CAPTAIN DICK

"Captain Dick Wells and Mrs. Wells, formerly Jack Hall, will leave next week for San Francisco en route for Portland, Ore.

This is the item that headed the personal column of the Arizona papers recently.

or he would have me arrested. Just Back of this is a story that has set all Arizona agog—the tale of a woman "'Why, here you are, after all!' he masquerading in cowboy attire, lassoing cattle, taking part in shooting scrapes, leading the wild, free adven-"The niece had returned, and was turous life of the Arizona vaquero— the story of a woman who, because her father had been hanged as a horse Suddenly she took in the full meaning thief, changed her name, hid her sex, and the beating of hoof and the whizzing of bullet, sought to drown the memory of the disgrace. As a fitting finale, when her sex was discovered, she married "Captain Lick," the bravest and boldest cowboy in all Arizona.

It is a story kindled with strange and dramatic incidents that could occur nowhere save in Arizona, where still puts fiction to blush and boot and spur have not altogether given away to patent leathers.

It was just about a year ago that a slender, clean-shaven youth asked for work at one of the big cattle ranches near Williams. Captain Dick, who was the leader of the cowboys, engaged the "tenderfoot," and "Jack Hall,"the name the applicant for work gave, won his spurs in the annual rodeo for which the cowboys were then

By day Jack sat his horse rounding up the cattle and at night slept on the ground. He was quiet and distant towards the other cowboys, but for the most part they liked him. Before the first month! ad passed he had an opportunity to show his mettle.

A number of cowboys were spending the night in a typical Arizona town-one saloon per every fifteen inhabitants. Jack Hall, in search of Captain Dick, dropped into one of the saloons. A cowboy, revolver in hand was acting as master of ceremonies, partly to show her that I bore while in the middle of the floor the barkeeper, half dead from fatigue. was doing a dance, to the amusement of the rest of the cowbovs. When the barkeeper attempted to stop swirling his feet the cowboy shouted for more dancing, and the master of ceremonies encouraged the barkeeper by popping his pistol dangerously near his feet.

A man can buy a good, well-made, well-fitting white shirt for a dollar; Jack Hall watched the scene in si-lence until he saw that the barkeeper he can buy other white shirts for less than that; and then he can get shirts made to order at any price he wishes reached the limit of his endurance. Then he deftly wrenched the pistol from the cowboys hand and, turning "If you want any it on him, said: white shirts kept in stock sells at more dancing, do it yourself."

The cowboy snatched another one, but Jack Hall was too quick for him. There was a quic., sharp report and a cry of pain. The cowboy was wounded in the right arm.

Then Jack Hall did a strange thing. His were the fingers that bandaged his adversary's wounds. He attended to him, even cutting his food for him, until the cowboy was well. After that he was christened Nurse Jack and more often called simply "Nurse." He had an almost womanish way of caring for them if they fell ill.

'He ain't a drinker and he can't play cards worth a hill of frijoles, but he's all right dosing medicine and such things," explained the cowboys.

Moreover he was all right when it came to handling a horse or a revolver, which after all counts more points in the cowboy's estimation than bottle or cards. Beside he had as a firm ally Captain Dick, which, in Arizona, the open sesame to any cowboy's friendship.

Captain Dick did win his position among the Arizona cowboys without first proving his strength of his good right arm. Captain Dick has never been a believer in the law's delay. He has assisted at more hangings than any sheriff in the territory. Nor certainly an object that is agreeable hve the victims of his sense of justice afterward been proven innocent. Captain Dick makes sure of the offender's guilt before he ties the knot.

It was in 1882, while he was still referred to, taken together, perhaps very young, that Captain Dick's popularity reached the high water mark. bosoms; 75 per cent. being made with General Fremont, the new Governor of the Territory had introduced a bill in the Legislature, which was A shirt that sells at $9, or $108 a then in session, asking that several thousand dollars be put aside to equip dozen, is made with a body of figured linen batiste, with an extra fine linen a company of militia to be sent to the southern part of the territory to subdue the cowboys.

the militia, epitaphs, which was the boon he asked for bestowing the hospitality of the cowboys.

