Fooling With A Panther.

"When I was a lad of ten," says Silas Smith, an old pioneer of Wisconsin, "my father removed to this State from New England and settled about three miles from Madison. The place was a village then, and a small one at that, and I remember once seeing a deer running down the main street with a dozen dogs after him. The road from the village to our clearing was little better than a path. There were only two farmers having oxen and wagons, and so there was little use for roads. Just at the edge of the woods outside of the village was a log barn belonging to a storekeeper named Roberts. That was the last building we passed going home, and the first one come to as we entered the village clearing. From that stable to my father's house, three miles, there was only one break in the forest, and that was only a ten-acre clearing.

"After having passed over the route several times with my father, I was permitted to travel it alone when anything was wanted from town. After a time I could have almost followed the trail with my eyes shut, and I had no fear of the wolves and panthers I heard talked about, because I was told that no wild beast ever attacked people by daylight.

"It was one of the first days of October that, as I was about half way through the woods on an errand to the village and the time being midforenoon, a panther sprang from the limbs of a large beech under which I was passing, and alighted upon the ground beside me. There was not even a growl to warn me of his presence, and he dropped down beside me as softly as a cat and as good natured as a rabbit.

"I had never heard a panther described, and, while I suspected this was one I was not sure. He jumped into the path ahead of me, and began to zigzag back and forth across it, purring all the time like a cat, and seeming to be highly pleased when my legs rubbed against him. I was a bit frightened at first, but after a few minutes I made up my mind that it was some animal that would not hurt me, and then we had a romping time. I would clap my hands and shout 'sick 'em!' and the panther would go scurrying here and there like a young pup, sometimes rolling over and over on the leaves, and again making such leaps and bounds as excited my admiration. When we came to a level piece of ground I ran a race with him, and when he got into the path ahead of me I seized the tip of his tail and hung on and laughed until the woods rang. On two or three occasions, as the panther was gamboling about me, he made a clean spring right over my head.

"It was only when we reached the edge of the village clearing that I suspected the identity of my visitor. The near presence of other human beings seemed to anger him, and he snarled and growled and tore at the earth with his claws. I patted him on the back and smoothed his fur, and he began purring again and was soon restored to good nature. He trotted alongside of me about half-way to the barn I have mentioned, and then slipped away into some fallen timber.

"I had been quite badly frightened for some minutes, and now seized this chance to make off. My movements were hastened by an ominous growling from the timber, and I walked off at a fast pace, and was within a few steps of the barn when I heard a fierce scream, and turned my head and saw the great cat bounding toward me. The door of the barn was partly open, and without an instant's reflection I sprang inside and closed it. Before I could have counted twenty the panther was at hand. Luckily for me it was a strong rough door, made of slabs and well put together. The beast made terrible efforts to get in, and his sharp claws made the splinters fly as he set them into the wood. There was no inside fastening, and I had to brace with all my might to prevent his ingress. He was now worked into a fury, and I believe every hair on my head stood on end as I fought to keep him out.

"When the panther found that he could not get in by the door he sprang upon the roof. I heard him as he alighted on the shooks, and facing about, I saw there was a square hole in the roof, left for a chimney, never built. There was nothing to prevent him from leaping down, and this was just what he intended to do. I saw his shadow as he peered over the edge of the opening, and I was all ready as his lithe body alighted on the floor. In two winks I was outside and had the door pulled to, and again he was foiled. He was mad and no mistake, and, although I was a young boy and almost upset with fear, I had sense enough left to be on the watch for him. The eaves of the building were so short that standing by the door, which had a button on the outside and an old strap on the inside to pull it to, I could see the ridge pole. In two or three minutes I heard the clatter of claws as the beast went up the logs, and the moment half his body showed through the opening I changed my position to the inside. He came down the roof, spluttering and growling, and again made a fierce attack on the door. I was too much for him, and he again tried the roof and the chimney hole. He came down and I went out, and he went up and I came in. He was at the door snarling in a way to send shivers up and down my back, when I heard the report of a rifle, and directly two men came running up. The shot had been fatal, and the panther was dead. The men were going to the woods to hunt, and, although close at hand, the panther had not noticed them. There was at that time a bounty of twenty dollars, I think, on a panther's scalp, and, while the men claimed that, they gave me the skin, to reward my part of the adventure."

