000 miles in Central Asia. Mr. Bookwalter will go to Tibet with an exploring party sent out by the Russian government. He not only expects to reach the Thibetan capital, but he is planning for an interview with the Grand Llama, the head of the Buddhist religion. Mr. Bookwalter believes that Russia is about to take possession of Persia and all the other countries bordering on India. He also predicts that Russia, China and England will form an alliance and divide Asia among them.