Several years ago a number of cowboys rode into Prescott and, after frightening all the barkeepers of the saloons into a comotose condition, breaking glasswar; and practicing fancy shots, they remounted their horses and rode through the town wildly shooting at the clouds.

A posse of citizens was formed, and a mile or two out of town they over-took the hilarious cowboys, killing one of them and wounding several.

The pursuit and killing aroused indignation throughout the territory. The cowboys had done no real or serious damage, according to Arizona ethics, and accordingly they should have been allowed to go their way unmolested. Besides, they had wasted all their ammunition and they had not a fair chance. Such was the general verdict of the affair.

The day after the killing Capt. Dick rode into the town, galloped straight to the Mayor's office and dismounted. He left it with a folded piece of paper tucked in his belt. It bore the May-or's signature promising to raise a certain amount of money for the families of the dead cowboys.

Two days later came a letter from signed by the mayor and all the dignitaries of the town, with the money, or there would be some carefullyaimed shooting from the cowboys, and it was promised that the townspeople would be at the wrong end of the guns this time. The money and apology, carefully worded, besprinkled with seals and duly signed by leading citizens and officials, was hastily despatched to Capt. Dick. The cowboys were satisfied with the apology and so the mat-

When this same Capt Dick was stricken with typhoid fever it was Jack who nursed him through the dangerous illness, and after that "Boy," which was the captain's name for the youth, usually rode by the captain's

A year passed before the real identity of "Boy," or "Nurse Jack," was discovered. It all came through the teacher in the country school asking Jack to buy her some ribbon. It was late in the afternoon when Jack reached Williams, the nearest town. He was in a hurry, and the startled customers in the dry goods store hastily made way for a sun-browned cow-boy on a horse, who rode straight up to the goods counter and demanded three yards of pink ribbon. It is perfectly proper for a cowboy to ride his horse in an Arizona saloon, but when it comes to a dry goods store it is a uestionable procedure.

While the clerk was hastily measuring off the ribbon a lady customer came too close to the horse's hoofs and was knocked unconscious

The constable and several deputies proved too many for Jack, and he was straightway marched to jail. Capt. Dick came to town as soon as he heard of the affair. He called on "Boy" at the jail and to his surprise was shown the woman's ward. "Jack' had been forced to reveal her sex or be put in the men's quarters. During the three days before the trial Capt. Dick became accustomed to "Boy" in her new guise. She told him her story, how her father had been hanged; how her mother and little sisters had taken refuge with relatives in Portland, and she herself had changed her name from Helen Jack-son to Jack Hall and remained in Arizona to live the life of a cowboy.

On the day of the trial the injured woman had recovered from her blow and refused to prosecute. However, the judge was called upon to use his official powers in the crowded courtroom, and Capt. Dick and "Boy" were made husband and wife.

The story was soon known all over the territory. Not only the cowboys on that particlar range, but from far and wide the vaqueros have sent congratula-tions and gifts. "Nurse Jack's" wedding gifts will always remind her of her year of cowboy life-riding whips, Mexican saddles and silver spurs, tesay nothing of several pairs of splendid riding boots and a dozen som-

The men-Edwards and Wade-had attended a dance Monday night. A girl for whose hand the men were rivals, Miss Rosa Crowe, was also present. When the dance ended both men wanted to escort her home. She selected Wade, and when they reached Miss Crowe's home he went into the house with her. A few minutes later Edwards, who seems to have followed the couple, appeared at the door and tried to get in. Wade fired a pistol through the roof of the house to frighten Edwards, which had the effect of causing the latter to Winchester rifle and shot at his fleeing John C, Shorb. rival, the ball striking him in the back and lodging in the abdomen. The bullet severed an artery, causing Edwards to bleed to death. The body was left in the road until it was viewed by the coroner, Wade in the meantime having been placed under arrest. Edwards was a stranger in that locality, having recently located at Bordenshaft from Scranton, Pa. Wade is a son of Enoch Wade, a miner at Bordenshaft.

