HOW TO HELP EACH OTHER.

"I had stomach trouble all my life," says Edw. Mehler, proprietor of the Union Bottling Works, Erie Pa., "and tried all kinds of remedies, went to several doctors and spent considerable money trying to get a moment's peace. Finally I read of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have been taking it to my great satisfaction. I never found its equal for stomach trouble and gladly recommend it in hope that I may help other sufferers." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, cures all stomach troubles. You don't have to diet. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

MISS MOBILE—Well, Martha, how is your husband now? Martha—Po'ly, miss, po'ly. He's got that exclamatory rheumatism. MISS MOBILE—You mean inflammatory rheumatism, Martha. Exclamatory is to cry out. Martha (with solemn conviction)—That's it, mum, that's it! He don't do nothing but holler.—Christian Register.

BETTER THAN PILLS.

The question has been asked, "In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets superior to pills?" Our answer is: They are easier and more pleasant to take, more mild and gentle in effect and more reliable as they can always be depended upon. Then they cleanse and invigorate the stomach and leave the bowels in a natural condition, while pills are more harsh in effect and their use is often followed by constipation. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., Druggists.

"My son," said the parson to a small boy, who was digging in a back lot, "don't you know that it is a sin to dig on the Sabbath, except in a case of necessity?"

"Yes, sir," replied the youngster. "Then why don't you stop it?" asked the good man. "Cause this is a case of necessity," replied the young philosopher. "A feller can't fish without bait."—Chicago News.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS CURED.

"For ten years I had chronic bronchitis so bad that at times I could not speak above a whisper," writes Mr. Joseph Coffman, of Montmorenci, Ind. "I tried all remedies available, but with no success. Fortunately my employer suggested that I try Foley's Honey and Tar. Its effect was almost miraculous, and I am now cured of the disease. On my recommendation many people have used Foley's Honey and Tar, and always with satisfaction." T. E. Zimmerman & Co.

CASSIDY—Phwere did ye git that pipeful of terbacker? Casey—From Clancy, beyant. Cassidy—Well, well, did he open his heart t' ye? Casey—Open his heart? My, oh! my! has he got a terbacker heart?—Philadelphia Press.

"What is your idea of a statesman?" "A statesman," said Farmer Cornstossel, "is an officeholder who can get thinking about quail on coast once in a while and remember the American eagle."—Washington Star.

"Does Miss Billions think a great deal of the nobleman she married?" said one young woman. "Yes," answered the other; "she's as proud of him as she can be. She says he was such a bargain."—Washington Star.

"The only objection to this house is that it has no bath," said the prospective tenant. "That's no drawback," returned the glib agent; "there's water in the cellar."—Philadelphia Record.

Try Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver tablets, the best physic. For sale by T. E. Zimmerman & Co., Druggists.

BOREM—Now, what would you do if you were in my shoes, Miss Cutting? Miss Cutting—I'd point the toes toward the front door and give them a start.—Chicago News.

DISCOMFORTS IN GREECE.

A Place Where the Eye Rather Than the Palate is Gratified. Excepting Japan, southern Italy and Greece is still far behind the times. Athens is the only place where the hotels are tolerable, and travelers who go into the interior must take their own provisions and bedding. Even those who make little excursions by carriage for a single day in the neighborhood of Athens must carry a lunch basket, because the inns are primitive and filthy. Railway facilities are limited. With a few exceptions the roads are bad, but they are gradually improving, and most of the centers of great interest to tourists may now be reached by carriage. Only a few years ago travelers had to go on horseback or on foot, as they do in the Holy Land. Even now those who visit some of the most interesting places have to put up with discomforts, inconveniences and a good deal of dirt and bad smells, although they are fully repaid.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Why the Church Was Crowded.
A certain little Flemish watering place much frequented by English and American visitors has two attractions, a Presbyterian church and a roulette table. At a recent service in the church it occurred to one of the "pillars" that it might be lucky to play the number of the hymn after the sermon at the roulette table. So he stole out of the church and did so. It happened that the number of the hymn did turn up, and the lucky coup became the talk of the village for the rest of the week. Next Sunday the church was crammed to the door. The pious pastor was rejoiced in heart. After a powerful address he gave out "hymn No. 27." The moment the words left his lips, to his consternation, there was a rush to the door, and he was left with a faithful handful to upbraid their agitated strain of prayer. As for the rest, they made a bee line from the house of prayer to the house of play. It is said that their little adventure cost them all very dear.