PRACTICALLY STARVING.

"After using a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure my wife received perfect and permanent relief from a severe and chronic case of stomach trouble," says J. R. Holly, real estate, insurance and loan agent, of Macomb, Ill. "Before using Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she could not eat an ordinary meal without intense suffering. She is now entirely cured. Several Physicians and many remedies had failed to give relief." You don't have to diet. Eat any good food you want, but don't overload the stomach. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will always digest it for you.—T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

WAR AUTOMOBILES.

The French War Office made a number of trials of heavy vehicles for military purposes at Aldershot the latter part of December. One of the lorries was fired with coke and propelled by a horizontal inclosed compound engine equipped with a water-tube boiler; one burned liquid fuel, but could quickly be altered to burn solid fuel; another, in which the machinery consisted of a compound engine on top of the boiler, with the power transmitted by chain gears from the top of the boiler in front to the rear axle, burned coal and resembled an ordinary traction locomotive; and still another had a boiler with concentric water spaces, and connected framing, whence the power was transmitted to the rear axle by means of a specially constructed chain capable of withstanding a strain of 30 tons. Each lorry had a four-wheeled trailer.

Several military officers left Berlin in December for Cannstadt, to bring back nine automobiles purchased for army purposes at a total cost of 108,000 marks ($25,704). The automobiles were driven from Cannstadt via Heilbron to the Berlin barracks, to test their speed and capacity for provision and ammunition transport.

COUNTRY AND CITY MILES.

Reasons Why One Seems Much Longer Than the Other.

"I have observed a curious thing about distances," said a thoughtful citizen yesterday, "and I have heard many persons comment on the same thing, but I have never seen any satisfactory explanation of it. In fact, I supposed nearly every person who has had an opportunity to contrast conditions as they exist in cities with the open conditions in rural sections has observed the same thing. At any rate, most men are inclined to regard the city mile as somewhat shorter than the country mile. Of course, there are many things which will suggest themselves in explanation of this matter, if we think about it seriously, and yet they are not at all satisfactory when we weigh the problem analytically.

"Suppose we walk the distance. Along the line of the city mile we find many things which will crowd into the mind—pictures along the way, pretty trade displays in show windows, handsome buildings, men and woman bustling hither and thither and a thousand and one other things common enough on the city thoroughfare—things which produce a series of psychological effects which deaden to some extent the idea of distance, and, consequently, the city mile is seemingly shortened. On the other hand, the country mile, to the average person who has no taste for the artistic and can see no beauty in the ruggedness of fence corners and in the tracemets of the hedges, is simply a long and barren stretch. But thus far I am threshing over old straw. This is the common view of the matter, and no doubt these psychological processes play an important part in determining the impressions received with reference to distances under the different conditions assumed.

"But here is the particular thing I would like to call your attention to. The city mile will be made in much less time than the country mile. As a rule a man will walk a mile in the city in two-thirds of the time it will take him to walk a mile in the country. Ordinarily it would seem that the shoe would be on the other foot. There is so much to arrest his attention, to stop him and to consume his time. In the country the way is clear, and there is nothing for a man to do but hustle for his destination. Of course, the walking is better in the city because of good sidewalks and the lift of the feet is not so heavy. But the main reason for shorter time required, in my opinion, is found in the stimulus which the city pedestrian receives from the excitement around him. Everybody is going at a breakneck speed; everybody is hustling. There is noise and bustle, and in spite of the fact that his attention is arrested, and in spite of being bumped and jostled about by men and women going in opposite directions, in spite of delays at crossings caused by passing cars and vehicles of every kind, the pedestrian is worked up to a quicker movement.

"Excitement is the thing that deadens the idea of distance and makes it seem so much shorter in the city than in the country, and excitement is the thing which causes a man to walk a mile in the city in just two-thirds of the time required to walk the same distance in the country, and the difference between a dirt road and a paved street for walking purposes has but little to do with it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Dense Population of Hoboken.