The jury rendered a verdict that Edwards came to his death by a bullet fired by Wade, who was held for the action of the grand jury. He was lodged in jail at Cumberland, Tuesday evening.

Wade refused to make a statement regarding the killing of Edwards. Miss Crowe is the 17-year-old daughter

Ask your physician this question, "What is the one great remedy for consumption?" He will answer, "Cod-liver oil." Nine out of ten will answer the same way.

Yet when persons have consumption they loathe all fatty foods, yet fat is necessary for their recovery and they cannot take plain codliver oil. The plain oil disturbs the stomach and takes away the appetite. The disagreeable fishy odor and taste make it almost unendurable. What is to be done? This question was answered when we first made of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. Although that was nearly twenty-five years ago, yet it stands alone today the one great remedy for all affections of the throat and lungs.

The bad taste and odor have been taken away, the oil itself has been partly digested, and the most sensitive stomach objects to it rarely. Not one in ten can take and digest the plain oil. Nine out of ten can take SCOTT'S EMULSION and digest it. That's why it cures so many cases of early consumption. Even in advanced cases it brings comfort and greatly prolongs life.

IN A WAGON.

How a Circus Man Slept During a Season's Traveling.

"I slept in a wagon all summer." said Dolph Gessle', the well-known ticket seller of the Robinson Circus, which has made its seventy-fifth anmual season of travel. "Yes, sir, in a wagon. The rest of the show people slept in regular sleeping cars. Now. you would think they had the best of it, wouldn't you? But they didn't. My bed was made up in the wagon in which I sold tickets. Along the sides of it are benches. I had a cot bed from which the legs were re-The benches had lids, and inside were boxes where the tickets and other stuff necessary were kept. In one compartment I had the bedding, in another towels and other toilet esentials. After the count up at night I pulled down the cot top, got out my sheets and blankets and made up my bed. Then I turned in, after folding up my clothes. The ticket wagon is a finely constructed affair, with platform springs, and rides likes a fashionable carriage. The "razor-backs," or common laborers with the show, would, when the time came to entrain, run the wagon onto a flat car and chock the wheels securely. The car has supersprings, and rides like a passenger coach. The cot top was laid across the aisle, of which the benches formed the sides, so there were three places to take up the mo-tion—the car springs, the wagon springs and the elastic cot webbing I was as snuga as a bug in a rug. By leaving the windows in the rear open I got a fine breeze, and in the hottest nights was cool and comfortable. Many a morning I woke up to find the wagon on the circus lots miles from the depot. I slept so soundly that I never felt the wagon being detrained or driven uptown. Then my wagon men would bring up water and my toilet was a matter of only a moment or two. Bathing? Why a man with a circus can bath every day in the dressing tent. The folks in the sleeping car had many discomforts. Any body that has traveled in a crowded Pullman car appreciates this fact. All want to go to bed at the same time and get up together. The aisles are crowded with clothing and impediments, and then there is the snoring and talking that is inevitable. Oh, I tell you, I was comfortable. Some of the razor-backs had a novel way of bunking for the night. They slept in hammocks, which were slung under the wagons from axle to axle. I never tried it, but those who did tell me that it is exceedingly comfortable. Lots of fresh air, you know. Curiously enough, they didn't get avet, and the cinders don't fly under the wagons. On dusty nights they get a little of loose Mother Eearth, but not so much as you would think. Nothing could induce me to change my Gess iey palace sleeping car, as I called my agon bed, for one of Pullman's make I have privacy, room and comfort, and no sleeping car can boast of this triple advantage."--Exchange.

BATTLE AT THE AQUARIUM.

Mr. Crab Was Game, But, Like Fitzsimmons, Went Out of His Class.

