The $1000 Bill.

[By Leonard Oatman.]

They were out on the veranda in the cool of the evening, and Uncle Loring, in a rocking chair, smoking his corn-cob pipe; Bertha, his daughter, swinging in a low hammock, and her husband, Edmond Hackett, who was perched upon the wooden balustrade. Wilton Loring was there, too, leaning in a canvas chair and smoking a "domestic" cigar. The veranda ran around three sides of a modest frame house, all painted white with the exception of its bright green shutters. Edmond and Bertha, recently married, lived there in the outskirts of Washington with the head of the family. Wilton had run down from Philadelphia, where he was cashier of the Farmers' National Bank. They were all grumbling over their meagre incomes.

"Uncle Sam," remarked Edmond Hackett, a quiet, steady-going sort of fellow, well advanced toward middle life, "Uncle Sam is not generous to us boys and girls of the civil service. We handle between us right up to a million dollars every working day, and give our lives to the milt horse business for a bare existence."

"Since I've been cashier of the Farmers' National," said Wilton Loring, "I've had enough money pass through my hands to make me crazy with thirst for it. It's like being—"

"Don't like to hear you talk like that, Wilton," remarked old Caleb, with a quick shake of the head, as if a mosquito had settled on him. "Thoughts of that kind sometimes materialize into deeds you'd be sorry for."

"Humph! I'm not so sure I shan't one day try to pinch something," pursued Wilton, who looked a little dissatisfied. "But his steals are the sort to succeed nowadays. To make a corner in something or other; to float a salted mine, or a bogus building society. That's the game."

"A cut," protested the elder Loring, with a fierce exhortation; but Bertha mischievously took up her brother's humor.

"There's a fine chance now I've got into the counting division at the Treasury," said she. "Say, now, why not make up a family combination? You, Wilton, are cashier at the Farmers', and you're constantly having old bills to send into the Treasury for redemption. You 'pinch,' as you call it, a thousand-dollar greenback, and forward the packet to the Treasury."

"I've had enough money pass through my hands to make me crazy with thirst for it. It's like being—" words about it! That's what I should do, mind that!"

"The bundles of rubbish; ninety-nine or a hundred bills; what would it matter to Uncle Sam? And I should send each of you $250. Think it over. Don't."

"Think it over? I shall never forget this talk of yours, Wilton. A crime conceived is half executed. May I never hear more of this combination of yours, in joke or in fact, up to the prayer from this day to God in heaven!"

And shaking his head angrily the father strode into the house.

A few days after this conversation Bertha Hackett sat in the office of the Redemption Division, assisting Mrs. Lawson, the senior lady of the department to count a package of "big bills." Greenbacks of large denomination were allotted to the senior lady in the ordinary course, and the juniors would take it in turn to work with her for the sake of becoming accustomed to every kind of note, and by such familiarity detecting any forgery that might fall into their hands.

Bertha was saving her first apprenticeship in this department, and that day she sat at Mrs. Lawson's desk to learn all that this good lady could teach her.

Now, among the packets of old bills sent in from all parts of America to be exchanged for new currency, it was not unusual for the Farmers' National Bank of Philadelphia to contribute to its quota. Bertha's bright gray eyes took a side-long glance at the heap of parcels before her, and she wondered what chance would so far realize their fancied combination as to bring into her hands a consignment from her brother Wilton. Like a patient tune that keeps echoing in the brain, that family talk of a conspiracy to defraud Uncle Sam could not be dismissed from her thoughts. These slips of dirty paper authorizing the payment to bearer of large sums of money, what a pity they should all go to the waste basket! To be ground into pulp! One more or less would make no difference to the wealthy Nation, but would work wonders for an underpaid official who found it hard to make both ends meet. She told herself it was her duty to do what she could, appropriation, but she could not control her thoughts, and they pictured for her persistently the staff of the three departments reduced to herself, her father, and her husband, and how they would divide the spoils.

While thus musing, she was startled by a remark of Mrs. Lawson, as that lady placed before her a heap of thousand-dollar bills which she had been critically examining with a magnifying glass. "There's a big charge from the Farmers' National—a hundred bills of a thousand each. I make them right, but you go over them again one by one, count them in two packets of fifty each, and find them with a paper band in the usual way for me to initial and pass forward."

Mrs. Lawson proceeded with another packet, so absorbed in her work that she did not notice how strangely young Hackett stared for a moment at the task which she was to perform. The heap of bills lay the paper band that had inclosed them when they came from the Bank at Philadelphia. It was indorsed with the number and name of the cashier, and bore the signature of Wilton Loring, Cashier.

Mrs. Lawson nodded for them as correct, and yet Bertha's fingers trembled as she turned them over. She counted half of them backward, from 50 to 1, and made a packet of 25, and then, as instructed, beginning one, two, three, four, and so on. When she came to the end of this count she paused, and counted this second half again backward. Then she slowly fastened a band around the packet.

"You're not very smart at present, my girl," remarked the elder lady, observing her sluggish action. "I have to hunt for your mistakes, but I should never get through it I took so long as this. You must do it more quickly. But maybe you reckon to find two passed a wrong count?" she added with a little touch of irony. "After thirty-four years at this work, my dear, the bills that have passed through the hands of the cashiers can be taken as right if she says so."

Mrs. Lawson was rather tetchy, and had a good conceit of herself, born of long infallibility. Bertha in silence wrote her own initials on the wrapper of the two packets, and this action mollified the senior lady for the time, taking responsibility for the correctness of the packets Mrs. Hackett seemed to convey an expression of confidence in her. But something else stirred in her mind for she muttered to herself as she counted the bills, "There's a big charge from the Farmers' National—a hundred bills of a thousand each. I make them right, but you go over them again one by one, count them in two packets of fifty each, and find them with a paper band in the usual way for me to initial and pass forward."

than discredit and a consequent check to Bertha's future promotion. It was a rule that the examiner who overlooked a counterfeit or missing bill should make good the value of it. To make good $1,000 would pretty well ruin the Hacketts and old father Caleb into the bargain. But it was his duty to make the report to the Secretary instantly, and with painful reluctance he filled up the prescribed but seldom requisite form. With slow, dragging steps he proceeded with it to the Secretary's private room, but halted with his hand on the door. Suddenly the frivolous gossip on the veranda rushed into his memory. Had Wilton Loring—had Bertha herself stolen the missing bill? What then? Should he turn conspirator and cover the fraud? No; his duty was clear. He would not allow himself to hesitate, but knocked at the door and entered.