Hoboken, for its area, is the most densely populated city in the United States today. About 60,000 people are distributed within the limits of the city, which is about one mile square. The city surveyor will tell you that of 720 acres within the limits, 450 are marsh land and 270 upland. There is only 196 square feet of ground for every resident.

"OLD GLORY."

A Massachusetts Skipper Credited With Bestowal of the Name.

The flag, the Stars and Stripes, was named "Old Glory" in 1851 by a Salem (Mass.) skipper named William Driver. He was at that time captain of the brig Charles Doggett.

Captain Driver was a successful deep-sea sailor, and at the time of bestowing the name "Old Glory" on the Stars and Stripes he was preparing to shape a brig's course to the Southern Pacific. The story is told by the compiler of the genealogical memoir of the Driver family, Harriet Ruth (Waters) Cooke. Just before the brig left Salem a young man at the head of a party of friends saluted Captain Driver on the deck of the Doggett, and presented him with a large and beautifully made American flag. It was done up in stops, and when sent aloft and broke out to the air Captain Driver christened it "Old Glory."

He took it to the South Pacific, and years after, when old age forced him to relinquish the sea, he treasured the flag as an old friend.

Capt. William Driver removed to Nashville, Tenn., in 1837, and he died there in 1886. Previous to the outbreak of hostilities, between the North and the South, "Old Glory" was hung to the breeze every day from the window of Captain Driver's Nashville house, but when the bullets began to zip and the odor of gunpowder to taint the air the old flag had to be secreted.

It was kept out of sight inside a great bed comfortably until February 27, 1862, when Brigadier General Nelson's wing of the Union Army appeared in Nashville, when Captain Driver presented it to the General, to be hoisted on the Capitol. It was run up, and Captain Driver himself did the hoisting. He watched it through the night, and a heavy wind coming up, he took it down and sent a new flag up in its place.

The original "Old Glory" was beginning to ribbon. The second flag owned by Captain Driver was given to the Ohio Sixth when that regiment left Nashville for home. It was placed in the rear of a baggage wagon, where a mule nosed it out and devoured it.

The original "Old Glory" was preserved, and after the death of Captain Driver, in 1886, it was presented by the compiler of the Driver memoir to the Essex Institute, at Salem, Mass., where it may now be seen.—Boston Globe.

PUNISHMENT OF TRAIN ROBBERS.

In some localities state and county authorities are still prompt to do their duty when a train robbery is reported, but it is said to be getting to be the practice not to make a move in pursuit of the robbers until it is known what the reward will be. And the size of the reward doubtless has considerable to do with the zeal with which the pursuit is conducted.

The bill that is pending before the Judiciary Committee of the House, giving the United States authorities the same jurisdiction in cases of train robbers, where passengers and express companies are robbed, as they have in cases where the mails are robbed, is a good one and should receive the approval of Congress at an early day. It seems to us that Congress should be prompt to take steps to check the crime of train robbery. It is a crime that is calculated to bring the nation into disrepute in foreign countries. It is not at all complimentary to have it said in Europe that it is no safer to travel in the United States than it is in Bulgaria—that train robbers are as bad as brigands. There ought to be a vigorous effort to put a stop to train robbing, and the only way a concerted effort can be made in that direction is for the general government to take hold of the matter. It is worthy of notice that it is seldom that the mails are disturbed by train robbers nowadays. That is because the robbers are afraid to disturb the mails. They know that the government has unlimited means at its command, and that it will spare no expense to arrest and punish them. Pass the pending bill and a long step will have been taken in the direction of putting a stop to train robberies.—Savannah News.

CHARLES BROADWAY ROUSS DEAD.

Mr. Charles Broadway Rouss, for many years a notable and picturesque figure in the mercantile world, died Monday morning at his home in New York City.

He was a native of Maryland, being born at Woodsboro, this county, February 11, 1836. His father was Peter H. Rouss and his mother was a Miss Baltzell.

