The President Is Dead.

The Nation's Chief Died at Buffalo Last Saturday. Hon. Theodore Roosevelt Now President.

His Last Words Were as Reported by Dr. Mann, "Good-By, All Good-By. It Is God's Way. Let His Will, Not Ours, Be Done." History of the Life of the Dead President.

President McKinley died at the Milburn House, at Buffalo, N. Y., at 2.15 o'clock, last Saturday morning, September 14, from the effects of the assassin's bullet.

The President suffered a relapse on last Thursday night, and his condition gradually became worse until death relieved him of his sufferings.

His last conscious hour on earth was spent with his wife, to whom he devoted a lifetime of care. He was reconciled to the cruel fate to which an assassin's bullet had condemned him, and faced death in the spirit of calmness and poise which has marked his long and honorable career. His last conscious words, reduced to writing by Dr. Mann, who stood at his bedside when they were uttered, were as follows: "Good-By, All Good-By. It Is God's Way. Let His Will, Not Ours, Be Done."

Bullet Wound Caused Death.

The physicians in attendance upon President McKinley made an autopsy after death and the findings of which are set forth in the following bulletin signed by the physicians:

"The bullet which struck over the breastbone did not pass through the skin, and did little harm. The other bullet passed through both walls of the stomach near its lower border. Both holes were found to be perfectly closed by the stitches, but the tissue around each hole had become gangrenous. After passing through the stomach the bullet passed into the back walls of the abdomen, hitting and tearing the upper end of the kidney."

"This portion of the bullet's track was also gangrenous, the gangrene involving the pancreas. The bullet has not yet been found. There was no sign of peritonitis or disease of other organs. The heart walls were very thin."

"There was no evidence of any attempt to repair on the part of nature, and death resulted from the gangrene which affected the stomach around the bullet wounds, as well as the tissues around the further course of the bullet. Death was unavoidable by any surgical or medical treatment and was the direct result of the bullet wound."

LIFE AND WORK OF MR. MCKINLEY.

William McKinley, twenty-fourth president of the United States, was born at Niles, Trumbull county, Ohio, on January 29, 1843. After attending the public schools he went to Poland Academy, and subsequently to Allegheny College, but before attaining his majority had become a teacher in the public schools. On June 11, 1861, when he was in his nineteenth year, he enlisted as a private in the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteers, becoming commissary sergeant on April 15, 1862, second lieutenant on September 23 of the same year, first lieutenant on February 7, 1863, and captain on July 25, 1864. He served successfully on the staffs of Gen. R. B. Hayes, George Crook and Winfield S. Hancock, and towards the close of the war was detailed as acting assistant adjutant general of the First Division, First Army Corps, on the staff of General S. C. Carroll. He was brevetted major of volunteers for gallantry in battle in March, 1865, and in July following was mustered out of the service.

Major McKinley then applied himself to the study of law, which he completed by a course at the Albany (N. Y.) Law School. In 1867 he was admitted to the bar and settled down at Canton, O., in the practice of his profession, that town since remaining his home. In 1869 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Stark county, but served only one term in that office. In 1876 he made his entrance upon the field of national politics, and was elected a member of the lower house of Congress, in which for the next 14 years he represented the congressional district of which his county was a part. As chairman of the Ways and Means Committee he reported the tariff law of 1890, in the preparation of which he took a leading part, and it has always been known by his name. In November of that year Major McKinley was defeated for re-election to Congress, the new apportionment of the state having been so gerrymandered as to throw him into a Democratic district, but he succeeded in reducing the usual adverse majority from 3,000 to 300. There was, however, practically no interval in his public career, for in 1891, a few months after he had retired from the House, he was elected Governor of Ohio by a plurality of 21,511 over James E. Campbell, the Democratic incumbent of the office. Two years later he was re-elected by a plurality of 80,995 over Lawrence T. Neal, Democrat, and retired from the governorship at the close of 1895.