But there was a respite for himself and for his wife. The Treasurer himself was closed with the Secretary. "One moment, Mr. Hackett! I'm engaged," was the sharp, peremptory dismissal, and he perforce withdrew, postponing the declaration. As he returned stupefied to his desk a clock struck the hour of the luncheon interval. It was the custom of the family to meet at home for their midday meal. He looked up the report and rushed out of the Treasury. Flying home on a cable car he found his wife waiting for him. Bertha sat at the table like one in a dream. She did not raise her eyes from the food that stood untouched before her. Edmond himself could not swallow a morsel, but nervously watched her while the nervous waiter waited on them tardily in the room. The moment they were alone he leaned across the table and whispered hoarsely:

"You passed a packet to-day—a packet of thousands."

The young wife looked up with a start of surprise. The fear that was written in her troubled face gave way to a flash of desperate hope. "It came to you?"

"One bill is missing."

"That's God you can pass it!"

No word of denial. She instantly assumed his power and his willingness to save. She caught his recoiling hand across the table.

"For my sake—for your Bertha's sake—don't say a word of this to any one. Edmond Hackett raised his other hand to his damp forehead.

"Impossible, child—impossible! You must be saved another way—if it be not too late. Find the missing bill, some papers, as an accident had placed it there. But whatever you do, put it forward instantly, instantly!"

"I cannot, Edmond, I haven't the bill."

"You did not steal it? Oh, forgive me! Heaven! By what miracle it is an oversight, then? Bad enough, but not beyond repair. Make out your report at once and send it in. You are a novice. The delay and irregularity may be overlooked."

"I cannot do that, Edmond. It would cast suspicion upon the cashier who forwarded the bills to the Treasury."

"That is his affair. If the packet was short when you counted it."

"Edmond, why will you not ignore the shortage? By what miracle it is in your power to prevent the discovery."

"It is not in my power."

"How not in your power? The packet will go from your hands to the committee, which does not count it again; and by it it will be discovered in the macerator, to be ground into pulp. It would never be known that forty-nine instead of fifty bills had been destroyed."

"Bertha, you forget the other half! I have only a portion of the bills. The upper section of your packet went to the Register's office to be counted there."

self," said she. "I am positive there were exactly a hundred bills."

"If one is missing," began Bertha, but the senior lady interrupted her. "Missing? No, nothing is missing at all. There is said to have been one too many."

So many miracles had happened that day that Bertha could only gape at her in astonishment. It was an anomaly in arithmetic that one taken from one hundred should leave one hundred and one. There came another summons to the Treasury. Another report had come in of an error from Mrs. Lawson's desk. The old lady was almost in tears, but she carried it off with a show of jocosity.

"Either there must be some colossal money knocking about or Mrs. Bertha Hackett brings a mascot to the Treasury," said she. "Is this another surplus thousand-dollar-bill, six?"

"But this was the shortage which Edmond and Mr. Loring had reported. And it was happily met by the excess in the other packet. So beyond an admonition tempered in mercy for the manifest distress of the girl, Bertha got into no trouble. She held stoutly to a theory of the intervention of a most divine Providence, when discussing the matter at home, but her husband swept the precious fancy away.

"I reckon Providence don't supply checks with thousand-dollar bills," he said. "You divided the packet of 100 into two of 50, as you thought, but you counted the first backward, from 100 to 50 inclusive, and that left you only 49 for the second packet. But why didn't you ask Mrs. Lawson you made one short?"

"Fact is, Edmond, that combination chatter of ours had got into my brain. I thought Wilton had pinched a bill, and I reckoned to do more for my brother than daddy would do for his little girl."

"Ha," observed old Caleb, filling his pipe. "Duty first, family afterward, and roguery never at any time, under any circumstances."

Should Learn to Cook.

The ability to make a loaf of good bread is an accomplishment which every woman should possess before she gets married. It is of no use for a woman to think that she can hold a man's affections very securely when she feeds him on death sugar biscuits, soggy pie crust and burned or half cooked meats. Men do not live to eat, but they have to eat in order to live, and what they have to eat has much to do with their temper, their sanity and their health. A woman should take a pride in being expert and accomplished in her cooking and the care of her home, just as a man does in being expert in his business or profession.

Still Wondering.

"Yes," said the bachelor reflectively, I offended her in some way, but I don't really know how. You see, her baby was fretful, and she explained that he had been cutting his teeth; whereupon I asked her why she let him play with a knife."

"I shall pay no further attention to these criticisms until my accusers agree upon a charge," said Senator Sorghum.

"Haven't they done so?"

"No, sir. Some of them say I got all my money by holding lots of offices and others say I held all my offices by having lots of money."

"Yes this open winter is pleasant, but—"

"But what?"

PARASOLS FOR 1900.

The parasol for 1900 has appeared! Think of it! Even before the blizzard reaches us here we are surveying the dainty things designed to protect us from sunstroke next summer, and we do need a new golf cape so badly.

It's not a feminine characteristic, however, to say "sufficient unto the day is the prettiness thereof"; we want a parasol now, no matter if it does have to remain wrapped in tissue paper for four long months, nor if we do freeze to death because of insufficient wraps before spring comes.

Rich simplicity is the keynote of the new sunshades, though there are chiffrony ones coming later to match fluffy frocks. The "pastel" tints are used for the very prettiest, those dainty, vague shades which have delighted us this winter. Then there's the novelty in the handles of these model-gown metal ones made rich with jewels being new and quite sufficiently lovely for anything, while others are neatly covered with velvet to a depth of nine inches, the velvet in its turn being almost hidden by cut steel nail heads which vary in size from a pin point to a disc half inch in diameter.

Each season brings its own temptations with it, but the summer of 1900 is going to be an unusually enticing one, if the advance goods are true prophets.

"Here's richness," one says to herself, as she looks at a parasol of duchesse lace over white satin, and "Here's extravagance," she falters when she hears that $58 is the price demanded for it.

However, 'tis not the only one in the shops, and if our limit is a $5 bill, there's a plain little affair of tulle in an attractive shade waiting on some counter to be had for that amount. Be sure there is, for there's a wonderful range in prices that is intended to satisfy the exigencies of every purse, and is the result of the manufacturer's sympathy with the impecunious maids.

A PUZZLER FOR PROTECTIONISTS.

Are the new islands we have acquired by treaty, purchase and conquest integral parts of the United States, so that when they shall pass from the hand of the soldier to the hand of the legislator, the requirement of the Constitution providing for uniform duties, imposts and excises will at once apply to them? This is the question which now vexes the Protectionist brethren in Congress, who, confronted with the duty of legislating for our new possessions, are afraid that they will have to confer upon the islands the boon of free international trade enjoyed by all the States and Territories of the Union. A disposition has been manifested to hold the decision of this matter in abeyance, by refusing to legislate, and thus to continue military government for the next five years—a policy which would put it in the discretion of the President to give the islands so much trading advantage as might be squeezed out of a liberal interpretation of the reciprocity provisions of the Dingley Tariff Act.