Many acts of kindness were extended by Mr. Rouss to the Confederates camped at Winchester in 1861-62. On one occasion he and his salesmen lined up in front of his store with numerous boxes of plug tobacco.

Later Mr. Rouss became a private in Company C, Twelfth Virginia Cavalry. At the close of the war Mr. Rouss found himself without funds.

In 1865 he left home for New York with $28 in his pocket. His finances were soon exhausted and he had to endure a great deal of hardship.

Mr. Rouss would not be downed. His mercantile business flourished, and he has left a fortune estimated at between three and four million dollars.

One of his peculiarities was to pay his employees every night, and when Mr. Rouss closed his store at night he owed no man a dollar.

Mr. Rouss' sight began to fail in 1892, and within three years failed entirely. He then made an offer to give $1,000,000 to the person who could restore his sight.

His public benefactions were many. Mr. Rouss is survived by two children—a son and a daughter. His wife died several years ago. His remains were taken to Winchester, Va., for interment.

Mr. Rouss a few years ago told the story of his life to friend in these words: "I came to New York a poor boy. I had not a cent. I slept in the parks. Now I have three or four millions. That is the whole story. My life is the simplest. I come down to my office at 6 o'clock every morning. I am at my desk until 7 or 8 o'clock at night. Then I go home and eat a great big supper at 9 o'clock, and go to bed. I rise at 4 o'clock every morning, summer or winter. I take a drive through the park at 5; then I come to the office."

"What are your pleasures?" "I have none. I used to go home at night on a Grand street horse car. I stood on the rear platform and threw pennies and nickels to the newboys and bootblacks who used to run along after the car. Then the police captain asked me to stop it, and of course I did so."

"That was my only pleasure in life," he continued, plaintively. And the police made me give that up."

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1896 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called La Grippe," says F. L. Hewett, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe."

IOWA HOTEL BURNED.

MARSHALSTOWN, IOWA, March 4.—Half of a block of buildings in the heart of the city was destroyed by fire early today, entailing a loss of $75,000 and resulting in injuries to several guests and employes of the Tremont Hotel.

The 40 guests at the hotel had but little time to escape, as the flames spread rapidly, cutting off escape. The screams of the girls aroused the guests, many of whom jumped from the first floor balcony to the pavement in their night clothes. The fire started in the elevator shaft.—Sun.

COULD NOT BREATHE.

Coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, other throat and lung troubles are quickly cured by One Minute Cough Cure. One Minute Cough Cure is not a mere expectorant, which gives only temporary relief. SENT $1 OPENLY IN MAIL.

BROADBOK PA., March 2.—W. T. Geissinger, of No. 83 Sixteenth avenue, Long Island City, N. Y., a traveling shoe salesman, has demonstrated to the satisfaction of Uncle Sam's mail system in ahead of any thing on earth. Geissinger and another traveler at the hotel here disputed about the honesty of Uncle Sam's postal servants.

Geissinger said he would prove that could send money through the mails in the most open manner, and which would reach its destination. He took a silver dollar, glued a piece of stiff white paper on one side of it, wrote the address of his youngest daughter, walked over to the post office and placed a one-cent stamp on the open face of the coin, and offered the article to Assistant Postmaster John F. Lovers as "merchandise."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO, Toledo, O.

18,750,000 TONS PIG IRON.

Archer Brown makes the prediction that the pig iron production of the United States for the present year, unless something wholly unforeseen occurs, will amount to 18,750,000 tons.

Last year the output was 15,858,352 tons. The present year started out with a demand aggregating 18,000,000 tons. In the latter half of 1901, Mr. Brown says, there will be a blast furnace capacity in the United States capable of producing 20,000,000 tons of pig iron, or about half the world's production.

Reports of the iron trade have for some months shown consumption to be in excess of production. The small accumulation of stocks of pig iron at furnaces of 609,000 tons January, 1901, has melted away until on February 1, 1902, it stood at 120,000 tons. March 1, figures, shortly to appear, would show a practical wiping out of stocks in first hands, but for inability of railroads to handle all the freight offered.