Mr. McKinley served as a delegate-at-large in the Republican National Convention of 1884, when he supported Blaine for President, and as a member of the committee of resolutions read the platform to the convention. In 1888 he was again a delegate-at-large from Ohio, supported John Sherman for the nomination, and as chairman of the committee on resolutions again reported the platform. In 1892 he appeared for the third time as delegate-at-large from Ohio, and served as permanent chairman of the convention. On that occasion Major McKinley advocated the renomination of President Harrison, but, notwithstanding his refusal to permit the use of his name, 182 votes were cast for him for the presidential nomination. At the National Convention held in St. Louis in June, 1896, Major McKinley was made the presidential candidate of the Republican party, receiving 661½ votes to 84½ for Thomas B. Reed, 60½ for Matthew S. Quay, 59 for Levi P. Morton, 35½ for William B. Allison and 1 for J. Donald Cameron, with 21 delegates absent, the number of votes necessary for a choice being 462. In November following Major McKinley received 7,106,199 votes to 5,602,685 for William J. Bryan, giving a plurality of 603,514, and a clear majority of the popular vote of 288,753 over all opposition. In the Electoral College the vote stood 271 for McKinley to 176 for Bryan.

On June 21, 1900, the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia renominated Mr. McKinley for President. He received 926 votes (all the votes of the convention).

On November 6, 1900, Mr. McKinley was re-elected, defeating Mr. William J. Bryan the second time. During the administration of President McKinley the most important matters that have engaged his attention have been the war with Spain, beginning in April, 1898, and being concluded in August of the same year; the trouble with the Filipinos, which followed the attack on the American troops by the Filipinos in February, 1899, and which still continues in a desultory sort of fashion; the passage of the Porto Rican bill, applying to the use of the inhabitants of the island the duties collected; the passage of the Financial bill at the last session of Congress by which the gold standard was made secure; and the trouble in China, which followed the attack of the Boxers on the foreigners in China, which necessitated sending American troops to China, some of which are still there.

Another interesting episode of the McKinley administration was the final dissolution of the long-standing tripartite control of the Samoan Islands. According to the agreement to which Great Britain, Germany and the United States governments were parties, Tutuila Island, which contains Pago Pago harbor, the best harbor in the group, was awarded to the United States, and Germany got the balance of the group. This settlement followed an ugly uprising on the island, in which some American and British marines were killed, and a dangerous feeling was engendered, caused by the attitude of the German officials, who sided with the natives.

Simple Funeral Services.

President Roosevelt, the members of the Cabinet, Senator Hanna, other prominent government officials and the members of the family of the late President McKinley, attended the simple funeral services held Sunday morning at the Milburn house, in Buffalo.

It required all the great will power of President Roosevelt to control his emotion as he stood by the casket and looked down upon the face of the dead ruler, whose weighty responsibilities he has now taken up.

Mrs. McKinley was able to be present with the rest of the family at service. A while before it began she passed a few moments alone with her dead husband. Her grief was silent; not a tear could she shed. Lovingly she passed her hand over the pale, cold features of him who had been her protector for so many years. She did not seem to realize that he was dead.

After the services at the house the remains of the dead president were borne to the City Hall in Buffalo, where they lay in state during the afternoon. Thousands of people passed by the coffin.

FAVORITE HYMNS SUNG.

A quartet from the First Presbyterian Church had been stationed in the dining room, and with the sweet strains of one of the President's favorite hymns—"Lead, Kindly Light"—the services began. Eyes that before had been dry filled with tears as the words were sung with exquisite feeling and pathos.

As the last strains died away Dr. Locke's voice was heard. He began reading from the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians. There was a moment's pause after he had finished, and then the quartet sang the verses of "Nearer, My God, To Thee," so dear to the man about whose hier the mourners stood.

As the music died away for a moment there was an intense silence. Then in prayer Dr. Locke, his words uttered so that they reached the ears of the woman sorrowing for her dead, made an eloquent appeal.

All present joined in the Lord's Prayer as the minister repeated it. President Roosevelt's voice being audible at the back of the room. The service concluded with a simple benediction.

A STRIKING INCIDENT.