When Congress shall undertake to deal with the recommendation of the President that the people of Puerto Rico be given free access to our markets the question of constitutional construction will take on a character of urgency. The people of Puerto Rico, cut off from Spain and unattached to the United States, stand spitted upon the points of tariff exaction. If they are to live they must be permitted to enter their natural market. If they are to prosper they must be privileged, as are the people of the United States, to enjoy the inestimable boon of unrestricted trade within the geographical limits of the country of which their island has become a part.—Philadelphia Record.

STREET TUNNEL CAVES IN.
LOS ANGELES, CAL., January 22.—Shortly after one o'clock this morning the West end of what is known as the Third Street Tunnel, which is under construction between Hill and Hope streets, a distance of three blocks, caved in and buried eleven laborers and bricklayers, and fatally injured W. T. Lambie, an inspector in the employment of the Street Department. All were rescued excepting Lambie, John de lae and Foreman Crawley.

The men were engaged in excavating 175 feet from the mouth of the tunnel. Inspector Lambie was in the act of leaving the tunnel when the cavein occurred. His feet were pinned down, and it was eight hours before he was extricated in a dying condition.

WHEAT PROFITS.

During the last six years the average price of wheat in the local market was 61 cents a bushel, which would give the farmer a clear profit of seven cents a bushel, to say nothing of the by-products of the crop. It costs on an average, 54 cents a bushel to raise wheat.—American.

The capitalization of Trusts in operation or in process of formation in the United States is estimated by a competent authority to be more than nine and one-half billions of dollars. If the actual unwatered aggregate of this vast sum should be invested in legitimate enterprises it would constitute a pride compelling exposition of American industrial activity; but since it is in great part used in restraint of trade and for the consummation of schemes of extortion from consumers, the showing is not a matter for congratulations. The Trusts have multiplied so greatly and increased their hold upon the people so alarmingly that, next to the government, al sinupeness or turpitude which made them possible, they have become the most sinister evil of the age.—Phila. FUTURE OF CUBA.

Business Development and Chances For Investment.

For the island of Cuba there is a great future prospect. The general condition of trade and commerce has greatly improved within the past few months. The expansion in this respect is not as rapid as some might wish, but it is steady. Each day sees a greater volume of money in circulation, and the island, due to the growth of internal trade, while the import and export trade is likewise improving. Cuba is a country of wonderful natural resources. It is a country which can be developed into one of the greatest in the universe. Its people are willing and ready, and all that is required is the continuance of a wise and intelligent administration of the affairs of the island. There has been a marked change for the better in the condition of the working classes lately. At the termination of the war their state was deplorable. There was then very little demand for labor. Now, however, there is work to be had both in the cities and in the outlying districts, and any sober, industrious and reliable man can find employment. The demand for labor is strengthening daily.

American capital is finding a great field for investment in Cuba, and the outlook for increasing the volume of invested money there is bright. There is no doubt that hundreds of thousands of dollars in this country are now in waiting for guarantees of safety. As it stands now, capitalists are in doubt as to the future disposition of the island; they are therefore holding their money. Some really permanent plan is in operation. All that is desired by these people is that a system of government shall be inaugurated which will permanently insure the protection of life and property. The establishment of a stable government will be followed by the influx of an enormous amount of foreign capital. There is a great deal of money to be made in Cuba by American investors.—Fitzhugh Lee, in New York World.

PUT TO TEST.

If the St. Kildan Swain Survives He Gets Married.

Both in the northern and western islands of Scotland the natives have some peculiar customs, unfamiliar to the dwellers of the mainland. One of these, known as the "marriage test," is practiced in the island of St. Kilda, where the population barely exceeds a hundred. The desire among the islanders to increase this number does not seem to be exceptionally strong, and every man before he is deemed suitable for a husband has to perform an evolution, with no little bodily risk. The St. Kildan's are, of course, adept dock climbers, and the aspirant for matrimony is therefore subjected to the test of balancing himself on one leg on a narrow ledge overhanging a precipice, bending his body at the same time in order to hold the foot of his other leg in his hands. If found lacking in courage the maiden withdraws her betrothal, and should the man fall over the ledge it is presumed that, in his case, he will be disqualified.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

England's Post Cards.

A notice issued by order of the Postmaster-General says: "On November 1, 1899, a new inland and a foreign post card, 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches in size, will be issued. These cards (single and reply) will be sold at the same price respectively as the present inland time cards and the present foreign cards. The issue of the oblong stout cards (single and reply) will be discontinued, when 4 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches will be the only stout cards (single and reply) of the present court size, 4 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches will be the only stout cards on sale in future. The price of these stout cards will remain unaltered. From the date mentioned the maximum size of private cards will be increased from 5 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches, to correspond with the size of the new cards."—London Times.

TWO HUNDRED YAKUS KILLED.

NONGALES, ARIZ., Jan. 21.—News was received from the South this morning that General Lorenzo Torres had engaged the Yakus at Macoyata on Thursday, killing over 200 and taking 500 prisoners.

Father Beltran and several Sisters of Charity who have been held as prisoners of war by the Yakus for the last six months, were rescued by the victorious Mexicans, and are now with General Torres.

It is expected that this last important victory of General Torres will have the effect of scattering the Yakus, and will result in ending war.—American.

BRACKMAN Charles Lamont, of the West Virginia Central and Pittsburg Railway, was roughly used by tramps who were stealing a ride. These were arrested, and will be given a hearing at Cumberland.

MR. William Harwood, aged 90, died at his home in Annapolis. He was a representative Maryland gentleman of the old school, and during his long and active life held a number of important positions—political, educational and honorary.

JOHN POTTENBERGER, of Cavetown, aged about 32 years, was arrested Monday afternoon by Constable James Rowland on the charge of burning the barn of John D. Davis, near Cavetown, on the night of January 5. Pottenberger denies the crime. He was committed to jail by Justice J. C. Ward in default of $500 bail for a hearing. Two attempts to burn the Davis barn were made before it was destroyed January 5. Two other fires occurred in Cavetown about the same time the attempts were made to burn the Davis barn.

THE latest X Ray invention is the Endoscope, which is for the purpose of examining the interior of the stomach. It is claimed that with this instrument, the treatment of stomach troubles will be revolutionized, as it locates the cause of disease. With due respect to science, however, would state that the causes of stomach troubles have been known for the past fifty years, and likewise their cure, which is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that has many imitators, but no equals. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, nervousness, jaundice. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague, and keeps the bowels regular. When not feeling right, take a dose. It is the standard medicine of the American people. Look for Private Revenue Stamp over neck of bottle.