Inasmuch as the existing furnace plant of the country is running to its full capacity and the demand is still exceeding the output to such an extent that large customers deem it prudent to cover for their wants a year ahead, the question is now being seriously considered by consumers as to the source of supply of the additional iron required. Many authorities say that England and Germany may have to be drawn upon, or else the blast furnace capacity will have to be increased.

THE March number of the Ladies' Home Journal is an admirable example of a real "home" magazine. From the beautiful cover, by Mr. W. L. Taylor, to the very last page it is replete with delightful fiction and interesting articles. The number opens with the unique story of "The Sexton Who Ruled New York Society," by William Perrine, and then comes a real treat, another "Lady or the Tiger" story, by the same Stockton who gave us that remarkable tale of mystery. This one is called "My Balloon Hunt."

SHOT DOWN THREE BURGLARS. CHICAGO, Ill., March 2.—Three burglars, with revolvers and chloroform were given a surprise of their lives this morning. They had learned that John Sobieski, a South Chicago grocer, had drawn $3000 from a bank. Sobieski, who sleeps in the rear of his store, was aroused by the crash of a fruit jar. He crawled out in the darkness, and seeing the trio, began to fire, lying on the floor. Of the three men, he shot two and the third he knocked down with the butt of his revolver.

SPANKING BEE IN COURT. A spanking bee was held in the police court at Kearney, N. J., Monday morning. Recorder Krebs who has record for this sort of corporal punishment supervised the job and the spanking was administered by two policemen under orders from Chief of Police Tolen. Six Kearney boys between 10 and 12 years old were arrested on Sunday afternoon by Policeman Vreeland for opening freight cars on the Erie road at Grant avenue and throwing out bags of cork belonging to the Nairn Linoleum Company. The Recorder fined them all, and gave the parents the alternative of permitting the youthful prisoners to be soundly spanked in court. Three parents favored spanking, and a big policeman, with a broad, heavy hand, executed the sentence.

A Severe Cold For Three Months. The following letter from A. J. Nusbaum, of Batesville, Ind., tells its own story. "I suffered for three months with a severe cold. A druggist prepared me some medicine and a physician prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I then tried Foley's Honey and Tar and eight doses cured me." Refuse substitutes. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

AN explosion wrecked the five-story building in New York occupied by the Aste Press Printing Company and caused a panic among Italians living in adjoining tenement houses.

THEY CRUSH THE POWERS. This is written in mid-October. The long, oppressive summer is quite gone. Fading, leaf, withering trees and the rustling corn in the fields are signs of the season. Fog, frost, rain, snow,—they are coming. You remember last winter, of 1900 and 1901. The weather was cruel. Ah! the thousands it killed, and the hundreds of thousands it maimed and crippled. Oh, the rough grip it laid on men at work, women at home, and children in cradle and cradle. Coughs that began before Thanksgiving Day are racking and tearing them still; yes, and growing worse as they dig deeper into the poor, tired throat and lungs. Many were cured by using Benson's Terebinth Plaster. For the soothing and healing power of these Plasters is wonderful. They conquer the complaints

Smith, and a large brick fireproof storage house will be erected on the site opposite the Cumberland Valley railroad depot.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.

Preston Hufton, of Bishops Head, Md., was drowned Wednesday afternoon off Howell's Point shortly after 4 o'clock. The accident occurred while the boat was going in stays and while Hufton was passing oysters from the forward to the main hatch of the bateau Cannon, manned by Capt. Joe Cannon, of Cambridge. He was passing down the deck and stumbled his toe against a dredge as the bateau lunged forward. This threw him off his balance and into the water. Captain Cannon immediately tuffed, and every effort was made to save him, but without success. The young man battled for life for several minutes after falling into the water, and even as he sank the rescuing boat passed within easy reach if he had been upon the surface. In fact, one of the men aboard the boat grasped his hair as he sank, but could not hold him. He was 22 years of age and was a volunteer during the Spanish-American War.

DAMAGE TO THE CANAL.