The funeral director was about to step forward to place the cover on the coffin when suddenly there was a movement behind Governor Odell. Senator Hanna, who had risen, saw that the last opportunity to look into the countenance of his dead friend had come. Pressing forward in an instant he was at the side of the coffin, bending over and looking down into it. Almost two minutes passed and then he turned away and the coffin was closed.

Four sailors, two infantry sergeants and two artillery sergeants bore the coffin out of the house. The President, Cabinet and the others followed it. Mrs. McKinley and the members of the family remained.

Funeral Cortege.

It was 11.30 o'clock when the three long rolls of muffled drum told those outside the house that the funeral cortege was about to appear. At the moment the coffin appeared "Nearer, My God, To Thee," ascended in subdued strains from one of the military bands. Tenderly the bearers lowered the coffin from their shoulders and placed it in the hearse. Soldiers and sailors swung into long columns and took up the march southward toward the City Hall.

Remains Taken to Washington.

The President's funeral train left Buffalo early Monday morning for Washington. The train arrived at Union Station, Baltimore, Monday evening, and after a short stop proceeded to Washington, arriving in that city about 8.30 o'clock. The body of the late President was taken to the White House.

Religious Services At The Capitol.

Simplicity characterized the funeral services held over the late President in the rotunda of the Capitol Tuesday morning.

From 10 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening of Tuesday the body lay in State in the center of the rotunda. It was guarded by soldiers. The body rested on the historic catafalque which has been used for such occasions since the death of President Lincoln in 1865. It was resurrected from the basement Saturday and it had not been used since the death of Gen. John A. Logan the broadcloth covering was found in such bad condition that it was entirely replaced. This is one of the most notable objects of interest in the Capitol and a movement has been started to have it deposited in the National Museum after the funeral services.

On it rested the remains of President Lincoln, President Garfield, Vice-President Wilson, Chief Justice Chase, Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania, and General Logan. It is constructed of pine boards, pyramidal in shape; is eight feet long at the bottom and just large enough at the top to contain the coffin. The catafalque rested in the exact center of the Capitol, directly over the crypt where the body of Washington was to have been interred and above the star which marks the line of the meridian of Washington.

Interment at Canton, Ohio.

The funeral train left Washington Tuesday evening for Canton, Ohio, where the remains of the late President were tenderly laid to rest on Thursday.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

He Took The Oath of Office of President Last Saturday.

In the library of the residence of Ansley Wilcox, at Buffalo, at 3.30 o'clock on last Saturday afternoon, Vice-President Theodore Roosevelt took the constitutional oath as President of the United States. Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of War, acting in behalf of the Cabinet of the late President, in a voice tremulous with grief, formally requested Mr. Roosevelt to take the oath. The new President, in a voice that at first faltered from emotion, said he would take the oath in accordance with the cabinet's request.

Mr. Roosevelt's Strong Words.

Judge Hazel had stepped to the rear of the President, and Mr. Roosevelt, coming closer to Secretary Root, said in a voice that at first wavered, but finally came deep and strong, while, as if to control his nervousness, he held firmly to the lapel of his coat with his right hand:

"I shall take the oath at once in accordance with your request, and in this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue unbroken through variance the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

"And Thus I Swear.

Judge Hazel then took up the constitutional oath of office, which had been prepared on parchment, and asked the president to raise his right hand and repeat it after him. There was a hush like death in the room as the Judge read a few words at a time and the President, in a strong voice, and without a tremor, and with his raised hand as steady as if carved from marble, repeated it after him. "And thus I swear," he ended it. The hand dropped by the side, the chin for an instant rested on the breast and the silence remained unbroken for a couple of minutes as though the new President of the United States was offering silent prayer. Judge Hazel broke it, saying:

"Mr. President, please attach your signature," and the President, turning to a small table nearby, wrote "Theodore Roosevelt" at the bottom of the document in a firm hand.