A 10-year-old son of James T. Clark met with a serious accident at his home, near Elkton. The lad was looking out of a window with his face pressed against the glass, when it suddenly broke, almost severing his nose from his face. He was taken to Elkton for treatment.

MOSKOWEY McKee, formerly a telegraph operator in Hagerstown, who was thought to be dead, has just been heard from by his sisters, Misses Maria and Olivia McKee. He is in Central America superintending the construction of a new telegraph line. They received a letter from him containing a photograph. This is the first news from him for 30 years.

SAMUEL PIPER, of South Cumberland, a Baltimore and Ohio railroad brakeman, was found dead, lying on the tracks near the roundhouse, Monday morning. The members of his crew thought he had gone home when they missed him, and his badly mangled remains were found by accident. He is supposed to have been in the act of jumping on his train, when he slipped and fell between the cars. Mr. Piper was a single man, and had boarded in South Cumberland for about five years.

A CONGREGATION TO DISBAND. At a congregational meeting of St. James' Evangelical Lutheran Church, Frederick, held Monday, the board of trustees was authorized to dispose of the church property to the best advantage. It is a handsome brick edifice, with stained-glass windows, located on West Second street. The church was built in 1893 by Rev. G. H. C. Hasskirk, now of Chambersburg, Pa., at a cost of about $10,000. As the congregation has been growing smaller and not self-supporting it was deemed advisable to disband.

THE pastor, Rev. Mr. Myers, has accepted a call from the congregation of St. Matthew's Church at Matthews, Chester County, Pa.

THE MARRIAGE OF WILLIAM F. MAGRAW and Miss Myrtle C. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown, were married at St. Joseph's Parsonage, in this place, on Tuesday morning. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. H. O'Donoghue. The bridesmaid was Miss Alice O'Connor, and Mr. Jacob Sanders acted as best man. After the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of the bride's parents, on Gettysburg street, where an elaborate dinner was served. In the evening the happy couple was serenaded by the Emmitt Cornet Band.

FOUND WITH A BULLET IN HIS HEAD. Sometime on Wednesday, Elmer Turner, son of Jacob Turner, living on the mountain west of town, was found lying on the ground in an unconscious condition by his mother, near the barn on Mr. E. F. Rowe's farm, on the mountain. With the assistance of William Turner the wounded man was taken to a place of safety and a physician was summoned. Upon examination a bullet was found in Turner's head, having entered near one of his eyes, taking an upward course. Concerning the shooting no facts seem to be known. Whether Turner shot himself accidentally, or with suicidal intentions, or was shot by some person with murderous intentions, is not known. At this writing no information has been received concerning the wounded man's condition.

FAIR DIRECTORS. The newly elected officers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society met on Saturday and appointed the following board of managers for the Frederick Fair: Charles N. Hargett, Charles Wertheimer, D. C. Winnebrenner, Arthur Potts, D. Columbus Kemp, John T. Best, David V. Stauffer, Benjamin White, John William Bangham, Dixon C. Walker, R. Claude Dutrow.

In accordance with an agreement entered into, and which has been in existence some years, with the Hagerstown association, the Frederick association has the choice of dates this year and has selected the week of October 9-12 for holding its fortieth annual exhibition, the week following the York Fair. By this alternating arrangement the Hagerstown people had the choice of dates last year. It is reported from Hagerstown that their association does not propose to be bound by the agreement.

IN THE LEGISLATURE. In the House of Delegates Monday night Mr. Buckley, of Frederick, offered an order appropriating $80 to pay Reno S. Harp, former journal clerk, for services rendered during the present session, and moved that the rules be suspended, in order to receive it. The motion was lost by a vote of 54 to 15. The speaker then read the rules to show that only the chief clerk, reading clerk and sergeant-at-arms were entitled to the compensation in this case, and explained that it would be necessary to suspend the rules.

Mr. Buckley introduced a bill for the incorporation of the Frederick Trust and Deposit Company. The incorporators are George P. Buckley, Charles E. Keller, Brooke L. Jamison, Charles E. Poole and John A. Clary. The powers granted are similar to those now enjoyed by other trust companies in Baltimore City.

The bill to amend the road laws of Frederick county was favorably reported.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE. A Farmers' Institute will be held at Middletown, Md., Feb. 7. The programme follows: How to select horses for special purposes, by Dr. J. C. Curry; How to care for an orchard, by Prof. H. P. Gould; Home-mixing of fertilizer, by Jas. E. Rice; The farmers' poultry, by Jas. E. Rice; Food and food principles, by Miss E. Grace McCullough.

An Institute will be held at Frederick, Feb. 8, when the following subjects will be discussed: Feed and care of horses to keep them strong and healthy. Three of the most valuable lessons to give the horse to insure safety, by Dr. J. Curry; Increasing the productivity of the soil by crop-rotation, cultivation, cover crops and chemicals. Illustrated, by Jas. E. Rice; How to care for an orchard, by Prof. H. P. Gould; The farmers' poultry, by Jas. E. Rice. Evening Session.—Food and food principles, by Miss E. Grace McCullough.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OBJECT. The Board of County Commissioners on Saturday passed a resolution authorizing Frank C. Norwood, attorney for the Board, to use all honorable means and his utmost efforts to defeat the passage of the bill which was drawn up by the direction of the Mayor and Aldermen of Frederick and which is to be introduced in the State Senate by Senator Rohrback asking the Legislature to compel the County Commissioners to pay to the city of Frederick one-half of the road tax which is levied by the County Commissioners. Another resolution was passed authorizing Mr. Norwood to draw up a bill to be introduced in the Senate and House to compel the State to pay to the County Commissioners of this county and to the Mayor and Aldermen of Frederick one-half of the liquor license tax on the saloons in the city and county.

NEW RAILROAD FOR MARYLAND. Senator Rohrback, of Frederick, introduced a bill in the Maryland Legislature last week, incorporating the Chesapeake and Northern Railroad to start at some point on the Chesapeake Bay, not indicated in the bill, and run to some point at or near the State line of Pennsylvania adjoining Frederick county.

The only points given to indicate the course of the railroad are the provisions that it shall run near or through the towns of Rockville and Gaithersburg in Montgomery county, and Frederick, Thurmont and Emmitsburg, in Frederick county.

The principal object of the bill is, of course, to reach the city of Washington, but this is not mentioned.