It is officially stated that the damage done to the Chesapeake and Ohio canal is not as serious as in 1889. An official inspection of the entire canal has been made by the supervisors of the divisions, who have reported to J. M. Nicolson, general manager. The actual damage consists of breaks, two of which are on upper division. The towpath is found to be in a bad condition on nearly all the divisions. There are a number of small washouts and the levees are obstructed in the places by fills. The damage will be repaired and work will be commenced at once. The canal officials state that with a sufficient force of hands and favorable weather the entire line can be put into condition for navigation within a month or six weeks. It was expected to reopen the canal about March 20, but the time will necessarily be extended several weeks pending repairs. It is roughly estimated that the repairs will cost between $8,000 and $10,000.

DEAD TO DEATH.

Sunday afternoon Stansbury Dawkins, colored, a sufferer from tuberculosis was driving out for the sunshine. Passing through Easton he felt a hemorrhage coming on and got out of his carriage in front of a drugstore to get some thing to check it. The blood came so copiously, however, that Dawkins had to be placed in a chair on the pavement. In five minutes he was dead and the pavement and gutter were stained and running with blood. Dawkins, who lived in Philadelphia, went down to Easton to visit his brother-in-law, Levin J. Camper, hoping the change would do him good. He came of a very worthy and respectable colored family of Vienna, Dorchester county.

GOT AN ELECTRIC SHOCK.

Round Sergeant Peter Riley, of the Southern Police district, Baltimore, was painfully shocked by electricity in the station Wednesday morning. One of the police boxes was pulled, and the tape on the sander in the station started to unroll. Sergeant Riley went to the instrument, and as he touched it a green streak of light shot out, and the Sergeant received a severe shock, which threw him backward against the wall. His arm and hand were numb for several minutes, and later caused him great pain. The mechanism of the box did not stop running until a circuit breaker beside it stopped running. The accident is believed to have been caused by crossed wires.

IN THE LEGISLATURE.

Primary Election Bill Introduced by Senator Robinson.

Senator Robinson introduced in the Legislature Monday the Primary Election law which is designed to fulfill the pledges made in the Democratic State platform of last year. Senator Robinson says that he thinks that the bill meets fairly everything which can be done to secure free and fair primary elections, and he does not believe the House of Delegates will reject it. The bill provides that primary elections shall be conducted by the regular officials appointed for the conduct of the general elections and with every safeguard around them which is provided for the regular elections. The primaries of all parties are to be held at the same time and place, and voting shall be from the official books of registration.

In the Senate the Senate bills to provide for free scholarships in the Buckeystown Normal School and to empower the town of Middletown to call in and redeem outstanding bonds, and the House bill to apprentice scholars of Buckingham Industrial School, and to exempt the school from State taxation, were favorably reported and ordered engrossed for passage.

In the House of Delegates Mr. Mathias was granted leave to introduce a bill to amend the liquor law of Frederick county. The bill is to refund to Ann C. Schindler, of Frederick county, $76.65 erroneously paid into the county treasury, was favorably reported in the House.

BREAK FOR LIBERTY

Six Prisoners Escape From The Talbot County Jail.

One of the most exciting incidents occurring in Easton in a long while was the escape of Lewis Green, colored, and five other prisoners from the Talbot County jail Saturday night, which was followed Sunday morning by the killing of T. John Thompson, one of the deputies in the pursuit of the fugitives. Lewis Green is the negro who killed his paramour, Carrie Price, at Oxford, February 4, and then shot himself. He was in jail recovering from his wounds, which, at the time of the self-inflection, were considered serious, if not fatal. But when the chance for escape presented itself it was found that he was in condition to travel as far as Bellevue, where several members of his family were colonized in a negro settlement. Here Lewis Green, the chief object of the Sheriff's solicitude, was traced and Deputy Thompson was fired upon and killed.

The escape from the jail, it is thought, was effected through the instrumentality of a white prisoner, charged with stealing a watch, who made a key to unlock the door for the prisoners to get a way through a coal hole.