Cabinet Conference

"I should like to see the members of the Cabinet a few minutes after the others retire," said the President, and this was the signal for the score of people who had been favored by witnessing the ceremony to retire. As they turned to go the President said: "I will shake hands with you people gladly," and, with something of his old smile returning, he first shook hands with the members of the Cabinet present, then Senator Depey and finally a few guests and newspaper men.

The President then asked the Cabinet members present to confer with him. The conference lasted very nearly two hours, and when it finished the President said:

"Following out the brief statement I made when taking the oath, that I would follow the administrative lines laid down by President McKinley, I requested the members of the Cabinet who were present to remain in their positions, at least for the present. They have assured me that they will, and I may say that I have assurances also from the absent members."

As they emerged from the meeting the Cabinet officers, with one accord, declared that President Roosevelt's inaugural address, brief as it was, would do more than anything else to assure public confidence. As President, Mr. Roosevelt remained in the Wilcox home all the remainder of the day.

No Extra Session

Inquiry was made of the President as to whether an extra session would be called by him, and he said in substance that there was no fundamental law requiring the calling of Congress together upon the succession of a vice-president to the presidency, and that after consultation with the Cabinet they had decided that no such extra session would be called.

PROCLAMATION BY NEW PRESIDENT.

Last Saturday night President Roosevelt issued the following proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America, a proclamation:

A terrible bereavement has befallen our people. The President of the United States has been struck down; a crime committed not only against the Chief Magistrate, but against every law-abiding and liberty-loving citizen.

President McKinley crowned a life of largest love for his fellow-men, of most earnest endeavor for their welfare by a death of Christian fortitude; and both the way in which he lived his life and the way in which, in the supreme hour of trial, he met his death, will remain forever a precious heritage of our people.

It is meet that we as a nation express our abiding love and reverence for his life, our deep sorrow for his untimely death.

Now, therefore, I Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday next, September 19, the day on which the body of the dead President will be laid in its last earthly resting place, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States. I earnestly recommend all the people to assemble on that day in their respective places of divine worship to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God and to pay out of full hearts their homage of love and reverence to the great and good President whose death has smitten the nation with bitter grief.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, the 14th day of September, A. D. one thousand nine hundred and one, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-sixth. (Seal) THEODORE ROOSEVELT. By the President:

JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

MR. MCKINLEY'S LAST SPEECH.

The Nation's Needs Outlined And A Glorious Future Predicted.

(From His Buffalo Speech.)

The last speech of President McKinley was delivered at the Exposition on President's Day—the day before he was shot.

It is considered one of the most notable utterances and states plainly his views as to the nation's future and the policies of government needed to provide for it.

Here are some of the things he said which will live long in history:

The court of arbitration is the noblest forum for the settlement of international disputes.

Our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not in those of war.

Reciprocity is the natural outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development under the domestic policy now firmly established.

Commercial wars are unprofitable. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times.

Friendly rivalry is the spur of industrial improvement and inspiration to useful invention.

This portion of the earth (the Western Hemisphere) has no cause for humiliation for the part it has performed in the march of civilization.

We must build the Isthmian Canal. The construction of a Pacific cable cannot be longer postponed.

God and man have linked nations together. No nation can longer be indifferent to any other.

We must have more ships. We must encourage our merchant marine. One of the needs of the times is direct commercial lines from our vast fields of production to the fields of consumption that we have but barely touched.

Expositions are the timekeepers of progress. They record the world's advancement.

Isolation is no longer possible or desirable. The same important news is read, though in different languages, the same day in all Christendom.

Trade statistics indicate that the country is in a state of unexampled prosperity. The figures are almost appalling.

We have a vast and intricate business, built up through years of toil and struggle in which every part of the country has its stake, which will not permit of either neglect or of undue selfishness. No narrow, sordid policy will subserve it.

GEO. W. LANE, Pawama, Mich., writes: "Your Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the best remedy for indigestion and stomach trouble that I ever used. For years I suffered from dyspepsia, at times compelling me to stay in bed and causing me untold agony. I am completely cured by Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. In recommending it to my friends for indigestion I always offer to pay for it if it fails. Thus far I have never paid." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

BOYNTON—Harding tells me he is suffering from an operation.