There were placed recently in the lobster and crab tank at the Aquar-ium eleven lobster, a lively lot of medium and small sizes, that have proved a strong attraction. The lobster is an interesting creature anyway, and likely to be especially so to anybody not familiar with them as lobsters, and crabs, too, for that matter, are inclined to be scrappy as well as lively, and the visitors like that. Sometimes two lobsters, meeting, put up their big claws to each other like boxing gloves; and sometimes crab and lobster meet and have a little

Here, for illustration, is a good, sizable, vigorous blue crab walking along on the bottom of the tank, close by the glass in front. A lobster comes along the same path from the other direction, and they meet at the centre, with as many persons as can see the tank looking on. Neither gives way. The crab is the smaller, but not a bit Crab swings with right, but fails to land, the blow falling short. Lobster flops one big claw overhand and lands on top of crab shell, right in the centre, m'dway between the eyes, and pins him down to the sand. Crab waves his claw wildly with an effort to get in or lobster, but can't

"Hold him off, old man, hold him says an enthusiastic spectator. "Don't let him get inside your guard. If you do you're a goner."

And the lobster does hold him off, for maybe a minute, and then lifts his heavy claw. Crab is game by nature, but in this particular instance he turns and goes the other way, realizing that he is fighting out of his class. Often, however, the lobster will turn out for the crab. The crab always appears to be resolute and self-reliant. it goes right along as if it owned the bottom, whereas sometimes when a lobster meets a crab it seems to be thrown off its guard, and it jumps back, though the crab may be only half as big as itself. Then it is possible to see the manner in which the lobster habitually jumps, which is diagonally upward and backward, tail first. He makes a quick, nervous leap of two or three times his own length, the crab meanwhile keeping on along the bottom quite unruffled.

Here may be seen, in some measure. at least, the manner in which the lobster secludes itself for safety If it hides in a crevice in the rocks it always backs in, so that its big claws, its weapons, are in front.-N. Y. Sun.

About Auctioneers.

The ways of auctioneers in different parts of the world vary greatly. In Fingland and America the seller bears the expense of the sale, but in France the purchaser bears the cost, 5 per cent being added to his purchase. In Helland it is still worse, the buyer being required to pay ten per cent. additional for the expense of the sale.

AUTOMOBILE PALACE.

Magnificent Car for Long Trips Upon

Pleasant Byways. Railroad palace cars are a familiar proportions, and something similar in appearance and design that will speed along the country roads from 20 to 35 miles an hour is the latest creation of Yankee skill and Yankee ingenuity. Mr. S. C. Coombs, of Philadelphia, s the inventor in that line of automo-

The car has a four-wheeled truck under each end set a short distance back from the ends, thereby bring-ing the weight of the car as near the engine as practicable in a car 65 feet long. The wheels are four feet high, each truck is constructed with heavy springs and fifth wheel, like a heavy circus wagon. Each wheel is fitted with the heaviest and best solid rub-ber tire that can be produced, which will relieve the wheel and axle from heavy jar when in rapid motion. The four-wheel truck at each end gives the car great stability, because if one wheel drops in a hole or crevasse the companion wheel on the same side will maintain the balance of the car and also distribute the weight over a larger surface on the ground, giving the car better foothold, as it were, on soft roads or climbing hills. Mr. Coombs's manner of communicating power to the wheels from the motor is where his engineering quali-ties show themselves. The wheels all work independently of each other, the same as any automobile, yet they are all operated by means of two heavy cables direct from the motor, The car has a steering arrangement at each end-both ends of the car are alike. The car runs either way, and around short curves and in turns the rear wheels follow in the same track as the front wheels, and the car is guided either way by the same steering arrangement, the car having a pilot at each end. The car positively will not upset on any road.

There are two staterooms in the car, furnished with closets and baths. The bath tubs are let down in this space, and are even with the under side of the floor, a section of the floor being constructed to cover it. The butler's pantry is fitted with every modern culinary device. Some of the space of the ear is divided off with cooms into one. The car is pointed at either end to minimize atmosphere resistance. The car cannot upset, for it can be seen that material and bag-gage carried is near the ground, like ballast in the bottom of a ship.

"I represented this undertaking to Mr. Roswell P. Flower 12 years ago," said Mr. Cocmbs, "while I resided at Watertown, but the idea was too advanced then.-Cin. Enquirer.