The pursuits of the fugitives was a very exciting affair. Many men engaged in the hunt, and after the recapture others swarmed into town, some of them armed. The killing of the deputy added to the excitement. Many people drove from miles around to the scene of the murder. When the prisoners were taken to Easton, large crowds of people were congregated about the Court House and jail, but the prisoners were not molested in the least. There were twelve prisoners confined in the jail at the time of the outbreak, but only six availed themselves of the opportunity to escape. The whole of the family to which Lewis Green belonged are under arrest. It is not believed that Lewis killed the officer, for it is thought he was too much used up by his tramp in the night so soon after being dangerously wounded to do the shooting. He simply went into hiding in the house, where he was concealed by his relatives, until he had fled from between the officers. Who did the shooting is the question a jury of inquest is trying to find out. The deed was done in the dark. One of the men in the negro house jumped from an upper window and escaped to the woods under fire from the revolver of C. Milton Soulesby, the fellow deputy of the officer who was killed. The escape of this man and the shooting of Thompson were occurrences happening almost simultaneously. Two of the brothers of Lewis Green are under suspicion, and evidence was brought out in the inquest indicating a plot to murder the deputy or both of them, and it is thought before the inquest is over that more than one of negroes of the green family will be implicated in the homicide.—Sun.

FOR THE COMPLEXION.

The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. DeWitt's Little Early Risers keep the liver and bowels in healthy condition and remove the cause of such troubles. C. E. Hooper, Albany, Ga., says: "I took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness. They were just what I needed. I am feeling better now than in years." Never gripe or distress. Safe throughout and gentle. The very best pills. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

THE GETTYSBURG GLEE CLUB

The star course of lectures and entertainments given this winter under the auspices of the High School of this place, has proved to be most successful thus far. Last Friday there was a new and highly attractive feature in the concert given by the Glee Club of Gettysburg College.

Nineteen young men plowed their way over the bad roads and swollen streams to find supper awaiting them at the Spangler Hotel, and by 8 o'clock were in the Opera House, confronting a large and appreciative audience. The stage appointments were all that they should be and the arrangement of seats and the skillful seating by ushers gave the affair the appearance of a city entertainment. It would be hard to give too flattering an account of the performance. Suffice it to say, that for excellence of execution, refinement of manner and thorough enjoyableness, there has not been given in this town such a concert in many years.

Special mention can hardly be made where all was so good, but we might mention the reading of Mr. Eppler; the mandolin parts; the skillful rendering of the medley by the vocalists. We subjoin the programme:

Coontown Celebration, Hale, Mandolin Club; March, "Onward," Glee Club; Reading, "Me and Jones," Mr. Eppler; Quartette, "The Bridge," Lindsay, Messrs. Fisher, Singmaster, Rose, Burkholder; Piano Solo, "Dance of the Demon," Holst, Mr. Eckert; Basket of Chestnuts, Parks, Glee Club; Russian Dance, Tocaben, Mandolin Club; "Tis Morn, Geibel, Glee Club; Juniata Waltzes, George, Mandolin Club; Vocal Solo, "The Bandolero," Stuart, Mr. Pretz; Reading, Selected, Mr. Eppler; Vocal Duet, "Auf Wiedersehen," Bailey, Messrs. FOR THE COMPLEXION.

The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. DeWitt's Little Early Risers keep the liver and bowels in healthy condition and remove the cause of such troubles. C. E. Hooper, Albany, Ga., says: "I took DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness. They were just what I needed. I am feeling better now than in years." Never gripe or distress. Safe throughout and gentle. The very best pills. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

BIG SNOW STORM.

The Fall Was The Heaviest In Many Years.—Roads Blocked.

Snow began falling here Tuesday evening about 7 o'clock and continued all night and the greater part of Wednesday, reaching a depth of probably 16 or 19 inches. Measurements were taken at different points in this place, all of which greatly varied. The fall of snow was not only the heaviest of this season, but in many years, probably the largest since 1891. The wind blew a strong gale, drifting the snow in many places to a great depth. Many of the roads leading to this place were almost impassable, and in some places teams could not travel.