A HORSEBACK ACCIDENT. Mr. Pearre Wantz, eldest son of Mr. Chas. V. Wantz, a popular young man of Westminster, was severely injured while horseback riding on Monday night. While going at a sharp gallop the saddle girth broke, throwing Mr. Wantz, the horse at the same time falling on him. When the young man was picked up it was found that his collar bone was broken.

TOOK HIS ARM OFF. "Your worship," said the witty solicitor who was defending the stalwart prisoner in the dock, "you cannot possibly convict him. I will tell you why. I submit, sir, with all deference, that neither morally nor legally can you convict him. I will tell you why. Mr. Sikes, here, as the evidence clearly proves, did not break into any house at all. He found the parlor window open, as the witnesses admit, and all he done was to put in his right arm and remove some important articles. Now, sir, Mr. Sikes's arm is not his himself, and I fail to see how you can punish the whole individual by an offense committed by only one of his limbs."

A very pretty mid-winter wedding was solemnized at a Nuptial Mass in St. Joseph's Catholic Church in this place, on Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The contracting parties were Miss Maggie E. Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Florence, of near Waynesboro, Pa., and Mr. James Lewis Topper, of near town. Rev. J. M. McNelis performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Anna M. Topper, and the best man was Mr. William Topper, sister and brother of the groom. The bride was very becomingly attired in a suit of gray, trimmed in white corded silk and white silk ruching, with hat and gloves to match. The bridesmaid wore brown, trimmed in brown satin ribbon.

After mass the happy couple drove to the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob I. Topper, where a simple breakfast awaited them, followed later by a sumptuous wedding dinner. About sixty guests were present during the day and quite a number in the evening to offer their felicitations to the newly married couple and to partake of the good things to eat. The presents were numerous and useful.

On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Topper, accompanied by Miss Anna and Mr. William Topper, drove to the home of the bride near Waynesboro, where a dinner was served in honor of their marriage.

DEATH OF JOHN H. HARBAGH. John Henry Harbaugh, formerly of Sabillasville, this county, died on January 15, after a second stroke of paralysis, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. Y. Bitner, at Waynesboro, Pa., where he had his home for the past two months.

Mr. Harbaugh was nearly eighty years old. He was born in Harbaugh's Valley, near Sabillasville, where in his early life he followed the trade of tanner. About thirty-five years ago he moved to Lettersburg, thence to Waynesboro with his wife, who died about fifteen years ago.

He was a member of the Reformed Church and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The deceased is survived by two children: John W. of Chambersburg, and Mrs. D. Y. Bitner, of Waynesboro; also by three sisters, and two brothers: Mrs. Julia A. Steff and Miss Margaret A. Harbaugh, of Sabillasville; Mrs. Susan A. Rife, of Missouri; Thomas Jefferson Harbaugh, of Illinois; and Alexis J. Harbaugh, of Hagerstown. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. F. F. Bahner, assisted by Rev. Jacob Snyder. Interment in Green Hill cemetery.

MUCH interest is manifested in the discovery of iron ore on the farm of ex-County Commissioner (Arch) Wyand near Keedysville. Mr. Wyand intends developing the deposits.

So far researches have extended only a few feet beneath the surface. Several years ago, on the Geeting farm, about a half mile west of the new find, rich iron ore was also found, but was never developed.

Lumps of ore on the Wyand farm vary in weight from an ounce to 100 pounds or more. A 30-pound lump was taken and broken up and a 3-pound section of it sent to Prof. C. R. Ely, professor of chemistry in Gallaudet College, Washington, D. C. He says the part of it assayed 52.03 per cent of iron and another .19 per cent of phosphorus.

As a result of the find land which had been selling at from $15 to $25 per acre in that immediate section has gone up in price. A movement is on foot to organize a company to purchase the tract and mine the ore.

FAIR AND SUPPER. The great event of this winter will be the grand fair and supper at St. Ephemia's Hall, Feb. 15, 16 and 17, for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church. Preparations are being made on an elaborate scale. Everything to make it enjoyable is already assured. The reputation of those who will have charge is so well known that comments are unnecessary.

A supper will be served each evening at the small cost of twenty-five cents. The bill of fare will equal that served in grand hotels and the winning smiles of the young ladies who will cater to their guests will be a great attraction.

Those desiring oysters—the product of our Maryland waters—will find them in abundance, as sweet, as luscious and as juicy as if they were eating them on the shores of the Chesapeake. Fancy and useful articles to adorn your boudoirs, your parlors and your kitchens to be had in profusion. It will be an enjoyable occasion for all, young and old. We bespeak for the ladies in charge a grand success.

A MID-WINTER WEDDING.

A very pretty mid-winter wedding was solemnized at a Nuptial Mass in St. Joseph's Catholic Church in this place, on Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The contracting parties were Miss Maggie E. Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Florence, of near Waynesboro, Pa., and Mr. James Lewis Topper, of near town. Rev. J. M. McNelis performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Anna M. Topper, and the best man was Mr. William Topper, sister and brother of the groom. The bride was very becomingly attired in a suit of gray, trimmed in white corded silk and white silk ruching, with hat and gloves to match. The bridesmaid wore brown, trimmed in brown satin ribbon.

After mass the happy couple drove to the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob I. Topper, where a simple breakfast awaited them, followed later by a sumptuous wedding dinner. About sixty guests were present during the day and quite a number in the evening to offer their felicitations to the newly married couple and to partake of the good things to eat. ## INTERESTING HARNEY NEWS.

HARNEY, Md., Jan. 21.—We are glad to say that the much disputed and accused mail system is now being liked very well and we feel sure that the change will be quite an improvement of affairs instead of an injury, which people thought it would be. It gives us two mails from Taneytown and one from Gettysburg daily, with an exchange office here, also boxes for those who are not reached by the new system. Mr. J. W. Reek, our former Postmaster, exchanges the mail and drives on a short route through parts of Frederick and Adams Counties.

On last Thursday, Mr. David Clouser gave at his home a very nice social. Among those present were Rev. Dr. Bateman, wife and daughter, Mr. Jacob Kuhns and wife, Mr. Verly J. Clouser and family and Mrs. Carrie E. Harner.

Our town is still infested or visited by its usual rough characters, who made another grand display one night last week by throwing a stone through the shutter and window of the house in which Uncle Jim lives. At the time of the act several of our men were in the house playing social games.

Last week while working at cabinet work, Mr. Francis Null had the misfortune to cut off an extremely large part of one of his fingers.

Mr. Charles W. Staub and Mr. James Herr, two of our enterprising young men have secured employment in a power-house in Baltimore City.

Mr. Markwood Angell, of Morrison, Ill., is here mustering a crowd of young men to accompany him West where he has already situations at extremely good wages.