The first point was tested by placing the dog with his master at an outpost giving only a limited view and then causing two jagers (in to the West Point Military Academy enemy's uniform) to approach under cover from a point about 400 yards distant. States. There are a great many people, including not a few American business men, who would urgently recommend Congress to take measures to unify and harmorize these various systems in some way.-The

For Russian Trade,

Mr. Hitchcock, late Ambassador to Russia has originated a scheme which promises to result in an exhibition, at St. Peterburg or Moscow, made up wholly of American products, to cover several months beginning in the spring of 1901. The plan is to transbodily the American exhibit at Paris next year, a project which it is said meets with the approval of both the Russian authorities and the American exhibitors. The advantages of such an exhibition to our trade interests should be much greater than the display of the same goods at Paris.

Dress.

There can be no doubt in the mind of the average reasoning man that the matter of dress exerts influence on the success or failure of the man sight to the public, but a car of like or woman of to-day. A well and neatly attired man everywhere has the adantage of one who takes no pains with his apparel and whose clothes might be shed annually like the skin of the snake if it were not for the inviolable customs of the age. It is a fact, perhaps lamentable, but nevertheless patent, that a business man prefers dealing with another who is attractively dressed whose face is clean shaven and who is in the habit of wearing clean collars, to his brother with whom dress is less than a secondary consideration, and who contents himself with the reflection that 'handsome is as handsome does.'

There are a great many men who decry this tendency to personal adornment in others, and whose lips take a scornful curve when they refer to the "dude" or his frivolous sister. Is it a crime or a fault to accenuate personal beauty, or neutralize the effect of natural homeliness by tastiness of apparel? Is there any reason to censure the man who wears lightercolored or some more fashionablyshaped garments than ours because we prefer for ourselves the more sombre and conventional garments? To be sure, there is a distinction between the man who dresses for love of dress and the one who does so from principle or from business reasons. But it is a distinction with which the average critic of the well-dressed man seldom bothers himself. We are always taught to look at the brightest side of life. Then why ridicule those little niceties of dress which certainly please the eye, and which much more certainly gives a man a feeling of selfpossession and satisfaction, which, too, is far removed from the ever-tobe-condemned fault of conceit dandyism. But if we begin with the little niceties, where shall we end? After all, custom must be the judge.

Education Defined.

Herbert Spencer tells us in one short pregnant sentence that the function of education is to prepare us for complete living.

A fine if somewhat negative definition by Gladstone is as follows: "Is it not a fraud upon ourselves and our partitions like folding blinds, making it possible to throw two or three paltering with words is it not giving and paltering with words is it not giving and paltering with words is it not giving the paltering with words is it not given and the paltering with words is it not given and the paltering with words is it not given and the paltering with words is it not given and the partitions with the paltering with words in the partitions with the partition with the partiti paltering with words, is it not giving stones to those who ask bread, when man, so endowed as he is and with such high necessities, demand of his fellow men that he be rightly trained, we impart to him, under the name of an adequate education, that which has no reference to his most essential capacities and wants, and which limits the immortal creature to objects that perish in the use?"

A true chord is touched by Sydney Smith when he urges the importance of happiness as an aid to education. He says: "If you make children happy now, you make them happy twenty years hence by the memory of it.

The use of dogs in war dates back | Equally wise are the words of Sir to the Greeks and Romans, but the John Lubbock: "Knowledge is a pleasmodern idea of training them for special military service was born in 1886 us all to try with Milton to behold the in Germany, and for the past 10 or 12 bright countenance of truth in the still air of study."

Edison's Religion.

This is what Thomas Edison said in reply to a question addressed him by an agnostic: "Why, after years of watching the processes of nature, I can no more doubt the existence of an Intelligence that is running things than I do of the existence of myself. Take, for example, the substance water that forms the cystal known as ice. Now, there are hundreds of posts, as messengers on both these duties, as carriers of supplies and ammunition on the battlefield, and to munition on the battlefield, and to And it is rather lucky for us mortals, for if it had done so we would all be dead. Why? Simply because if ice sank to the bottom of rivers, lakes and oceans as fast as it froze, these places would be frozen up and there would be no water left. That is only one example out of thousands that to me prove beyond the possibility of a doubt that some vast Intelligence is governing this and other planets.'