Mother at Prayer.
Once, says a writer, I suddenly opened the door of my mother's room and saw her on her knees beside her chair and heard her speak my name in prayer. I quickly and quietly withdrew with a feeling of awe and reverence in my heart. Soon I went away from home to soldier. Then to college, then into life's stern duties. But I never forgot that one glimpse of my mother at prayer nor the one word—my own name—which I heard her utter. Well did I know that what I had seen that day was but a glimpse of what was going on every day in that sacred closet of prayer, and the consciousness strengthened me a thousand times in duty, in danger and in struggle. When death came at last and sealed those lips, the sorest sense of loss I felt was the knowledge that no more would my mother be praying for me.

The Lap of Luxury.
"What is meant by the lap of luxury?" asked a teacher of a class of little girls. "Please, ma'am, I know," exclaimed the smallest of the lot, holding up her hand. "Well, what is it, dear?" inquired the teacher kindly. "It's when the cat steals into the larder and licks the cream off the milk," responded the little one. And the teacher on reflection wasn't quite sure that her pupil was wrong.

What the Preacher Learned.
A celebrated preacher when speaking to some 3,000 children, after delimiting them with a variety of stories, thought it might be well to point the moral of one of them. He had hardily, however, begun to say, "Now this teaches," when a little ragamuffin on the front bench cried out: "Never mind what it teaches. Gle's another story." "I learned from that rascal," he said, "to wrap the moral well in the heart of the story, not to put it as a sting into the tail."

The Cataleptic Trance.
It cannot be doubted that in numerous cases of cataleptic trance the apparently lifeless patient has been acquainted with all the arrangements being made for his interment. Several instances are recorded in which, although the body presented every appearance of death, the patient was conscious of everything going on around him, but absolutely unable to raise a limb or in any way communicate with those near his bed.

The Lost Patient.
Dr. Lancelot—It is hard to lose a patient. "Speaking of Guptstill, I suppose, is he dead?" Dr. Lancelot—Dead? No, no, no, no! He has gone and got well.—Boston Transcript.

Two Sensations.
"I admire that pianist's finish. Don't you?" "Yes, but I always dread his beginning."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

It is the desire to beat the other fellow that makes man get along.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ROLLING AN UMBRELLA.

The Proper Way Is to Twist Ribs and Stick Together. "Why is it?" asked an inquisitive customer in a downtown umbrella store, "that one can never roll up an umbrella so compactly and neatly as it is rolled when he buys it?" "You can if you only know how," said the salesman, "but if everybody knew how it would mean less business for us. The umbrellas would last longer, and there would be a lot less work for the repairers." "Perhaps I shouldn't tell you how," the clerk continued, "but it's so simple you should know anyhow. If you have an umbrella takes hold of it by the handle and goes twisting the stick with one hand while he folds and rolls with the other hand. "Now, that's just where the mistake comes in. Instead of twisting with the handle he should take hold of it just above the points of the cover ribs. These points naturally lie evenly around the stick. Keep hold of these, pressing them tightly against the stick, and then roll up the cover. Holding the ribs prevents them from getting twisted out of place or bending out of shape. Then the silk is bound to fold evenly and roll smooth and tight. "Roll your umbrella this way, and until it is old enough to get rusty looking it will look as if it had just come from the shop."—New York Herald.

The Previous Question.
Old Senator Nesmith of Oregon, one of the first settlers of the state, used to tell this story: At the time when Oregon was admitted as a state and the first legislature of the state met Nesmith, who was a member, possessed himself of a copy of a book on parliamentary procedure. This work, which was at the time probably the only one of its sort west of the Mississippi, he studied diligently and by the time of the first session was well up in the rules of debate. At the first meeting of the new legislature a motion was introduced and speedily carried, but on the second session a dispute arose, and for three days the state legislators wrangled and debated. Finally, on the third day, Nesmith, who had watched the proceedings without even opening his mouth, decided it was time to use a piece of his parliamentary procedure, so he rose and moved the "previous question."

There was a moment of silence following this motion, and then amid a shout of derision the speaker cried: "Sit down, you fool! We passed the previous question three days ago!"