Young men if you desire to occupy your future in agricultural pursuits, "Go West," and our best wishes go with you.

Mrs. Greenberry Null quietly passed away at her home on Friday night. The cause of her death was heart trouble.

Mr. Solomon Miller, an aged gentleman of Adams County, died at his home on Tuesday.

Mrs. Carrie E. Harner is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Samuel Slagle, of New Midway, Md.

Mr. Jacob Newcomer and wife have just returned from an extended trip in Ohio. They are well pleased with their visit and report having a fine time.

FAIRFIELD ITEMS. FAIRFIELD, Jan. 25.—Mr. H. F. Shulley, who works in the hat factory at Reading, says they are working on full time now. Reading is a business place, noted for its factories and railroad facilities.

Fairfield is a nice small town since its incorporation. The streets have been graded somewhat. The pavements are fine, cannot be beaten, and when that is said all is said; no factories, etc., to give employment.

Mr. Henry Welty who will move on his own property in the spring, has bought an incubator and brooder. He intends going into the chicken raising business in the spring. Too many getting at it. There is no pay in it.

Dr. W. G. Dubs reports a lot of sick horses and cows.

It is said that the new hotel keeper is doing a good business. He is a good fellow. Keeps good "stuff" and a good house.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Stoner, of Pleasant Valley home, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knox, of Knox Lynn, are the guests of F. Shulley and family, of this place.

Mr. Samuel Hostetter, who spent a week with the family of F. Shulley, has returned to his home at Fountaindale.

Mr. James Sanders, of Fairfield, is very ill with typhoid fever. His wife Harbaugh, daughter of E. W. Harbaugh, deceased, is very ill at this time. Measles are spreading in this community. However the schools have been kept open, notwithstanding.

A Teachers' Institute will be held in Fairfield next Saturday.

Mr. John Butt, of Knox Lynn, has bought Mr. George Andrews' property at Ortanna. Mr. Butt has rented his farm to his son in law, Mr. Jere. Plank, of Gettysburg.

Miss Ruth Sanders, of this place, is spending a few weeks at Hagerstown, with her sister, S. C. Sanders.

Mr. Robert Reindollar, who is attending the S. N. S. at Shippensburg, is home for a few days.

Blue birds were heard singing this week.

Good weather this week with muddy roads.

A great many people will have to move in the spring.

Mr. Preston Musselman, who is in the store with his father, Mr. John M. Musselman, has bought out Mr. Andy McClellan's butcher business and will run it himself in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Reed, of this place, spent a week in Franklin county. Mr. and Mrs. Zuc. Sanders, of this place, are visiting near Emmitsburg, being the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Nunemaker.

There will be a flag pole raising at Fountaindale school house in the near future. C. M. Shulley, teacher.

A RESPONSE FROM SABILLASVILLE.

Communicated. Any one reading the communication in your last paper from Sabillasville and not knowing the motives of the writer would suppose that he or she was ardently longing for the privileges of the sanctuary and felt that it was a grievous hardship to be deprived of the same.

The fact is, however, that the party making the loudest lamentations over the alleged unjust action of the Reformed Church Consistory have habitually neglected their religious duties for a couple years. Practically, it matters little to them whether the church door is open or shut. They have been opposing the pastor for reasons that would commend him to all right-minded Christian people. Because he lectured members of the Mite Society for neglect of duty and condemned profane swearing and Sabbath desecration and said that it was the duty of all able bodied young persons to be usefully employed and that parents were not bound to support hearty young men in idleness and dissipation when they had an opportunity to work at fair wages. For these and similar reasons the pastor has incurred the ill-will of all the lazy loafers, profane swearers and drunken rowdies in the community. If a man is to be judged by his enemies he makes, as well as by the company he keeps, then pastor Cort can be congratulated. "Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you." "So did your fathers to the false prophets."

Because certain members of the Sunday School proposed to play into the hands of these elements and not treat the pastor with disrespect, but proposed to conduct the Christmas festivities in a spiteful and disrespectful spirit, the Consistory resolved to close the church for a few weeks. It was not done by advice of the pastor, but was meant to shield him from insult. Church members who walk out as preaching is about to begin and wilfully absent themselves from the regular services of the Lord's house and coax old and young to follow their bad example are not fit to conduct Christmas services. Better far have no Christmas festival than to have a caricature by singing carols to the Prince of Peace when anger, malice and rebellion are cherished in the heart.

So felt the Consistory and hence they ordered the church to be closed. It will shortly be opened again for Sunday School and regular Lord's Day Services when it will be manifest who are on the Lord's side and who best keep the Sabbath and reverence His Sanctuary.

POSTAL WAGON CLERKS. The postal wagon clerks and letter-carriers in the rural free delivery service in Carroll county, numbering nearly forty men, met Superintendent A. W. Machen and Special Agent Hathaway, of the Postoffice Department, at the postoffice in Westminster in a body on Monday, and were interrogated in relation to their experience and duties thus far in the service, and given minute and detailed instructions for their guidance in the future. Every possible contingency was considered, and the course of action of the clerks and carriers in every case made clear to them. Especial stress was laid upon the point that the service is to be absolutely non-partisan, and no partiality is to be shown in favor of any patron of the service, either for personal or political reasons. Another point upon which the instructions were especially positive is that the carriers are not to engage in discussion or contention with any person in relation to the service; but, when criticised or accosted in rude or even threatening language, are to go on their way at once, without reply. The superintendent of the service and special agent who instructed them were very favorably impressed with the personnel of the clerks and carriers, whom they found a fine looking and very intelligent set of men.

The road would run from Funkstown, the present terminus of the eastern part, to Boonsboro, thence to Keedysville, where connection could be made with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; thence to

ORGANIZED A SOCIETY.

The Family for the Prevention of Cruelty to Microbes.