The mail carriers made desperate efforts to travel over their respective routes but some of them only got a short distance from town, when they had to return to town, when they were compelled to return to this place. Mr. Weaver, carrier on Route No 12, is reported to have traveled the greater part of his route, although he experienced great difficulty in delivering the Wednesday evening mail.

The opening of the pavements in this place on Wednesday was a novel sight. A path was plowed through the snow with horses and snow plows. The first to pass THE CHRONICLE office was a party with one horse hitched to a V-shaped snow plow, and this was followed shortly afterward with two horses hitched to a plow in tandem style, with a man on each horse. After these plows passed from one end of town to the other pedestrians experienced little difficulty in traveling from one place to another. On Thursday morning our citizens went to work with a will to clean the snow from the pavements, and in a short time it was removed. A number of persons cleared their pavements Wednesday evening.

At many places in this county and in Maryland business was at a standstill. At Frederick business was partly suspended, the snow attaining a depth of from 15 to 17 inches on the level. On account of a stiff northeast wind the roads were badly drifted, cutting off Frederick from the county and tying up the railroads.

Travel on the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads was suspended and no trains were started out. The Pennsylvania coupled three heavy engines together and started them out to open the road. They encountered many heavy drifts and finally succeeded in plowing through to Bruceville, where they found the belated Philadelphia express and took it on to Frederick.

The trains on the Baltimore and Ohio also encountered heavy drifts, but managed to get through, the Frederick and Baltimore trains running several hours late.

The Frederick, Middletown and Myersville trolley system which crosses Catoctin Mountain was entirely snow bound, the drifts being from 9 to 15 feet deep in the cuts. Several heavy motor cars attempted to open the road. They got as far as Fulmer's Station, one mile west of Frederick, where they stuck in an eight-foot drift and abandoned the work. On the western end a car got as far as Middletown, where it, too, became stuck.

It is feared that a week may elapse before traffic is completely resumed. All the rural free delivery carriers were compelled to abandon their trips.

At Middletown terrific gales blew and as a result the roads were blocked with drifts. All travel, except on horse-back was stopped. Some of the railroad cuts were full to the top. The cut at the power house near Middletown had eight feet of snow in it.

Reports from Hagerstown say that the worst storm of the winter prevailed in Washington county. On the level the snow was from 15 to 18 inches deep. The fast mail on the Western Maryland Railroad from Baltimore was three hours late, arriving at 10 a. m. In the mountain enormous drifts were encountered. At Thornton the passenger coaches were side tracked and only the mail and baggage cars, into which were crowded the half dozen passengers, were taken to Hagerstown.

The railroad company sent out three snowplows, which managed to keep the road open. One was working at Blue Ridge Summit, one at Union Bridge and the other near Chambersburg, Pa.

The Cumberland Valley Railroad trains between Harrisburg and Winchester, Va., were delayed by big drifts. Except in a few rooms no attempt was made to teach in the public schools in Hagerstown. In the country districts many school houses were not opened.

The snow was two feet deep at Cherry Run. The snow and sleet storm played havoc with trees and shrubbery through out Howard county and entailed losses aggregating thousands of dollars.

The sleet storm of some days ago almost wrecked every tree within its path, and with the damage occasioned by the latest storm saplings are destroyed, while mature trees are almost entirely stripped. Grave fears are entertained as to the destruction of the fruit crop. Many of the fruit trees had already budded, and of these there are few left. Ornamental trees, such as pines and cedars, are disrobed of their foliage, and in many instances are entirely broken down.

The storm throughout Cecil county was unusually severe. Shade and fruit trees suffered, while telephone and telegraph lines were crippled. The snow fall of Tuesday night was followed by rain and sleet, which froze on the trees and wires, causing the trees in a number of instances to fall under their burden. In all sections of Elkton huge limbs were broken from shade trees, blocking up the streets.

A sleet storm, scarcely second to the recent one, raged all of Wednesday morning in Kent county. Hail, driven before a northeast gale, had fallen all night, turning later to rain, which froze as it fell during the early hours of the day. Trees and telegraph and telephone lines bending under the mass of ice and in many cases large trees have been prostrated by the heavy weight and tremendous force of the wind.