Where English Clubs Differ.
A point which strikes American visitors to London about our English clubs is the social aspect of them and the almost complete absence of the business element. At the Manhattan or the Knickerbocker, on the other hand, the business side prevails. The majority of members do not drop in merely to read the papers, hear the latest story and play billiards, as over here. They go in most cases to meet a man about "a deal," to talk over the business of the day and discuss the business of the morning or to read up the finance of the papers. The result is that when an American becomes a member of an English club he hardly ever uses it because his ways do not appeal to him. He would say that there was nothing going on.—London Tatler.

Hunting by Moonlight.
"It believes that moonlight shooting is peculiar to California," said a resident of that state. "The air there is so dry in certain localities, the nights so clear and the moonlight so bright that one gets a good range of vision, and everything stands out with startling distinctness. Wild ducks frequently move in the night, and the sportsman who is alert will get the whir of wings and a sight of them almost as well at night as in the daytime. There is an added tinge of excitement afforded by a night hunt, and many California hunters go out on clear nights and frequently with great success."—New York Tribune.

Cesar Borgia.
Cesar Borgia has been called "the greatest practical statesman of his age," and in a sense the remark is true, for at a time when practical statesmanship consisted of every deceit and every crime, when poison and the dagger were the usual implements of policy, and nothing was considered wrong provided that the object were attained, no man excelled him in the arts of public life.—William Miller, "Medieval Rome."

Part of the Business.
"And every one of those brass band people," said the proprietor of the Stoville hotel, "went away owing me a week's board." "Well," commented the shoe salesman, "you know that music is full of beats." But the landlord only gazed sadly out of the window.—Baltimore American.

Perfectly Satisfied.
Papa—Is the teacher satisfied with you? Tohy—Oh, quite. Papa—Did he tell you so? Tohy—Ye. After a close examination he said to me the other day, "If all my scholars were like you I would shut up my school this very day." That shows that I know enough.—Stray Stories.

The Real Trouble.
Burrongs—Yes, I'm deeply in debt. Goodman—I gave you credit for having more sense. Burrongs—But the trouble is my tailor gave me credit for having more dollars.—Philadelphia Press.

ARABIAN COURTSHIP.

Sworn Secrecy Envelops the Wooing and Winning of the Girl. An Arab loves a none but an Arab can love, but he is also mightily excited and easily won. An Arab sees a girl bearing water or brushwood and in a moment, almost at a glance, is as warmly in love as if he had passed years of courtship. He thinks of nothing else, cares and dreams of nothing else but the girl he loves, and not infrequently, if he is disappointed in his affection, he flies and dies. In order to commence his suit he sends for a member of the girl's tribe and, first insuring his secrecy by a solemn oath, confesses his love and entreats his confidant to arrange an interview. The confidant goes to the girl, gives her a flower or a blade of grass and says: "Swear by him who made this flower and us also that you will not reveal to any one that which I am about to unfold to you."

If the girl will not accept the proposal, she will not take the oath, but nevertheless keeps the matter perfectly secret from all. If she is favorably disposed to the match, she answers: "I swear by him who made the flower you hold and us," and the place and time of meeting are settled. These oaths are never broken, and it is not long before the ardent lover becomes the happy husband. Delicacy of Smell.
Very careful experiments have been made to test the delicacy of the sense of smell in human beings. A series of solutions of five different substances were prepared, each series being so arranged that every solution was of half the strength of the preceding one. These series were extended by successive dilutions till it was impossible to detect the odors. The order of the bottles containing these solutions was completely disarranged, and the test consisted in the attempt to classify them by the sense of smell alone. An equal number of male and female observers were selected from the best apothecaries' shops, and each was required to arrange the bottles. The males were able to detect the smell of the nitrate of amylin in the solution of 1 part to 783,000 of water, and the females were able to detect it in the solution of 1 part to 311,000 of water. The oil of wintergreen was detected in about the same proportion and to the same extent of dilution. There was, therefore, a very great preponderance in favor of the males as to the sensitiveness and discrimination of the sense of smell. This is certainly an astounding fact.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Simple Lesson.
Maria Edgeworth, in her time second only to Jane Austen among literary women, had a warm sympathy for all kinds of life, which accounts for the ardor with which she writes of human beings. A trifling incident, related in one of her letters, impressed her deeply. "We went the other day to see a collection of natural curiosities at a Mr. Broderip's. My father observed that he had but very few butterflies. "No, sir," he said, "a circumstance that happened to me some time ago determined me never to collect any more butterflies. I caught a most beautiful butterfly, thought I had killed it and ran a pin through its body to fasten it to a cork. A fortnight afterward I happened to look in the box where I had left it, and I saw it writhing in agony. Since that time I have never destroyed another."