NORRIS SILVER, North Stratford, N. H.: "I purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure when suffering with a cough doctors told me was incurable. One bottle relieved me, the second and third almost cured. Today I am a well man." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

THE BOY—Don't y', ma'am? Well, if y'll come 'round this way at the same time 't' morrer I'll try 't' be smokin' a cigar 'r a pipe.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

"I brought this milk back," said the patron to the milk dealer. It's three-fourths water."

"John," said the milkman sternly to his son, who was standing near, "did you give the cow a drink before you milked 'em this morning?"—Ohio State Journal.

"I HAD a running sore on my leg for seven years," writes Mrs. Jas. Forest of Chippewa Falls, Wis., "and spent hundreds of dollars in trying to get it healed. Two boxes of BANNER SAVER entirely cured it." Beware of substitutes.

"I heard you call that man 'professor.'"

"Yes."

"Well, there is something indefinite about that title, and I am naturally curious. Is he a pugilist, a dog trainer, an instructor in athletics, a patent-medicine doctor, a slight-of-hand man or a scientist of some sort?"—Chicago Post.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 20, 1901.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

The convention of the thirty-fifth annual encampment of the Grand Army came to a close at Cleveland, Ohio, last Friday.

News of the grave condition of the President cast a shadow over the proceedings, and it was consequently decided to proceed with the election of officers and to refer all other important business, including the pension question, to the incoming council of administration.

Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, of New York, withdrew his name as a candidate for commander-in-chief before the nominations were made. Comrade Ayers, of Delaware, moved the nomination of Gen. Thomas J. Stewart, of Pennsylvania, Gen. Gobel seconding.

Governor Vasant, of Minnesota, placed Judge Eli Torrance of nomination. The Torrance vote stood 476 to Stewart's 230. General Wagner moved that the vote be made unanimous in favor of Torrance. The motion was carried.

Other officers elected were: Senior Vice-Commander, John McElroy, editor National Tribune; Junior Vice-Commander, James O'Donnell, Custer Post, Chicago; Surgeon-General, W. R. Thrall, Cincinnati; Chaplain-in-Chief, Rev. L. M. Boyle, of Pennsylvania.

The installation of officers was conducted in secret, after which the convention immediately adjourned. There was a manifest disinclination to transact any business while the death of the Chief Executive seemed imminent. Consequently the election of officers was rushed and the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Grand Army of the Republic abruptly terminated.

The naming of the place for holding the next encampment was referred to the Administration Council.

LOSSES BY THE STEEL STRIKE.

"It is as yet impossible," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "to estimate correctly the vast losses incurred by the steel workers' strike, but the loss of wages alone will amount to millions of dollars, every cent of which is irretrievably lost, as it can never be made up.

"The loss to the Steel Trust must be, temporarily at least, very great, but much or all of it can be made up by that corporation advancing prices as it has already done and will continue to do. The loss to the public has been and will be enormous and the greatest, as it has had and will have to pay the enhanced cost of the trust's produce. The strike has been all loss; no gain to any body.

"Another great sufferer from the strike is the Amalgamated Association. It has lost many of its entrenched strongholds; a large number of its union mills are now nonunion, but these do not constitute the worst of the association's losses. This unfortunate strike again proves that what labors most greatly needs is competent, wise, honorable, strong men as leaders. It has suffered many and serious disasters because of incompetent leaders."

NORMAN, the three-year-old son of J. W. Fogle, of Johnsville, this county, was drowned last Wednesday afternoon by falling into a well on the farm of Mr. Daniel Witmer. The well is 50 feet deep, but the boy lived for some time after falling into it and was lifted in a bucket part way towards the surface by his father, but evidently his strength gave out and he fell back into the well.

KILLED A POLANDER.