"I have a son who is taking a medical course at Tulane," remarked a member of the Board of Trade, "and he has been especially interested in the study of bacteriology. I am sorry to say it has proved a great affliction to the entire family. Our troubles began about two months ago, when he left home a few samples of his breakfast and remarked casually that he intended to put them under the glass—meaning his new $125 microscope. Next day he told his mother that we had to change our milkman and grocer immediately. He said it was next door to a miracle that any of us were alive and when he gave us the Latin name of the microbes he had discovered I was inclined to agree with him. The idea of absorbing that many syllables at every mouthful was enough to scare anybody, so to be on the safe side we followed his suggestion. A few days afterward he saw some fish being delivered at the gate, and immediately hacked off a sample. In less than two hours he rushed down and threw two fine pompano into the kitchen barrel. 'You've had a narrow escape, father,' he said, 'but I made a gentle protest, for I am very fond of pompano, broiled.' 'If you'd eaten that fish,' he said, 'you'd have been a dead man in a week.' After that we had no peace. He insisted on making what he called a 'superior investigation' of all pantry supplies. He said he was looking for only three or four of the most deadly forms of bacteria and would reserve the moderately dangerous ones for a future campaign. The result was that he consumed nearly everything we had on hand. Then he wanted to sterilize the kitchen utensils, and posted up a set of sanitary rules and regulations for the guidance of the cook. Fortunately the cook can't read, but the rest of us were being rapidly starved, and one day before yesterday I headed a revolt and organized a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Microbes. Everybody in the house joined except my son, and I gave him solemn warning that if I ever caught him molesting any bacilli on the premises I would cut him off with a microscope. Since then we have gorged ourselves with impunity and microbes and gained 26 pounds—grand total. My son looks on our success with a wary eye, but he can't wash his hands as much as he is blamed pleased, but he mustn't wash any more—especially with germicide fluids. I have hopes he will survive until Mardi Gras."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

OPIMUM SMOKERS IN CHINA.

In Formosa One Person in Fifteen Uses the Drug.

To learn the actual number of opium smokers is impossible, but we know the amount of the foreign import of this drug, and the native confessions of reformed opium smokers tell us precisely the amount of opium required to pass the day, or craving. It is one-fifth an ounce daily. An ounce or liang is consumed in five days and a catty suffices for eighty days. Four catties are enough for 320 days, and another half catty will carry you to the end of a year with comfort. A catty is enough then for twenty-two persons and 50,000 pounds is sufficient for not more than 1,000,000 persons. The law of compulsion in the smoker is just as forcible for native opium as for foreign. It is a matter of great interest to know the extent of the evil. In regard to Szechuen, that very populous and wealthy province, Mr. Schioth, in the Trade Report for 1898, informs us that Szechuen produces 100,000 pounds of opium, and the cultivation is always increasing. At Chungking, where he is commissioner, he is told that 2,000 pounds suffice for consumption in the province and that 65,000 pounds are exported. We may conclude, therefore, that the smokers of that province cannot be less than 650,000. Since the population is 67,000,000, the number of smokers is one in a hundred. In Shensi one in 140 smokers, in Formosa one in fifteen is the proportion. In the latter, where the people are sunk to the lowest point of degradation and this is the largest proportion yet known of opium smokers as compared with the general population.—Shanghai Mercury.

How Much Sleep. The statistics and diagrams of sleep in the Sunday Post-Dispatch are interesting as showing the influence of occupation upon habit. The American naval officer gets less sleep on the average than anyone else. It is with him a matter of regulation, but he gets used to his scanty allowance and seems to thrive under it. He sleeps six hours in the twenty-four. The actor sleeps ten, while the army officer is allowed eight hours. There are two extreme opinions on the subject of sleep. One of them is that you sleep enough, and the other that they sleep too much. Probably the truth is that a tranquil and evenly balanced mind not given to worry, dissipation or needless excitement needs less sleep than the fussy man who indulges in these reprehensible and unsatisfactory vices. It is possible to rest even when in the midst of work. But it requires much toil and self-control to achieve such a power of rest.

Municipal Novelty. There is a decidedly humorous side which occasionally comes to light in connection with the undermanning of municipal corporations but the action of the enterprising city fathers of a small Hungarian town is certainly unique. The Mayor and the whole Town Council, consisting of eight members, formed the Town Council, and they actually set policemen to guard the door while they were at work. This remarkable state of affairs existed for a couple of years, when the business was detected, the Mayor and the Councilmen, including professional brigands upon being arrested. It is reported that quite recently one of the large oil owners of Central Wyoming was offered $4 per head for the top of his cow lambs, which is said to be the highest price offered for cow lambs during the past twenty years.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of A FEW RECIPES.

Plum Pudding. One pound of baker's bread cut in slices and placed in a deep dish, one half cup butter (spread each slice with butter), one cup raisins, seeded, mix with bread. Into one quart of milk put one-half cup sugar, two-thirds cup molasses, three eggs well beaten, small teaspoonful vanilla, pinch of cassia, nutmeg and salt; turn this mixture over the bread, steam two hours and a half. Sauce—Cream, one-quarter of a cup butter, with two cups powdered sugar; flavor with vanilla.

Chicken Patties. Mince some cold chicken and a little cooked ham, moisten with gravy and add a few drops of lemon juice; also salt and pepper to taste. Roll out some pastry and stamp it into rounds. Lay half the rounds on greased patty tins, brush round the edges with beaten white egg and put some of the minced chicken on each round; cover the remaining circles of pastry, brush over with white of egg, press the edges slightly together and bake in quick oven for about 20 minutes.

Cocoanut Cream. A cocoanut cream to spread on thin layers of cake requires one cup of milk, one half cup of grated cocoanut, one cup of sugar, a small lump of butter. Roll altogether; when it comes to a hot mix in one of the spoons of corn starch dissolved in a little milk; let all come to the boiling point; when nearly cold beat in one egg. Spread this on the layer of cake and you have the cocoanut cake which literally melts in your mouth.

Apple Fritters. Peel firm, tart apples and cut into thin slices and put them in a bath of clear and sugar or cherry juice and sugar when cherries are in season. Let them remain for three hours. Sprinkle thickly on a clean cooking upkin an ounce of flour and roll the apple slices in it after they have been drained. Fry in hot fat and serve hot with pieces of lemon and spiced sugar.

Split Pea Soup. Soak one pint of dried split peas over night. In the morning place them over the fire in two quarts of cold water, with one pound of beef, and cook slowly for two hours, or until the liquor is reduced one-half. Pour into a colander and press the peas through with a spoon. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt, and eat with oyster crackers.

Beet Salad. Boil four medium sized beets; when cold, chop quite fine, add half as much chopped cabbage as you have beets, and horseradish to make it taste like beet; pour a salad dressing over. No rule for the quantity of horseradish, as it is much stronger sometimes than at others.

Cheese Balls. Mix one-half cup grated cheese with one-fourth cup sifted bread crumbs (dried and sifted) and whites of two eggs beat to a stiff froth with salt and pepper; form into small balls, roll in sifted crumbs either bread or cracker will do, and fry in hot fat.