Spotted His Eloquence.
A committee of Kentuckians went to see Abraham Lincoln in 1861 with reference to the abolition of slavery. Many Kentuckians owned slaves. They were anxious to return to the Union, but they did not want to lose their lands. The spokesman of the party was a tall man of about Lincoln's height. He made an eloquent speech, filled with fine sentiments and dowerly metaphor, and closed with a crashing peroration. After he had finished Lincoln looked at him a moment and then said quietly, "Judge, I believe your legs are as long as mine."

Two Great Painters.
When in Haarlem, Vanduyke called upon Frank Hals and, without making himself known, said that he was anxious to have his portrait painted, but, as he was in a great hurry, he could spare but two hours, at the end of which the portrait must be done. Hals went to work and finished it. Vanduyke was much pleased. But portrait painting seemed a very little thing, said Vanduyke, and he asked Hals to change places with him. Hals did so, and as Vanduyke finished his work Hals hugged him enthusiastically, saying: "You are Vanduyke. No one but he can do what you have done." And so the two great masters became acquainted.

A Pocket Handkerchief.
In a book which has been published on that never failing topic, the vagaries of the English language, the strange meaning of the word "pocket handkerchief" is described. A "kerchief" (couvrecrue) means a small piece of cloth made to put on the head, so that a "pocket handkerchief" means literally a small piece of cloth to cover the head, to be held in the hand, to be put in the pocket.—London Globe.

Hungry, but Fastidious.
"Lady," said the wayfarer, "I can't eat these scraps." "You can't," said the housewife in surprise. "Why, you just told me that you were so hungry you could eat a house." "Yes, mum; but I meant a porterhouse."—Chicago News.

RAFTS OF GNAT EGGS.

Their Floating Illustrates a Curious Property of Water. Many simple experiments show that the surface of water possesses a property which causes it to resist the passage of bodies either from above or below. This is true not only of soapy water, but of the cleanest and purest water. A sheet of fine gauze tends to float, because its weight being widely distributed, each of the numerous separate wires is resisted by the surface film so that the water cannot readily pass through the meshes. Insects and plants utilize this fact in many interesting ways. Some water plants whose leaves float on the water have a very simple contrivance to keep the upper surfaces of the leaves dry. This consists of a great number of minute hairs covering the tops of the leaves. Water cannot penetrate among these hairs even when the leaves are forced down beneath the surface.

The little rafts of eggs that gnat's get afloat on the water are kept from sinking and from being upset through this same principle. The tiny eggs have their points all upward, and they are glued together so closely that, while there is open space all around the point of each egg, yet the width of these spaces is so slight that water cannot readily pass through. You may again and again upset such an egg raft, but it will right itself every time, and the upper surface will remain dry. Hoist With His Own Petard.
A Philadelphia clergyman told a story of a young man who took his best girl to church and when the time for "collection" came round rather ostentatiously displayed a five dollar gold-piece. Presuming upon the engagement to marry that had been made by her, the young woman placed a restraining hand upon the arm of her fiancé. "Why, don't be so extravagant, George!" she exclaimed. "Oh, that's nothing," he replied. "I always give $5 when I go to a strange church."

Just then the deacon came with the plate, and George dropped a coin. Everything seemed favorable, and the young man beamed with a sense of generosity. Then the minister made the announcements for the week and concluded with the wholly unexpected announcement of the day's collection. "The collection today," said he, "was $3.75. George hadn't much to say all the way to his fiancée's home.

Breathe Through Your Nose.
In all kinds of atmosphere the breath should only be inhaled through the nose. An occasional breath of extra pure air through the mouth may be good, but in cars and in most offices and rooms nose breathing is essential. A second rule is, since so much time is spent in cars and offices and rooms in earning a livelihood and since these places are overheated and underventilated—the heating and ventilation being out of the control of most of us—we must take in fresh air whenever possible in order that we may restore the balance. The best times to do this will be early in the morning, when the air is freshest, and late at night, when deep breathing will help us to get sleep. We may breathe correctly while we are waiting in a street and especially where streets meet. We can soon form an automatic habit of breathing properly on such occasions.