Army and Navy,

There remains but fifteen vacancies for the examination in June. Members of Congress have been unusually prompt in making their nominations in the last five months. All Presidential appointments have been filled as well, and the prospects are now that no additional places will be at the President's disposal until 1901. One member of Congress from the Fifth Maryland district, has allowed his district to be unrepresented at West Point for nearly two years, and does not seem inclined now to select any candidate. There are, of course, numbers of applicants, but the Congressman heeds them not. No appointments to the Naval Academy will be made until after March 5 next. about 91/2 miles an hour.-N. Y. Sun. Candidates then will report for the examination in May.

Bridge Building.

The opening of the new Victoria bridge at Montreal calls attention to the amazing progress in this important science and art. The old bridge, opened by the Prince of Wales in 1860, was justly regarded as one of the wonders of the world. It weighed 9,000 tons, was 16 feet wide and 18 feet high, and cost 8,813,000. The new bridge weighs 2,200 tons, is 65 feet wide and 40 feet high and cost $2,000,000. The new bridge is many times more capacious and more durable, and yet weighs less than onefourth as much and cost less than onefourth the money.

Time's V/hirligig.

This story of Sir Thomas Lipton is enough. The fact that he is a knight and thrice a millionaire, and that it is not wise to look down upon the poor need not be mentioned:
"And the poor fellows I met those nights that I slept in City Hall Park. Unfortunate as I was, I would give something to know what became of them afterward-whether God was as good to them afterward as He was to me, and whether they are the better for the lesson of adversity.

"Those days in New York were hard in a way that you can scarcely imagine. Many and many a night did I stand outside the windows of the Fifth avenue, wondering what the rooms inside were like, and whether I would ever have money enough to be able to afford to sleep in one for just

'Yet through all the storm of trouble and sorrow I never lost courage. There was something in my bones that seemed to tell me that I should get there at last. It was a kind of instinct, I suppose, or a touch of the bulldog—goodness only knows.

"I don't know that I ever felt so cut to the heart as in the morning when, nervous and trembling-I'd eaten nothing for nearly two days—I entered the office of a banker—rich then tered the office of a banker—rich then and richer now-in search of a situation. I've never forgotten how he looked up, glared at me over his glasses, growled, 'Turn that fellow out!' and walked away.

"I met that man at a dinner the other night—30 years older, but the same, boys, always the same. That kind of animal never changes, except for hair and wrinkles. He came up smiling, silky, obsequious. I knew him again. He began to stammer a clumsy apology, and his apology was more unendurable than the original

"Yet those days in New York were not without their results," remarked one of the group.

Universal War. Not Peace.

It does not look much like general disarmament. Every great nation on earth is strengthening its fighting power. Information has been received to the effect that the German Emperor has decided upon the presentation to the Reichstag of a naval bill, the passage of which will give the German government a navy rore effective than that of France. The programme which the Emperor has approved calls for the construction of eighteen bat-tle ships, six armored cruisers and thirty protected cruisers, at an expense of more than $100,000,000. It is an exact duplicate of that which the Emperor succeeded some time ago in putting through the Reichstag, which will be completed in 1904.

In case of its adoption, ten battle-ships of about 12,000 tons displacement, three armored cruisers of about 14,000 tons displacement and fifteen protected cruisers of about 4,000 tons displacement will be constructed be-tween 1904—when the existing programme will end—and 1911, and be-tween 1911 and 1918 eight battleships, three armored cruisers and fifteen protected cruisers of the same dis-placements will be constructed. The annual expenditure will be about $7,

A Short Campaign.

The Nashville American joins in the plea for a short campaign. "A long campaign," it truly says, "only upsets the business of the country for a greater length of time and will have little effect upon the final result." But the politicians care little for the business of the country. The political habit is like the alcohol habit or the this road will run as follows: opium habit. Its victims are never happy except when indulging in their favorite jag. The politicians of both parties, instead of holding late conventions, are preparing to hold them earlier than usual.