A Poland, well educated in English, appeared near Bivalve, Wisconsin county, three days after the shooting of President McKinley, representing himself as the dis-honored son of a wealthy importer of New York. His manly appearance and gentlemanly deportment soon ingratiated him into the confidence of the best families. His affable excuses and frankness won all with whom he came in contact. He explained that his love for a beautiful chorus girl estranged him from his family. He said he left home with a stipend, but was too proud to ask favors from his people. Thursday last he secured a position on an oyster boat manned by Capt. George Rowell. His work was of the best and he soon ingratiated himself into the confidence of the crew.

Monday night while reading the only paper they had seen, which was thrown to them by a passing boat, he exclaimed: "Teddy will go the same way within two months." Herbert Hazell sprang up and in a rage cried, "You wretch, what do you mean?" Before anyone could interfere he struck the Pole with an iron bar, knocking him insensible. The crew jumped upon the unfortunate man and were stamping him to death when Captain Rowell and Mate Horsey, with drawn revolvers rescued him and dressed his wounds as best they could. After the officers had retired the crew picked up the seemingly dying man and threw him into the Chesapeake bay where he evidently drowned. It is thought he was none other than the man who preceded the murderer of President McKinley on the fatal day in Music Hall in Buffalo. —Sun

GAS ENGINES.

One of the important results of the display of gas engines at the Paris Exposition is the realization on the part of engine builders that there is nothing mysterious or difficult about the construction of such motors. It is of interest to note the development of internal combustion motors at the present time is mainly directed toward two extremes—the large motors of 200 or 500 horse power and upward and the very small motors of 2 to 10 horse power for motor vehicles. With the exception of minor details of construction due to the peculiar conditions of operation, the constructions of both classes is identical, and, furthermore, the thermal economy of the small motors is nearly as high as that of the larger ones, the great obstacle to economy of small steam engines, internal condensation, being absent in motors operating with permanent gases.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy A Great Favorite.
The soothing and healing properties of this remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures have made it a great favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of small children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief, and as it contains no opium or other harmful drug, it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., Druggists.

TYPHOID.

Responsibility for typhoid is illustrated by every epidemic, but in a striking manner by that of New Haven. The excreta from a single patient in a neighboring town were carelessly allowed to pollute the city's source of water supply and the result is that about 500 people have had typhoid fever—the largest epidemic ever known in the State. The fact, again, shows how civilization means the interdependence of each upon every other, the well-being of the social organism being bound up with that of its units. But more than all else does the epidemic demonstrate professional responsibility. Each physician may have in his hands the health of the entire community. Thousands of cases of disease may be due to his carelessness as to the disposal of the excreta of his patients.

MR. G. A. STILLMAN, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes: "FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face today is a living picture of health, and Foley's Kidney Cure has made it such." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

FIRE IN YORK.

YORK, Pa., Sept. 18.—The Lefan Brothers' paper plant, near the central part of the city, along the Northern Central Railway, was totally destroyed by fire last night, entailing a loss of about $17,000, machinery being estimated at $10,000, and $7,000 on the building. There is an insurance of $7,000. Shortly before the fire was discovered Charles Lefan and wife and a few friends had been in the office of the plant, where they had assembled to witness the passing of the McKinley funeral train. No sign of fire was then noticed. They had come from the building but a short time when fire broke out. The flames spread rapidly, and the building was nearly consumed before they could get water thereon. The structure was owned by Messrs. G. Jacob Lefan and Charles F. Lefan.

H. C. WATKINS, sexton of the Methodist Church, Springfield, Pa., says: "My wife has been very bad with kidney trouble and tried several doctors without benefit. After taking one bottle of FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, was much better, and was completely cured after taking four bottles." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

Daring Hold-up in Chicago. Chicago, Ill., September 17.—Three men armed with revolvers and with their faces covered with black masks, entered the saloon of Michael King, on Thirty-fifth street, this forenoon and compelled the proprietor and six inmates to stand facing a wall while they relieved them of nearly $100 in cash, a number of gold watches and chains and two revolvers. The hold-up men did their work quickly and after an exchange of shots got safely away.

HENRY BRAYDON, Harris, N. C. says: "I took medicine 20 years for asthma but one bottle of One Minute Cough Cure did me more good than anything else during that time. Best Cough Cure. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

Four Horses Killed.