Two Good Whist Hands. Once upon a time two young men and two young women were playing whist, and quite frequently one of the young men and one of the young women found that their fingers were intertwined under the table, off to sight. Don't neglect coughs and colds even if it is spring. Such cases often result seriously at this season just because people are careless.

SOLEMN WEDDING CEREMONY.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., April 18.—A solemn wedding ceremony, in which the binding vows were made across the coffin of the groom's dead mother, with the corpse in full view, was celebrated here today.

Two days ago Mrs. M. Fitzgerald died suddenly. Her son Melvin, who was employed in the oil fields, arrived home today for the funeral, and as it had always been the wish of his mother that he should wed Miss Mollie Bailey, and as both were willing, it was decided that her wish should be gratified, and the ceremony was performed across her bier.

JOHN T. BEST, aged 63 years, dropped dead in the yard at his home, near Frederick, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Best was paralyzed some months ago, but had recovered and his death was a surprise.

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman.

WELL-KNOWN AUTHOR DEAD.

Mr. Frank R. Stockton, the well-known novelist, died in Washington Sunday morning from hemorrhage of the brain. He was a guest at the banquet given by the National Academy of Science, when taken suddenly ill.

Mr. Stockton was a Philadelphian by birth. In early life he was an engraver and draughtsman, but soon abandoned this occupation for journalism. Many years ago, however, he retired wholly from newspaper work and devoted himself to literature.

A Startling Death Record.

FLORA, IND., April 23.—A startling death record is reported in the families of Homer Seinn and John McCloskey, two prominent families near this city. In the last 22 months 22 deaths have occurred in these families.

HER FACE HER FORTUNE.

Why One Girl Got a Good Paying and Easy Position.

She was a sweet looking girl, with as fair a pink and white complexion as woman ever desired, and was chatting with one of her own sex on a Staten Island ferryboat.

"It was the luckiest thing that ever happened to me," she said to her companion, "when I went into that Fifth avenue store just to buy a comb.

"That doesn't matter," he replied. "You can soon learn it. To be frank, I would like to have you on account of your complexion.

POULTRY POINTERS.

A close, unventilated house is emphatically a foul house. Ground or crushed bone is a good form in which to give lime.

Bran is a better feed for fowls than corn because it contains more nitrogen. An excellent feed for young chicks is cracked or coarsely ground wheat for the first week.

A chick that fights and picks his mate's eyes every time they are fed is not a good breeder, and few of his hens' eggs will ever hatch.

For a good breeder select a rooster with plump, full breast, broad across the back, wide between the legs and that crows often, loud and long.

It is a good plan to mate up the fowls early, for occasionally one of the hens will want to sit during the winter, and it will be best to have the eggs ready.

Boil a gallon of water until there is but a quart left, and the quart will contain all the impurities of the gallon and be nearly four times as impure as before.

Try a simple experiment. Put un-boiled city water in one bottle and the same that has been boiled for half an hour or more in another.

The purest and best and the only absolutely safe water to use for drinking and the preparation of all foods and artificial drinks is that produced by distillation.

SOME WRITERS.

Locke is said to have spent over six years in the preparation of his essay, "On the Human Understanding."

Lamartine, the great French poet, was happily married and received great aid from his wife in all his undertakings.

The great Dante was married to a notorious scold, and when he was in exile he had no desire to see her, although she was the mother of his six children.

Wolfe is said to have written "The Burial of Sir John Moore" in one evening directly after news had been brought of the defeat at Coruna and the death of the gallant British officer.

Animals and Salt. Among certain people there is a strong idea that nothing is worse for dogs than salt, but as a matter of fact, when administered in small quantities, it materially assists the process of digestion.

Tilden's Dog. At one of the early dog shows Samuel J. Tilden brought an immense Great Dane dog.

At the Parting of the Ways. "Do you take this man to be your wedded husband?" asked the justice of the peace.

Dog's Teeth. De Style—He pulled fifteen teeth from me to pay for the license. I don't like to marry a man of that kind, and get I hate to see $2 wasted.

CURIOUSITIES OF MICA.

Its Appearance Before It is Split Into Sheets.

The mica as it comes from the mines is in blocks which are theoretically short rhombic prisms, but practically are scarcely recognizable as such.

But the difficulties and losses of mica mining are far from being all enumerated. Even when occurring in blocks of commercial size it is rendered valueless, or comparatively so, by one or more of a series of defects.