Ladies' Waist. Exquisite all-over laces are shown for evening wear and many of the new toilettes are made with yoke and sleeves of this dainty material. China blue poplin is here combined with delicate white lace, black ribbon velvet run through insertion of a heavier weave forming the trimming. The waist is modelled over a fitted lining, which closes invisibly in the back. The backs are plain across the shoulders, with the fullness arranged in tiny plaits at the waist. The front is slightly bloused, but fits smoothly over the shoulders and bust. The broad, long-shouldered effect produced in this model is exceedingly fashionable at present. The entire yoke and sleeves may be underlined with silk or satin in a contrasting color. For evening wear the upper part of yoke and the long sleeves may be omitted with the stylish effect shown in small illustration.

Perforated lines are given to patterns for the proper shapings. To make this waist in the medium size will require one-half yard of forty-four inch material with one and one-half yards of twenty-seven inch material for the yoke and sleeves.

Finger Marked Furniture. Finger marks mar the appearance of polished furniture. To remove them, rub with a piece of chamol in vinegar and water. Polish with a dry chamol.

The doors are ten feet high, and the ceilings and windows look like those of a giant's castle. She is still growing and is now eight feet, four inches tall.

SAMOAN TEST OF FEALITY.

Fearful Deed Required of a Rumeo of the South Pacific. A certain young Samoan, the son of a chief, who had reached that age when "a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," became deeply enamored of the tempo or belle of the tempo, and the tempo's family there existed a bitter feud. The attachment was reciprocated, but, as is customary in such important matters as matrimony, the question of eligibility was duly submitted to the alca or family council, which promptly returned a verdict of "impossible." Instead, however, of accepting the decree of his family and renouncing his love, the young man rebelled and declared he would wed his dusky sweetheart in spite of all the code of Samoa and the trammels of family and tribal disapproval that could be imposed. The young girl asserted her independence and scorn for the obstacles which were put in their way, and with the help of a few girl friends, began preparing her trousseau of fine mats and gaudy tapa, which brides in Samoa afford.

The wedding day approached. The feuding between the rival villages ran high, and before the arrival of the date fixed for the ceremony, a pitched battle in open hostilities. Overwhelming pressure was brought to bear upon the poor lover, who was reviled and taunted with being a traitor, and all the curses of the gods and ancestors heaped upon his devoted head; family influence combined to exert its every wile to break the engagement; but still he stood resolute. He was driven from house and village on an outcast on the world, and his property confiscated and divided. The day came, and the bride sat alone, deserted by her family, waiting for her faithful bridegroom. The hours passed; he did not come. Suddenly a step was heard outside the hut, where she anxiously awaited. She rose expectant. A curtain was drawn aside; nothing was thrown into the room and rolled to the feet of the horrified girl. She stooped and picked it up, and then screaming and laughing she fell upon the ground—a maniac.

It was the severed head of her father, and before her stood her affianced husband, stern, relentless, and cold as ice. He turned to her with the terrible smile of a fiend, and he replied, grinning, "Why, I didn't send anything except turnips," I said to surprise. "Well, that's what them pigs is made of," he admitted reluctantly. The man don't know how to do a thing, say, so I made 'em up into lemon pies." "It was strictly true, and beyond the fact that he had used some sort of chemical to secure the flavor, I was never able to ascertain how he did it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Prefer the Old Way. The suggestion made by the Davenport Humane Society that women gave up the use of side saddle and sit astride when riding horseback, is meeting with marked opposition. The most powerful, if not the principal objection is that the women do not know how to do it. The innovation that would be as becoming as that now in use.

A Scene in Manila.

Manila Silent and Safe at Night. Carriages are but little seen at night. The native driver of a public vehicle is not allowed out any more than a native pedestrian would be. Hence there is no carriage to be had, unless you are the owner or lessee of a private rig, and even then you must to either official or sufficiently near to be privileged to pass your driver by the sentry. Moreover, every time you are halted in a carriage you must leave the carriage and advance on foot for inspection and questioning. Over in the San Nicolas district, around the port, the sentries are so thick that proceeding in a carriage is more tiresome by far than walking. Every little interval covered necessitates another halt, explanations, advance, and the same thing over again, about as fast as you can enter the carriage and alight. There is no pleasure in a night ride through the crowded parts of Manila.

But the end justifies the means. There are no native uprisings and no possibility of one. No city in the world is as safe by night as Manila. Deserted and nearly as still as the grave, it remains under martial law until broad daylight comes around again, when windows open, shutters come down, the populace swarms out, and the busy life of a great city begins like magic with the firing of the sunbeams—Manila Correspondence Leslie's Weekly.

BASED ON NOTHING.

Most of the Fears That Deset Fair Maids and Matrons.

The cause that implants the spirit of fear in the bosom of the gentle sex is a subject that may well puzzle the most devout student of human nature. The mouse is considered one of the harmless of creatures, and yet it has been responsible for more cases of hysteria than any animal many times its size. One woman, who all her life has searched beneath her bed before retiring, at one time found herself in possession of a folding monstrously, the intricacies of which she had first to solve before taking her well-earned rest. But such is the force of habit. After finding the bed and the world carefully look beneath it, for no other reason than that she had done so ever since she was a child.

A favorite illusion is that of having one's legs seized, either from behind in going upstairs or on getting into bed. Women have been seen scuttling upstairs in the dark setting at defiance all the laws of locomotion in a ludicrous attempt to keep their legs some distance ahead of them and beyond the reach of a mysterious clutch. Girls will also make flying leaps into bed to eliminate the same improbability.

Many women search diligently in closets, bureau drawers and all sorts of impossible places before resigning themselves to sleep. An old housekeeper whose table silver, in two baskets, was always placed in her bedroom after the evening meal, was one night awakened by what she considered suspicious sounds from the lower regions. Cautionally leaving her room laden with the silver, she pitched both baskets into the hall below, calling out as she did so, "Take it all and please go," then fled precipitately and barricaded herself in her room. Needless to add, she found both baskets and scattered contents the following morning, a little the worse for the rough handling she had given them.

Snagboat Cook's Lemon Pies. "Good cooks are born like poets," said Major J. E. Cotnam. "Once upon a time I bought a lot of turkeys for a government snagboat on one of the interior waterways, and visiting it not long afterward, was surprised to find lemon pie being served out to all hands for dinner. I ate a good slice of it myself, and although it was delicious, I felt it my duty to call down the steward for squandering government funds. 'Where did you get the lemons for those pies?' I asked sternly. 'You sent them to me with the others, sir,' he replied, grinning. 'Why, I didn't send anything except turkeys,' I said to surprise. 'Well, that's what them pigs is made of,' he admitted reluctantly. The man don't know how to do a thing, say, so I made 'em up into lemon pies.' 'It was strictly true, and beyond the fact that he had used some sort of chemical to secure the flavor, I was never able to ascertain how he did it.'—New Orleans Times-Democrat.