HANOVER, Pa., September 18.—Four horses were killed and the wagon demolished in a runaway at Wrightsville this morning. The team of horses in their mad flight attempted to cross the Pennsylvania Railroad. It was struck by the news express, with fatal results. The team belonged to Peter Bailey.

A LITTLE WANDERER.

For nearly a day the people of Fountain Valley, in Carroll county, were recently in great excitement over the appearance of a little son of John Leary, of that neighborhood. The child, who is less than three years old, got away from home without being noticed, and when missed the only traces of him that could be found were places in the sand where he had been playing. These led to a woods, but no further. The little boy's mother, who was ill, became frantic with apprehension and endeavored to rise from her bed and join in the search which was promptly instituted. Throughout the afternoon 20 men scoured the surrounding country in every direction without obtaining any tidings of the lost child. The searching party was reinforced at nightfall and all night long 30 men were out. Day dawned, but the boy had not been found. At 9 o'clock, however, one of the searchers in passing through the woods suddenly met the little fellow, who was smiling pleasantly and was apparently none the worse and not the least alarmed by his night alone in the woods. He was only two miles from home when discovered.

LITTLE BOY DROWNED.

WILLIAM McEaney, the 6-year-old son of William T. McEaney, of Washington, was drowned Saturday in the lake at Chevy Chase, Montgomery county. The accident was witnessed by the child's little brother and sister and another child, all of whom had been taken out to the lake for a day's outing. While playing on the lake pier the little fellow fell into the water, and although the other children made efforts to rescue him they were unsuccessful. The body was recovered. The unfortunate child's mother was thrown into convulsions.

Children like it because it tastes so good. Insist on your druggist keeping it for sale. Read the seemingly miraculous cures it has effected, printed on the wrapper around the bottle.

A Pitiable Sight.
What is more pitiable than to see a puny, delicate little child absolutely dying from age-cold. Also a cure for tape worm in grown people. Try a 25-cent bottle.

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid cathartics and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. MEET AFTER 20 YEARS.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 13.—After being parted for 20 years John and Steve Pierson, of this city, today found a brother of theirs in a remarkable manner. John, who is a motorman, was running his car out of the city, when a ragged tramp jumped on and said he had no money and begged to ride to the next town.

His accent caused the motorman to ask if he was a Swede. He said he was and that his name was Frank Pierson. Hardly had they recognized each other when Steve Pierson, another brother, jumped on the car. There was a happy reunion.

The brothers parted in Nebraska 20 years ago, when their parents died, and have not seen or heard from each other since.

SAVAGES IN JAPAN.

THE HAIRY AIKOS AND THEIR RESERVATIONS IN THE EMPIRE. The hairy Aikos and their reservations in the empire. This is from a fragment of piano fingering left by Chopin.

It is customary to take a name from some incident that occurred at the child's birth or it is left to the parents afterward to choose one for it. Should the infant come into the world with a smiling face it might be called Ikishimaburu, which means a smile, or fond parents may call it Kamotsage.

From the age of 7 to 10 Aik children of either sex have their heads shaved, but after 11 they are allowed to have long hair and wear the same clothes as grown persons.

The favorite and almost exclusive ornament is the earring, usually made of metal. What clothing is worn is made of straw. They never wear shoes or other covering for the feet except as a great luxury and mark of distinction on ceremonious occasions.

The marriage customs differ widely from those of the Japanese. The question is first settled between the youth and maiden, who then refer the matter to their parents through a mediator, who should be a relative of the prospective bridegroom.

Woman is fairly treated and held in deep respect. The man is not allowed to enter the house when the woman is in it alone, and he is not permitted to walk behind a woman.

During October the Aikos hold a religious fete, which is called the bear festival, because they sacrifice a bear which has been carefully fostered for three years.

Judicial punishment among the Aikos consists of a severe beating with a stick administered to the culprit. The crimes are generally theft—stealing articles or the wife of a neighbor.
